FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

Yes, the Lions had a dance... everybody was there, we guess, we were anyhow, can tell by the way we feel this morning... guests were getting a little old for that kind of foolishness... saw Mrs. Mamie Smith dancing as cute as she can be too...
Mayor Stapp was there, the biggest thing in the hall... so was Lieutenant
Johnson, not a midget himself... J.
S. Easterling, when told one of his sons (used for decoration) were going down, said, "There's one slow leak in every crowd."

Cecil Ramsey always has more fun than anybody... Dick Massey (we knew they didn't think that a pretty name) dancing with Mary Robinson Tucker, and Mary looking very pretty in her white evening gown... Buck looking our, somebody must have hit that corn we mean on the foot... Earl Parish and pretty wife dancing, seems Earl is getting a little stout... Julian Evans and the Lions Queen soloing, we guess him not but no avail... somebody hit Esther Mims wore red carnations we didn't see them... Mrs. Lande and an Irvin seem to enjoy themselves very much, either Mrs. Lande looks younger or Irvin is looking older and he chose the latter... Betty and Otto were there, out vote (and here a stick up neck out again) for the best lady on the floor, Betty Jones...

Geo. McCain can dance, and no fooling... new dancers, Mr. and Mrs. rowell mixing with all and we're glad to have them... and a visitor, Al fargolis, of Uniontown... intermission, drinks at the Dixie, all the orchistra there and half the dancers...
Jerry Pitts, et al., another representative of the Army, Dr. Joe Earl Gower of Fort Benning... Jerrell Burette and the missus, looking very much married, cute couple too... well, that's right, they've played Home, Sweet Home... see you January 30th at the resident's Ball... same orchestra, the Hall and everything...

Speaking of the President's Ball to held the latter-part of January, let's remember that this is the biggest and best President's Ball we have ever had. Cecil Mackey and his Orchestra will furnish the music and the proceeds will go to a good cause.

Now for some sleep. The holidays are over. For a while there were we wouldn't make it, but I guess it'd. Wouldn't it be fine to come up in bed and leave a call for out half-past January.

SA Borrowers Meet at City Hall

A group of 31 FSA borrowers met at City Hall last Thursday, December 19, for the purpose of discussing A borrowers in Chilton County and reaching and marketing problems of at and could be done to help these bor-

The meeting was called to order by Marvin Durbin and he pointed out problems that FSA borrowers had been in Chilton County in purchasthe necessary farm supplies. Also marketing their farm products. He told that FSA borrowers in Chilton county spent from 60 to 70 thousand each year to purchase livestock, machinery, feed, seed, fertilizers, etc. He also stated if FSA borrowers would pool their needs they would be able to purchase needed farm supplies at a great reduction. Also if they would market in farm products cooperatively it would mean higher prices. He then introduced Mr. A. D. Headley, president of the group, who led a short discussion and then introduced to the group Mr. M. E. Tidale, FSA Cooperative Specialist, who discussed with the group the possibilities of organizing a Chilton County FSA borrowers' association. Mr. Tidale had finished his discussion a vote was taken and a majority of all the borrowers present agreed to a purchasing agent and Marketing association should be formed for the benefit of FSA borrowers.

It was adopted at this meeting that Association would be named Chil-
County Purchasing and Marketing association and that a membership fee twenty-five cents per year be charged.

Health Office Issues Blood Test Report

Men who had blood tests taken following registration to the Army may now obtain a report from the local County Health Office. Dr. Crowell states that he will give out reports in Clanton on Friday and Saturday mornings of this week. Registrants living near Maplesville may obtain a report from the Maplesville Branch Office of the Health Department Friday afternoon
January 3. Reports will only be given to registrants presenting their registration card.

next meeting of the board of Directors to be called by the president of the association.

The Recruiting Service Hits the Road

Now the modern Army will come to you. The trim, silver truck and trailer shown above is one of the Recruiting Service's new offices on wheels, designed to reach localities where there are no established recruiting stations. They provide sleeping quarters for five men, as well as full office facilities. At right is an interior shot of one of the Army's swanky, new recruiting trailers with a recruiting sergeant preparing a recorded address for broadcast over its public address system. Completely equipped as a streamlined office, the trailer also provides living quarters, cooking stoves, sinks and clothes closets.

These mobile recruiting stations are now in operation in all the nine corps of the United States, two in each corps area.
Much public interest is being manifested in their activities.

Army Truck Will Be In Clanton January 8th

The new $5,000 mobile recruiting unit of the United States Army in the form of a truck and trailer is being brought to Clanton and its vicinity January 8, 1941 for the purpose of letting the public see and inspect it as well as to accept eligible young men who are desirous of enlisting in the Regular Army. There are many desirable openings in the Army at the present time.

The Army offers training in most major trades, travel, adventure, chance for advancement and cash pay from $21.00 to $157.00 per month in addition to their food, housing, clothing and medical attention that may be required. In addition to the excellent trade schools and practical working shops maintained by the Army at various posts there are a number of well studied schools where soldiers may voluntarily enroll for general courses and specialized military subjects. If he wants to return to civil life at the end of an enlistment he may prepare for it by learning a trade, without loss of time or pay. With this and the discharge that testifies to good character and faithful service, his earning capacity and ability to get a good paying job are greatly increased. He may also expect to return a much stronger and more capable man both mentally and

Letter To Local Board From Draftee

Company E, C A S C
Ft. Gragg, N. C.
December 25, 1940.
To Local Board No. 2—

When I was leaving on December
11th, I promised to write and tell you how I passed examination.
I passed all right at Induction Station. Made good as reception center and now I'm taking my recruit training here.

You can imagine how proud I am of passing because I was the first colored sent from Local Board No. 2. You may rest assured that I am going to do my best. I hope all the boys sent from good old Chilton will do likewise.
I would like to know if any more colored boys have been called yet. If you don't mind please let me know. I hope to join some of them soon.

I had many friends white and colored that told me when I was leaving to write and let them know how I like the Army. I cannot write to all that asked me. If it any way you can, please have this letter printed in the county papers so all my friends will know that I am well satisfied in Uncle Sam's Army. — Respectfully Yours, JOE SALES.

BERRY GROWERS WILL MEET IN CLANTON SAT., JANUARY 4

Several Outstanding Speakers of State-Wide Popularity Will Be Present

The Annual meeting of the Clanton
Berry Growers Association will be held in the auditorium of the courthouse in Clanton on Saturday, January 4th, beginning promptly at 9:00 o'clock a.m.
According to R. M. Roper, president of the Association, every berry grower throughout the county should by all means make arrangements to attend this meeting. The meeting is not solely for the berry grower, but is of interest to all farmers interested in the growing of fruits.

Mr. Roper also stated that several outstanding state-wide farm workers were to be present at this meeting.
The principal speaker for the day will be Haygood Patterson, commissioner of Agriculture of Alabama; John Ward secretary of the State Chamber of Commerce; Luther Fuller, general farm agent of the T. C. L. of Birmingham; T. J. Hayden, agricultural agent of the U. S. N. R. and Lyle Brown, Extension Horticulturist from the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.
Mr. Roper stated that prospects for a good strawberry year as "good" and at present there were approximately 20 members of the Clanton Berry

Growers Association, more or less, and Mr. Roper especially urged these members to be present.

Thorsby Eagles Trim Richville

In a fast and furious game recently, the Thorsby Green Eagles hung up victory No. 3 by winning over the close guarded team of Richville by the score of 31 to 21. Neither side scored much until the final quarter when the Rich-ville Yellow Jackets' defense cracked up and the Eagles swiftly piled up the winning margin.

J. Smith and Hilyer led the Eagles by scoring 7 points each, with Hannon and Woodfin leading for the losers with 5 points each.

On Tuesday night, December 17, the Eagles went to Stanton and won over the Stanton Independents for the 2nd time this season. The score was 33 to 18.

Mass Meeting At Courthouse

To Hon. C. E. Stapp, Mayor; Judge
J. Lee Smith, the Citizens of Clanton and Chilton County:
There will be a get-together meeting at the Courthouse in Clanton, Friday night, Jan. 3, 1941, beginning at 6:30 p.m.
As there has been so much talk for an against the organization of Labor in this section in the past few days the General Public is invited to be there, both white and colored, men and women.
You will miss a treat if you stay at home, so come and bring someone with you.

Defense Against Infantile Paralysis Well Underway

America's program of national defense against a stealthy enemy swung into high gear this week as business, labor and industry united for a record smashing 1941 "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign.
Responding to the nationwide enthusiasm which has been revealed by hundreds of letters pouring into headquarters, Keith Morgan, National Chairman of the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday left for a swing across the country.
Mr. Morgan's tour will take him to Chicago and Los Angeles. Returning to New York he will attend organization meetings and luncheons in Kansas City, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Columbus, Ohio and Detroit.

Meanwhile, scores of prominent Americans continued to inform National Headquarters that they will accept membership in the National Committee and declared their determination to fulfill the year's slogan: "Help the younger around your own corner."

Under the leadership of Secretary of War, Henry L. Stimson and Secretary of the Navy, Frank Knox, commanders of the armed forces and directors of Selective Service joined the battle against the crippling invader.
Chief of Staff General George C.
Marshall was among the first to pledge his support.

Industry gave its assurance of whole-hearted backing to the drive. Among the leaders in this battalion are F. L.
Fisher, vice-president of General Motors
Corporation, Edwin F. Chindlen
President of Postal Telegraph-Cable Company, Sothens Behn, president of International Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Labor's forces this year will be led by William Green, President of the A. F. of L.; Philip Murray, President of the C. I. O. and Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and a member of President Roosevelt's recently created super-defense commission.

The campaign will be formally launched on January 13. The first of thousands of "Home Parties" will be given by Mrs. Roosevelt on January 14; the "March of Dimes" will be conducted from coast to coast on a scale never before attempted. In Washington, D. C., the "Mile-O-Dimes" will share the spotlight with the gala festivities planned for January 30, President Roosevelt's 59th birthday. Stars of the stage and screen, and who have pledged their participation in the 1941
March of Dimes of the Air, directed by Eddie Cantor.

Marine Corps Recruiting Office Here

A temporary United States Marine Corps recruiting office will be established at the Post Office in Clanton on January 3rd and 4th, where young men living in this section may make applications for enlistment and obtain a free physical examination. Those accepted will be furnished transportation to Birmingham for final examination and enlistment.

The U. S. Marine Corps will shortly be increased in size, and there will be thousands of vacancies for advancement. Men enlisting now will be course be prepared for promotion as these vacancies occur.

The military service is recognized today as the best place to obtain training and advancement. Men are needed and the Government offers those volunteering an opportunity to better themselves, physically, mentally and financially.

The Marine Corps recruiting officer will gladly explain why ambitious young men should consider making the service their career, or how they can obtain the necessary training for a better job after serving one enlistment.
Qualifications are simple and easily met. White male citizens of the U. S. between 18 and 30 years of age are acceptable provided they are not married have no dependents, and can meet simple physical requirements. They must be of good moral character and have satisfactorily completed grammar school.

JOHN H. POWPELL
John H. Powpell, age 70, died at his

Clanton Methodist Church

Church school, 9:45 a.m. each Sunday. L. J. Stewart, general superintendent.

Morning worship service, 11:00. Sermon by pastor.

Young People's Meeting and Junior League, 6:30 p.m.

Evening worship service, 7:15. Sermon by pastor.

Every person is cordially invited and urged to work and worship with us in all our services this year, beginning with this the first Sunday of the year. Don't miss a single sermon or church school session or any services it is possible to attend.

Make an extreme effort to be there May we not think of this opening year as an altar whereon we may present to our God new offerings from our devoted hearts? A church that is fully consecrated to Christ an altar is walking raily under the anointing of the Holy Spirit will be ready for any emergency.

The disturbed state of society today forms a background out of which will naturally develop the events of the coming year. Believers need to be confirmed in their faith as they look toward the future. We may be triumphant through the Victorious One.

God Never is so far away, As even to be near;

He dwells within the yielded heart And makes a Heaven here."

Duties And Responsibilities Of Appeal Agents

The Government Appeal Agent has a dual responsibility under the Selective Training and Service Act. He protects the interests of the registrant and his dependents, and as his title indicates he also protects the interest of the Government. Detail an irresponsible agent:

(a). To review ALL CASES which have been completely classified and to appeal any classification which he thinks should be reviewed by the Board of Appeals.

(b). To protect the interest of registrants and their dependents by assisting them in furnishing information to the Local Boards and by advising them when and how to file appeals. To further protect the interests of ignorant registrants, where the decision of the Local Board is against the interests of such registrants, and it appears that the Government Appeal Agent should inform such registrants of their rights.

(c). To protect the interest of the Government by appealing any classification which is not in keeping with national health, safety or interest.

(d). To protect the interests of the employer by appealing for a deferment necessary for industry or agriculture.

(e). To impart or transmit to the Local Board any and all authentic information which might prove of value to the Local Board. To further aid the Local Board, any and all authentic information should be furnished to the Board.

Any registrant wishing to appeal his classification may get in touch with Percy M. Pitts, Government Appeal Agent, within five days after he receives his notice of classification.

Odd Shaft Marks Queer Court Edict

Result of Reciprocal Wills of Mother and Daughter.

NEW ORLEANS.—A $3,000 monument to an unusual court decision stands in a local cemetery.

It resulted from reciprocal wills executed here in June, 1928, by Mrs. Pauline Langley, 32-year-old widow, and her 35-year-old daughter, Marie, before they began a trip to France.

A few weeks later they died when the French liner Bourgogne collided in the North Atlantic with the iron sailing ship Commarthys. Their bodies were not recovered and no witnesses could be found to reveal which died first.

There was considerable litigation, the case reaching the state Supreme court. The justices thumbed through law books for a precedent and eventually ruled that the situation was controlled by civil code articles derived from the Code Napoleon. These held that in such a contingency it was presumed that survivorship favored the younger person.

Having solved that, the court had to decide another fine point. A provision in Miss Langley's will directed that $3,000 be spent for a tomb. This was contested on grounds that no one could be buried because the woman's body had not been found, but the Supreme court said that "tomb" could mean a "monument in memory of the dead."

The executor then erected a tall obelisk at the entrance of Metairie cemetery to "Angelle Marie Langley, 105 La. 39," the latter part referring to the state law report carrying the decision.

Design Meter to Aid Study Of Biochemical Substances

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—A high-speed recording spectrophotometer can automatically draw a curve that computes half-day studies in 100 seconds—has been developed at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The device which analyzes various materials was invented by Prof. George R. B. Bishop, director of the school's applied physics laboratories. It aids the study of vitamins, hormones, other biochemical substances and unstable chemical solutions. Also the machine records the rate of various intricate chemical reactions.

Similar to the ordinary absorption spectrophotometer, the invention surpasses it by drawing a graph curve. It interprets analysis results and eliminates the need of developing photographic records. Previously hours were needed for the interpretative phase.

River Level Determines School for Two Children

FREMONT, OHIO.—The water level of the Sandusky river determines the availability of a public schooling for the two children of Mr. and Mrs. William Garstens.

They live on a rocky island in the river, where Garstens is caretaker of the Winnous Point Shooting Club. The state furnishes free transportation for children living more than one-half mile from school. The state education department, however, hasn't offered any transportation for the Garstens' children, who must row two miles upstream when the river is high and even farther downstream in the event of low water.

Barber, Often Mulcted, Retains Faith in Men

GOSHEN, N. Y.—Charles Trigg's faith in his fellow man still is unshaken. Within a year Trigg: Paid a "considerable sum" for "securities"—an envelope full of tissue paper.

Bought a "diamond" ring whose value depreciated sharply with a jeweler's inspection.

Cashed a worthless check for another stranger.

Now Trigg has posted $250 cash bail for a man, likewise unknown to him, charged with the theft of 39 bags of onions.

"But the poor fellow was in jail," Trigg, a barber, explained.

Romance Lasts 7 Years, Marriage Just Six Months

LONDON.—A man who knew his wife for 17 years before he married her was engaged to her for seven years, but had only been granted a decree nisi in London on the grounds of desertion.

Granting the decree to the man, Thomas William Clark, Justice Bucknill said that the only explanation Mrs. Clark gave for leaving her husband was that he paid too much attention to his mother, but had a separate flat.

Mrs. Clark contested the petition.

Indians Practice Dance Rites of Dead Civilization

Follow Ancient Aztec Ritual In Event Marking Climax Of Feast to Saint.

SAN LORENZO, CHIHUAHUA, MEXICO.—Dance rites of a civilization long dead came to life again recently when Indian inhabitants of this little village in northern Mexico ended a week-long ceremony honoring their patron saint—San Lorenzo.

Climaxing the annual feast of San Lorenzo (St. Lawrence) is a ceremony whose origin is long forgotten. It bears marked resemblance to certain parts of the old Aztec sun dance, and woven among the rites is the historical pageantry of the Spanish conquest of Mexico, and a faithful devotion to tenets of the Catholic church.

Starts at Dawn

The ceremony begins at dawn in this little village just south of the United States. Grotesquely masked and contorted participants shuffle in measured cadence into the village churchyard, where they offer individual prayers and ask for favors of San Lorenzo.

Then the dancers, carrying bows and arrows and gourd rattles, and bedecked in shirt-like costumes of bright red—the old Aztec color—begin their pagan weaving and rocking with weird chanting.

Heads, upon which have been placed plumed headdress and fierce masks, nod in time with the rhythmic beat of the tom-toms accompanying the shrill flute and thrumming gourd.

The dance is part of the votive "Las Matanchas" rites, which are older than the coming of the Conquistadores and are celebrated in the less urban parts of Mexico on three big days during the year: San Lorenzo day, one of them.

The dances, according to the Indians themselves, represent the struggle between good and evil, and have many variations according to the locality and the group performing.

Origin Is Obscure

No historian or anthropologist has been able to determine the exact origin of the dance, but the rites are believed to be a mixture of ideas handed down through centuries.

There are only three readily identifiable figures in the dance—Malinche, representing Good; El Chirion, Evil, and Montezuma (Monarco), the leader of the evil people.

Historically, Malinche was an Indian girl who deserted her tribe to become Cortez's mistress and who led him and his Spanish followers as their guide and interpreter.

In the rites of San Lorenzo day, the "evil" Malinche is the tallest man in the village, heads the group of evil spirits.

Malinche traditionally is played by a young, serious maiden, who has been chosen by lot and in this part is enacted by a slim big-eyed boy—chosen because he can endure the long hours of dancing better.

The Indian dancers seldom can give explanations of what they are doing. All day, without stop, the dancers go through the long, sweeping motions, rocking backwards and forwards, and at times going into a two-foot shuffle.

School Units Study and Store Job for 67 Girls

PITTSBURGH.—A "store-and-school" co-operative education plan, sponsored jointly by local merchants and the board of public education, is furnishing an increasing volume of trained help to local department, chain and specialty stores.

Began four years ago, and gaining new students each term, the plan has an enrollment of 67 young women. These pupils attend classes daily from 8 to 11 a. m. and work in stores during the afternoon.

Applicants for the complete are interviewed by store employers and students are not enrolled unless some store has promised them a part-time job. The class is part of the extension program of the board of public education.

Classes, held at the Bellefield Girls' Vocational school, include instruction in store organization, history and operation; merchandise inventory and effective selling.

Vermont Man Uses Ad For Denial He Is Dead

BURLINGTON, VT.—Indignantly, John Edwin Wadsworth, 78 years old, of South Hero, Vt., inserted an advertisement in local newspapers that read:

"Mr. John E. Wadsworth wishes to say: To report he is dead and buried is absolutely false."

Injured slightly in a bus accident, Wadsworth first learned of his reported death when a friend arrived for the funeral.

Ret, Disqualified by Age, Will Fight to Get in Army

FAMAGOSTA, PA.—Leslie Williams, 74, World War veteran, was rejected for military service because he was over age. Despite his disqualification, Williams appealed to Daniel Boyle, state judge and ex-governor of Pennsylvania, to intervene with government officials so he could enlist in the motor transport corps.

Williams said he was a "patriot" and wanted to "do his part" for his country.

Mrs. Clark contested the petition.

Flight Training Enjoins Safety

Design of Instruction in Changes as New Factors Appear.

ST. LOUIS.—As aircraft design has changed to incorporate safety factors, so has the design instruction in the art of flying changed. With several thousand college students and graduates being trained to constitute a reserve of pilots for national emergency, it is necessary that as many as possible survive.

Hence the so-called "contingency course" laid down by the aeronautics board for use of all private flying schools which instruct in the first eight hours of instruction and two or three hours solo if he qualifies for a CAA B training course.

Here's what the embryo flyer in the first eight hours of instruction must do: He must fly solo in a two or three hour solo if he qualifies for a CAA B training course.

Then, with an instructor in the cockpit, the student has his half-hour of solo.

It's Hard to Learn. At 1,500 feet the instructor tells the student and indicates that simple first "banks of climb" try to apply the things learned in ground school. Within two minutes he has recalled the line in the manual which reads:

"Fly the steepest climb that the world to learn; and the easiest to do."

For the first three hours of instruction, the lessons consist of simple first "banks of climb" and a brief introduction to "pulls"—a maneuver which slips the wings of a novice's heart and allows it to drift into his throat.

Then, with the instructor in the cockpit, the student has his half-hour of solo.

At this point in the training, the instructor makes the student dismount from the cockpit, the use of headphones, the use of a compass, and the use of a compass.

So the student is assisted through each lesson with a running fire criticism. And he can't talk because there is no speaking while the instructor has no hands.

Danger in Sloppy Flying. At about the seventh hour of instruction, the student is instructed to fly a "home field" some 10 miles away over open country and the novice is introduced to the very sudden and sometimes surprising possibilities latent in flying.

These consist of all types of "spins," from all types of maneuvers. These are spins from turns, spins from a climb, and spins from a glide. The student is instructed to fly a "home field" some 10 miles away over open country and the novice is introduced to the very sudden and sometimes surprising possibilities latent in flying.

The latter type is the most dangerous, and occurs when an applies pressure on opposite sides and rudder. The spin from a glide turn is the most dangerous, and occurs when an applies pressure on opposite sides and rudder. The spin from a glide turn is the most dangerous, and occurs when an applies pressure on opposite sides and rudder.

When the student has eight hours of instruction—no less—thoroughly ready for solo, he gets his solo.

From then on he flies a little by himself. For half of the ride he gets additional instruction when he goes up alone and flies.

And, what if the student practices? Well, the instructor it out on the next check flight.

Storks Bring Boers Dutch Messages About Nieuwburg, South Africa.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA.—Recent reports in this report that some of the 7,000 migrating here in their annual 7,000 migration from The Netherlands carrying written messages of condition of the Dutch under rule.

One farmer said that he had this scribbled message from one of a migrating stork:

"We inhabitants of Berge Zoom tell you German occupiers just hell." Another said, "The people are dying under injustice."

Father Bids Greek Soldier Return Only if Victorious

ATHENS.—In a package of rettes sent to the Greek soldier the front of the rette was a letter in the spirit of old Sparta.

"Smoke these cigarettes," message read, "and if you lose to be my son, I remind you of blessing and love you. If you return victorious, do not return to your father's home."

Drawbridge on Dry Land But Tender Sticks

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—Solway receives $50 a month bridge tender on a bridge not operate.

The war department does not have a bridge tender on a stream, despite the fact the has become too shallow for thing except small power boats only that, the river channel shifted and the drawbridge over dry land.

Spies in Britain Pose As Insurance Agents
LONDON.—A new guise to worm service secrets from unsuspecting housewives and mothers is reported in England.
Insurance agents, men offer policies for sons and husbands in the forces, and demand details of regiments and stations, stressing that the policy is not valid without these details.

Lame Pair Design Home for Comfort
Ramps Take Place of Steps For Easy Going.

CLEVELAND.—The Donald R. Freys are building a home they have designed themselves. This, in itself, is unusual, except that the Freys are both crippled with infantile paralysis.
Their home has several distinctive features that will make living easier for them. The main entrance is by a wheelchair, and his wife has to rely on crutches. The house will have no steps. Ramps to all doors lead the way from the outside and multi-ramps lead to the rooms.
All the rooms, the garage, and a utility room containing the heating plant are reached from a hall five feet wide running through the center of the house.
When the Freys drive up to their garage, they will stop at a post built on the side of the drive and insert a key, and the doors will open and the garage lights turn on. Once inside they will be able to step out of the car and into the hall of their home.
Mrs. Frey will have the assistance of every domestic housekeeping device available. All doors will be sliding and all windows will be manipulated with small handles that will require only turning.

'Play' Railroad Is Envy
Of Railroad Officials
MANDVILLE, LA.—Model rail readers envy the eyes of Sidney J. Thibodeaux, president and general manager of the Mandeville Northern Railroad.

Thibodeaux is chief executive of the Mandeville Northern gauge railroad line. His Mandeville Northern line—500 feet long—runs from his home to the shore of near-by Lake Ponchartraine.
But there are three stations on the route—Lafayette, Davis and Stella. Each of the stops is named for one of Thibodeaux's three grandchildren, for whom he built the real "play railroad."
Passes issued annually by the railroad, countersigned by Thibodeaux, are an envied item among railroad officials of the nation. Many visitors stop here are invited to ride the full length of the line and return.

New Ore 'Finds' Aid to Nation's Defense Program
WASHINGTON.—Prospects of additional supplies of quicksilver for the nation's defense program have been referred to Secretary of the Interior, Ickes by the Geological Survey which, in conjunction with the bureau of mines, is investigating strategic mineral areas throughout the United States.

The areas in which quicksilver surveys have been completed include the Bottle Creek district, Nevada, and the Mt. Diablo district, California.
The mineral is listed by the armymunitions board as one of the 14 strategic materials in which the United States is deficient.

Historic Well Still Is Serving Salt Lake City
SALT LAKE CITY.—An old well, once the favorite water supply of home brewers, and before that, watering trough for the thirsty horses of the Salt Lake valley, still performs public service to the community.
Many Salt Lakers seem to prefer product to the regular city drinking water.

Hundreds of persons daily drive to the well during the summer months to enjoy the cool, carbonated water. Customers line up to fill their water jugs.

Bear Waddles 30 Miles
For Meal in Former Cage
SWANNANOVA, N. C.—Minnie, a 15-year-old black bear, was in home, away from home today near more to roam.
For more than 13 years, playful Minnie, big and ungainly, lived in a cage at Recreation park near here, the delight of the children and adults alike. Last July Minnie was "retired" to Pisgah National forest, 30 miles away.
But a short time later she came home, to her own free will, gaudy and hungry.
Hers was a royal welcome with a meal fit for a king and Minnie was delighted with her cage again.

Musical Child, 2, Has Repertory of 57 Popular Songs Learns Melodies and Words From Mother; Sings in Perfect Pitch.

PASADENA, CALIF.—Donald Crowell, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Crowell, has a repertory of 57 songs, all of which he can sing from memory, in good pitch and with clear enunciation.
The child's mother discovered that Donald could sing when he was 20 months old.
"I was an old-fashioned mother," she said, "who sang lullabies to my baby. But when he was about 20 months old, I started to find that he was singing them in duet with me, with perfect pitch and most of the words. Now he knows all the words of his songs and is constantly asking for new ones to memorize and sing."
Eager to Learn New Songs.
When Donald hears his mother sing a song he doesn't know, he immediately wants to learn the words and music.
"Often he puts me on the spot," Mrs. Crowell said, "when I hum a song of which I do not know the words. I usually find him then obliged to get a copy."
The latest songs for which Donald asked the words were "My Old Kentucky Home," "Swanee River," and "The Star Spangled Banner." Donald is put on the porch to sing in accompaniment.

Repertory Is Lengthy.
His repertory is as follows: "Baby," "Dixie," "Rockabye," "I Love You Truly," "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," "Smile the While," "Goodnight Ladies," "Sweet and Low," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Star Spangled Banner," "Careless," "Beer Barrel Polka," "Drifting and Dreaming," "Moonlight and Roses," "Go Away, America," "America," "Jack and Jill," "Someone Like You," "There's Music in the Air," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," "Mexicali Rose," "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles," "School Days," "Sweet Adeline," "Moonlight Bay," "Ole Black Joe," "South of the Border," "When You Wish Upon a Star," "Polly Wolly Doodle," "The Old Mill Stream," "The Red White and Blue," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "The Little Dutch Mill," "The Lost Chord," "Long, Long Train," "Love's Old Sweet Song," "Listen to the Mocking Bird," "Oh, Johnnie," "Swanee River," "My Bonnie," "Man with the Moon in His Hand," "Holly Night," "Jingle Bells," "Holly Night," "Comin' Through the Rye," "Marching Through Georgia," "Auld Lang Syne," "Juanita," "Little Brown Jug," "The Goodbye Song," "Your Easter Bonnet," "Smiles," "Pack Up Your Troubles," "Wishing," "In an Old Dutch Garden," "Daisy," and "Where Has My Little Dog Gone?"

Scientific 'Eye' Put to Use in Research Work
LOS ANGELES.—Research with science's powerful new eye, the electron microscope, with which objects have been magnified 25,000 times and more—over 10 times the highest power of ordinary microscopes—has been started on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.
Experimental work with a demagnifying model of the new instrument is under way by Carl Wiedow, graduate student, under the direction of Dr. Laurence E. Dodd, assistant professor of physics.
It was explained that the use of the magnetic fields instead of glass lenses reveals a world invisible to light. Only objects visible to ordinary light are now in the vision of microscopes now in use.

Mr. Mann Can Charge $40 More for His House
MIAMI, FLA.—Termites did not harm a house owned by M. C. Mann, but they left him $40 poorer and a good deal wiser.
A woman appeared at Mann's home, explained she wanted to buy the house. A short time later, a man called and told Mann a woman interested in buying the home had engaged him to inspect it for termites.

After a half hour spent beneath the house, the man crawled out and demanded $40 for exterminating a "nest of termites." Mann paid him $40, but when he called on the prospective buyer and the "exterminator" failed to make another appearance.

Private Radios to Please Prisoners in California
SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—California's new state prison board has decided on the immediate installation of carphone radio connections in the cells of its two prisons—San Quentin and Folsom. Also, a cafeteria system for hot food will take the place of the former service at table.

$1,500 a Day Heir Is Most Expensive Child in World
$1,701,000 Spent for Support Of Libby Holman's Son In Past Three Years.

BALTIMORE.—Little Christopher Smith Reynolds, son of the former Libby Holman, torch singer, appears as to be firmly established, by a court order just approved here, as the most expensive child in the world.
The order approves an accounting by his guardians of the expenditure during the past three years of the neat sum of $1,701,940.45 for Christopher's "support, maintenance, education and recreation."
This, a little mathematics will show, amounts to more than $1,500 a day. All to take care of one seven-year-old boy who, according to his own mother, doesn't yet suspect he's rich.
By scoring this record mark in the high cost of juvenile living, little Christopher seems to live up to his family nickname, which is "Topper."
"Topper" Tops Record.
Ordinary people gasped some years ago when they learned it had cost something like $150,000 to "Bail" out of the County Reformatory—through her debutante year. But "Topper," according to the court record, tops that every three months.
Where does "Topper's" money all go? Well, the full details are buried in Baltimore's Orphans' court, where the accounting was filed.
"Topper" had to pay for the maintenance of the big estates where he resides with his mother and stepfather, even though Topper occupies a very small part of it. He has paid a federal income tax of $47,197 for the year of 1939 alone. During the same period, his mother received $91,666.57 for his "support and education."
"Topper" had to pay for the unusual expenses for a small stable of prize ponies; servants; guards to protect him from kidnappers; heavy legal fees (amounting to $151,000 last year) and all sorts of other things that don't come under the head of ice cream and cake.

Thinks He's Broke.
"I want 'Topper' to learn to work," his mother said recently. "At our estate in Connecticut, he walks after the gardener, picking up armfuls of grass and carrying it to the house."
He also "gives him a quarter for the whole job and he bargains with me about whether it is enough. He has no idea he is a rich boy. In fact, I overheard him say he gets a job on a hopper. We need money."
Libby Holman scarcely needs to be as she received $750,000 under the will of her father, the late "Topper" approximately $700,000.
This was in 1936, four years after "Topper's" young father, Zachary Smith Reynolds, died of a mysterious bullet wound while having a gay birthday party at his home in Winston-Salem, N. C.
"Topper's" legacy comes originally from the Reynolds tobacco millions, of which his late father inherited a $28,000,000 slice.

Sun Worshipers Found In Turkey Near Istanbul
ISTANBUL.—A family of sun worshipers, speaking its own ancient language, has been found living in isolation in a remote village of Phrygia, European Turkey, within 50 miles of Istanbul, it was reported recently.
There are 24 in the family—12 women, 6 men and 6 children. Their ancestors are said to have been from Egypt during the reign of Emperor Fath, 600 years ago, and succeeding generations have followed their custom.
They dress in white, like the nomads of the desert, and have camels or turkeys to enter their domain, and sacrifice oxen on a fiery altar six times a year.
The family discovered when one of its men, named Rustem, was sentenced to 16 years in prison for having murdered a Turkish girl he had kidnapped.

His Hiding Place Turns Out to Be Too Perfect
CONCORD, N. H.—A man here picked the perfect hiding place.
Scampering through several blocks to elude officers, he ducked down some stairs to a basement. He fumbled in the dark, found a small room.
In the room was a mattress and he covered himself with it.
He didn't, until Jailor Bert Ball found him a short time later, know that he was hiding in the "dungeon" sometimes used for incorrigible prisoners.

Detective's Manual Is Reminder of His Error
DALLAS.—Detective Elmer Gatty parked his automobile in a 20-minute zone and dashed into the central police station to get his mail.
He found a book of "rules and regulations" being distributed to all policemen, and spent 30 minutes studying it.
Suddenly he groaned. He pointed to Article 7, Section 6, page 43, which read: "A policeman may be discharged for conviction of violation of any city ordinance."
He was in his car. It had a ticket for over-parking.

Mouse Bite Is Fatal To Animal Trainer
BERLIN.—Berlin newspapers report the death in Vienna of Rudolf Leonardi, lion tamer, from the bite of a mouse. Blood poisoning resulted in his death eight days later, the newspapers said.
Leonardi had been bitten frequently by lions, tigers and bears without serious consequences.

Tests Show Many Can 'Read Minds' 250 Sketch Pictures That They Never Saw.

NEW YORK.—A scientific experiment which indicates that probably humans possess a little mind-reading ability is announced in the Journal of Parapsychology.
Two hundred and fifty persons made sketches of 2,200 pictures hanging on a wall, pictures they never saw and the nature of which they had not hint.
Among these "blind" copies 1,209 were sufficiently like the originals to be interesting. Using the random chance, this made the odds 30,000 to 1 in favor of some mysterious mental trait accounting for the likenesses.
The experiment was conducted in England by W. Whitley Carrington, psychologist. He gave each person a photograph of a study room, where at seven o'clock on each night of experiment a picture would be placed on the top shelf of a bookcase.
The drawing remained in place until 9 a. m. the next day, and the person trying to "read the mind" could sketch his hunch at any time.
The pictures were simple. Once a calendar was left hanging by mistake under the night's drawing, and the next evening one person drew a calendar.
Carrington said it was not the picture, but the idea or word it represented, which was most often imitated. He suggests that the idea of the picture passed from the mind of the maker to other minds. What this ability is he said he does not know, but said that "it is likely to be an attribute of all humanity with nothing alarmingly magical about it."

Defines Qualifications For Diving Profession
DAVENPORT, IOWA.—It is more than 1,000 miles from Iowa to either the Gulf of Mexico or the Pacific ocean, but Davenport nevertheless boasts a bona fide deep sea diver.
Phil Mackey, 32, received his training in the navy. Now he confines his adventures to the Pacific coast, but Davenport nevertheless boasts a bona fide deep sea diver.
A diver, Mackey said, must be able to hold his breath for 24 hours before going under the water and must not eat for at least two hours before tackling a job, Mackey said. He also added the following items are not qualified to become divers: Those with short necks, full bodied and florid complexions.
Those who are prone to motion sickness or are slightly deaf.
Those with a high pulse rate, or those who are very pale or have poor circulation.
Those who drink heavily.

Make Study of Wind as Source of Electricity
CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—Streamlined windmills may dot New England hills if plans for furnishing commercial electrical power prove successful.
"The power here would be much more reliable than water power," according to Dr. Charles F. Brooks, director of Harvard university's Blue Hill meteorological observatory.
"Utilization of wind rather than water power was made particularly clear in the drought of the last summer," he said. "Our surveys during the year have disclosed that the wind power in New England is much steadier and fully equal to the task of generating commercial electricity."
Engineers already have devised a machine for use that is similar to those seen on many farms, he said.

Strict Control at Border Hits This Town in Purse
CALEXICO, CALIF.—Strict regulation of aliens is a headache to the Gray triad, a gang which failed to make the Alma Mater of both teams. Incidentally the band formed huge black letters, one immense "U" and a similarly large "S".
Before the game, Montgomery's Dexter Avenue played host to banked floats from throughout the state. Floats of the Lion's Club, of the City of Montgomery, of the State of Alabama, of the cities of Prattville and Selma, of life insurance societies, and of the Charles T. Lewis, played a great part in the day's entertainment.
All the floats carried And the hands of Huntsville, Troy, out the theme of the unity of America. Tuscaloosa, Sidney Lanier, Starke, Baldwin, and many more augmented the patriotic program with American national songs.

Montgomery didn't stop with a parade and a football game, though. The annual Blue-Gray ball at the City Auditorium ended the week end fiesta which proved that Southern hospitality is not dead, and shall not die.

INSPIRATION FOR THIS PASTOR

WELL, another year is behind us. Let us look forward for a great year in the Lord's work. We are not going to slacken our traces (so to speak) one inch.
We are really thankful for the blessings of life during the past year. "Well, the preacher is just losing his time" My answer to this group of birds is just this: You just don't care what you say or you don't know any better.
And even if I am loquacious my tongue on souls all combined and also cracking your health and endangering the health and lives of others, to say nothing of the homes that is being troubled and even torn to pieces by this sinful traffic.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this means to express to our friends and neighbors our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for their kindness and help and sympathy shown us during the death of our beloved husband and father, William Henry Little, Jr. We also thank the undertakers, Mr. Griffin and Mr. Kelly for their kind assistance. May the Lord's blessings be with each of you in his prayer.—Mrs. Little and children.

THE NORTH WINS AGAIN

By Irvin Lande
Montgomery was in all its glory last Saturday. For that day, "The Cradle of the Confederacy" paid gracious respect to the football stars of the North and the South. Montgomery looked to its sport wagon and found it hitched to a football star.
Under an overcast sky, the Blue and the Gray battled through their third annual football contest. The boys dressed in Blue and the boys clad in Gray became part of Montgomery's festivities and before the day was over the Gray and the Blue had found a mutual color for both their uniforms. The color was the mud of Crampton threatened to score again in the last minute of the first half of the ball. Rowell's rain-soaked battlefield.
Beginning promptly at one-thirty, the North scored quickly after a very few plays with a longifty yard pass. A whole host of Southern and Northern backs leaped up for the coveted pigskin but a Blue flash held on to the first six points of the ball game. Mike Buchianeri of Indiana converted the extra point, and the North led.
Retaliating quickly, the Grays scored a touchdown on a pass and run play. McGowan of Auburn failed to make the extra point, and the North kept its lead, by a score of 7 to 6. The Blue game when a long run stoppe on the one-half foot line.
The Blue scored again in the third period with a line buck from the one yard line after a long pass had set up the touchdown. Buchianeri again converted, and the South fell far behind.
Grandstand spectators yelled for a Southern attempt at a field goal, but the Gray tried a pass which failed and brought the second South, scoring threat to a dead close. But the South came and netted their second touchdown with "Galloping" Tony Galovich of Lake Forest doing the honors. McGowan of Auburn failed to make the extra point, and the final score of the ball game was 14 to 12 with the North taking the third of a series of gridiron battles.

Thus far, the Gray have won one game and the Blue have won two. Saturday's battle was on a rain-soaked and wet field, but the boys paid no attention to that, and raced on in free and open style. The North blocked a little harder and tackled a little stronger, and that was the main difference. But though the Blue-Gray fought for their sections of the country, all were united in a belief for America, and America First. Significantly enough the huge Tuscaloosa High School Band played "The Stars Spangled Banner" as the Alma Mater of both teams. Incidentally the band formed huge black letters, one immense "U" and a similarly large "S".
Before the game, Montgomery's Dexter Avenue played host to banked floats from throughout the state. And even if I am loquacious my tongue on souls all combined and also cracking your health and endangering the health and lives of others, to say nothing of the homes that is being troubled and even torn to pieces by this sinful traffic.

We appreciate the cooperation of our friends in this fight. Just a few days ago, a fine Christian gentleman who is employed as a clerk in one of the main business places in Clanton called to me and related a recent story concerning two men and their wives (he supposed) together with another lady (or woman) who stepped behind some boxes and emptied a bottle of whiskey. All of them indulging. This young man said he had often heard of these things. He said, "I saw, my people told the bottle down and the young man laid it out and showed it to this writer. I somewhat doubt the propriety of this place having any knowledge of this incident, but there are places in our town of Clanton that the proprietors do know that their guests are going on in their places of business."

We trust that our business men will cooperate with us to the end that we may have more respectable places for our business. In our town, there are some respectable places in our little town, and we really appreciate them.

We too, appreciate the steps that are being taken by our City Mayor and City Council to eradicate the drunks. We have stood together with many of our best citizens and watched men wable along our side walks wondering when somebody would make a start to do something about this disgraceful act. We do know that these men are suffering from one side of the walk to do something about this disgraceful act. We do know that these men are suffering from one side of the walk to do something about this disgraceful act.

Now, my friends, it is not my desire to see people get into trouble, but the betterment of people in this county is getting tired of being bumped into by these sots, and I for one, believe it should be done. I am sure that I certainly believe in cooperation with officers toward helping bring about the much-needed improvement about these things and I believe they will tell you that I have done this. I fear some times that we are making a mistake of standing aside and criticizing instead of getting in the harness and helping. Our officers appreciate our help of they are the right kind and we appreciate fine work being done by our officers, but I believe a little more tightening down would get better results.

An ex-policeman recently handed me a clipping (supposedly clipped for this writer) which we highly appreciate. One sentence ran as follows: "In the city of Birmingham, there were 250 arrests made in the vicinity of South Side Jail during Christmas Eve and Wednesday. The charges ran anywhere from drunkenness to murder." When this was sifted down, we find an arrest was made every 12 minutes.

We are sure that the citizens of our town without seeing our officers carrying some one to jail, but many times they just get Hotel treatment, which is all right, and they should have the best of care, but as long as we just lead with these drunks, they are stumbling them around a few minutes by the arm and do nothing else about it, we are ahead of us everywhere we go.
Citizens and fellow officers, can this scribe be of any help any way. I stand by the officers and I am ready to render service possible I live for one-half mile Northeast of Clanton on Route 5—M Lockhart.

The Great Majority of United States Citizens Want Peace

SELFISH MINORITY WOULD INVOLVE U. S. IN EUROPE'S HOLOCAUST OF BLOOD

That a great majority of the citizens of the United States want peace is unquestioned, however there are selfish interests, that for hoped-for personal gain, are doing all they can to plunge this country into war.

A decadent aristocracy in England aided by a handful of plutocrats seem to have joined hands with the would-be aristocracy of the United States, together with a very healthy plutocracy, to put this hemisphere into the European cage. The aristocrats are afraid of losing prestige, the plutocrats hope for greater gains.

The Southern Alamo of Birmingham, sums it up thuswise:

"There are two groups in the United States. The interest of one is to keep the country out of war; the interest of the other is to get into war.

Of the one hundred and thirty million Americans, there are to lose tremendously. The others, being less than one-half of one per cent think they will gain.

Why does this handful want war? There are numerous reasons, and we list some of them, starting with the least important:

1. There is money to be made in furnishing the materials used in the war.

2. The immensely wealthy get a stronger hold upon the entire business machinery of the country. Their profits are guaranteed. They are so dependent against taxes and can hold their position in the crashes after the war fever is over.

3. A great public debt is piled up to pay safe, tax-free, place to invest their profits.

4. They wish to capture, markets, sources of cheap labor, cheap ores, cheap agricultural lands, cheap timber, cheap oil, in outlying sections of the earth. This is the really great prize of the bloody international conflict. The stakes are tremendous; they are world empires of enslaved humanity and raw materials.

Why should the overwhelming majority want peace even though many of them are deceived into believing they too, have a stake to win in war?

War economy kills greater burdens upon them. Wages rise as employment goes up a little but prices and taxes increase tremendously and leave the masses poorer than they were before.

2. The position of the farmer and small businessman becomes less secure due to the greater domination of the great monopolies.

3. The people find the national debt and interest burden multiplied. This debt will make it more difficult to get government appropriations for relief, health, land-conservation, public schools and the many things the people need most. And the need for government in these lines will be increased by the reaction of the war.

4. The capture of markets is sold to the public under the name of "protecting our foreign commerce." This kind of commerce pauperizes our people. It is good manufactured and farm products made in colonial lands are sold in world markets in competition with goods of the same kind produced under better standards of living here. The monopolists even bring their cheap products into their own country and sell it in competition with local goods. They arrange tariff walls to suit themselves.

5. The overwhelming majority do the sweating, fighting and dying, for this plan which does themselves harm, which keeps millions enslaved in far-away places.

6. War takes the blessing out of liberty. As shown elsewhere on this page the plan to take away our democratic rights has been worked out in detail, and we will get them back after the war, if they will ever come.

This is the picture of what the two groups have to gain or lose in the war that is now in feverish preparation for them. They have the power to prevent it. They can put such pressure on their Congressmen, Senators, and the President that they will cease and desist from the steps now leading us into the war.

But nothing short of tremendous public outcry will prevent this calamity. The people for every act, that they are determined to get the United States into the world catastrophe.

No amount of clever wags or smart propaganda about "defending democracy" can deny the awful consequences of such a complete betrayal of public interest."

that we blame things about us for being shaky, when we alone are to be held responsible. Be quiet and calm and the paper in your hand will not tremble.

Over in Georgia there was a negro deacon who was made chairman of a committee to select a preacher for his vacant pulpit. After two weeks on the committee the old deacon resigned, his brother said, "Uncle Sam, how are you getting along in selecting a new preacher for your church?" His reply was, "Boss, I am done resigned from that committee." Why did you do that? asked his white friend. Well, Boss, it was my day, I decided that I had rather be a backbite than to be a backbiter. The man who tries to be a backbite, who never tries to be the one who backbites. The man who tries to be the one who suffers from backbites. Who is that had not rather backbite than to be backbitten.

A colored negro preacher was reporting to his Association and said, "I tell you brethren, I am having a warm time down at my church. Dar am not many of us, but we keep the water hot and sometimes I think that I must jump out of the frying pan." The Moderator said, "My brother how many members do you have in your church?" "Sixteen" was the ready reply. "Well then how many active members you do have in that number?" was the next question coming from the chair. The preacher replied, "I tell you Mr. Chairman, I am all active very active. Eight of dem am for me and eight of dem am for me and not one of de sixteen am inactive." If you want to see an active church membership, tongue and too just get them about equally divided and the war will fire. That is activity without real church life.

Motor Vehicle Taxes Increase

New York--The American Petroleum Industries Committee has estimated that motor vehicle taxes accruing to federal state and local governments increased by $140,000,000 in 1940 to an all-time high of approximately $1,850,000,000.

Federal and state gasoline taxes, the committee said in a year-end estimate, were estimated at $1,116,000,000; registration fees, $450,000,000; sales and excise taxes $200,000,000 and local levies the balance.

The 1941 automotive tax bill, the statement said, was expected to reach the $2,000,000,000 mark.

What Has Sherlock Against Chilton Co. And U. S. 31

The Daily papers throughout the State last Friday carried a release from the State Highway Department through the State Department of Publicity, urging all traffic to and from the Blue-Gray football game at Montgomery on last Saturday to beware of U. S. 31. The article stated that because of heavy rains the highway near Clanton was impassable. This of course was not true. We traveled it both ways. Perhaps a mile, which is being worked, and as yet has not been blacktopped is a little muddy, but as far as driving is concerned, it is not now and was not when the overworked Sherlock propaganda mill gave out the "release." Now, what we would like to know is, what has Chris Sherlock against southern tourists taking this route? It is not that the Highway north and south of Clanton should have been repaired months and months ago. More than year ago when the State Highway Department was experimenting with some cheap highway repairing this could and should have been taken care of.

State Awarded $7,714,000 In Orders

Many Alabama Plants Get Requisitions For Needs In Defense

Montgomery, Ala. -- Alabama was awarded $7,714,340 in defense projects and orders between Dec. 1 and Dec. 15, bringing the total of the national defense program to $54,047,708, was shown in summary by the Office of Government Reports.

War Department orders accounting for $7,419,657 of the December 1-15 total, navy contracts for $2,365, and WPA releases for $292,318.

The navy's total business, however, still topped all others, being $32,626,596 to date. Practically the entire amount will go toward construction of four destroyers at Mobile shipyards. The army orders total $26,927,317.

A breakdown of orders and projects for the first 15 days of December, compiled by the Office of Government Reports and National Defense Commission follows:

Army--Rehabilitation of nitrate plant No. 2 at Muscle Shoals for production of ammonia, $6,500,000; Greason Mill Company, Lanett, $1,000,000; J. W. Well-Lumber Co., Montgomery, lumber, $1,982.

WPA--Releases--improve airport at Birmingham, $255,029; improve airport near Winfield, $21,528; construct target range at Fort McClellan, Anniston, $15,761.

Alabamians Urged To Help Stamp Out Polio

Alabamians were urged Saturday by Dr. J. N. Baker, state health officer to do their part in support of the campaign against infantile paralysis which reaches its climax on the president's birthday, Jan. 30.

"The people of this state have good reason to know the tragedy and heartbreak which this disease brings to its victims and to their families and friends. They no doubt still remember the disquieting epidemic which appeared here in Alabama in 1936, limited largely to the northern and central counties causing the reported cases to reach 391 for the year. They hope that such an epidemic will never again be known in Alabama.

"The best way to prevent such a thing is to support in every possible way, the efforts of the health officer in his fight against the disease's secret and determine what method may be employed with greatest success against it. Fortunately this is a work which everyone should have a part."

The state health officer expressed the hope that the studies and research work now being carried out may soon result in the discovery of measures which will greatly curb the killing and crippling of this disease.

L. D. Rouse, of Montgomery, has accepted the state chairmanship of 1941. He is now engaged in building a state organization embracing a chairman in each of the counties. The method of fund-raising will be left largely to the ingenuity of the local chairman but the division of receipts will be uniform.

Funeral Services Held For Judge Coleman

Anniston, Ala.--Funeral rites for Thomas W. Coleman, Calhoun County judge for 24-years was held at 2:30 p. m. Sunday. Judge Coleman died Saturday.

The service was held from the First Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Melton Clark officiating, assisted by Rev. Charles R. Bell, Jr., pastor of Parker Memorial Church.

Judge Coleman, member of an Alabama family long identified with the State's political and judicial history was graduated in law from the University of Virginia and received his doctorate in law from the University of Alabama in 1889.

Marine Fifers Were Proud Of Skill

Bugles are rapidly becoming more effective than alarm clocks in awakening young men recently called to the colors. Thousands of them are now responding to the familiar "Can't get 'em up" of Reveille.

Our rapidly-expanding branches of the service could scarcely get along without these instruments, although the keyless trumpet, or bugle, was not adopted by the naval or military services until long after the United States won its independence.

Efies and drums were the first instruments of the United States Marine Band. They were used to rally patriots during the Revolution and they furnished martial music for our troops until several years after the Civil War.

About the time of the Franco-Prussian War, formations of troops were changed from closed to extended lines and their movements became too complicated to be controlled by voice alone. The skillful use of the fife and drums and trumpets could be heard above the din of battle.

Fifers, or "whiffles" as they were called in the old days, fitted with many a thrill and flourish in the Marine Corps until 1881, when orders were issued to substitute bugles for fifies. It nearly broke the hearts of the old fifiers to make the change, but orders were orders.

For a while there were no precise regulations governing bugle calls, the men assembling for drill, work mess or other formations to the tune of some popular melody. In 1892 the Navy issued instruments making all trumpet calls uniform and standard.

Today, even though fifies are as rare as muzzle-loading muskets in the Marine Corps, drums are still as popular as ever. It seems likely that they will furnish the rhythm for marching feet down to the end of time.

REVIEWS and PREVIEW

By Irvin Lande

The year of 1940 has gone. The people of the world are entering the year of 1941 with mixed feelings, mixed thoughts, mixed hopes, and mixed desires. In Europe, Germany is entering the new year with hopes of an ever greater victory. France is entering the new year with hopes of regaining her lost freedom. Italy is facing the most perilous hours of her entire history. Great Britain is greeting a new year with hope, courage, and a democratic spirit never before seen on the face of the earth. The little nation of the world--Switzerland, Sweden, Palestine--are hoping to keep their independence. Spain knows not what position the Axis will give her. Russia is still waiting, waiting, waiting. The still remains free and unoccupied. The African countries of Egypt and Libya are engaged in bloody war, and dread thought of the war continuing for many months more. Greece is torn by happy over her victories over Italy. Turkey and Bulgaria are patiently waiting for the actions and moves of Hitler in the Balkans. Rumania and Hungary have become part of Hitler's scheme of things. And the United States, "the arsenal of democracy," President Roosevelt called it, faces the future of the new year with the best leadership, the most determined efforts, and the most inspired steadiest of all the nations of the world.

The president of the United States, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, addressed the American people last Sunday night in an address which might be called "American New Year's Resolutions." The president's "Fireside Chat" told the world just where we stand. But more than that--it told Hitler and the Axis the future policy of the United States.

Like all the President's speeches, the manner was quiet and calm, but throughout the speech there was a determined attitude, an undeniable firmness, an da deep conviction.

The President began the speech with a recapitulation of the bank crisis of 1933. He told, in retrospect, how the American people came through that crisis with flying colors. With that same ability, with the same facing of facts, the American people will pull through the current crisis which was brought about by the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis.

The President expressed the feeling that the present organization of power in Europe, that "unholy alliance," was the very opposite of the United States of Europe, was the very opposite of a peace-loving and benevolent government. Because of that, we should send every aid possible to Britain. Our efforts for aid to Britain are only minute in the continuing of such efforts. And the President expressed the belief that he believes that the American people have utmost confidence in the way he is leading them.

To the British people, the President gave a word of praise and assurance. He remarked that the fight of the British people is immortal.

Furthermore, the President continued, that today the national defense program needs the proper handling and it shall receive that proper handling through the new four-man supreme defense administrative board. Roosevelt appealed to all manufacturers to put defense work first and foremost in their manufacturing. The majority have cooperated with the government, but the defense program is carried out properly and correctly.

One of the most emphatic remarks in his entire "Fireside Chat" was that the Axis powers shall not win the war.

According to the best information available from the warring powers, from their present conditions, we have every reason to believe that the Axis shall be won by the democratic countries. President Roosevelt's remark, "The United States of America, must come the arsenal of democracy, cause we are the only free nation with the power, the resources, the ability to produce the implements of war which can turn a British defeat into a British victory."

Moreover, the President reassured the American people that no expeditionary force shall be sent outside the borders of the Americas. It was significant, however, that the President hinted that the American navy and air forces would prevent and all foreign powers from establishing bases in the Western Hemisphere.

Lastly, the President answered the question, "No Foreign War?" "The President has recently started a drive to bring the government back to an isolationist platform. It has been Marshall's main theory that aid to Britain was of no use and that we should close ourselves up to the world. That was the address of the President. The President said that anyone who believed that the present administration wanted to send an expeditionary force to Europe or to intervene in any way, was being misled by false propaganda whose chief aim is to lead the American people astray from the real path to victory."

In conclusion, the President said that he asked these things and that these facts with a firm belief in the ultimate success of the democratic cause. In brief, that was the address of the President of the United States. It was an address which was based on sound reasoning and experience. The tone was informal and convincing. It gave a new condition of the world with its effect upon the United States, at the same time, the President to what he expected of the American people.

If the people of these United States take to heart the advice of their president, if they firmly carry out the sacrifices, then, and only then, shall the United States be victorious in the war in which they are largely engaged.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

Much alarm is being felt in the medical world in recent months over the rapid increase in cancer of the lungs. Of course the doctors have sought everywhere for the reason for this. At a recent meeting of physicians one of the most prominent men of the medical profession advocated that the increase of sales of cigarette and parallel with the increase of cancer. This doctor ran this ratio between men and women and found that while a century ago there were nine cases of cancer in the lungs of men to one among women, now there are four cases of cancer among women to six among men.

In other words that doctor was saying to the highest medical tribunal in our country that the cigarette is evidently responsible for this increase in cancer of the lungs. Beware of the cigarette.

One of the best stories told at the Alabama conference at Panama City was on Dr. Casaday. It came out of his friends experience. This friend said that his wife was a perfect angel, but that she had a sister who was an hyena. One night this friend had to pass a cemetery an dthe hyena sister-in-law dressed in a long robe and waited for the coming of her brother-in-law. As he approached this friend was ghost faced him with a shriek and shouted, "stop". The man stepped up to the ghost and said, "If you be an angel, I am not afraid of you, for angels do not hurt man; and if you be the devil I am still not afraid of you, for if he has a sister living at his home, it is one sister-in-law who knew exactly she will eat you alive. At least that was what her brother-in-law thought of her."

One of the very timid preachers attending the conference at Panama City asked for permission to read a report. Before reading he seemingly got lost in his purpose and the Bishop kindly asked him to read his report. His voice quivered and he said, "Bishop that is what I want to do and not if I will get this thing at my home, still I will read what is hasty say." While he read, the paper made as much noise as a thrush in a bank of leaves. That paper would have been still if the hands holding it had not trembled. It is often the case

Farm and AAA News From the County Agent

Kudzu is one of the very best forage and erosion control crops that can be grown in Chilton County. The hay is excellent, high food value and is liked by all classes of livestock. It is easy to cure and may be cut any time there is sufficient growth. The plant is a perennial and lives from year to year. It is a close growing, vining plant.

It is now time to begin making plans for seeding the kudzu that is to be set this winter.

Kudzu will grow on any of the well drained soils of Chilton County. The poorer and more washed away the soil is, the more fertilizer should be used, as this is an excellent crop to grow on "barren" hills and on areas that water runs through.

One of the most important things to be done at this time is to select planting materials. It may be that there is sufficient kudzu in the neighborhood to supply the demand. Desirable seed may be dug from any well established kudzu field. It is always advisable to obtain the seeds as near home as possible.

For best results the area to be planted to kudzu should be prepared well in advance of planting. Rows should be laid out from 5 to 10 feet apart. Apply a good application of barnyard manure and a light sprinkling (about 300 pounds per acre) of phosphate in the rows. Throw up a bed over the fertilizer about the same as for cotton.

After the bed has settled, the area is ready for planting. This preparation should be done in January or early February. The rows should be set late February.

It requires from 600 to 1000 kudzu seeds to plant an acre and it requires about 3 years for the kudzu to completely cover the ground. For further information on the above write or see your County Agent.

INCREASE VALUE OF FOREST AREA

Approximately half of the land in Chilton County is growing some kind of trees. A very high percentage of these trees is pine. There are many things that can be done at this time to materially increase the value of forest areas on almost every farm in the county. Some of these are:

1. Keep fire out of wooded areas.

2. Cut out the undesirable, diseased or stunted trees.

3. Remove the stand that is left if necessary.

4. Replace if there is not a good stand.

5. Woodfires are the greatest enemy of trees and particularly pine trees. They will kill young trees and scar old trees. Diseases and insects will enter through the burned places and profitable timber growths will be lost.

While the labor is idle on the farm a good time to cut the undesirable trees is a timber stand. If the land is too thick the trees should be cut out so that the other trees will grow faster. Cut out all crooked and diseased trees at this time. Cut the old limbs from the trees left to grow.

These operations will give the most profitable trees a chance to grow fast.

The trees cut out of the stand may be used for firewood.

January and February are good months for resetting a poor stand. The trees are dormant in this season and are usually sufficient moisture in the ground to keep the roots plenty.

Farmers who take care of their wooded areas report that this "winter" of trees will pay dividends in faster growths and better timber. For

Way "Build-up" Helps Will Interest Women

The cause of a woman's periodic suffering from headache, irritability, cramp-like pain, may be functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition, a condition that is often helped by CARDUI.

Principal way CARDUI helps is by stimulating appetite and the flow of gastric juices. Thus it may aid digestion; help build up a woman's strength, energy and nerve-force; increase physical resistance to periodic discomfort.

It also helps reduce periodic distress for many who take it a few days before and during "the time." Our confidence in CARDUI is founded by its 50 years of popularity.

POTATOES CURED BY ELECTRIC HEAT

Cullman, Ala.—G. B. Wood, of Cullman Route 1 has operated for three years an electrically-heated potato-curing storage house.

Mr. Wood says in reference to the electrically heated house, "I had 2,400 bushels of potatoes in my house in 1938, 2,600 in 1939 and have 1,300 in it now. It is the finest type of heating system I have used and I have had experience with wood and coal stoves and also wood furnaces in the basement. Electrically operated heaters give no trouble; I set the thermostat at whatever temperature I want to keep and go on about my other work. It costs me but very little extra."

Mr. Wood also produces many potato plants. He beds about 600 bushels of seed each spring and waters his beds with an electric water pump which lifts water from a well 120 feet deep. His well furnishes hard water softener so Mrs. Wood would have less trouble using the water.

Almost every modern convenience can be found on Mr. Wood's farm and in true of the entire has all been earned from their 204-acre farm, says C. T. Bailey, county agent.

Livestock Lure, Lore And Logic

(By Tom McCord)

With so much activity in the purchasing of stockers, feeders and breeding cattle it is not amiss to say something about prices that should be paid. Of course, there is no set price on any of these as they are like every other commodity in the world, the quality and the circumstances under which they are purchased have much bearing on the price.

There is an old axiom in the cattle business that seems to make sense. "If they are bought too high, they will always be too high." This is not only true of cattle but of almost every other thing of value.

About the best way to secure what one wants is to go to the point of greatest concentration and place an order with a good firm that has a wide selection to choose from and one is most likely to get the kind of cattle that will perform the task the purchaser expects to accomplish. The wrong kind will turn out to be high and disappointing and on the other hand if they were in the hands of one who needs that kind at the same money they might turn out to be "worth the money."

Christmas Day marked the 75th birthday of the Union Stockyards in Chicago. Quite a bit has been written about the accomplishments in the three quarter-century period in which they have operated. Most of what is being said in the livestock press is the effect that by bringing about the greatest concentration of livestock a more orderly marketing there will be accomplished.

Christmas Day marked the 75th birthday of the Union Stockyards in Chicago. Quite a bit has been written about the accomplishments in the three quarter-century period in which they have operated. Most of what is being said in the livestock press is the effect that by bringing about the greatest concentration of livestock a more orderly marketing there will be accomplished.

Miss Dorothy Franklin Weds Mr. Morgan

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Vaughn Franklin, daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Franklin, of Opelika and Thorsby, to Loyce Jefferson Morgan, of Opelika, took place at 4 p.m. Wednesday in the First Baptist church in Opelika. The ceremony being performed by the Rev. Howard S. Higdon, dean of Campbellville College, Campbellville, Ky., brother-in-law of the bride.

Only the immediate families and a few of the close friends of the bride couple witnessed the ceremony.

The musical program was by Mrs. M. D. Jones, organist, who played during the ceremony.

She was given in marriage by her mother, who wore a train of black crepe, with a corsage bouquet of gardenias.

Mrs. Howard S. Higdon, of Campbellville, was matron of honor. She wore a tailored suit of black crepe and her flowers were gardenias.

William McLendon, of Opelika was the bridegroom's best man.

The decorations were of delicate pink gladioli in spraying arrangement, filling a standard basket, with wide-spread chandelabra on each side, the altar arrangement being flanked with ferns.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride couple left for a short wedding trip. After January, they will be at home at 208 North Ninth Street in Opelika.

The bride is a graduate of Alabama College, holding a bachelor of arts degree also in home economics and in dietetics. For two years, she has been management supervisor in Lee county. The bridegroom attended Alabama Polytechnic Institute. He holds a business diploma in Opelika.

Filing of a certificate for the births and deaths with local registrars is made compulsory by the State Vital Statistics law. Responsibility for filing birth certificates within five days after the birth rests on the physician or midwife in attendance; undertakers or persons in charge of burials are required by law to obtain a burial permit before the body is interred. Such permits are obtainable only on the presentation of a completed death certificate to the registrars in the beat which the death occurred.

Anyone having knowledge of births or deaths occurring during the month of November and not included in the above list should report this matter to the County Health Office immediately.

Army Takes Wares To Customer

Like the old time "tea wagon" which plied the streets of smaller communities, bells tinkling and heavy scents of spices and fresh coffee lingering behind them, the U. S. Army's recruiting trailers which are appearing in cities and towns throughout the country are designed for "direct selling" of the Army and its advantages to the young men of the nation, Colonel F. A. Prince, of Montgomery, Ala., said today.

Unlike the "tea wagon" which many folks and some of the younger will remember as small, heavily-laden wagons, creaked through the streets with their burdens of food samples, kitchen ware, spices, herbs and condiment stuffed helter-skelter into many drawers and shelves, the Army's trailers are trim, sleek and compact—modern in every way.

But the idea is the same. The Army is taking its wares to the customers in those communities where the customers can't get to the Army with ease, and it hopes the streamlined Recruiting Trailers will be effective in aiding national defense.

Colonel Prince explained that the trim trailers, two of which are assigned to each of the Army's nine corps areas in the United States, are exactly what they are called: Mobile recruiting units. Each is towed by a powerful truck and may stay on the road indefinitely, setting up shop in communities which have no regular recruiting offices, or aiding local recruiting officers and civic agencies in recruiting campaigns and assisting public organizations on patriotic occasions.

At night, the units have comfortable living quarters for a crew of five men. Beds, heating facilities, stoves, sinks and cloth closets are provided. During the day, the beds fold neatly into attractive lounges, desks appear and facilities are provided for medical examinations. A power plant supplies current for a public address system with which gatherings at fairs and meetings may be addressed, and to operate motion picture equipment to show movies of Army life and activities. A canopy can be rigged during fair weather so that exhibits and interviews may be held in the open air.

Colonel Prince said the trailers were designed by Lieutenant Colonel Harold N. Gilbert, who, under Major General Emory S. Adams, the Adjutant General, is responsible for the Army's recruiting activities.

No longer need young men of Clanton and vicinity who are turning Army life over in their minds as prospective careers hesitate for lack of information, the recruiting officer pointed out. The Army, taking a tip from the "tea wagon," will bring itself right up to the front door, figuratively speaking, and let them see for themselves and ask their questions for immediate answer.

ARCHER'S CHAPEL

Rev. Luther Ballou will preach at Archer's Chapel, Wednesday night, January 8th, at 6:30. The Ladies Aid will meet after the church service.

FOLKS and THINGS ABOUT TOWN

He was shabby dressed and somehow we knew that we had seen him somewhere before. We were standing in the window watching him as he came across the street and into the News of the town. He was wearing a hat and proceeded with his 'spit', after finishing, and upon being told we already received the magazine he claimed to represent, he asked, "Boss how about lending me a dime for a cup of coffee?" Then we knew why he was familiar. For three consecutive years he has come just after New Year, each time with the same line, and the same request. We let him have the dime and he was on his way with the promise to bring it back when he had made his first sale. We'll probably see him again next New Year.

At the last meeting of the Lions Club the program committee arranged for a quartet from the Colored Vocational School to sing on the program. A good number of songs were sung during the evening and the boys are really good. They were E. L. Mitchell, Alvin Craig and Miss Craig and their friend Bryant. We know not which one of the above was the Bass, but we do know their rendition of "There Was a Farmer Had Two Sons", with said back leading was a humdinger and all in all had not received a hearing plate of fried chicken and numerous other good things to eat the singing of these negroes was well worth the price of admission.

Incidentally this quartet will appear Saturday night from 7:30 to 8:30 at the City Grill. "Bull Dog" Kemp has utilized the four "The Singing Dishwashers."

Our hats are off to Mayor Cohen past for getting things done. At the Strawberry Growers Meeting Saturday morning Mr. Roper, president of the association was acting Chairman of the nominating committee. His was the nomination for president for the coming year and although no other nominations were forthcoming he won in our mayor came to the rescue by not taking a vote on closing the nominations and then taking a vote on the "Roper for President" nomination. Roper was unanimously elected.

Claud Craig, Cecil Ramsey, Tom Taylor and L. Johnson caught the train Tuesday night and went to New Orleans for the Sugar Bowl Game. From the little report that I can get from the trip, it was a huge success. I couldn't expect to learn all the details as they had to be brief. But one thing we'll say—we sure would like to be with them.

LIFE OF CHRIST WILL BE SHOWN AT COURTHOUSE JANUARY 12TH

We have been asked to announce that Edward Wilentz will show pictures of the life of Christ at the courthouse on January 12th. These pictures will be shown in connection with the regular evening which will begin at 7:30 p.m.

aged May Get Flat 20 to $30 Pensions

Washington, D. C.—Greater social utility benefits for old people were advocated Thursday by several legislators amid increasing congressional questioning for changes in the act. Discussions centered about two possible revisions:

A flat federal monthly grant of $20 to $30 per person over 60 or 65.

A change in the present formula of federal and state contributions to the government in the future and provide for the state's $1 up to designated maximum.

Senator Downey (D., Calif.) said he hated the flat federal payment—a proposal which some legislators contend would meet White House approval.

Under that program, aged persons would receive a monthly check from federal government plus any additional sum provided by their states.

He proposed to change existing requirements came from Sen. Connally (D., Tex.) a member of the finance committee. Connally suggested the government match the state's age benefits on a 1 to 1 basis up to a maximum total of $15 a month.

At present, the government matches state benefits on a 50 to 50 basis up to a maximum monthly benefit of $40.

As an example of Connally's plan, a couple could put $5 and the government would provide $10, making a total of $15 monthly. If the state contributed an additional $10, the government would match it on a 50 to 50 basis up to a total of $40.

Baptist W. M. U. Installs New Officers

The Baptist W. M. U. of the First Baptist Church Clanton installed the following officers Mon. at the church at their annual meeting for the purpose:

President, Mrs. J. P. Hayes; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. P. T. Hinkle; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. O. A. Davis; 3rd Vice-President, Mrs. T. R. Burdette; Session Study Chairman, Mrs. Earl Gray; Ward Warden, Mrs. E. L. Cross; Treasurer, Mrs. W. W. Jones; Secretary, Mrs. M. L. Lane; Enlistment Chairman, Mrs. E. L. Upchurch; Literature and Publicity Chairman, Mrs. Hattie Alred; Mission Treasurer, Mrs. Spurgeon Callo-way; Local Aid Chairman, Mrs. L. A. Calloway.

The annual local hour followed the installation of officers.

Circle chairmen installed were the following: Circle No. 1, Mrs. W. C. Golden; Circle No. 2, Mrs. A. L. Roberts; Circle No. 3, Mrs. Jim Roberts; Circle No. 4, Mrs. Jimmie Taylor; Circle No. 5, Mrs. J. B. Downs, Jr.; and Circle No. 6, Mrs. Houston Nix.

The W. M. U. membership of the First Baptist church is 175 members.

POWDER PLANT

Childress Gets $35,000,000

Washington, D. C.—A smokeless powder plant to cost between $25,000 and $35,000,000 will be constructed at Childress, Talledega county, is announced here by Congressman Sam Higgs.

The plant will be built for the Du Pont de Nemours & Company. It is part of the national defense expansion program and the first big powder plant to be placed in the Deep South.

Construction will start at once on a tract of land comprising 28,000 acres at Childress.

When completed, in about one year, it will employ between 4,000 and 12,000 persons, depending on the size plant erected.

Lions Enjoy First Meeting Of New Year

Clanton Lions Club met at the Thomson Hotel last Friday night for the first meeting of the New Year. Many interesting plans for the new year were discussed and a fine program was prepared by the Program Committee.

It was agreed to contact representatives of the other service clubs in the city and arrange a joint Lion-Kiwanis Club meeting to be held within the next few weeks. The purpose of this meeting will be to lay plans for the building of a recreation center in Clanton.

A director's meeting was planned for Wednesday night and the meeting was held at the home of Grady Hefflin, president of the Club.

Chilton Quint Still Undefeated

After a week's vacation, the Chilton County High School quint came back last Friday night and defeated a fighting Isabella team to a score of 37 to 25. Chambers led the home team for Clanton with 14 points while Klinner led the Isobers with 12.

The Chilton Quint have thus far scored 305 points to their opponents 157, are still undefeated. Coach Cox states that they will play on the Isabella team in Birmingham on January 10th, when Howard College plays their annual game with the Celtics. Clanton will play Warrior in one of the several preliminary games before the main event which will start around nine. Clanton's game will begin at 6:15. Cox also asked the News to announce that he has tickets for this turning for another home appearance contact him. The game will be played in the City Auditorium.

On January 9th, Cox will carry his team to Montgomery to play Sidney Lanier School and afterwards returning to another home appearance against a strong Selma team on Tuesday night, January 14th. This game has been long awaited by Clanton fans as Selma has what it takes and so has Clanton. Both "A" and "B" teams will play main event at night.

Clanton-Isabella Statistics:

CLANTON (37)—Daniels (8), Collins (3), forwards: Johnson (6), center: Chambers (14), Riggins (6), guards, Smith, substitute, (0).

ISABELLA (25)—Ratliff (2), Cummings (1), forwards: Kilmer (1), center: Davis (3), R. Cummings (7), guards.

Is Clanton's Dream Going To Be Realized?

Within the next few weeks the Clanton Pilot Club, the Clanton Lions and the Clanton Kiwanis Clubs will hold a joint-meeting to see what can be done about building a Recreation Center and a swimming pool for the city.

For years this dream has been in the minds of our citizens and let us hope that it is near its fulfilling. No other town in the State of Alabama, we venture to say, the size of Clanton, is without a municipal pool and a recreation center.

We owe it to our children. They are entitled to a place where they can go and romp and play and build strong healthy bodies. Where they can find good clean entertainment, under the direction of a Park Supervisor, trained in the art of caring for and leading children. A place where my boy and girl or your boy and girl can go and we know that they will be safe.

This will take the help of every citizen of Clanton. It will mean the sacrifice of some of the other things that we think we need, but what is more valuable to our city, or any other city than our men and women of tomorrow.

Let's make our dream come true!

HERE IS SOMETHING ELSE that should get the immediate attention of every farmer, business and professional man and woman in Chilton County:

The Federal Government will soon start building a Thirty-five million dollar smokeless powder plant on the east side of the Coosa River beyond Harpersville and Vincent, about six miles northwest of Childersburg. Improvement of the Lay Dam highway should be pushed as rapidly as possible to connect with the highway either at Columbiana or Wilsonville.

Chilton County can easily become the curb market and smokehouse of this vast development if our people will get busy and immediately determine to bring it to pass.

C. H. Pipes Goes To Huntsville

C. H. (Claude) Pipes, former City Clerk, has gone to Huntsville, Ala. to accept a position as secretary to the Huntsville Chamber of Commerce.

The Pipes have a multitude of friends in Clanton who will hate to see them leave. However, Mrs. Pipes, it is reported, will not leave until June.

FSA BORROWERS Urged To Apply At Once

"All farmers who have been borrowing, or plan to borrow, their crop money through the FSA, should AT ONCE apply for their money," Marvin Durbin, County Supervisor, announced yesterday.

"Most men who work for wages, in factories, stores, or wherever," said Mr. Durbin, "don't have to look very far further ahead than the next pay check. But farmers, even the poorest of them, must set their eyes and hopes half a year ahead, or there are no crops at all."

"Most farmers think about the feed they will need next season, and plan for it. They get their fields ready. Of late they have been planting winter cover crops, because they remember how much better crops grow this natural fertilizer is turned under."

"But one thing they forget, most of them. They forget to plan for credit. A majority of Chilton County's farmers must borrow money every year before they can make a crop. Some 317 of them are borrowing through the Farm Security Administration."

"Now most folks want to put off borrowing until the last minute; they want to borrow as little as possible. Postponing the time, they think, will cut down on the number of months interest will be charged. But farm loans are, in general, charged on a seasonal basis, rather by the month. Farmers borrowing through the FSA enter into five year agreements, which allows them sufficient operating capital—to buy the proper tools and stock. They pay it back with 5 per cent interest amortized over five years."

"The farmer who waits until just before planting time to arrange for credit is running the risk of having his whole year's income endangering by possible delay. If he is borrowing through the FSA this late application makes it impossible for us to work out the required cropping plans. In the past, a great many worthy farmers have had to be refused FSA loans because their application were made too late in the season."

*Applications for FSA loans are now

C. P. A. School Opens At C. C. H. S.

Troop 57 BSA To Reorganize

Troop 57 Boy Scouts of America that organized in Clanton several years ago but through lack of cooperation of the business men was forced to disband, will be reorganized in the near future.

There will be a meeting at the City Hall on Wednesday evening, January 15th at 7:00 o'clock. All boys of Scout age who are really interested are requested to be on hand at that time.

There will be a Scout executive from Montgomery present at this meeting.

FAT STOCK SHOW

Largest entry list in its history is in prospect for the annual Demopolis Fat Stock Show, scheduled to be held at the stockyards there January 15-16. The finest beef cattle in the Black Belt will compete for a lengthy list of prizes and trophies in the show.

being taken at the FSA office located upstairs over the Chilton County News Office in Clanton, Ala.

"With every indication pointing to a heavy demand next Spring for farms to rent, Chilton County tenants facing March 1 moves and needing FSA assistance, we wind it to their advantage to make application to the FSA before January 15."

This comment was made here today by Marvin Durbin, Chilton County FSA Supervisor at Clanton, Ala.

"When there's scarcity of farms to rent, the tenant with adequate equipment and livestock is bound to get first choice," he said. "In fact, our experience has shown that lack of adequate equipment and livestock is a major reason why many tenants are forced to make frequent moves and operate low quality farms."

It was explained that, besides receiving assistance in the formulation of sound farm and home management plans, farm families may obtain loans for the purchase of needed equipment, livestock, household furnishings, feed and seed and fertilizer.

"Naturally the FSA cannot make loans to tenants who must vacate premises," he said.

COTTON QUOTAS GIVEN STATES AGAIN REDUCED

Alabama Is 2,219,961 Acres

For 1941; Totals For Others Correspond

Washington, D. C.—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced January 2nd, a national cotton planting allotment of 26,699,917 acres for 1941.

This allotment compares with the 1940 allotment of 27,070,173 acres and with an average of about 40,000 acres planted to cotton in the late 20's and early 30's.

Cotton production has been curtailed sharply under AAA crop control programs since the 1938 record crop. Continuation of restricted plantings with possible further reductions in 1942 is made necessary, officials said, by loss of foreign markets resulting from the war and the accumulation of large surpluses.

The AAA said that if, as in 1939 and 1940, the allotment resulted in the actual planting of about 25,000,000 acres normal yields would produce a crop of about 12,500,000 bales. The 1940 crop totaled 12,688,000 bales.

The national allotment was apportioned among cotton-producing States. The State allotment will, in turn, be divided among individuals growers on the basis of a formula set up in the 1938 act.

Under marketing quotas approved recently by growers for the fourth consecutive year, farmers would be subjected to a penalty of 3 cents a pound on cotton grown and sold from acres in excess of their allotments. Likewise, only growers planting within their allotments would be eligible for maximum government subsidies authorized by farm legislation. Those subsidies will include soil conservation of 137 cents a pound and parity payments of 137 cents a pound.

The State allotments for 1941 and 1940, respectively, included:

Alabama, 2,219,961 and 2,243,530 acres

Arkansas, 2,245 and 2,270,478

California, 492,875 and 405,186

Florida, 79,231 and 80,722

Georgia, 2,192,654 and 2,216,160

Kentucky, 18,579 and 18,813

Louisiana, 1,237,818 and 1,250,370

Mississippi, 2,661,572 and 2,687,447

Missouri, 392,951 and 396,303

North Carolina, 914,815 and 930,390

Oklahoma, 2,106,026 and 2,176,230

South Carolina, 1,322,978 and 1,338,085

Tennessee, 759,113 and 767,041

Texas, 9,277,435 and 9,191,616

Virginia, 32,337 and 52,050.

LARGE CROWD ATTEND BERRY MEETING SAT

Patterson, Mullins, Fuller and Many Other Notables Here For Event

The Court Room at the Chilton County Courthouse was near capacity last Saturday morning when the Chilton County Berry Growers Association held their Annual Meeting and elected their officers for the coming year.

R. M. Roper, president and also president-elect agreed the meeting and at once got underway with business. After the business was transacted the meeting was turned over to Pat Smith, county agent, who after making a fine speech in behalf of the County Agent's office and assured all of their willingness to cooperate with the farmers, introduced the speakers.

Luther Fuller, of the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce, told the farmers of the possibilities of processing ungraded cream for sale to processing plants. "If you can grow milk production up to the necessary quantity, I can assure you that a cheese plant will come to Clanton. But you've got to demonstrate that you want one by producing the milk necessary to keep it in operation."

C. J. Hayden of the Agricultural Department of the L. & N. is well known in Chilton. He spoke briefly told the point. He said the Alabama farmer is utilizing his time to the best advantage. And he is not, but is getting that way fast.

Haygood Paterson, commissioner of agriculture and industries of Alabama, briefly outlined some things he thought would benefit the farmers. He also pointed out that the farmer should be laying-by and turning out time but that agriculture was a year-round business and that agriculture should include cattle on every farm. He said animal husbandry was always one of the pillars of agriculture.

Help Needed At Red Cross Sewing Room

There is an abundance of thread at the Red Cross Sewing Room for War Subjects that has not been worked into sweaters. Mrs. Jim Jones and Mrs. Claud Craig, who all who possible can to meet at the sewing room, Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock to help finish this work. Only one-third of the Chilton County quota has been reached.

Mrs. Craig says that if you can knit but cannot come to the headquarters, call either her or Mrs. Jones and they will bring the thread to your home. If you can come, be there at 1:30 Friday, January 10th.

OLD BIBB HOME SOLD

ATHENS, Ala.—The Bibb ancestral home, in the southern part of this county, built in 1826 by Thomas Bibb, ex-governor of Alabama, and occupied by his descendants until the present time, will leave the family hands on June 1. The property, which has been sold to Dr. Berthold Kennedy, of Portchester, N. Y. The ante-bellum Southern colonial structure and 400 acres of land were involved in the deal. E. D. Van Keuren, Birmingham architect, will prepare plans to remodel the home.

Dr. Kennedy, a native of Middle Tennessee, has practiced in New York for a number of years and will retire to make his home in this county. His wife and the late Dr. W. T. McDaniel, is the daughter of Mrs. W. T. McDaniel of Athens.

The Bibb home at the present is occupied by Bradley N. Bibb.

Chilton Couple Celebrates Golden Wedding Anniversary

By Clark Headley
On the threshold of the new year, Mr. and Mrs. William Wyatt Williams, of Billingsley Route 4, looked back over fifty years of married life, as they celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary last Sunday at their home on the 400-acre farm of their home.

On January 4th, 1891, William Wyatt Williams and Sarah Alice Powell were married in Bethlehem, community about four miles from their present home, that marked the beginning of companionship.

The couple encountered many hardships and many joyful days as the old and succeeded in raising their seven children, on their farm and taught them the love of God and to attend church and the methods of companionship which they daily demonstrated to them.

"Uncle Willie" as he is more familiarly known, says he is very proud of the success which he and "Aunt Alice" have made and says, "I hope the children will follow our footsteps as near as possible."

"Aunt Alice," with her grey hair and signs of years stretched across her face, says, "I have the love of God that we credit our success, and our regular attendance to church." The couple has been members of the Concord Methodist church since early in the 1890's shortly after their marriage.

They have 32 grand children. Mr. Williams is in his 73rd year and Mrs. Williams is in her 67th year. "Uncle Willie" reminded us that he has been cutting his tobacco for the past 63 years and still hasn't caught up with his chewing. But he doesn't drink coffee and hasn't for many years. He does very little in the fields now, but rents most of his farm. He still has something like forty acres he calls his crop.

The children and grand children all gathered in at their home and prepared a large Anniversary dinner, with the assistance of "Aunt Alice," which was immensely enjoyed by everyone. The table was headed by Doc T. C. Casaday, pastor of the Methodist church, who is a long time friend of the Williams family, and the Doctor did the entertaining in the afternoon by telling old yarns, to the crowd seated near the old open fireplace.

Instead of presenting the customary Golden gift, the children pitched in and had their house wired and on January 4th, the real Anniversary date, the lights turned on. Now "Uncle Willie" will really be able to sit back and spurt his ambled while "Aunt Alice" attends her crocheting of dolls. She has to demonstrate to us how convenient it was for her just to reach up and twist to pull me up a bucket of water without the light. "Willie can easily see how we have to hold the lamp at night."

The children are J. Hudson Williams, Jewell Shepherd, R. P. Williams, Mrs. R. A. Hicks, W. A. Williams, R. O. Williams and Mrs. Claude Herrod. They have 32 grand children.

Present for the day were the following besides the children: R. A. Hicks, William Hicks, Richard Hicks, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Driver, W. A. Williams, Antionette Williams, John Marvin Williams, Douglas Williams, Alma Williams, Jean Williams, Russell Williams, W. A. Williams, Jr., Bernice Williams, Claude Herrod, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Jones, Kathryn Herrod, Claude Sue Herrod, Donald Herrod, Grace Herrod, Imogene Herrod Sara Nell Herrod, Mrs. Hudson Williams, Elizabeth Shepherd, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Edwards, Dr. and Mrs. T. C. Casaday, Mrs. Lazette Leachman and James Beathan.

Clanton Kiwanis Report Successful Year

CLUB HAS PROVEN TO BE ONE OF CLANTON'S WORTHWHILE CLUBS

Clanton Kiwanis Club — Ala. District Pop. of City or Community — 3,972

Third Division
GOVERNOR—Henry C. Meader, Montgomery, Alabama.
LT. GOVERNOR—Arthur D. Burke, Auburn, Alabama.

Introduction
An unusually fine spirit of cooperation has been demonstrated in our Club throughout the entire year. At the beginning of the year each committee outlined their objectives. When these objectives had been approved by the Board of Directors, a small booklet was printed, including the Club Roster, Objectives, and programs for the year. In the plan for programs several meetings were held aside as business meetings at which time each committee gave a report to the entire Club as to the progress that was being made in carrying out their objectives. This was no doubt responsible for continued interest and cooperation throughout the year. Since Clanton does not have a Chamber of Commerce, the Kiwanis Club this year as in the past years has taken an active part in matters that are usually handled by a Chamber of Commerce. Our committees did some exceptionally good work and they accomplished a number of their objectives. Even though our year has done an unusual amount of work this year, we have ended the year with all bills paid and have a very nice cash balance on deposit. Our programs were interesting, inspiring, and educational. The attendance of the club as a whole was very low and should be improved during the coming year. Other than low attendance the year was a very pleasant and fruitful one, for all concerned and we look forward to the year 1942 as a much better one. For we have as president a man whose character and ability for leadership is above the average. So, let's put more spirit into the coming year and bring our attendance to a higher percentage than it has ever been before.

Mark Remarks:

Not enough winter cover crops have been planted in Chilton County. . . . If we had been raising more hogs and beef cattle in Chilton County, we would now be getting more of the defense program money. . . .

The fellow who has already gone to work on his 1941 farming program is the fellow who is going to be the winner at harvest time. . . .

Is it spite work or just plain cussedness that is keeping State Highway 22 between Clanton and Rockford from being paved and a bridge across Coosa River being built? Of course there may be other reasons. . . .

Entirely too many small pine saplings are being cut for pulp wood. . . . Funny things about those European bombs—they never seem to hit anything but churches, school houses, hospitals and convents—that is if you believe the broadcasts and daily newspapers. . . .

It takes something besides capitalism and special privilege to make a democracy. . . .

We should be singing God Bless Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia—He has already blessed America, yea even unto the Nth degree. . . .

We talk glibly about "Our American Way of Life," without giving a thought to the fact that there are many "Ways of life" in America—some of which are not so noble, grand and beautiful as one is led to believe. . . .

Imprisonment for debt was abolished in the United States in 1800, but we still have lease-sale contracts. . . .

Making war for the purpose of making business is bad business. . . .

The 1941 program of Chilton County farmers should be one that will not only aid National defense but one that will also bring defense against poverty to our people. . . .

To get the necessities as well as the luxuries of life, we must have something to offer in exchange for them. . . .

It is ridiculous the way those foolish Europeans are fighting their wars over there, in utter disregard of life. If we think they ought to do it. . . .

Our long time friend Bob Vail has resigned as postmaster at Bay Minette and gone to Washington, as secretary to Congressman George Grant of the Second Alabama District. George couldn't have selected a better one. . . .

The big noise is now coming from Washington instead of London. It is the American Way of Action. . . .

Every fly you swat now will save a thousand swats later on in the Springtime. . . .

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

There is a story in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" of how his master wanted to know of his slaves how he knew that there was a Christ when he had never seen Him. "The old darkey" could not argue with logic and neither could he deal with abstract Philosophy. He told St. Clare that he knew that there was a Christ and that He loved Him.

"But, how do you know that Uncle Tom?" asked the slave owner. "Knows I boss, because I feel Him in my soul!" replied the old man. That was the only answer Uncle Tom knew to give. His knowledge went back of contradiction. Like Uncle Tom, we can not understand how and why God loves us, but we know it because we feel it in our souls.

It is a pleasure to listen to a man talk who knows. We all like to follow a man who knows where he is going. We take pleasure in working under a leader who knows what he is doing. We are charmed in reading after St. Paul, because he held up some varieties in absolute certainties. Often did he declare, "I know." Listen to him. "I know in whom I have believed. I know that nothing can separate me from the love of Jesus Christ. I know that all things work together for those who love God. I know that if my earthly house be dissolved that I have a house not made with hands, eternally in the heavens."

As we sail this sea of life, if we hold in our vision some lofty mountain peaks we are more sure to sail into the heavenly port. The phrase, "I know" is noble in its expression and it is sweet with eternal verities.

One day you had your picture made it flattered you. How proud you were as you showed it to your friends. Then you had one made that was not so good and you hesitated too let your closest friends see it. We only those pictures that flatter us. We like to look a bit better than we know we merit. One day you stood before the altar of the church and God took your picture as a Christian. You vowed to God and man that you would live a new life and reveal to the world a God-likeness. Since that day the picture of your profession has been under development. How about slower development. How about slower development. How about slower development. How about slower development.

you, it is time for you to take heed your ways. . . .

I have traveled with people who do not seem to have any sense of direction. North, east, south, west meant nothing to them. The train, or the car traveled but they knew not in what direction. They are going along, delighted with the travel and the scenery, but did not know from what direction they have come and did not know what direction they were going. We are traveling with people in another sense who do not seem to have any idea of life's progress. They are pleased with life and are thrilled with its experience but they aren't concerned from when they have come, and whither bound. Not only brush up on your sense of direction in earthly travel, but brush up on your sense of travel in a spiritual way. Are you traveling toward God?

Late one afternoon I observed the spider as he was weaving his web. I knew that the wheel like form that was weaving was intended to catch insects and that the circular strands were covered with a glue. I wondered how it was that the spider could weave his web and not get caught in his own net. Then I observed that the spider walked on the spoke like strands and that these did not carry the glue. Even that little spider knew where the danger was and he guarded his steps so as not to be caught in his own net. If an individual you are weaving the web of life. Others are weaving webs around you. For lack of the spider's sense, many are being caught as they live. Watch your step. Young people watch your step. There are certain things that you can not do without getting tangled in a web of danger and death. It is so foolish to go blundering along and get entangled in the web of bad habits, bad companions, bad living. Watch your step.

Need Laxative? Take All-Vegetable One
Don't let impatience lead you into harsh measures for the relief of constipation!

There's no use, for a little spicy, all-vegetable BLACK-DRUGGET, taken by simple directions, will gently persuade your bowels.

Taken at bedtime, it generally allows time for a good night's rest. Morning usually brings punctual, satisfying relief from constipation and its symptoms such as headaches, biliousness, sour stomach, no appetite or energy.

BLACK-DRUGGET's main ingredient is an "intestinal-tonic-laxative" which helps tone intestinal muscles. 25 to 40 doses, only 25c.

ALABAMA POWER COMPANY

A Private Agency for the Public Good

THIS dramatic picture might well be a symbol of the readiness of the electric light and power industry to give you dependable, low-cost electric service. It could also represent the constant planning to meet the future needs of Alabama's rapidly growing industrial, commercial and residential communities. Too, it might typify the essential part electric utility companies are playing in the National Defense Program.

During 1941 Alabama Power Company will spend about $8,000,000.00 to expand and further improve its generation and distribution facilities so that Alabamians may continue to say, "We have electric service second to none in the Nation."

STUDENTS OF GRAMMAR SCHOOL WRITE ON THEIR TRIP TO BEAVER DAM

By Allen Billingsley, age 10
How happy I was when the day came for our trip to Beaver Dam! We had all been looking forward to it for weeks and reading everything we could find about the work and habits of beavers.
We had everything
We had organized into groups for the cars. We had worked on courtesy notes for the trip. Our leaders at the time were to be our playground captains. We had written to Mr. Head-things to us. Mr. Headley was not there. We had Mr. Huett there in his place. After a while Mr. Headley came down there himself. We saw the dam and the beaver's home. On the way back we heard the Damrosch program on the radio in the cars. When we got back to our classroom, we discussed our trip. We were well pleased, for Mr. Headley complimented our courtesy. We decided to write stories and poems about the trip and send letters of thanks to Mr. Headley.

By David Arnold, age 10
On Friday, November 15, 1940, our class went to Beaver Dam. These are the ones who carried us: Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Mimm, Mrs. Billingsley, Mr. and Mrs. Atchison and Mrs. Ramsey. Each of them took a car.

Beaver Dam is on Mr. Headley's farm near Verbena. Out in the pond many many dead trees, large and small, which have been killed by the high waters. A good distance from the dam and in the center of the current, is the beaver house. He stays there during the day, for the wise little fellow works at night. Mr. Huett explained to us how cleverly the beaver make their house. They are well protected in their double-walled homes. Mr. Huett also told us that the beaver was a real fighter. He can whip a large bulldog with his strong tail and sharp teeth.
On our way down there and back we saw worm fences and Black Snake Creek. We saw about three kinds of soil, sand, loam, and clay.

By Margaret Jo Williamson, age 10
Just think, I stood on a dam that beavers built!
On November 15, 1940 our class visited Beaver Dam. There are nineteen or twenty beavers in the pond. There are fish in the pond, but the beavers do not eat them. They eat roots and bark.
On the way home we saw a hog hanging from a log.

By Aye Mullins, Jr., age 11
Oh! Boy, we were going to Beaver Dam. The wind was blowing 100 miles to nothing, but that was not enough to keep us from going to Beaver Dam. We traveled fast over hill and dale. We passed Enterprise school. Then up a hill, around a curve, and we were there!
A group at a time went to see the famed Beaver House. It was the first time for most of us to see a beaver dam. So with joy did each group look at the Dam. It was made V shape where the current was. That would throw some of the pressure to each side. Smart Brother Beaver! Time came to go home. A wonderful trip to Beaver Dam was over. We would all like to go again. Wouldn't you like to go.

By Fred Donovan, age 10
On Friday, November 15, Mrs. Thomas went with her fifth grade class of the Clanton Elementary School to see Beaver Dam. It is on Mr. Headley's farm near Verbena, Ala.
When we got there, Mr. Headley told us many interesting things about the beaver. We saw the dam they had built of sticks and mud in the shape of a V. They also had a house built of sticks and mud. The water is in the lake about ten feet deep. The government put 35,000 fish in the lake this year.

By Elouise Easterling, age 12
While down at Beaver Dam today, we saw many trees that were dead. Their trunks were partly in the water. Their bark was gray and red.
Two gentlemen were there to see. That we were satisfied: Each child saw all the leaves once green. Though now they were brown and dried.

What a lovely time we had while there! We watched those trees so bare; There was so much water that, We did not see the hare.
By Kenneth Crosby, age 10
Our class made a trip to Beaver Dam, in Chilton County of Alabama. The tardy cars caused us to hurry. And made us start off in a hurry. Along the pond were weeds and rush. And the near-by land was in a mush. Upon the bank I saw a boat. Oh, how I longed to see it float.

That trip was very, very fine, We hope to go another time.

Atlanta, Ga.—President James E. Warren of the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company, predicts 1941 company expenditures for private and government projects will surpass the peaks of last year.
The 1940 indices of the company, taxes and payrolls "established new peaks," Warren announced. Expenditures for expanding facilities were $40,000,000 and 2,400 new employees were added.
More than 115,000 telephones were added during the year in the company's nine-state territory, bringing the total to 1,350,000. The company's employees now total 23,000.
Warren attributed gains to general business expansion and widespread preparedness projects, which were "reflected in the use of our service the past year."

He said local calls in Southern Bell territory increased to nearly 12,000,000 a day and long distance traffic rose 10 per cent to 115,000 messages daily.

Unemployed Youth Urged To Apply To N. Y. A.

The unemployed youth of Alabama today are urged by Dr. John E. Bryan, State Youth Administrator, to apply to the National Youth Administration for work experience.

The national defense program coupled with a lowering of age requirements is giving youth a greater opportunity than ever before to obtain work experience, Dr. Bryan pointed out.
Many new projects are being set up throughout the state where youth will be engaged in either the manufacture of articles or in other duties that will be of benefit to building up the nation's strength.

New projects already approved by Washington include a part time resident projects for girls at Atmore in Escambia county, full time resident projects for girls at Huntsville in Madison county and at Livingston in Sumter county, a full time resident project for boys at Miller's Ferry in Wilcox county and a vocational building project at Lynn in Winston county.

These projects are just a small part, however, of the 260 projects that are in operation in every county of the state, Dr. Bryan emphasized.

All youth who are 17 and not over 25, who are unemployed, in need of work and out of school may apply for work experience on the NYA projects. Two types of projects are maintained, resident and non-resident. Young people employed on resident projects live at the job site, in quarters ranging from remodeling dwelling houses to large dormitories, and are provided with subsistence paid by a deduction from their wages.

At non-resident projects, where the majority of out-of-school youth are employed, the young men and women live with their families and report to their projects in the same manner they would to a job in private industry.

A limited number of hours are spent each day at the project and additional time is given to vocational education classes, where youth are given instruction in work that is related to their NYA employment. These classes are conducted by the Vocational Division of the State Department of Education.

The earnings at the non-resident projects are $14.04 to $20.16 a month, depending on the type of work. At the resident projects the pay is about $7.30 a month.

Youth are given opportunity for employment in the type of work to which they are most suited. Where necessary, they are given tryouts in various kinds of work.
The hours of work are less than 60 a month and no more than 100.
Registration of NYA employees is maintained at the State Employment Service and wherever a bona fide offer of employment in private industry is made, youth are expected to accept it. Twenty-five thousands youth are already at work under NYA.

CLEAN UP or CLOSE UP
NO LET-UP in 1941
MOVEMENTS for the public good are frequently launched with great enthusiasm—and die out because sustained effort is lacking.
This is not true of the Alabama beer industry's program to improve conditions at retail outlets.
Prosecuted with diligent effort since its launching in March, 1939, the "clean up or close up" campaign in Alabama has won the praise and support of law-enforcement officers, the press and public. During the past 22 months the state's beer industry has proven its sincerity of purpose by a consistent record of direct action and results.
The record: 1,373 retail beer outlets investigated; 238 warned to improve conditions; 46 cases placed before ABC Board which resulted in 24 revocations, 14 suspensions and 8 probations.
We face the New Year with renewed determination to carry on in 1941.

MRS. WEBB PARRISH, Correspondent

Congregational Church

Rev. and Mrs. Gonzales greatly appreciated the large number of members and friends of the church that called New Year afternoon. Mrs. Gonzales was assisted by Mrs. Bertha Davenport, Mrs. A. N. Laurell, Mrs. Rascoe Maddox and Mrs. T. E. Campbell.

At a business meeting of the ladies aid society held at the home of Mrs. J. H. Goddard the following officers were elected for this year: President, Mrs. T. E. Campbell; Vice-president, Mrs. Rascoe Maddox; Secretary, Mrs. C. M. Williams; Treasurer, Mrs. Marie Peterson.

The past year was very successful. While the Society is not a money raising organization, but rather one of Good Fellowship, a fine offering was made to the work of the church and benevolence.

Sunday morning, January 12, the pastors will preach the first of a series of sermons on the Book of Romans at the morning services. Other services at the usual hours.

Sunday School 9:45: Morning Worship 11:00, Sermon Theme, "Romans 1:1," "The Gospel of God," Junior C. E. at 2:30. Senior C. E. at 6:20. Evening service, 7:30. Theme "How Busy are You?"

Union Prayer Meeting on next Wednesday night. Place, Congregational church, leader, Rev. McLeod.

Thorsby Institute News

The Institute reopened after a two-week vacation on Thursday morning, January 2.

Miss Alice Leach, Dean of the State Teachers College at Springfield, S. D., has been visiting her sister, Miss Lois Leach, who is married at the Thorsby Institute. They have recently returned from a trip to Florida with Miss Helen C. Jenkins and her mother, Mrs. E. F. Jenkins.

The Music Recital of Miss Tinkers' music pupils has been postponed until February 7. The date previously set was January 18.

REVIEWS and PRELIMINARIES

By Irvin Lande

With the opening of the seventy-seventh Congress, and President Roosevelt's message to that body, the United States looks forward to the most trying time in the entire history. As the new Congress opened, the Italian city of Bardia in Libya had fallen to the British; the first evidence of German aid to Mussolini had made itself known in Albania; and free Ireland had undergone its first bombing of the war. In other words, the war now is beginning to open up on fronts which, in the past, had been free from any thought of battle.

Now as it is becoming more and more difficult for Americans to rid themselves of the belief that in the near future the United States will become militarily involved in the war, the war is stepping into its final decisive stage. This may be the last stage of the war, but it is the final really decisive stage of the conflict which is raging between the two opposite forces of democracy and tyranny.

Because we are now coming face to face with the hard facts of an inevitable future, it is time for the American people to take a true inventory of both what they are fighting for, and how they shall fight. Up-to-now, our vision has been blurred by rumors and confusions, and we have not fought sufficiently so that we may grasp the true facts of the situation, make up our minds conclusively, and then stick to those conclusions.

We recognize thoroughly that war is a struggle between our American way of life and the way of life of the dictator. We hold that our way of life is the best, and therefore we ought to defend to the last man our way of life. But—and this is essential in our scheme of things—the best way to defend that way of life is by allying those who are in deadly war in defense of the things which we seek to preserve.

We realize without a doubt that the British are fighting the same war which we would be forced to fight if the British people fell. Furthermore, we know that the British people need not men, but materials; that they need not courage, but that they have that, but the resources of this nation to back up that courage. To go deeper, we know that if Britain fell, we Americans would have to defend our way of life with our men and with our own equipment. For the present defense of this Hemisphere, and for its defense if Britain falls, we need airplanes, tanks, convoys, guns, tanks, and other light and portable mechanized equipment. Since the present needs of Britain and the United States conflict only in airplanes, it would seem logical and obvious to ally with the British all the equipment that they need, since that fight is being made in our own self-interests. As for the matter of airplanes, plant capacity should be speeded up to the point in which America can equip both herself and the British in the war.

sources are tremendous; our ability as a very interesting procedure, the galleries already being full. Since all members of the House of Representatives are elected every two years, it is new at every other opening of a regular session or every other year. Although in the absence of a change in party control, those who served in the previous Congress are generally re-elected, a new House actually has no speaker, leadership on other officials. Without a Speaker no business may be transacted. The Clerk of the previous one calls it to order and calls the roll of members elect by States. Then a Speaker is elected. After the oath is administered to him, generally by the Dean of the House, he administers it to the members elect in a body. The organization of the House then proceeds by the election of its other officers and other business necessary thereto. The program is arranged in advance and only the leaders normally participate, the Speaker recognizing only those who appear on this program.

During this organization ten resolutions were introduced by seven members. Speaker Rayburn who submitted them to the House is commencing the 29th year of his service in Congress. The Authors of these resolutions were Congressman Sabbath, Dean of the House and Chairman of the Rules Committee, who commenced his 35th year as a member; second ranking member of the House' Taylor ranking member of the Democratic Appropriations Committee, who menced his 33rd year; third ranking member, Doughton, Chairman of Ways and Means Committee, who served 31 years; as a Congress Minority leader; Martin, Chairman of the Republican National Committee who commenced his 17th year; Leader McCormick, who began his 11th year as Chairman of the Democratic Caucus, who commenced his 9th year as Chairman of the Printing Committee, who began his 11th year as a member of the Legislative Body.

Just as the average service of other twelve Congressmen with in the main Capitol Building was than twenty years when Congress Jarnman moved his office under dome as he began his 3rd year ago, it will be observed by instance that the average of the other seven who participated organization of the House is less than four years, as compared with just brief service.

Two Running

According to Attilus Mullin, there are two candidates for Governor already in the race, Ex-Governor Bibb Graves of Montgomery and Judge Chancey Sparks of Eufaula. These two men have both been in politics before and know what it takes to get votes. It is a long time yet before the primary in 1941 to nominate candidates for governor. We have been waiting to see some action from Col. Bibb Graves. He said that he would be elected. Graves is very popular and the man who beats him, will doubtless be governor. There may be others to announce for the Governorship—Luvorne Journal.

BAPTIST EXECUTIVE BOARD TO MEET FRIDAY NITE

There will be a meeting of the Chilton County Baptist Executive Committee, Friday night, January 10th, at 7 o'clock.

All Sunday School Superintendents are urged to attend.—G. G. Williams, Chairman.

Gas Tax Yields $15,468.50

Alabama's gas tax yielded approximately fifteen and a half million dollars during 1940. Each of the 48 counties got approximately $10,000 a month during the year.

Alabama Families

According to the 1940 census, Alabama's population is 2,832,961; there are 670,111 occupied dwellin units and 591,625 private families.

Senator L. H. Ellis, of Columbiana, underwent a major operation at a Birmingham hospital last week. His condition is reported to be "good."

Former representative Felix Smith and his wife, of Coosa county, were injured last Friday when their car was in collision with a Columbus, Gr., car on the highway near Goodwater.

Two Schools Burn

Two more Alabama school buildings went up in smoke last week. They were the Clanton Junior High School in Walker County and the Skyline Farm school building in Jackson county.

Whip in the Senate. Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, was elected Democratic Leader, and Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, was elected President pro tempore.

Listening Post To Spot Spies

80 Highly Sensitive Radio Stations Equipped to Police the Ether.

CHICAGO.—And now it's "electric ears" for government service. In tense times of today the very air waves may be the means whereby spies and saboteurs are getting their messages through to the place they will do America the most harm.

So, under the Federal Communications commission, 80 highly sensitive "listening posts" are being installed throughout the country, and they will be combing the ether 24 hours a day to intercept subversive messages.

Such a post for the Chicago area already has been placed in operation at the Navy pier. Every station in the Union will have at least one "listening post," and densely populated states will have two or more under the present FCC plans.

Call for Operations. These posts, technically known as "secondary base monitoring stations" form one link in the new and closely knit co-operative program between the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the army and navy intelligence departments.

Two hundred and fifty radio engineers and a like number of operators from private broadcasting stations and amateur ranks have been invited to file applications with the commission for positions manning the monitoring stations unceasingly. Officials said the newly created defense section of the FCC, under which this work comes, will be entirely separate from normal operations of the commission. The normal functions involve radio station inspections, handling of operators' licenses and ship equipment certificates.

Each station is being furnished with one mobile unit, fitted into a large sedan, for tracking down unauthorized radio transmitters.

Record Messages.

Cars are equipped with cylinder-type recorders, two radio receivers that cover the entire ether spectrum including ultrahigh frequencies, a direction finder with portable loop antenna, 30-watt frequency modulation type transmitters and devices to permit communication between all cars.

Recording equipment will be utilized to preserve on wax cylinders for analysis by intelligence agents all unauthorized radio broadcasts of a subversive or doubtful character, officials stated.

Most of the base stations are being located on federal military reservations, and a few are being placed on the outskirts of cities, to allow privacy of movement to operating crews, space for antenna and a minimum number of personnel.

Each "listening post" will be in charge of a monitoring officer having a civil service rating and paid $3,200 annually. Assistants will be paid $2,400.

Operators will receive $1,800 and second class, $1,620 a year.

Licensed "hams," or amateurs, are eligible to apply for temporary appointments, as are licensed commercial operators, but each must prove his unquestionable loyalty to the nation, officials declared.

Indian Draftes Fear Loss of Long Hair Braids

GRAND RAPIDS.—Mayor George Walsh has been asked to intercede for a tribe of Indians at Taos, N. M., so that when its members are conscripted they won't lose their long braids and their chance to go to the Happy Hunting Ground.

Welsh, who on visits to New Mexico became friendly with the Indians and invited them to visit here, received a letter from a rancher representing the tribe.

The letter sets forth that long hair is an essential part of the religion of the Taos tribe. Tribesmen are ready to serve their country, the letter said, but hope for special dispensation regarding army regulations which make the "bean shave" a part of the military service.

Dog That Can Say 'Mama'

Described by Novelist

NEW YORK.—A dog that can say "mama" was described by Zolt Harsanyi, Hungarian novelist, in the current issue of the Hungarian Quarterly published by the Columbia University Press.

The dog, of a breed known as Pulli, answered "mama" in a low, happy tone when asked the question: "Who is it that gives you food?" Harsanyi wrote. The dog, he said, was made to repeat the performance several times and each time he pronounced the word distinctly, shaping his lips like a human being.

Queer Marriages Ends

For Ex-British Soldier

CLEVELAND.—A one-time British soldier has won a divorce from the mother of his sweetheart he lost 15 years ago.

When Fred Prior, 39, returned from India his fiancée was married, so he took the hand of her mother. When the mother insisted that she and Prior live with her daughter, it became too much for the India campaigner and he came to America. His wife refused to follow.

RAIN! FREEZE!

Concrete Roads Can Take It

Once more newspaper headlines like these, following the recent heavy freeze, broke the bad news to motorists.

But there's another side to the story. Concrete resisted the damaging effects of heavy rains and severe cold—saved millions of dollars for motorists.

Concrete has the "bridging strength" needed to keep pavements from breaking up when the supporting soil is weakened by frost and soaking rains.

Because of this simple engineering fact, your concrete roads remain safe and efficient in all weather—need no "load limit" or "detour" signs—are kept in prime condition without expensive maintenance.

Concrete is a true "low-cost road" over a period of years.

Texas Coast Region

Contracts Already Awarded
Total $250,000,000.

HOUSTON, TEXAS.—The Texas gulf coast, a depression bright spot, continues to shine on the nation's business map despite vanished foreign markets for petroleum and cotton.

Private and national defense industrial building and public works costing more than $250,000,000 have jumped the retail sales barometer in this area 23 per cent.

Effects of national defense spending have not approached a peak, as the program hardly has got under way. Private construction alone for the first nine months of 1940 totaled more than $34,000,000 in Houston, San Antonio, Corpus Christi and Galveston.

Major projects, exclusive of a $920,000,000 contract for 12 U. S. navy destroyers to be built at Orange, include a $25,000,000 naval air base at Corpus Christi, a $17,000,000 plant for Union Carbide company at Texas City, a $12,000,000 magnesium plant for Dow Chemical company at Freeport and a $5,000,000 shipyard at Orange.

Oil companies in the Beaumont-Port Arthur area are carrying out a $20,000,000 refinery expansion program. Humble Oil & Refining company has completed plans under federal approval for construction of a $12,000,000 plant for manufacture of toluene, base for explosives, at Baytown near here.

In addition, the war department has authorized work and construction costing more than $3,000,000 for re-establishment of Ellington military airfield near Houston and for expansion and improvement at Fort Crockett, Corpus Christi, and Camp Bullis, Houston. Extensive expansion of Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, is under way.

Rio Grande Carries Salt

Into the Gulf of Mexico

EL PASO. — The Rio Grande through its several tributaries deposits five tons of salt into the Gulf of Mexico every minute, according to a survey by engineers of the international boundary commission. In a single day the river deposits the equivalent of 1,420 five-ton truck loads of salt into the gulf, the survey found.

Largest single contributor of salt to the Rio Grande is the Pecos river of west Texas, which in 1939 put 31 per cent of the total salts but only 6.5 per cent of the total water in the Rio Grande. Despite this heavy contribution, however, the Pecos is only one-twelfth as salty as sea water.

Farm and AAA News from the County Agent

FARMERS ADVISED HATCH SOME OF CHICKS EARLY

John Ivey, extension poultryman, is advocating that Alabama poultrymen have some of their chicks hatched in January.

"Although many of our poultrymen are well stocked with laying birds during the summer period when eggs are in great demand and prices are satisfactory, still to large a number of poultrymen make provisions to supplement their laying flock with ready-to-lay pullets," he says.

"Since the most satisfactory price for eggs is normally to be secured from summer and fall months with prices usually showing a sliding off from about the middle of December on through into the spring, provisions should be made by the poultryman to have at least a fairly large proportion of his pullet flock mature and laying eggs over a reasonable good portion of this period.

"Another most important advantage of some of the chicks being hatched early in the fact that brooding equipment of various types normally is not in use at this season and can be utilized without additional overhead investment. Since yearling birds, nearing the completion of their laying year, are in a very declining rate of egg production and since their numbers are conspicuously less," he says, "originally housed in the preceding fall, a few early hatches tend to equalize production over the low production period."

LETTUCE RECOMMENDED FOR ALABAMA MARKETS

Head lettuce is a crop not commonly grown for market in Alabama, but which offers an excellent opportunity for painstaking farmers near good local markets to add to their present cash income," says Lyle Brown, extension horticulturist.

"The advent of such new varieties as Imperial 874 and Imperial 44, which appear better suited to our climatic conditions has made it possible to grow very good head lettuce and with most favorable weather conditions excellent returns can be had," he says.

This crop is started in cold frames in December or early January and put in the field in late January to March. Land should be prepared in the fall with 10-20 tons of stable manure, a moderate application of basic slag, and lime where the soil tends to be very acid, and have 1000 to 2000 pounds of a balanced fertilizer put in the rows at least two weeks before planting time.

Then side dressing of 75 to 100 pounds of nitrate of soda in two or three applications should be given every three weeks after growth begins in the field.

A half pound of seed will yield enough plants to set an acre. Rows should be two and one-half to three feet apart and plants set 12 inches in the drill.

Cultivation to keep down weeds and grass is all that is necessary. Harvest should begin in late April or early May, according to the season. Cool weather with plenty of moisture through May are essential for proper heading of the lettuce. A portion of an acre is usually enough to begin with and will furnish experience for later work.

PREPARATION OF LAND FOR KUDZU

Failure to prepare the right kind of plant bed is often responsible for poor stands of kudzu, according to Kermit N. Tucker, Acting Camp Superintendent, of the Soil Conservation Service in the CCC Camp Area near Clanton.

"To insure a good survival, kudzu should be planted on a well-prepared firm plant bed," he said. "Under no conditions should the seedlings be planted on beds where the soil is in a loose, spongy condition."

"When preparing plant beds, space rows about 25 feet apart. Open a deep furrow along each row and apply two tons of manure, and 200 pounds of superphosphate per acre in the furrows. Cover this furrow by plowing enough furrows to it to form a flat bed. Harrow or drag these beds down until they are approximately flat."

"It is best to prepare the beds in the fall or early winter so that the ground may be well settled before tim for kudzu to be planted. Where the beds have yet to be prepared, it is important to the successful establishment of kudzu."

"Planting along large gullies or roadsides should be made in well-prepared highly-fertilized rows to the gullies or roadbanks. Rows should be far enough from the gully to allow cultivation of plants with a plow. In areas where the preparation of a plant bed is impossible, plant in well-prepared hills."

The success obtained with kudzu is usually measured by the care with which the seedlings are planted. Many there is the idea that kudzu will take root and grow no matter how poorly it is planted. That is wrong. Kudzu responds to plant bed preparation and fertilization as much or perhaps more than any other farm crop.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN BY BEN

Since we went to press last week we have enjoyed a healthy case of "flu". We do mean healthy, but we don't mean joyful. Of course Dr. was called in and "disched out" the required number of little capsules needed to withstand the seige. You know, now they are making these pills in red, white, blue and yellow. Pretty and mavee patriotic, but they make you just as sick. Someday when a doctor is tapping on your chest and leaning over to who'll be able to control the urge to holler "Boo" and scare him stiff.

She comes into a local Cafe at the same time everyday. She's very pretty, one might say beautiful in an old fashioned way. She chooses a booth or table and seems to wait on someone. He usually follows within ten or fifteen minutes. She orders a "coffee" and he always "coffee". Their conversation seems always to be slow-moving don't seem to be so necessary, however when their conversation is "so" most always his... she listens. Who are they? We wouldn't know... just an incident in the everyday life of Clanton.

"Pee-Wee" Martin, of Mell Martin & Sons Funeral Directors, had occasion to travel a few miles to the county three hundred miles and visit four hospitals, where he either left a patient or picked up a patient, in one day. St. Margaret's, at Montgomery; Kings Memorial, at Selma; South Highlands Birmingham and our own Central Alabama hospital here were the four hospitals visited. According to "Pee-Wee" it was some driving and he could have used a good ambulance himself when he finished for the night.

Look out—officer Nivens has a new officers' cap—it's mighty pretty, but can't possibly make officer Nivens any law enforcement officer than he already is. Things have a habit of running extra smooth when our present city officers are on the job.

Can't help looking with pride on that Basketball Team that Coach Dewey Cox is going to travel to Tallapoosa to gain this year. Nine straight wins to date and it looks like plenty more coming up. Even the large dailies, when Clanton is mentioned speak in modulated tones. They have all the respect in Clanton. Clanton is the only school when it comes to Basketball those boys are to be highly congratulated for their fine team work and sportsmanship as well as their coach for his training. Members of this year's team are: Luther Coggins, Royal Coggins, C. Cost James Payton, Cy Foster, L. Riggins, Capt. Osmond "Punk" Olson, Wellington "Bobo" Collins, Al Smith and Curtis Daniels.

Chilton County Schools Participating In Oratorical Contest

Students in junior and senior high schools of this county are keenly interested in the scholarship to be awarded by Birmingham-Southern College in the Birmingham News-Appeal Herald Oratorical Contest. This year, the basic subject for which "Abraham Lincoln" will award a Birmingham-Southern will award a one-year scholarship valued at $800.00 to the state champion. A two-year scholarship will be available upon graduation in a later year.

In addition to these scholarships to be awarded by Birmingham-Southern the Birmingham News-Appeal Herald will award a one-year scholarship valued at $200.00 to the winner of third place. If a scholarship won by a contestant who will not graduate from high school in 1941, the scholarship will be available upon graduation in a later year.

Verberna High School, Mr. W. C. Duane, principal; Chilton County High School, Mr. Patterson Hicks, principal; L. Isabelle High School, Mapleville, R. Curtis Matthews, principal. The oratorical contest management states that greater activity in Chilton County is expected this year than has been in the majority of past years. Ordinarily, according to contest management, Isabelle High has won the only Chilton County school high evidenced much interest. And it had this competition from a junior high school. Help Needed At Red Cross Sewing Room

There is an abundance of thread at the Red Cross Sewing Room for War Sufferers that has not been worked in to sweaters. Mrs. Jim Jones and Mrs. Claude Craig, urge all who possibly can to meet at the sewing room Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock to help finish this work. Only one-third of the Chilton County quota has been reached.

Mrs. Graigs says that if you can knit but cannot knit to the head-quarters, call either her or Mrs. Jones and they will bring the thread to your home. If you can come be there at 1:30 Friday afternoon.

Everyone is urged to bring in any knitting or sewing they may have finished at home, on Friday morning. We must get this shipment off at once.

FSA Supervisors Study Methods To Wipe Out Poverty

Approximately 300 FSA Supervisors from Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and Louisiana, have met in Montgomery for a two-week's study of poverty problems.

S. Morgan, FSA regional director, discussing the situation said: "The protheses resulting from depression. The blens of rural poverty are not solely conditions that caused this distress, which came light during the depths of the depression, had their development in the South since Civil War. The depression brought about the crisis.

"Before the depression, when the farm wore out or was foreclosed, the family could do two things—move west or go to the city. Prior to the depression 300,000 annually left the South. Since the depression migration slowed down with many families attempting to return to the farm from the city with consequent additional pressure on the land."

school of the county, it is believed by the contest management will in the present contest, take a more active part than in any of the past years. This school most certainly would not continue to be interested had not the value of the contest been clearly demonstrated.

School elimination are to be held on or before February 21st, at which time the school's representative for competition with other schools will be selected. County contests are to be held on or before March 7th, and congressional districts contests are to be held for all districts except the ninth (reference county) within the dates, March 21 to April 12, inclusive. Date or holding each of these congressional district contests will be named by Artemus Calloway, of Birmingham, state oratorical contest director. State finals will be at Birmingham-Southern college, Friday night, April 25th.

Tomorrow, Friday, January 17th, is the anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin, discoverer of electricity, 1706.

Chilton County Quint Plays On Celtic Program To-Nite

Locals Score 381 Points To Opponents' 195; Dailies Praise Team

By Clark Headley Coach Dewey Cox and his undefeated Chilton County Hi Cagers will invade the City Auditorium in Birmingham tonight, playing on the annual Celtic-Howard program, in one of the six preliminary games to be played. The Clanton team will risk their title against Warrior High at 6:15. The main event of the evening will be at 9:30.

Over the past week Chilton High took a very important game from Coach Joe Riley's Lanier Poets, which puts them in a safe margin in this state contest, having defeated some of their strongest foes thus far, and all by a safe margin. Clanton gave the Lanier lads a spanking of 23 to 16, taking a seven point lead at the beginning and holding a safe margin throughout the game.

In the game to be played in Birmingham tonight, Clanton will be playing against Lanier. High again for the best looking team on the clinic. Coach says he believe he has one of the best

King teams in the state as well as

Enterprise Singing Held Last Sunday

The regular monthly singing was held at Enterprise schoolhouse on the first Sunday afternoon in January. Philip Headley presided, singing the opening song. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Emmett Wilson.

Directors were: T. E. Wyatt, Jesse Jones, Emmett Wilson, O. L. Devaughn, D. D. Huett, J. W. Devaughn, Raybon Crew. Three special songs were sung by the Crew family quartet, which were well rendered. The closing song was sung by T. E. Wyatt, and John Devaughn offered the benediction.—J. M. Williams, secretary pro tem.

Woco - Peppers To Play Montgomery "Y"

The Clanton Independents, or Woco-Peppers with five wins and only two defeats for the season, will play Montgomery Y. M. C. A. here Friday night (tomorrow night), in the High School gymnasium in one of their feature games of the season. The Montgomery team is composed of material from the nearby Maxwell Field, and the players are all somewhat professionals at the game, coming from various teams of the U. S. The team is managed by Ben Chapman, professional baseball player who reigns from the University of Alabama. Other players come from Duane, U. of A., Miss. State and Michigan.

On Monday night, the Woco-Peppers will play Bevel Mills, of Sylacauga, here. Then comes the game of games, the one with the Oklahoma Indians, professionals, who are now making appearances in Alabama. Watch for further announcements of this game next week.

All games begin at eight o'clock, and the admission is small.

Millions Alloted For Southern Roads

Atlanta.—The Federal Government has allotted millions of dollars to be spent on roads of the South during the fiscal years beginning July 1, according to an announcement made in Washington by Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody.

All of the allotments were made possible by the allocation of $134,062,500 by Congress for highway improvements during 1941-42. The Federal grants will be matched by State Funds.

All of the highway work during this year will center around national defense.

The South, with many big training centers, is playing a big part in the program.

Following is a list of the allotments for Southern States:

North Carolina, $3,310,673; South Carolina, $1,874,371; Tennessee, $2,865,702; Virginia, $2,541,938; Georgia, $3,448,790; Florida, $1,974,801; Alabama, $2,800,768; Louisiana, $2,042,078; West Virginia, $1,531,539; Mississippi, $1,184,374; Ark., $2,343,434. Also Maryland, West Virginia and Kentucky received a large share for road building purposes.

First Baptist Church

Oscar A. Davis, Pastor Clanton, Alabama

Regular services are announced for next Sunday. Our hours of service are: Sunday school, 9:45 a.m.; Morning Worship, 11:00; Training Union, 6:00 p.m., and Evening Worship at 7:00.

Circles of the W. M. S. convene at the church on Monday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock for a Missionary program meeting, with Mrs. A. L. Farley and Mr. Houston Nivens, directing the program.

Choice practice on Thursday night at 7:00 at the home of Mrs. John Ellis.

Wiley M. Bean, popular Clanton merchant, has been corresponding with some of the Nation's largest milk condensing firms, in an effort to interest them in a milk condensing plant in Chilton County, and has met with a most favorable response. Mr. Bean writes the News as follows:

"Recently I have had some correspondence with two of the largest milk condensing concerns of the country. I have been seeing information about establishing a milk canning plant at Clanton for the people of Chilton County. I have just had a most favorable reply to an inquiry. It is from the center of the milk canning industry of our country and advocates very strongly the idea of placing a plant in this vicinity.

In the letter there were set forth some of the most important requirements for such a project here. All the requirements can easily be met unless it is this required amount of milk daily. The minimum requirement I am informed to start this condensary here will be 100,000 pounds of milk each day. With this beginning, it will be hoped that this amount can soon be made to reach 200,000 pounds per day. The people of Chilton County might think on this and begin now to express themselves.

As I view this I think this would be a great asset to the county as a whole. I have had occasion to see such a plant in progress, and I find such to be the most satisfactory source of regular income to everyone that I have known.

A person with two, three, five, six, or seven more cows can receive a nice weekly check. Such would serve to stimulate the dairy industry and give Chilton County some good stock. This would in turn help to enrich some of the poor farms of the country. Persons who are unable to do what is considered hard work, could take care of a few old cows and thereby make a steady income from the home. There are many widows who can't do other work that can take care of such work and make good. In general, as I have seen it working, I find that it gives employment to many who otherwise would not be able to earn anything. Too such a plant would in all probability give several general employment, as such a plant would of necessity have to run 365 days each year. Four, five or more milk trucks would have to make regular trips each day of the year and pick up your milk at your door. These trucks would give employment to several.

I want to ask the interested people of the county to think this matter over. It can be made to materialize. If you feel interested, come into my store and register with me just how many good dairy cows you will try to keep for the purpose of furnishing milk and just what you think of the matter in a general way. Now, I know often there are people who feel right off that they can do lots, but after contacting the real problem find that they are unable to do what they first thought. This is why I ask any who care to consider this to think carefully and then come into my store and tell me what you know you can do and I will submit what I find to the people who are considering placing a milk condensary here. Come to Bean Grocery.

Yours very truly,

WILEY M. BEAN.

Mark Remarks:

A far greater danger lurks in the background of "Our American Way of Life" than is likely to come from any attempted foreign invasion. Regardless of who wins World War No. 2, or whether neither side wins, conditions in America are not going to be the same. The President and the Congress should consider well this approaching day before plunging this Nation headlong into Europe's seething cauldron.

There may not be too much money spent through governmental agencies in advising farmers how to get better results in their farming activities, but there is entirely too little being spent in teaching them how to prepare what they have made for market, and how to find a market.

Is there any truth in what we read in press reports and hear over the radio about British successes at the war fronts. Uncle Sam will have to step on it if he gets that "all-out" drive before John Bull has mopped up the whole works.

Grover Hall is dead. A light set on a hill not hid under a bushel, shines on. Honored and acclaimed by his fellows, he has gone to be appraised by the All Wisdom of the Universe. Requiescat in pace.

It is to weep! The President himself said that Christian America is being converted into an arsenal for the manufacture of death dealing devices which Christians are to kill and maim other Christians.

The fellows, who all along, have been howling that Dr. Townsend's Old Age Pension Plan would bankrupt the Nation, are howling for the Nation to GIVE ten times as much to Great Britain.

Harry Hopkins has hopped the Atlantic, as the personal representative of the president, and is now hopping around England, picking up an eyefull and earfull to bring back to the Big Chief.

We went to war before to make the world safe for democracy. To look now as we are going to war this time to make democracy safe for the world.

There is little danger of world civilization not surviving this time in the real danger of Christianity surviving in America.

Wonder if Cody Hall could tell us how many dollars worth of free advertising Alabama weekly newspapers have given to the "Kudzu movement".

The Halseyville Advertiser says: "The War boom is on." Sure boom of the bombs.

Speaking of speed, we now get our Monday Montgomery Journal on Saturday.

They'll Be Paid For

Britain wants more destroyers, more ships, more airplanes, more munitions. She cannot get them from any other source than the United States, and the chances are they will never be paid for—Green County Government.

Yes, they'll be paid for—in the same manner that the billions of European's warring nations before—through the sweat of the brows of millions of toiling Americans.

Baker Calls On State To Fight Influenza

Montgomery, Ala.—Calling attention to the fact that this is the influenza season, Dr. J. N. Baker, state health officer, urged today that people use reasonable precaution to protect others as well as themselves against the disease.

"Those who develop bad colds should go to bed, if possible," he said. "Thus they give themselves a much better chance to make a rapid recovery and also to refrain themselves as a source of infection to others. When influenza is prevalent, even the well should be fortified against possible infection by getting plenty of rest, including a full night's sleep, drinking more water than usual, increasing their consumption of fruit juices, and seeing to it that all normal physical functions, including elimination, are regular. Those who experience aching sensations or run fever should call their physicians."

Coosa's Transformation

An immense powder plant will be constructed along the banks of the Coosa River near Childersburg. The site of the sprawling plant will overlap a part of the site of the old Indian town of Coosa. Not all the importance of the plant to today's needs can erase the recollection of the site before the site was important in Alabama history.

It was almost exactly four centuries ago that De Soto approached the town of Coosa. Its inhabitants, according to the old chronicle, were the most friendly and hospitable of white men had yet met. They received the fair-faced strangers with open arms, even as the people of Childersburg today are receiving their $30,000,000 plant. The Indian chief came forth to meet De Soto riding upon a chair borne on the shoulders of his principal men. He was followed by a thousand dusky warriors, all uprightly and active, arrayed in gorgeous robes and feathers, chanting songs and playing upon flutes.

The Indian chief, described as a young man 26 years of age, well formed, and intelligent, received De Soto with all kindness and generosity, offering him a spot anywhere in the dominion upon which to establish a colony. But De Soto came seeking gold, and was suspicious. He ordered the young chief seized as a hostage, and for pure in that territory. This policy turned the hospitable Coosans into deadly enemies, and paved the way of his travels in Alabama.

But all that was long ago. Later the English came this way. The town of Coosa disappeared, almost to be forgotten until just recently some anthropologists began excavation there. The Indians vanished before other white men came. So difficult to be so considerate than De Soto's Spaniards.

And soon now there will be the bustle of construction in that bend of the Coosa River. And one reason for that activity will be the fact that the white man still has to have force to settle his relationships. Still he is distrustful and suspicious.

The plant that goes up there at Coosa Town will be greatly different from the Indian houses that used to be there. In four centuries man has learned much about construction. His skyscrapers would be unbelievable to the simple Coosa. So difficult to be so considerate than De Soto's Spaniards.

One wonders if the time will come when this powder plant will disappear, as was the Indian Town of Coosa disappeared. It is difficult to foresee such a happening, and today we expect the powder plant as a contribution to the well-being of that community, in time of peace as well as time of war, since not all the uses of powder are restricted to death. But if 400 years ago someone had come to the town of Coosa and predicted that soon strange white beings on snorting animals would come that way, and that not long after the town would disappear and the Indians would vanish, that prophet would have been laughed out of town.

And so the powder plant at Childersburg, in addition to being an asset to the state and community, becomes also a symbol of the shortlived nature of many of man's affairs.—Birmingham News.

Alabama May Lead Way To Solving Farm Problems

Auburn, Ala.—Agricultural officials in Washington, D. C. are hopeful that Alabama's new conservation plan may point the way to solving the problems facing present agricultural adjustment program.

This was revealed in a statement by United States Department of Agriculture, at the annual extension conference.

Some of these problems include:

1. How can we make the A. A. A. program really control production? It has been his observation that as cotton acreage has been reduced the per acre yields have been increased.
 2. How can we make the conservation part of the AAA program work? He declared that in some sections of the country the conservation practices have not been generally adopted.
 3. How can the Agricultural Adjustment Service, Farm Security Administration, Soil Conservation and Forest Service programs be coordinated so that there will be no duplication in their efforts?
 4. How can we make the programs work for the advancement of farm people as well as for the conservation of the farm?
 5. Is the farm program working for the advancement of one group of farmers to the detriment of others? He stated that it is most important to protect family sized farms.
- The Alabama plan will be watched and studied with a great deal of interest during the next two or three years to see progress made in solving these problems, he said.

JOURNAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

A wealthy lady was strolling in her back yard when her pearls broke and her valued gems scattered in the ground. She went her way not knowing what had taken place. Along came the barnyard Rooster and spying the pearls he thought them to be grains of corn and he set up a loud call for his lady friends. They came running and seeing the pearls they eyed them cautiously before consuming them. After discovering them to be pearls and not grains of corn they turned away in disgust. They did not know real value when they saw it. To them a grain of corn was worth more than a diamond. We find men and women who have no more estimate of what is really worthwhile in life than a fowl that scratches in the back yard. Just something to eat and wear is the length and breadth of many.

We had a dog by the name of Doctor and he a skilled hunter. A trail was never too cold for him to take. He showed his love and loyalty to his master by doing as ordered. This dog grew old in our home and yet his devotion did not wane. One day he bayed a wild boar and we gathered near and shouted, "Catch him Doctor, Catch him Doctor!" No sooner did he hear our orders than he seized the boar's ear, but he could not hold and the wild beast dashed for the swamp. The old dog looked humiliated and in dog language he said to us, "Master, my heart is willing but my flesh is weak." Did not scold that brave, loyal old dog for we remembered what he had been and not what he was then, if it be man or beast, and there is faithful service rendered that should never be forgotten.

A cunning old fox stepped out of the sage and found himself in the face of a huge lion. On seeing this almost to death. A short time after this, the fox met the lion against this time he felt no more. The fox kept up for some time and finally the old fox was no longer afraid of the lion. Then one day the lion had a feast of the fox for his meal. Do you remember how frightened you were when you first did wrong? The next time your conscience did not cry out quite so loudly. You kept it up until the day came when you were not afraid of bad habits and bad deeds. Then you went into the maw of bad living. Always be afraid of bad habits.

The mules of the farmer became unruly. They left the highway and with a mad speed, they rushed into the wooded land, the farmer pulled hard on the lines and coaxed with whip and voice, but they would not be stopped. Just ahead was a deep ravine and the driver, seeing the danger, leaped to the ground. As the wild team rushed on the farmer lamented, I tried to stop you, but you would not be stopped, now look out for yourselves. A few days later the sky was filled with vultures. Yes, there is a family and all is going well, but one child, maybe more, decides to become unruly. The parents coax and persuade, but the more said the wilder the youth. We have all seen parents who had to stop aside and lament, "We have tried hard to stop you but you would not be stopped." Now look out for yourselves.

Three Texas bulls were fast friends and always grazed together. One day a huge leopard located them and decided to make a feast off them. He tried ever so hard to find just one bull and tackle him alone, but they were always together. He fell upon the plan of destroying their friendship. So one day he slipped up to each bull and whispered evil in his ear about the other two. They were jealous and suspicious and in a short while they were grazing alone. Then the big leopard sprang upon each bull and for weeks he had a great feast. Verily, verily, I say unto you, and evil report whispered against your friend, is the voice of a wicked leopard, seeking the death of friendship. Beware, beware.

"Build-Up" Important Protector of Women

A weak, undernourished condition often enables functional dysmenorrhea to get a foothold; thus leads to much of woman's suffering from headaches, nervousness, and other periodic discomfort.

CARDUI's principle help for such distress comes from the way it usually stimulates appetite; increases flow of gastric juice; thus aids digestion; helps build energy, strength, physical resistance to periodic pain for many.

Another way, many women find help for periodic distress: Take CARDUI a few days before and during the "time." Women have used CARDUI for more than 50 years!

Again--Mark Twain On War

"There has never been a just one, never an honorable one--on the part of the instigator of the war. I can see a million years ahead, and this rule will never change in so many as a half a dozen instances. The loud little hand-fist-as usual--will shout for the war. The pulpit will warily and cautiously--object--at first the great bog doll bulk of the nation will rub its sleepy eyes and try to make out why there should be a war, and will say, earnestly and indignantly, 'It is unjust and dishonorable and there is no necessity for it.'"

"Then the handful will shout louder. A few fair men on the other side will argue and reason against the war with speech and pen, and at first will have a hearing and be applauded but it will not last long; those others will outshoot them, and presently the anti-war audiences will thin out and lose popularity."

"Before long you will see this curious thing; the speakers stoned from the platform, and free speech strangled by hordes of furious men who in their secret hearts are still at one with those stoned speakers--as ear--but do not dare to say so."

"And now the whole nation--pulpit and all--will take up the war-cry, and shout itself hoarse, and mab any honest man who ventures to open his mouth and presently such mouths will cease to open."

"Next the statesman will invent cheap lies, putting the blame upon the nation that is attacked, and every man will be glad of those consciousness-soothing falsities, and will diligently study them, and refuse to examine any refutations of them; and thus he will by and by convince himself that the war is just, and will thank God for the better sleep he enjoys after this process of grotesque self-deception."—Birmingham Post

Letters To The Editor

WANTS U. S. FINISHED BEFORE THE EXODUS

I keep noticing from time to time some very interesting side remarks and news items in your paper in behalf of our mutual good friend, Bibb Graves, the next governor of Alabama.

It seems that we will not have a highway through Chilton County until Bibb gets re-elected Governor, and I am wondering if it wouldn't be very appropriate for you to come out with a good editorial on the theme that it would be a good idea for this administration in Montgomery to have U. S. 31 paved from Birmingham to Montgomery and possibly four-lane in order to take care of the Dixon employees from Birmingham and north Alabama upon their exit from the Capital when Bibb goes in—Yours truly, JIM PLOTT.

House Reapportionment Proposed By Rankin

Washington, D. C.—Reapportionment of the house of representatives, increasing the number from 435 to 450 to conform with the 1940 census, has been proposed by Representative Rankin (D. Miss.).

Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Tennessee, N. Carolina, Arizona, Kent. Ky., as Michigan, Minnesota, New Mexico would lose one member and New York, Oregon and Wisconsin would be given an additional seat. California would be given three new members and other states would remain unchanged.

Read the Advertiser in the Chilton County News! It will pay dividends.

AWAY, Goose-Bumps!

MAYBE you are one of those rare birds who likes those early morning "goose-bumpy" chills—you may enjoy a razor rasping and gulling against the stiff stubble of your he-man beard. If so, this advertisement will not interest you.

If, however, you are a man who likes comfort, you may want to make some inquiry about an electric water heater—that simple, dependable, economical device which supplies plenty of hot water at the turn of a faucet. No fires to build—no ashes to carry out—not even a switch to flick because it operates automatically!

The Whole Family Can Enjoy An Electric Water Heater

Hot water for early morning bathing and shaving—without a fire to build, without waiting, without mass or fuss of any kind. Hot water any time of the day—just by turning a faucet. Because electricity is cheap in Alabama, the operating cost of electric water heaters is moderate. Ask for an estimate of the cost for your family.

Congressman Pete Jarman Plays Very Important Part In Securing Powder Plant For Alabama

STARTED WORKING FOR THE PROJECT
BACK IN JULY OF 1940

That our own Congressman Pete Jarman had as much to do with the getting of the big government powder plant located in central Alabama as anyone, is clearly shown by the following correspondence on that subject. Pete got the "tip," got busy, and while the plant is not located in his district, it is just across the river, plenty close for his constituents to get a full measure of its benefits:

Hon. Mark Tucker, Publisher, The Chilton County News, Clanton, Alabama.

Dear Mark:
I regret exceedingly that it will be impossible for you to occupy the seat at the inauguration which it afforded me so much pleasure to reserve for you, but I hope you can come up at a later time. I appreciate deeply your expression of hope that whoever occupies it will be as true a friend to the New Deal as you are. Be assured of my constant best efforts to prove worthy of your confidence.

I enclose herewith my reply to the inquiry addressed to me in his issue of January 9th, "Somebody Must Be Asleep at the Switch," by T.E. Wyatt. I hope you feel that you can consistently publish this letter for several reasons. First, he did not indulge in the courtesy of replying to my last letter which was written in reply to a direct attack on me which causes me to naturally assume that he will not publish this one. Second, I do not think his reference to defense projects as gratuities should go unanswered in that county which is so evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans. Third, I believe it contains other information and, forth, I think a public official is entitled to the publication of his reply to an attack by a newspaper and that if the editor concerned is not sufficiently acquainted with newspaper etiquette to publish such a reply, another paper in the town should do so.

You probably noticed the very effective way in which the two Shelby County papers recently carried Dr. Hines' reply to Mrs. Wallace's uncalculated attack on me which she did not have the courage to carry. I understand that this has reacted very tremendously against her and in my favor in Shelby County since.

I enclose herewith the correspondence referred to in my letter to him. Even though it is voluminous I will appreciate your reading it with thought that you find it worthwhile.

I send this airmail in order that you may get it in a hurry.

Sincerely thanking you in advance and with kind personal regards to you and yours, in which my wife joins, I am,

Your friend,
PETE JARMAN.

Mr. T. E. Wyatt, Editor and Publisher, The Union-Banner, Clanton, Alabama.

Although you failed to publish my reply to your last article relative to me since the one in your issue of January 9th "Somebody Must Be Asleep at the Switch" concludes with a question to me I answer it and the several other propounded with the request that you the same front page publicity to my reply as it enjoyed.

First, I wish to wholeheartedly join you in congratulating Childeburg, Anniston, Selma and Montgomery on the millions which will be spent in these towns for National Defense. They will considerably help those sections just as the Childeburg project which will be of interest to your readers than any of them you now vision, will help Chilton County some and be of great benefit to all of Shelby.

I reply to your inquiry "Why is it that the Sixth Alabama Congressional District and most especially Chilton County, has not come in for a share of the 'gratuities' by stating first that these projects are by no means 'gratuities' but constitute a part of our necessary and orderly National Defense program. It is the patriotic duty of everyone to locate them at the most advantageous point for National Defense without any thought whatever of pork barrel.

I am aware that Chilton County can meet the requirements for one of projects, it is as much your and my patriotic duty to bring this fact to the attention of the Government as it is our duty not to desire one of a better location for it exists. Second, because no defense installation was established in that area during the World War or at any other time, and because there are no other projects in the area, the requirements. The distance from the labor supply alone vetoed consideration of Chilton for the Powder Plant.

Only two defense projects have been located in Alabama which did not naturally flow from existing defense installation, either as an addition thereto or an auxiliary thereof. You will recall that Fort McClellan at Anniston accommodated two divisions during the last War and it was but natural for it to be greatly enlarged and for the ammunition depot desired in this area to be located very near Alabama's only Fort. It was equally so for Maxwell Field, established more than twenty years ago at Montgomery, to be greatly enlarged. This occurred to such an extent that Montgomery could not care for the entire set up and it literally overflowed to Selma.

Doctor Grace and several others will recall my correspondence relative to the possibility of its doing so to Clanton at the time. The two exceptions are the shell plant and the powder plant which will be erected at Gadsden and on Coosa just across from Vincent, respectively, nearer which it will be than Childeburg.

The answer to your inquiry "have not our officials the same connection with Washington as those of our neighboring counties" is, of course, in the affirmative.

Despite your failure to publish my last letter, I still believe you desire to be fair. Consequently, I enclose herewith copies of certain correspondence commencing last July from reading of which I am sure you will be thoroughly convinced that no other member of the Alabama delegation, either in the House or Senate, was aware of the possibility of Alabama securing this powder plant back in June when I learned of it and commenced efforts to locate it in my district, or is fact at the time the Riverside area was tentatively selected in November. Although it is quite voluminous, I indulge in the request that you read it all, after which I believe you will wish to state in your next issue that you do not think this editorial entirely fair to me.

You will observe from reading it that the long and strenuous efforts in which I indulged to secure this plant for my State and District succeeded magnificently, although the fact that a much preferable site was available less than a mile from my district caused it to be located there. Since in working for it I had the interest of my country, my people and my district in mind rather than a selfish political motive, I am thoroughly satisfied with its location which met the requirements more thoroughly than any site in my district did, and which I am convinced will be more beneficial to that corner of my district than had it been located a mile to the east in Shelby.

All inhabitants of this vast area must now immediately move; whereas, all the unemployed in Shelby and north Chilton may simply drive across the river and secure work. This vast area will now be removed from the tax rolls of Talladega rather than Shelby County; whereas, the people of the latter and the small towns in that area will certainly profit as much as will those in Talladega.

I feel sure that had you entertained any idea of the magnitude of my efforts and of what they accomplished in this instance, you would not have indulged in this editorial and thus being informed, you will wish to correct it.

Thanking you, and with kind regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,
PETE JARMAN.

July 13, 1940.

Honorable Luther Fowler, Columbiana, Ala.

Dear Mr. Fowler:

While I believe it would be very advisable for you to regard the contents of this letter as confidential for the time being, I want you to know what I am doing, and when my efforts prove fruitful or fail to do so, you will be authorized to give as much publicity to it as you wish.

Several weeks ago, I received a tin that if the President requested the additional five billion dollar defense appropriation, which he did request Tuesday, there would be a great probability of the location of a shell loading plant in Alabama. One of the requirements was that it be within a 25 mile radius of a considerable labor supply but not in a thickly populated section. I naturally immediately thought of the proximity to Birmingham of parts of both Tuscaloosa and Shelby Counties. Other requirements are that the site should be near but not directly in a mountainous section, must have good rail and highway connections, and must have reasonable access to the Gadsden area where I located another plant will probably be located.

A close study of my District immediately convinced me that on the other side of the mountain from Birmingham in the vicinity of Harpersville, Vincent etc., was probably the best bet in my district. I then hoped that a location might be found in the neighborhood of Shiloh but doubted it. I was soon impressed that the necessity for a bridge across the Warrior River practically vetoed Tuscaloosa County.

I am happy to say that when I commenced to make inquiry, I found that an Alabamian who is interested in no particular section but merely in the location of this plant in our State, had already inspected the Vincent-Harpersville area. I am also glad to a certain hat the War Department has now under serious consideration the location of either this plant or a powder plant adjacent to the Coosa River. Some indications are that they are thinking of locating it just outside Shelby County, which would, of course, help us a lot, while there are other indications that they have in mind the immediate Vincent-Harpersville area on our side of the Coosa. Of course I would much prefer the latter—wouldn't you?

I believe the Shiloh area is practically out of the picture because of the terrain. Furthermore, I immediately wrote Mr. Phillips of the possibility and in reply he indicated no interest at all. In fact, he suggested the preference that the plant go elsewhere which was rather difficult for me to understand. I also wrote George Huddleston with the thought that he possibly owned level rolling land between the mountain and Vincent. He is considerably interested but I am now afraid his land is too mountainous.

I am wondering if there is any land held in that area, that is, large tracts owned by one party. If so, I would like to know the identity of this party or these parties and to have the approximate amount of the acreage owned by each of them. It occurs to me that you are in better position than anyone in Shelby County to give me this information and I will greatly appreciate it.

I almost forgot to say that from five to six thousand acres will be necessary, the investment will be, I estimate, to eight million dollars and the plant will finally employ approximately 3,000 people. Of course, as the War Department says, if it is located anywhere near Shelby many of my constituents are bound to greatly profit thereby, but I naturally want it in Shelby rather than outside of it, if possible. In fact, it seems to me that it would really be the biggest thing that ever happened not only to Shelby but to my entire Congressional District, and I am going after it accordingly.

Illustrative of the desirability for secrecy at this time, I might say that the above referred to Alabamian who is showing that there is no substitutes for insists to me that no other Congressman knows of the possibility of the State securing this plant. I believe he is telling the truth because I have observed activity on the part of no other member.

Thanking you in advance and with kind personal regards to you and yours, I am,

Yours sincerely,
PETE JARMAN.

Washington, D. C.

July 26, 1940.

Hon. Luther Fowler, Columbiana, Ala.

Dear Friend Fowler

While not all surprised, I am glad to know of your interest in my efforts to do something for Shelby County. If I succeed not only will it be the finest thing that ever happened in Shelby but to my whole district and I appreciate your good wishes for my success.

Thanks so much for the sketches you so promptly sent me, which I have shown to the representative of the War Department, who will select this site. I am sure that he or someone else will go down and inspect this land probably within a few weeks and that he will be glad to advise me in advance in order that I may have the inspection to get in touch with you and several other friends in Shiloh. It occurs to me that you may be of particular service to him because of your wide knowledge of the land and your custody of it. (Continued on page 6)

This Date In Alabama History
W. J. Boles, in Birmingham News
Soon after Coosa County had been organized a commission appointed under the provisions of an act of the legislature, selected a site on the south side of the Chattahoochee River as the county seat and named it Lexington. But Lexington held this distinction only a short time until another commission decided upon Rockford as the place for the county seat, January 9, 1835. The legislature approved this selection and Rockford has continued as administrator of Coosa County affairs.

The first commission members were Alfred Mahan, Larkin Cleveland and George Taylor, who were among the early settlers in that section. Coosa County, as at present constituted, is bounded on the north by Clay and Talladega counties; on the east by Tallapoosa county, on the South by Chilton County, and on the west by Chilton County, which is separated from Coosa county by the Coosa River. It is in the territory of the Upper Creek Indians who were still there in large numbers when the white settlers came. In 1800, with his Spanish and Portuguese soldiers, General O'Neale traversed what is now Alabama, passed through the Coosa County area in 1540 and prior to the influx of white settlers England and France established trading posts for trade with the Indians. Among the earliest white settlers were Greenberry Clark, Alexander John Logan, Eli, Jessie and Adam Harrell, James Lindsey, Archibald Downing, William A. Wilson, Whinston Compson, William Loyd, W. H. Ray, Solomon Robbins, William H. Weaver, Larkin Cleveland, and sons, Joseph Albert and Robert Montgomery, Joel Benjamin, Robert David and Harry; Benjamin, Thomas and James Wall, Benjamin Godgame, the Lauderdale, James McNelly. Coosa County lost population between 1910 and 1930, the census figures for 1910 being 16,634 and for 1930, 12,460. Goodwater is the largest town in the county with a population of 1,000.

GARDEN AND ORCHARD FERTILIZERS LISTED
Auburn, Ala.—Recent experiments primarily interested in the State alone manures in producing quality vegetables, announces W. O. Ruffin and Lyle Brown, extension horticulturist who make the following reports: 1. For leafy vegetables apply 5 to 10 tons of compost per acre or under a cover crop each year. Ten days or 2 weeks before seeding a crop of vegetables apply, in drill, 1,000 pounds of 6-8-4 per acre. 2. For root crops, such as beets, carrots and rutabagas, apply compost and 1,500 pounds of 4-10-7 per acre. 3. For Irish potatoes, apply 1,500 lbs. of 4-10-7 per acre. 4. For sweet potatoes, apply 600 pounds of 4-10-7 per acre. 5. For fruit trees, apply 6-8-4 fertilizer at the rate of 1 pound per tree each year in age up to about 6 pounds for peaches and plums and 12 to 15 pounds for apples. Blackberries, dewberries, raspberries, etc. should have one-third to one-half pound per vine per year. Grapes should receive one-third to one-half pound per vine per year up to a maximum of 3 or 4 pounds when the vines reach maturity. Applications are made to all these crops before they begin to bloom in spring. Winter cover crops turned under in spring help build up orchard soils. It has been found that lime or basic slag is beneficial to such crops as beans, beets, carrots, lettuce, peas, rutabagas and spinach.

DO NOT apply compost or lime to ground to be planted in Irish or sweet potatoes. O-O-O

Steer Picks Pocket, $100 Goes Into Cud
BUTLER.—One of farmer Max Luther's prize bovines has turned out to be a "bum steer." The steer "picked" Luther's pocket of a handkerchief containing $100. Luther managed to retrieve $50 from the animal's mouth, but the steer added the other $100 to its cud.

Quam's 'Quackers' Help Out Hunters
Says Like Humans Females Do Most of Talking.
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—By making a noise like a duck Oscar Quam has built up a profitable business. Quam teaches duck calls to hunters. All it takes is to learn to talk to a duck. Quam says, is a little patience. "Ducks," said Quam, "are like humans—the female does nearly all the talking." "The drake calls in a low, rich voice meaning 'yes, yes' or 'no, no.' Quam knows all the intricacies of duck-calling from thousands of hours spent in observing their habits and learning the art he toured northwest states as a wild-life entertainer. In 1929 he began giving lessons in duck-calling. Since he has taught "at least a thousand" other duck hunters how to coax trills, quacks, chatters, purrs and chuckles out of his wooden duck-calls. "There are two kinds of ducks," Quam said, "divers and dippers. Neither kind will have anything to do with the other." Divers, he said, are those who make deep dives into the water for food, while the dippers make surface-dive or dips for food. Divers are canvasbacks, redheads, blue-bills, golden eyes and butter-bills. Dippers are mallards, pintails, gadwalls, wigwags, spoonbills and teal. For each class he teaches the greeting call, come-back call, feed call and lay hen call. The come-back or inviting feminine call is the most important and effective, according to Quam. "Some sentimental conservationists think calling ducks to close gun-shot range is unfair," Quam said. But that's not a skillful duck hunter who knows how to call ducks is more of a conservationist than the guy who doesn't know how. "An amateur blazes away at ducks often at too long a range and wounds a few ducks which fall crippled, but not killed in un retrievable places. A good duck-caller gets a flock within short range and when he shoots he gets nine out of ten."

Half Lifetime Within Prison, It's Like Home
OMAHA, NEB.—Thomas J. Ritchie, 82, who has spent half his lifetime behind prison bars, is back home at the Nebraska penitentiary—and the aged man hopes he never again will see the prison doors open to give him freedom. Ritchie, a gaunt, kindly appearing old man, told District Judge Fitzgerald when sentenced to one year on a house-painting job that "he was tired of living." "Anything more than six months would be a life sentence for me," he told the judge. Only a few weeks ago before his arrest in Omaha, Ritchie said he was a former inmate of nine penitentiaries, two work farms and 16 jails during the 41 years he estimated he had spent in prison. "People laugh at me when I ask for work. I can't get an old age pension. I've disgraced my family—it's too late now," Ritchie said.

Father of 87 Children—
And Married Only Twice
MOSCOW.—Moscow has been looking toward Russia's rebirth and has found the biggest daddy of them all, Feodor Wassilieff, a peasant. His first wife, the records say, presented him 16 successive pairs of twins, then triplets seven times in the same number of years, and later increased the fold by four sets of quadruplets. When she died, having given birth to 69 children, Wassilieff married his second spouse and presented him triplets twice and twins six times. Her total was 18. In all, Feodor's children numbered 87.

Honor Among Thieves
Takes a Double Tumble

Boy Raid Imitator Is Given 14 Days in Jail
ROCHESTER, ENGLAND.—Edward Holloway, 18 years old, was sentenced to 14 days in jail as "the leader of a gang of Hooligans who hung about the streets during air raids and made noises like sirens and whistling bombs."

Army Recruits Homing Pigeons
Hundreds to Be Added Under Defense Plans to 2,000 Now in Service.
WASHINGTON.—Under defense plans the army signal corps will add hundreds of homing pigeons to the 2,000 now in the service. Close to a half million served the opposing armed forces during the last World war. The pigeons, capable of flying up to 600 miles a day at an average speed of 35 miles per hour, are used to carry to headquarters messages from combat and observation aircraft, tanks and units cut off from ordinary channels of communication. The messages are placed in a capsule attached to a band on the bird's leg. Among the 20,000 pigeons in the United States army during the last war were many whose deeds of valor equaled those of any soldier.

Tributes to Heroic Birds.
The Signal Corps Manual for pigeon-handlers pictures two of them with these tributes: "The Mocker," with one eye destroyed, "was a piece of shrapnel and his head a welter of clotting blood, he came in from the Beaumont front (in France) early in the morning of Sept. 12, 1918. He carried a message of great importance which gave the location of several of the advancing heavy batteries that were doing terrible execution on American positions. The information enabled the American artillery to silence the enemy's guns within twenty minutes." "The President Wilson," on the morning of Nov. 5, 1918, through heavy fog and with a leg shot off, arrived at his loft (on the Western Front) with an important message."

Mr. Wilson was the president of the United States. Museum of Natural History in Washington is "Cher Ami," known as the army's most famous pigeon of the World war. He was captured carrying with one leg shattered and a machine-gun bullet in the breast—a message that saved the "Lost Battalion." Training Pigeons. At Fort Monmouth, N. J., the signal corps school and training base for pigeons is one of the bird veterans of the World war. He served with the German army 23 years ago and was captured and brought to the United States. He has attained an age seldom equaled by his kind. Mobile lofts, each housing 60 birds, are being assigned to various army units.

Army records disclosed that the first extensive use of the birds by American troops in battle was during the Aisne-Marne offensive in the World war between August 29 and September 11, 1918. A mobile loft operating near the line received 78 important messages and 148 test messages. Of the 72 birds returned from this loft not one failed to return. However, casualties in other engagements were not uncommon. At the beginning of the last World war Germany operated an efficient and well-established pigeon service in all arms. The allies developed similar service early in the war and the German army resorted to trained hawks—in addition to gunfire—to destroy the enemy's pigeons.

Maryland Grist Mill Has Operated for 270 Years
DENTON, MD.—A grist mill that turned out flour for Washington's army during the Revolution is a proud daily use here in what tradition says is its 270th year of operation. The water-powered mill, said to be unchanged since Colonial days, is operated by F. S. Langston. The frame building, large and roomy, is known as James Murray's mill, on the banks of the mill stream, Hunting Creek.

When Maj. Nathaniel Potter of Potter's Landing near here was commissioned to buy flour for General Washington's troops, he went to Murray, who ground corn meal for the soldiers. Grandma's Stereoscope to Stage Genuine Comeback
CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—Grandmother's old stereoscope will be back into use again soon, with the aid of the third dimension in illustration about to visit its page in history. Already at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology students are studying descriptive geometry through a modernized version of the stereoscope. It is predicted that in the home, too, it will soon be "standard equipment." And even in the movies they're flirting with the idea of stereoscopes.

Match Is Believed Cause Of This Rooster's Death
PARIS, MO.—A scorched rooster-gizzard was recently displayed here by Mrs. Longnecker. It came from a Rhode Island Red rooster which Mrs. Longnecker saw in convulsions. Investigation revealed a burnt match and scorched places on the gizzard ignited the match. She believed the grit in the gizzard nipped the match.

THINNING FARM WOODLANDS
A woodland is like a dairy herd, according to James H. Wood, Camp Superintendent of the Soil Conservation Service in the CCC Camp area near Clanton, Alabama. A dairy herd can't be built up if all the young heifers are sold. Likewise it is impossible to build up a paging cutting if the young trees are removed as soon as they have a market value.

Mr. Wood emphasizes the importance of cutting only mature, or "dead trees." Young trees should be removed only where thinning is necessary to improve the stand, he said.

Many of the woodlands in the Camp area are considerably run down, and immediate returns from sale of woodlands products cannot be realized.

To prevent this from happening in woodlands where sawlog material is available the camp is helping owners of woodlands interested in proper cutting measures. When the wrong trees are cut out the stand too thin, the entire stand is weakened. The woodland plan recommended by the camp superintendent includes a regular schedule of cutting, which outlines in advance just how many and what trees can be harvested safely every year. This plan keeps a supply of young trees coming along all the time.

Where the woods are run down, farmers are shown how to bring them back into condition by cutting lightly if not all for a number of years, thereby building up the growing stock.

Keeping the annual cutting within the amount of annual growth guarantees a permanent supply of timber and all provides logs, posts, tuelwood, or pulpwood for immediate sale. It also improves a timber stand and enables it to produce more and better products.

maps. I shall either contact my myself or refer him to you.

It has developed that I wrote you that consideration is also being given to the location of a powder plant in Alabama, which will be larger than a shell loading plant. A tremendous water supply is necessary to a powder plant, which I believe to be possible are the areas adjacent to the Tennessee and Coosa Rivers. Consequently, we may have even a better chance for this powder plant than the shell loading plant. Of course, I am not, sufficiently optimistic to entertain any hope of securing both of them, but I am happy to say that on the whole I feel very considerably encouraged over our prospects and I am naturally trying to keep in very close touch with the situation.

By the way, I will appreciate your giving me some information about the overflow of the Coosa in the Wilsonville, Harpersville, Vincent area, that is, approximately how far it overflows from the river banks, how long it remains out and how often this occurs. As stated above, the powder plant will be very close to the River and overflow conditions may work against us there, whereas such would not prove true to the shell loading plant.

Again thanking you for your interest and cooperation and with kind personal regards to you and Mrs. Fowler, I am,

Yours sincerely,
PETE JARMAN.

Washington, D. C.
August 8, 1940.

Hon. Luther Fowler,
Columbiana, Ala.

Dear Friend Fowler:
It now develops that should it be our good fortune to secure the powder plant, which is a smaller unit to be located very near by.

If we are successful in getting either one of the plants I shall be happy indeed, but if it proves to be our fortune to get both the powder plant and the shell plant, we will really be sitting pretty and that whole section will, in my opinion, blossom forth like a full bloom rose.

I shall, by all means, refer to the party who goes down to inspect these areas to you. I am naturally doing it advisable to continue to regard it as confidential.

With kind personal regards, I am,
Yours sincerely,
PETE JARMAN.

Washington, D. C.
August 31, 1940.

Hon. Luther Fowler,
Columbiana, Ala.

Dear Mr. Fowler:
I enjoyed seeing you Saturday as usual, and am happy to say that my interest of the area we have in mind caused me to be more optimistic over the prospects than I have heretofore been, despite the fact that our river sites may be too far from the Birmingham area.

Tuscaloosa has an excellent chance to secure a tremendous Aluminum Plant. It was the knowledge of this fact which prompted me to hurry back to Washington instead of spending ten days in the District, which I intended to do. I have naturally been rather thoroughly occupied in my efforts along this line this week, and am happy to say that our prospects look mighty good indeed.

Just as soon as I could find a few minutes when I was not so occupied, I informed the party with whom I have been discussing our powder and shell loading plant of my inspection of these sites. He was glad to receive the information and again assures me that I would be contacted before anyone goes down to inspect the sites that I might refer them to you. It is my present purpose to refer them only to you four gentlemen in Shelby with whom I have discussed the matter, and George Huddleston.

I am also in receipt of a letter from the Alabama Power Company, man who has been interested in the matter, which informs me that the site he originally had in mind was north of Childersburg on the Talladega side. He states further, however, that he has recently inspected this area and agrees with me in the opinion, however, that he has recently inspected on our side of the river. I am again calling his attention and have called the attention of the War Department again to the fact that this site cannot possibly within twenty-five miles of Birmingham. Unfortunately, however, when I check the map closely, I'm afraid our sites adjacent to the river are a little more than twenty-five miles from the city also. Even to get there are certainly nearer than any site on the Talladega side can be, and I hope and believe are sufficiently near. The cut-over area west of Vincent undoubtedly is, but we would naturally prefer the powder and bag plants to the shell loading plant, for which this site could be used, if we can get it. I also called the attention of Mr. Johnson, the Power Company man, the fact that I have been working on this for months, whereas Judge Hobbs knows nothing about it, and again solicited his cooperation in getting this site located on the west side of the river. I believe this will get results as far as he is concerned.

Needless to say, I shall keep after this matter and do anything else it occurs to me to do be beneficial.

Yours sincerely,
PETE JARMAN.
Washington, D. C.
September 28, 1940.

Hon. Luther Fowler,
Columbiana, Ala.

I have naturally become somewhat restless recently about our Powder or Shell loading plant. The only real discouragement I have ever received from any representative of the War Department occurred several days ago when he gave me information in direct conflict with that I received from all others.

Consequently, I decided to go to the top which I did this morning. The General was none too encouraging, although he said his inspectors would report Monday and he would call me Tuesday. While I have by no means given up, I am somewhat afraid that this howl about locating plants in the West has had its effects by now and it may be that the inspectors would pressure him to have brought. As you know, it has not been my idea to bring such pressure but to permit our sites to stand on their own merit in the belief that if the plants are located on this basis, we would get one. I still think this, but am sure that they will locate on this basis.

Perhaps I should have gone to the top at first, but I consider it ordinarily a good idea to go instead to the man who will actually make the selection and who will be in charge of the details than the man at the top. To illustrate, General Harris told me this morning that ten or twelve thousand acres would be necessary, whereas everyone else has referred to five or six thousand. While I really believe the latter to be correct, I drop this information to you that may bear in mind pending the inspection.

It is quite evident that the money appropriated for these plants has not been as far as they expected, which may cause us to lose out at this time. I believe, however, that General Harris is going to insist on the inspection of these sites in which event two things might happen. The inspectors might encounter sites they consider excellent, but they might take precedence over a site already tentatively selected. Or, assuming that we are correct in the belief that we have good sites, the inspectors will already have been made and we will be in a position to profit by any further calls next week.

I will write again after the General expansion which might be necessary. With kind personal regards and every good wish to you and yours, I am,
Yours sincerely,
PETE JARMAN.

Washington, D. C.
October 5, 1940.

Hon. Luther Fowler,
Columbiana, Ala.

Dear Mr. Fowler:
General Harris had one of his subordinates who has assured me all along that our sites would be inspected, call me Wednesday and very apologetically express regret that the circumstances would not permit at this time. He reiterated the fact that the money has not gone as far as they expected, assured me that not nearly all of the proposed plants could be built from it, and again assured me that "in the event of an additional appropriation the sites would be inspected. While this rather discouraging, I am greatly surprised after my conversation with General Harris.

You will recall my reference to the latter having referred to the necessity for ten or twelve thousand acres whereas we have been figuring five or six thousand all along. At the same time I was talking to him, Mr. Geisner, who represents the Governor here, was talking to one of his subordinates who referred to the necessity of some twelve to eighteen thousand acres for the Shell loading plant, although reiterating that only five or six are required for a Powder plant.

Even so, Geisner thinks that we probably could get the necessary amount of acreage for the Shell plant between the Central and Atlanta and Birmingham railroads. Please advise me what you think about this. As to the Powder plant, we should get sufficient acreage for that in several places.

It has afforded me pleasure to exert my best efforts in this matter, and I sincerely regret the impossibility of indulging in a more favorable report at this time. However, we shall not give up because, while we all of course hope that such will not occur, if we get mixed up in this war, we shall we may need more whether we do or not.

Resuring you of my appreciation of your cooperation, and with kind personal regards to you and yours, I am,
Yours sincerely,
PETE JARMAN.

Washington, D. C.
November 29, 1940.

Hon. Luther Fowler,
Columbiana, Ala.

Dear Mr. Fowler:

I regretted exceedingly that I reached Columbiana too late to see you on the occasion of my last visit. I informed Mr. Geisner, Mr. Graw and Jimmie Gorman, who until that time were the only ones I had confided to relative to the possibility of securing this plant in addition to you, of the prospects and Sam to advise you, which I suppose he did.

I was naturally very much disappointed that the War Department failed to carry out its agreement repeatedly indulged in to me to notify me in advance of this inspection that I might refer the inspectors to you and the inspectors to me. I believe, however, that I do not think your presence with them during the inspection would have changed their decision. I had told you that you would be notified and regret that the War Department did not permit me to do so. Rather than raise any particular kick to them this time, it is my idea to wait until there seems to be a possibility of my securing another plant, and then raise the question of their failure to carry out this agreement very insistently, with the hope of it affecting their decision in that instance.

As Sam doubtless told you, I was informed several days previously that the inspection had occurred and that a site had been selected in the Crowpell-Easonville area which, I believe, is about six miles from the Shelby County line. Laboring under the impression that the money presently available was about exhausted, I stated that I did not presume the plant would be built for sometime, to which my informant, the head of the New Industry Division of the Alabama Power Company, stated that the work would probably begin in two weeks. I still do not know where they are going to get the money, but I believe he was approximately correct. I believe that the recommendation has already been approved by all of the approving agencies except the final one, and that will probably occur next week.

While I deem it advisable to continue to regard the matter in confidence so far as the public is concerned, I feel free to give fully publicity, both personally and through the paper, to my efforts in this connection which proved successful in that I would much prefer to have the plant there than a hundred miles away. I believe that the plan is successful as we wished. I think the War Department is undoubtedly correct in insisting that it will prove quite beneficial to that whole area, probably to the northeastern half of it. It seems to me that it should also be all emphasized and furnish a great deal of business for our merchants.

I believe we would have received this plant had we had the site and but for the fact that there was a much more desirable one nearby. I did not realize this fact until I looked at a topographical map since my return. It makes it so plain that I have ordered one for each of you gentlemen in Shelby to whom I confided, but they have not as yet arrived. When they do, I will send you one.

The War Department thought it advisable to secure land five hundred feet above sea level, the bed of the river itself being somewhat more than four hundred feet. By looking at the map, you will observe that very little such land accessible to the river was obtainable in our neck of the woods; whereas, just the opposite it true in the Easonville-Crowpell area.

While Judge Hobbs knows about this now, and I am sure that he is taking much credit for securing this plant, I am very regretfully informed that the attention attracted by the activity of these inspectors in the Crowpell-Easonville area caused some of our people to inquire what was going on, and that he had no idea of it upon receipt of this wire. I do not believe any other member of the Alabama delegation knows of it yet.

With kind personal regards and every good wish to you and yours, I am,
Yours sincerely,
PETE JARMAN.

Washington, D. C.
December 31, 1940.

Hon. Luther Fowler,
Columbiana, Ala.

Dear Friend Fowler:
I find that the War Department now considers the area north of Childersburg and directly east of Vincent to be sufficiently superior to take Crowpell-Easonville area that it has decided to construct the powder plant there. You will observe that this moves it considerably nearer Vincent than we anticipated.

I am very much afraid, however, that the fact that they are to purchase approximately twenty thousand acres instead of the amount we had in mind vetoes the possibility of our securing the bag plant on our side of the river. Even so, the plant will be located near Vincent as it would have been to the point at which we hoped to get it. In fact, as I look at a map, I can see the necessity of so many people moving away from the area to be purchased just across the river from Vincent, it occurs to me that the location of the plant here will probably do us more good than had our efforts to get it in Shelby succeeded. With the owners and occupants of this land must remain on their own farms and present rented homes and secure work just across the river. Furthermore, any possible danger of an explosion will be sufficiently removed from us.

Certainly Vincent, Harpersville, Wilsonville and Columbiana will profit as much by this location as they would have every reason to feel gratified over this change. Certain people of my Congressional District will profit by this plant just as much, if not more, than had it been located in Shelby. I am the only one who will lose in that Judge Hobbs will receive all the credit for this plant except the which you gentlemen in whom I have confided see that I get. However, it was for my district I was working anyway, so I am thoroughly satisfied.

Perhaps you had better continue to regard the matter as confidential until its announcement. After this announcement I will send you a topographical map from which you can see at a glance why my latter site was selected over either side of the river or the Crowpell-Masonville area.

Needless to say, it has afforded me pleasure to keep after this matter and I am delighted at the success of my efforts even though they materialized into a plant just outside of my district which will cause the Congressman who knew nothing about it to wonder what he has done to receive most of the credit.

With kind personal regards, Season's greetings and every good wish, I am,
Your friend,
PETE JARMAN.

Washington, D. C.
January 4, 1941.

Hon. Luther Fowler,
Columbiana, Ala.

Dear Mr. Fowler:

Mr. Geisner, who represents the Governor here, came by to give me the latest developments on the powder plant this morning. You probably recall a reference in my first letter to an Alabamian who was primarily interested in our State alone had inspected this area before I learned of the prospects and who assured me that no other member of the House or Senate from Alabama knew of the possibility of our state securing this plant. When I contacted him last June, he was greatly surprised to learn of my knowledge of the project.

I requested him then not to mention it to any other member and he assured me that he would not, which agreement I am confident he has carried out. I am also confident that his belief that we have "my baby" that I found it, and no one else did, caused him to be anxious indeed for me to get it, although he normally knows no Congressional district lines. Of course, I do not wish this fact mentioned to anyone.

He is very positive in the opinion that it is much preferable for us for the plant to be located where it will be instead of a few miles away in Shelby County. To the reasons I have already given you he advances the fact that numerous complaints will now begin to develop across the river from those who do not wish to move, from farmers who cannot secure labor, because of the necessity for condemnation by the Government and so forth.

He does not believe that our people in Shelby will soon realize this to be the case and will appreciate what it has been my privilege to do not only for Shelby but really for the entire State. Your knowledge of what I did in the premises which I look upon as placed in a position to greatly contribute toward my receiving the credit to which I am entitled in this matter and I know you will exert your best efforts toward that end. When I tell you that approximately eight thousand men will be required in the construction of this plant and about the same number needed for its operation after its construction, and that it will cost approximately thirty-million dollars instead of the amount we originally had in mind, I am sure you will agree with my expectation of seeing that whole area soon and I scarcely see how we can be disappointed.

Thanking you and with kind personal regards to you and yours, in which my wife joins, I am,
Yours sincerely,
PETE JARMAN.

January 3, 1941

Mr. A. W. Bristow,
Shelby, Ala.

Dear Friend Bristow:
I enjoyed your telephone conversation yesterday very much and wanted to write you immediately but it was simply impossible. Furthermore, in view of my suggestion that you read my correspondence with Sam Lokey about the powder plant, I did not consider it particularly urgent.

You have observed from that correspondence that I received a tip some six months ago of the possibility of the location in Alabama, provided the issue of the powder plant continued and several other contingencies, of a shell loading plant, that no other member of Alabama delegation knew anything of it and that I immediately commenced efforts to get it located in the largest unoccupied area in the State, the Crowpell-Easonville area of Shelby, which I thought was the best site for it in my Congressional District. You also observed that I later learned of the possibility of the location of a powder plant in Alabama, a much larger instance than the shell loading plant, and that I continued my efforts to secure one of these plants in that area. It should be added that the information that a bag plant was automatically located very near the powder plant made the latter much more attractive.

I gave no publicity to these efforts and cautioned the few in whom I confided to secrecy for obvious reasons. I wrote Luther Fowler because of my knowledge that he was peculiarly qualified to give me information relative to the matter and also because of my realization that Mrs. Wallace would give me no credit and my hope that Mr. Fowler would do so when the matter broke, particularly if my efforts succeeded entirely by the location of this plant in Shelby. I could not tell McGraw and Jimmie Gorman because of their proximity to the proposed site, as well as Williams of the Pope Meridiscussed the matter with Sam Lokey, who as I told you mentioned your property which would have certainly been considered had it been closer to the labor supply. These are the only people in Shelby who knew anything of the prospects until recently. When I learned of the probable location, I also notified my friends, Mack Wyatt and J. P. Kelly, of Montevallo, as well as Dr. Hines, when he wished material to answer Mrs. Wallace's uncalled for attack on me.

This explains why you did not see me when I went to Shelby as I returned from National Guard Camp in August. I only had one day in Alabama because of the necessity for me to return immediately to Washington in an effort to secure Reynolds Metal Company aluminum plant for Tuscaloosa. Not wishing the matter to become generally known, I requested Solon McGraw and Jimmie Gorman to meet me at the bus in Calera. We stopped by and picked Mr. Fowler had he been available. We then went to the Governor's office, indulged in rather a thorough inspection of proposed sites in the area mentioned above but did not stop in Wilsonville and turned around at the edge of Vincent in order that no one see us. It was Solon's idea that we go to the one night in November I went to Vincent with Sam Lokey to notify them of the probabilities which existed at that time that this plant would be located in the Easonville-Crowpell area in St. Clair county. At that time I feel quite confident that I was only one member of the Alabama delegation either Senator or Congressman, not excluding Judge Hobbs in whose Congressional District both St. Clair and Talladega counties are, who knew anything whatever of the probability of the location of this plant in our state. In fact, my reliable information is that when the inspection occurred in the Easonville-Crowpell area, the natives naturally observing that something was going on, and a decision had been reached that the area I mentioned to you over the phone north of Childersburg and east of Vincent had been decided to be preferable to the one tentatively selected.

I enclose herewith two sections of the Geological Survey map of that from which you can very readily serve on what the War Department based its decision. While I was aware of the fact at the time I made in such strenuous efforts to get the inspection made, just as I was not aware of the fact that they would spend twenty thousand acres, it developed during the inspection that they would spend five hundred feet above sea level. You will observe that on our side of the Coosa River there are only a few feet of this height until the hilly area is reached. On the other hand, you observe a considerable area of height above sea level on the river side of the Crowpell-Easonville section, between the railroads and between the Coosa and Talladega north of Childersburg, you will find rather a vast table of land of height and I entertain no doubt that inspectors merely located this site out anybody advancing it to them. I am quite confident that had I been able to find land in my district which was equally desirable, or only slightly less so than these other sites, the plant would have been shifted in Shelby county because of efforts toward that end. In fact, efforts by no means failed. Not do I consider them largely responsible for the plant coming to Alabama.

Hands Out Press-Release On His New Years Wish

For some years I have been deeply interested in securing substantially larger payments by the Federal Government for the benefit of our aged people. I strongly feel that such increase should be made by the Federal Government, regardless of what amounts may be contributed to the pension fund by the several states and counties.

Under the law now in force the Federal Government matches the amount paid by the states and counties up to $20 per month for old age pensions. The result is that in the poor states and poor counties the pension paid is very small on account of the difficulty in raising additional money with which to match federal money for pensions.

At the last session of Congress, the Senate passed what is known as the Connally Amendment providing for payment by the Federal Government of $15 for each $10 contribution by the several States. The House Conferees refused to agree to the amendment, as a result of the attitude of the House Conference, the Connally Amendment was defeated.

I believe that at least $30 a month should be paid by the Federal Government and that such Federal payments should be made without regard to the amount paid by the states and counties. Recent developments have given me great hope that something substantially along that line may be adopted during the present session of Congress. I plan to actively support the movement to increase the amount paid by the Federal Government to $30 per month.

This is my New Year's resolution.

FARM FAMILIES NOW KEEP ACCURATE RECORDS

Farmers, farmwives, and farm youth now keep accurate records of their farming activities, said Martha Massey, Home Management Supervisor of the FSA in Chilton County.

In the past the farmers have shied off from keeping records, but last year many kept them for the first time very useful, said Miss Massey. "Some of the farmers thought they were keeping them for the FSA, but when they learned that the record books were for their own use to show them they were making money or spending it unwisely,

DOES FORD PAY GOOD WAGES?

HERE ARE SOME FACTS about Ford Labor. During the year ended November 30th, 1940, the Ford Payroll throughout the United States averaged 113,628 hourly wage earners, not including office employees, students, or executives. They were paid $185,105,639.12. On this basis, the average annual wage was $1,629.05.

According to the latest available government figures, the annual average wage of all workers in employment covered by old age insurance law was $841.00.

If the 45,000,000 workers of this country received the same average wage as Ford employees, they would have had additional wages of more than $35,000,000,000, thus increasing the national income about 50%. Think what such an increase would mean to the workers of this country and to the American farmer, whose prices are based on the national income.

Wage scales in the Ford Rouge plants are divided into three classifications:

Unskilled . . .

Minimum hiring wage . 75c per hour

Semi-skilled . . .

Minimum hiring wage . 80c per hour

Skilled . . .

Minimum hiring wage . 90c per hour

Higher wages are in consideration of ability and years of service.

Minimum wage scales for unskilled labor at the Rouge plant are the highest in the industry. Top wages for skilled labor compare favorably with, or are higher than, wages in other automobile plants.

Now some facts on Ford labor conditions:

Not only are sanitation and other health conditions the best in the industry, but Ford also leads in safety devices for the protection of employees. Proof of this is found in the following com-their interest quickened.

Many of them were surprised to learn that their sales of vegetables outside work, livestock products and such were bringing them more money than some of the regular farm crops. They would not have known this if they had not kept a record book.

As a result of the knowledge gained from the record book, better farm plans have been developed and will make more money this year.

Miss Massey pointed out that many of the farmwives learned to make money—and to spend it wisely. They also learned that much can be done with the money made from sales of eggs, handicrafts and flowers.

"We urge all farm families, to keep accurate accounts because it will help them own a farm quicker and aid them in having more comfortable living."

State Buys Cattle Farm In Hale

Montgomery—The State bought a 4,635 acre cattle farm in Hale County last week, Col. W. E. Persons, Department of Corrections and Institutions chief, has announced.

The ranch, which cost $81,031, will eventually raise all the beef consumed by Alabama convicts, it is planned. It will be operated according to advice from Auburn and the State Department of Agriculture an dwill demonstrate the best cattle raising methods, officials stated.

About 100 convicts will be employed on the farm during this year, building barracks, barns, fences, terraces; and otherwise improving the pasture lands.

State farms have long raised pork to feed convicts. Col. Persons predicted that within a few years the 'new ranch' would produce all beef necessary for the same purpose. It might also possibly produce and sell pure-bred bulls to farmers, as is now done occasionally at Kilby farm.

The ranch, which cost $81,031, will of Greensboro.

Medical Care In Alabama

Colonel Bibb Graves is said to have done some pretty plain talking to the physicians, and surgeons assembled in Birmingham the other day at the dedication of the new Jefferson Hospital. He said that Alabama was sadly lacking in facilities for hospitalization of the average citizen and indicated that if these facilities could not be provided through the existing channels the state and federal governments would take hold of the subject in a big way. This is a tender subject with the members of the medical profession, for they look with disfavor upon government direct-tion of medical care and attention in private practice.

There is one thing sure, however. The members of the profession know that the ex-governor was addressing them as a friend and as one who had stood by them and their health service when they really needed it. Alabama's public health service is a model for the nation. Hospital service has been slow to come within the reach of the poor man here as in other states. No doubt Governor Graves touched on a subject which is going to require increasing attention hereafter both in Alabama and throughout the nation.—Alabama Journal.

STATE FARMERS ADVISED STEP UP HOG PRODUCTION

Auburn, Ala.—With increased consumer income and purchasing power resulting from defense program, Alabama farmers have an opportunity to increase their income from hogs by increasing production for 1941 above the level now indicated. Claude R. Wickard, secretary of agriculture, has advised the Alabama Extension Service.

Under present conditions a 1941 spring pig crop appears desirable, he said.

The recent pig crop report issued by the United States Department of Agriculture indicated that the 1941 spring pig crop will be about 14 per cent smaller than in 1940. The 1940 crop of spring and fall pigs was about 10 per cent smaller than the record high production of 1939.

With the higher hog prices in 1941 and 1942, farmers in a position to do so should consider holding back more brood sows and gilts for the production of pigs next spring. Pigs farrowed next spring will be ready for market in the fall and winter of 1941-42, and hog prices at that time are expected to be considerably higher than they now are.

REVIEWS and PREVIEW

By Irvin Lande

Someone has asked the question, and rightly so, are we going to enter into a new period of debate about national policy? Four months before the great national election, President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie waged a battle over the policy of the United States with respect to our foreign relations and our internal and domestic issues.

In those four months, both the President and Mr. Willkie laid down some definite national patterns on which they both agreed conclusively. The two candidates for office both said that if elected, they would propose all out aid to the British. This aid, however, they specified, would be "short of war". On internal and domestic issues, the President dodged combat—Mr. Willkie waged his war on that subject. But the principal point to notice is that both parties agreed through their standard-bearer that our democracy is to aid all democracy throughout the world. When the election was settled, and Mr. Willkie went for a rest in Florida, there were those of us who had hoped that the new era would be one of carrying out those things which had been decided upon in the past four months.

We were, unfortunately, horribly wrong. Those of us who had hoped that we were turning from a period of debate and argument into a period of carrying out decisions and ultimate action, were startled by the realization that a new stage of argument and debate, more heated yet less important, was taking the national scene.

We began to realize that the fact, when we began to listen to the open forum lectures and radio programs of 1941. Men, who we thought had come to a decision and an agreement with other men, had changed again, and we, coming back to be re-convinced.

For instance, when the President was re-elected, we presumed that the old clubs and organizations which had been in open opposition to Mr. Roosevelt, would close shop, and consider their last cause. For the sake of national unity, at least, we figured that these associations would come to an end.

By the time 1941 got well under way, we found new organizations popping up. "The No Foreign War Committee", "The Save America First Committee", and hundreds more began to open and breathe action to any and every motion proposed by those whom the people had duly given authority. These organizations had begun to yield influence, too. For no sooner than had they begun to make themselves known, many Americans were losing unity, and confidence of will. They began to doubt themselves, instead of giving a positive "yes" to any question of giving aid to the democracies, many Americans began to answer, "Well, I think so." If their power certifies, the committees might cause so much confusion that Americans will answer "no" to questions of aiding Britain, and will then turn around and declare war on Germany. Such a thing could happen, if our national morale weakens and decays.

But this question is not merely one of committees and national unity—it is one of the future of democracy itself. What good, I submit is democracy, if all a nation can do under that system is to argue and debate, never reaching a decision? If we have debated for the past four months, indeed, the past four years, and in that time have reached the same decision why are we not decided? Must we debate another four years? If we do, I fear, then we shall be destroyed and shall never be able to debate again.

The truth of the matter is that we have debated long enough. We have reached a definite decision by the re-election of President Roosevelt. Anyone who wishes to re-open the debate is a fifth columnist in the true sense of the word. They should be ignored by the American people, and reprimanded.

We cannot say that the real decision of the American people is not to give aid to Britain, merely because Mr. Willkie polled so large a vote. For those who followed Mr. Willkie had the same basic foreign policy as those who followed Mr. Roosevelt. Fortunately, Mr. Willkie recognized the necessity for national unity. Now, before, he sails for England, the Republican candidate advised that Congress should pass the lease-lend bill with only slight modifications. His remarks were timely, and did much for national unity.

Under the same theory, now is definitely not the time for Congress to debate the passing of the lease-lend bill. If all you intend would give the President power to give Britain even further aid, Congress should not hum and haw around until such aid becomes ineffective.

As many important navy and army officials have pointed out, a crisis is coming within the next sixty to ninety days that will be important in the conclusion of the war. Even if the new lease-lend bill is passed now, its military importance will be negligible. But its moral importance will be tremendous if passed, and likewise, if not passed. If passed, the British will have even greater desire to carry on. If not passed, the British will suffer a decisive moral blow.

Therefore, the time has come for us to make up our minds. Are we, or are we not, going to carry out those things which we have already decided upon?

Are we going to re-open the debate handbooks (our American newspapers) and continue to debate these vital questions? Are we going to let future historians call this the year of American indecision and Disgrace?

I do not think so. I think we are ready to carry out our decisions. In fact, I think we are ready for the greatest efforts of our entire history. But one thing is sure, we have learned some never-to-be-forgotten lessons.

The most important of all these lessons is the fact that we have learned that when our free speech begins to interfere with our national unity and decision, the time has come to make our free speech the weapon of the defenders of free speech; not the weapon of those who oppose freedom. In other words, through counter-propaganda, we Americans can repeat and make little of those organizations which are seeking to confuse Americans and are attempting to distort national policy.

Another important lesson is that we have learned that to make a real democracy we must take the corruption out of politics. To lead this nation in a time of national need, we want men of brain and strength, not men of loud speech and empty promises. After this era, perhaps our politicians, as well as our doctors and our lawyers, will be educated in special schools for their tremendous duties.

We are watching the overcast of world crisis. Being a spectator we can afford to enjoy our view. But, if we are to take part in the show, let us remember that the man who plays the best football, a d gets hurt the least, is the man who has on his shoulder pads and his helmet and all the rest of his football uniform.

Alexander Papagos, Greek commander: "I am sure we will go on with success as in the past two months."

IN MEMORY OF E. B. OWENS

Mr. E. B. Owens died at the Central Alabama hospital Sunday, January 12, at 12:00 o'clock. He was 78 years old. Would have been 79 February 3. He was a kind and true father and grandfather. To know him was to love him. Weep not, loved ones, he is not dead, only sleeping and if we will just follow in his foot-steps, we will meet him some day where there will be no pain, no sorrow. He was laid to rest in Shiloh cemetery Monday, January 13. Services were conducted by Bro. J. D. Hughes, assisted by Rev. J. I. Bice. He is survived by one brother, J. H. Owens, six sons, G. M. and H. B. Owens, and W. E. of Billingsley, 36 grand children and 7 great grand children.

Also surviving are four daughters Miss Annie Bell Owens Mrs. Alice Mims of Clanton; Mrs. Lue Emma Deason of Wetumpka; and Mrs. Ida Huey of Billingsley.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, January 27, at the Central Alabama hospital.

FARMERS ARE PLANTING KUDZU ON THEIR FARMS

Auburn, Ala.—A total of 49,227 of kudzu was established in Alabama during 1940, bringing the total in the State to 67,129 acres, according to agents to J. C. Lowery, state agronomist.

Farmers are at present busy in their kudzu acreage this year in order to set kudzu crowns, rurs and March.

Establishing kudzu on so much land qualifies for a $4.50 in soil payments.

New Brown-Service Officers

Dan R. Hudson, left, new manager for an Alabama agency of Brown-Service Insurance Company, who has been promoted to secretary of the concern, and James B. Little, right, banker and former director of the State Commerce Department, who has been named investment counselor for the company.

INSURANCE COMPANY MOVES PAIR TO HIGHER POSTS IN ORGANIZATION

Dan R. Hudson And James B. Little Honored In Changes; Records Of Officials Are Traced

Dan R. Hudson, field manager for Alabama agencies of Brown-Service Insurance Company, Birmingham, has been promoted to the secretaryship, company officials announced Wednesday.

At the same time, James B. Little, Alabama City banker and former director of the State Commerce Department, was made counselor for the company.

Hudson has been with Brown-Service 14 years, having been promoted from field agent to field manager for all agencies in Alabama. He will retain his position as field manager along with his new position.

Mr. Hudson, a native of Birmingham, was educated there and the University of Chicago. His latest promotion came as an appreciation for his services and outstanding ability.

Mr. Little, chairman of the board of the Alabama City Bank, was director of the State Commerce Department until last October, when he resigned to return to private business. His appointment as director of the commerce division, came when that division was created by the Legislature in 1939 to embrace offices of the state banking superintendent, insurance commissioner and the bureau of building and loans.

From Nov. 1 to Jan. 1, Mr. Little was assistant to the treasurer of Dwight Manufacturing Company, Alabama City. Before going with the state he was with the Alabama City Bank. He was graduated from Emory University, of Atlanta.

Brown-Service is the largest burial insurance company in the world, and has had one of the most phenomenal growths of any business organization. On Jan. 1, 1941, the company had in effect 642,790 policies, and assets of more than $6,000,000.

Other officers of the Brown-Service Company are Rufus M. Lackey, president; Sam R. Brice, executive vice president; George C. Speigner, vice president; and Edward H. Rothrock, treasurer.

Doris Newell Is Wed To E. N. Clark

The marriage of Miss Doris Newell, daughter of Mrs. Herbert Newell, of Clanton and E. N. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Clark, of Clanton was solemnized at the Methodist parsonage Sunday afternoon, January 19 in the presence of the families and a large number of friends.

Dr. T. C. Casaday, pastor of the church, read the vows before a background of white gladiolus chrysanthemums and pink and white carnations.

Miss Alto Jo Shelby sang "Because" preceding the wedding march which was played by Mrs. Percy Pitts. Music was softly played by Mrs. Pitts during the ceremony.

The bride, a petite brunette was lovely in an ensemble of tropical blue crepe with navy blue accessories. Her flowerers were gardenias in corsage arrangement.

Miss Mildred Elliott, the bride's maid, and other attendant, was dressed in Alice blue with matching accessories and her flowers were a corsage of pink rosebuds and blue bells.

John Ray, of Montgomery; cousin of the groom, was best man.

Immediately after the wedding a reception was given at the Thomson Hotel for the wedding party and guests. Receiving with them was the bride's mother, Mrs. Herbert Newell, Mrs. E. N. Clark, Mrs. John Browder and Mrs. Joe Price.

Miss Aileen Powell presided over the bride's book. Misses Mary and Dixie Johnson and Miss Edith Clair Newell served tea to the guest, as they were entertained by Mrs. Raymond Mims of Clanton and Miss Alto Jo Shelby, of Birmingham, singing several lovely solos, accompanied by Mrs. Pitts.

Among the out-of-town guests were the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. T. C. Pennington, of Florida, also Mrs. Joe Price and son John Ray, of Montgomery; Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Henington, of Montgomery; Mr. W. M. Waller and son Parker, of Greenville; Misses Mildred Elliott; Alto Jo Shelby, Mary Ruth Beal, Tommie Hamilton, of Birmingham and Mrs. N. H. Edmonson and J. R. Parrish, also of Birmingham.

Immediately following the reception the bride and groom left for a short wedding trip.

They will return and make their home in Clanton where he is the popular manager of the Thomson Hotel.

Based on 50 years familiarity and experience in the Alabama newspaper field, it is my judgement that what the weekly newspapers need most is a news gathering agency that will supply the weekly papers exclusively with current NEWS to take the place of the volume of propaganda sent to them every week. They can well afford to pay for such a service. Next they should organize an Advertising Agency of their own to combat the encroachment of the dailies and the radio upon their advertising field . . .

The Airport Road

Clanton must do something about the Airport Road. We had occasion to ride out to the Airport last Sunday afternoon, and we believe that each time we go out there it will be the last time we will be able to get through on the present road. It is absolutely going to pieces and nothing is being done about it. In real bad weather it is practically impassable.

At this time when so much money is being spent on highway building it looks like we might get enough to have this work done. It is bad for home-folks, but for strangers to land at our airport and have to leave into our little City on this road is a shame. First impressions are lasting impressions and we shudder to think what the first impression is of those visitors whose first glimpse of Clanton is our Airport Road.

Senator Ellis Will Be Heard From

State Senator L. H. Ellis, Columbia, Ala., is now in St. Vincent's hospital and convalescing under the care of his medical advisers and friends--Dr. Fisher and Dr. Lester. Senator Ellis is a man well and widely known in every one of the 67 counties of Alabama and in "the regions beyond." His friends are legion, and he possibly more than any other public man in the State, enjoys the respect and confidence of the sovereign voters of the State.

Senator Ellis is an experienced and able Legislator. He was State Senator from the 15th Senatorial District in 1927-31 and during the 1927 Legislature he served brilliantly as Floor Leader in the Senate. As a member of the present Legislature he was recognized as one of the ablest men in the House and his advice was often sought in parliamentary matters and in matters of strategy.

He is not unfriendly to labor and is 100 per cent for all those folks who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow--whether organized or unorganized.

Senator Ellis is more than a politician. He is an experienced parliamentarian. Near to his heart--at it he is to the heart of every legislator for the people, is the mighty problem how to increase his people's splendor, welfare and virtue and how to diminish its penury and crime.

It may be--and all signs seem to point that way, that Senator Ellis will be our next Lieutenant Governor. Believe it or not, according to an informal survey made over the 67 counties of the State, a large majority of the people are convinced that Sen. Ellis would make an excellent Lieutenant Governor. Keep your eye on Senator Ellis--he will yet be heard of--and how--Labor Advocate.

What Is Methodism?

By Bishop Clare Purcell

Methodism is not just another "ism," despite the closing syllable of its name. The world has enough "ism"--communism, fascism, humanism, materialism.

Neither is Methodism just another "sect." With its eight million members, with its spread through thirty major areas of the world, it has taken on all the characteristics and responsibilities of a great church.

It is not merely a vast religious organization, turning wheels within wheels, though it is an organization.

But Methodism is an event of major significance in the religious history of mankind. We can never get beyond our birth in one of the great centuries of the world's history; beyond the historic fact that Methodism and the evangelistic revival made over the spiritual history of the English-speaking race.

Methodism is an experience of a transforming spiritual fact in conversion. Methodism still gets conversions, though not all of the old occur in the old spectacular way. She must continue to convert men and women to Christ.

Methodism makes affirmations concerning vital issues of today. The church has not been slow to speak out the Christian conscience against war, against social and economic injustice, against the widespread poverty in our land, against racialism.

Methodism, like all branches of the Christian church, is a fellowship in a world of hate, a beloved community which has spread throughout the world.

Methodism is an obsession in a world of indifference. The Methodists have never been afraid of enthusiasm, and holy daring. They are still enthusiastic.

The Methodist movement is an adventure under the great commission of Christ, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to the whole creation."

—Alabama Christian Advocate

Planning Our Part In The War With Realism

All too often whenever a nation draws near to war, its leaders are prone to stir up hysteria among its people, as a requisite to create the will to fight. This psychology prescribes bitter accusations, denunciations, expressed fears of safety, and appeals and beating of the tom-toms in every municipal note.

As a war veteran and as an average American, the writer has repeatedly expressed condemnation of the dictators of Europe. We believe in sale of all war material to beset England that we can spare from our own national preparedness program with reasonable safety. We advocate the free gift to England of such materials, following that nation's inability to pay us for same.

We do not believe that America should be led into war under a smoke-screen of ill-defined purpose or reason, however.

Twenty-three years ago, we idealistically rushed into a war that cost us 50 billions of dollars, of which England defaulted a loan of some seven billion. We are now called upon to save democracy all over again by giving, without reserve armaments vitally needed for our own defense to a nation who would not pay their debts of the last war, who has 7 billions in securities in this country, and is therefore able to pay for armaments at present, and who has refused to cede or swap insular possessions in this hemisphere, (which brings our own revenue, but which would be valuable as defense centers to our nation) for armaments which they state are sorely needed.

This country spent billions in the last war, lost thousands of soldiers, had to ally with the Axis on the debts; and led with them the victorious to preserve democracy and failed to end all wars, the piously stated objectives of the last war. Now we are called upon to play the same role with the prospect of the same reward at the end of this war.

Why should we do this? Is it realistic rather than piously idealistic before we take the plunge into world war, No? Is England fighting our battles for us? Then if we join with her, we will be equally fighting hers. Should we not ascertain exactly what the definite facts are of this war, in which we are to become a partner with England? Should we not be assured of receiving as much tangible as well as intangible reward at a victorious conclusion of this war. Should we not demand that England bolster our defenses in the Pacific as well as to bolster hers in the Atlantic. In event of an attack upon us by Japan, should we not be sure that England will come to our aid as effective-

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

One day we were walking along a path that went through a field and to one side we saw a large whiskey bottle. One of the men with us was noted for his temperance and he ran and picked up the old bottle. He passed its open mouth below his nose and after inhaling the odor of the whiskey he remarked, "Boy, the smell of this bottle is good to me." The old toper knew the odor of good whiskey and he thought of how wonderful that whiskey must have been to leave such an odor behind it. Men often hug their vices when their power to enjoy them is gone. Often have I seen old men revel in the thought of the sins that once they enjoyed. The old life remains delicious to those who are corrupt in heart.

As a lad I was given the task of washing several window panes. After washing them with soap I thought I was through and they appeared to be clean. I looked down upon them and through them and no stain was in sight. I thought them to be clean. Just then it occurred to me to hold up the glass and look through it toward the light, and then I could see all kind of dust and sediment. They were still clinging to the glass. We often see men and women looking at themselves as they stand among others and they think that they are clean and all right. Hold yourself up and look through yourself toward the Christ, toward the true light, and you can see that you are in need of more cleansing. If we look toward the light we can see all of our imperfections.

A great crowd of native Africans had gathered under the trees to wait the coming of the Missionary. They had never thought anything at all about their color. The truth was that not one of them had ever seen a white man. Finally the Missionary drove up and fighting from his two wheel cart, the natives saw for the first time, a white man. They looked at him, they looked at each other, they looked at themselves. For the first time they saw they were black and the Missionary was white. It took the coming of the white man to show the native African that he was black. Men never feel so corrupt, so black at heart, until they stand in the presence of the Christ. Suppose that you place your heart by the heart of Jesus and behold the contrast. No wonder that the Publican afar off cried, "God be merciful to me a sinner." He saw himself as he saw Christ.

I was pastor of a little city by the side of the bay. A man wanted to build a warehouse by the side of the water and he had his men to cut Cypress piling and drive them deep into the sand. This man thought that he had a safe foundation and the years passed by. Beneath the water there were multiplied thousands of minute creatures feeding in the strong piling. They gnawed and bored, they cut and they dug, and when I was there a few days after the foundation of that ively as we propose to come to England's against the Axis powers?

Should not the American people be told bluntly that a lend-lease program is a misnomer--that in fact it is a gift program, under present proposals? Should not the American people be told frankly that the conveying of supplies to England by our navy, means immediate and open war with Germany and Italy? We do not oppose war with the Axis powers, nor an open unequivocal alliance with England. But without our people being informed of definite war aims, of guarantees that we will receive as much reward for victory, as England receives, that she will aid in our defense whenever threatened, as effectively as we aid her in Europe.

America only 23 years ago fought in one European war that settled nothing, and was left holding an empty bag. Let us be certain that this fate, too again victorious, is not to befall us at the conclusion of the present holocaust--Cul. Inman Democrat.

A Gentle Laxative Good For Children

Most any child who takes this tasty laxative once will welcome it the next time he's constipated and it has him headachy, cross, listless, with bad breath, coated tongue or little appetite.

Syrup of Black-Draught is a tasty liquid companion to the famous BLACK-DRAUGHT. The principle ingredient is the same in both products; helps impart tone to lazy bowel muscles.

The Syrup's flavor appeals to most children, and, given by the simple directions, its action is quick, gentle, but thorough. Remember Syrup of Black-Draught next time. Two sizes: 60c and 25c.

warehouse was eaten to a honeycomb and the house was ready to crash. Those Cypress piles still looked strong and able, but they were eaten to a pulp by the unseen creatures of the water. Thus we find that we can allow jealousy and selfishness to cling to our inner being and these unseen sins will eat out the foundation of our character. Often do we find men and women whose dispositions are cut through and they do not seem to know it.

The Arabs tell us of a miller who was awakened one night by a camel thrusting his nose into his window. "Let me put my nose in your window," said the camel, "it is so cold out here." "Granted," replied the miller. A little later the camel said, "Please sir, let me put my neck in, it is so cold out here." Next he asked to let him lift his fore feet into his room, and in a short time the entire camel was in the room with the miller. Then he shoved the camel saying, "There is no room enough for both of us here." Then you get out said the camel, "This is my room." Sin asks for just a little space in your life, then a larger one, and finally sin dominates. If you do not want to be trodden down, better keep sin out of the room of your soul.

Dance That Others May Walk

Again the time has come around for the President's Birthday Ball. Thousands upon thousands of young and old in these United States will "turn out" so that their small part will help to enable those less fortunate to walk. Each year on this date, Jan. 30, Clanton has more here in this wonderful way. Plans are already underway for the biggest "party" ever at the City Hall on Thursday night, Jan. 30th in celebration of the birthday of our president. Don't let the opportunity to help slip by.

Mayor Cotten E. Stapp, is county Chairman and asks the cooperation of all in putting it over big this year. In 1940 alone, 9,768 boys and girls were added to the already long list of victims of this dreaded disease. Come out to help--Alexander City Outlook.

HERE GOES CODY HALL AGAIN

Mark L. Tucker has leased his Chilton County News to his son, R. M. Tucker, but will remain on as Editor. If the boy attempts to board and clothe Mark--the boy will come out loser, we betcha--Alexander City Outlook.

Pete Jarman Elected To Post On Zone Committee

Congressman Pete Jarman was elected Secretary of his Congressional Zone last week. The Democratic majority functions through Zones, the Democratic membership being divided by States into thirteen of them. It is the object of this organization to further the interests of the Democratic Party, the States concerned and legislative beneficial to particular sections of the Country. Mr. Jarman's Zone is composed of the States of Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi, all the members from which are, of course, Democrats. As Secretary of this group he will be in a key position to steer legislation of value, not only to his District, but to Alabama as a whole.

Congressman Jarman also advanced from the position of twelfth to seventh on the vital conspicuously important major House Committee on Foreign Affairs, that Congressmen Jarman is also Chairman of the House Printing Committee, being the only Democrat who is serving on both a major and a so-called minor committee.

There are eleven major committees of the House. Normally no member of the majority party who serves on one of them may serve on another committee but Congressman Jarman is also Chairman of the House Printing Committee, being the only Democrat who is serving on both a major and a so-called minor committee.

WHILE THE FATES SMILE

The administration lease-land bill now before Congress, which in effect would pool the resources of the United States and the British Empire for the purpose of preserving human rights and liberties from oppressors, is numbered 1776.

Here is one of those instances in which the Fates seem to take delight for it was on July 4 of the year 1776 that the American colonies signed their Declaration of Independence from oppression by the British.

INSTITUTE NOTES

The annual Literary Society debate between the Philomathic and the Pushmataha club was held on Friday afternoon, January 17 at 3:00. The question for debate was: Resolved: That the Government should have increased power. Those on the affirmative side representing the Philomathic Club were Bill Darby, Mary Margaret Mims, and Kathleen Popwell. Those on the negative side representing the Pushmataha Club was Margetta Lang, Kathryn Bryan and Leslie Huggins. The program further consisted of devotions by Marjorie Bentley; special song by the quartet and musical solo by Kathryn Schell. The judges, in favor of the negative which makes the Philomathic Club now only one-half point ahead of the Pushmataha Club.

The Ladies Guild of Thorsby held its regular business meeting on Monday afternoon, January 20, for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year. Mrs. H. R. Maddox was elected president; Mrs. N. Bosworth, vice-president; Mrs. Charles Howard, treasurer; Mrs. J. D. Gonzales, Secretary. There will be a social meeting at the home of Mrs. E. N. Bentley on Thursday afternoon, January 23, at 2:30 o'clock. Everyone is invited.

Congregational News

A fifth District Association of Christian Endeavor Societies was held Sunday afternoon at 2:00 at the Congregational Christian church. Representatives were present from Montgomery and Opelika.

Lowell Smoot, president of the Thorsby Christian Endeavor Society presided at the meeting. The Junior Choir, under the direction of Mrs. T. E. Campbell, sang one number and the Thorsby Institute Quartet, accompanied by Miss Elsie Tinker, sang, "Miss Lillian McKee, attendance officer for Chilton County, gave an excellent address on "Benefits derived from the Christian Endeavor". Sarah Nell Collins led in a discussion period in reference to problems of the different societies and how they had been surmounted.

Mrs. Bureau, president of the District Association, made a short talk and asked for reports. She urges attending the State Convention to be held in Mobile beginning the 18th of April.

FLOYD NEWS

We had a good prayer service Saturday but a few were there.

Our Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. was good but there was not many present. But we are proud there are a few who could fit themselves to God's teachings.

We are sorry that we have so much sickness in the community. We hope the people will soon be well and can come to church.

IN MEMORY OF ANNIE M. OWENS

On Monday night, January 13, the death angel visited the home of Mr. N. L. Owens of Mr. Carmel community and carried away the loving wife and step-mother. All was done that loving hands could do but God saw fit to take her on to a brighter home.

ALABAMA CAN AFFORD CONCRETE ROADS

ROAD TINKERING IS COSTLY...
MAKE THE MAINTENANCE DOLLAR
DO FULL DUTY

To get the most out of surface maintenance funds pavements must be of concrete.

This statement is proved by actual cost figures from the twenty-one states which publish comparable records.

And here's what they show! Surface maintenance costs for concrete average only $97.99 per mile per year. For the next lowest paving material the cost is almost double that of concrete. And for all surfaces other than concrete, the cost averages 3 1/2 times as great—although concrete in general carries the heaviest amount of traffic.

Concrete Costs Least

Concrete gives the greatest load-carrying capacity per dollar of cost. It is the safest road—non-skid, highly visible. And it saves large sums on maintenance. All good reasons why your new roads should be concrete.

Concrete is the Real Low-cost Road and ALABAMA NEEDS CONCRETE ROADS... Pave the Roads that Carry the Loads and save excessive maintenance and reconstruction costs.

CHRIST'S CONCERN FOR THE LOST

Golden Text: "The Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost."—Luke 19: 10.

Lesson Text: Luke 15: 1-10.
Answering the criticism of the scribes and Pharisees because of his kindly treatment and friendly attitude toward the publicans and sinners who came to hear him, Jesus propounded three parables to them.

The first was the "Parable of the Ninety and Nine," which relates the story of the search by the shepherd for one missing sheep out of his flock of a hundred. Having found it, the shepherd rejoices and celebrates his good fortune with his friends and neighbors. The application he made was that "Likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth more than ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance."

The "Parable of the Lost Piece of Silver" tells how a woman carefully searched throughout her house with a lighted candle and finally with a beam because she had lost one of the ten of her coins. Finding it, she likewise calls her friends and neighbors to rejoice with her. So, also, "there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth."

These parables plainly teach that "the repentance of the meanest of mankind, however insignificant in social position, or degraded in character," says A. B. Bruce, "calls forth a sympathetic thrill in the heart of God. It teaches us that all souls and their moral history are precious in God's sight, that every human being has value in the esteem of heaven as endowed with reason and free will, and subject to infinite moral possibilities. On this earth men are very cheap in one another's esteem for various reasons, theoretical and practical. Jesus assures us that in heaven, human beings are not valued so cheaply."

One feature of the story of the lost sheep should be interesting to the average man and woman of today. It is this, that the lost sheep had no intention of wilfully deserting the flock. It had carelessly and heedlessly plodded along its way, turning aside to enjoy a tempting bit of pasture here and there, too engrossed with the material pleasure of each moment to keep in mind the leadership of the shepherd and the companionship of the other sheep. Its danger came when it was separated and was only realized in a moment of surprised awakening. One of the dangers of our own enjoyable and engrossing age lies in this analogy. The story is told of a Sunday school teacher, who, one Sunday morning, refused to perform his regular function as a teacher and instead, told his class to proceed with their own worship while he went to find a missing member. This young man had been attending the class regularly but for some weeks had been absent and his absence had worked on the teacher's sense of responsibility until he considered it of more importance to make an effort to find this particular lad than to assist in the worship of those already assembled.

The teacher discovered his missing pupil and was influential in bringing him back to class but little did he dream or expect at that time that he was claiming a future bishop. Sunday School teachers, parents and all of us who come in contact with other individuals, especially young people, should realize this immense unknown equation in the algebra of life.

In his Epistle to the Romans written from Corinth, Paul sought to explain how Christ died for the ungodly and offered them an avenue of escape from divine condemnation. The atonement is its necessity and its operation, is not easily understood or completely grasped except through the exercise of faith. We are told that God reconciled the world to Himself through Jesus Christ and if we consider God as the embodiment of truth, love, service and righteousness, and picture against that divine background the reality of human deceit, hate, selfishness and pride, we can understand how Jesus, in calling men to a higher and more spiritual life, bringing mankind into closer harmony with the perfection of the divine acted as a reconciler of God upon human poverty, misery and sinfulness in all of terror as a God of righteousness and holiness can we might be able to realize that no sacrifice and no suffering would be too great as a manifestation of life in order to bring to the joy and peace and eternal life or divinity.

ROOSEVELT

is the product of centuries. It was born in the multitudes of those who came to these lands—some of high degree but mostly plain people—who sought here, early and late, to find freedom more freely.

The democratic aspiration, is no mere recent phase in human history. It is human history. It permeated the ancient life of every people. It blazed anew in the Middle Ages. It was written in Magna Carta.

In the Americas its impact has been irresistible. America has been the new world of all tongues, to all people, not because this continent was a new-found land, but because all those who came here believed they could create upon this continent a new life—a life that should be a new freedom.

THOSE WHO FIRST CAME HERE brought out the longing of their spirit, and the millions who followed, and the stock that sprang from them—all have moved forward constantly and consistently toward an ideal which in itself has gained stature and clarity with each generation.

The hopes of the republic cannot forsook to tolerate either the undeserved poverty or self-serving wealth.

We know that we still have far to go; that we must more greatly build the security and the opportunity and the knowledge of every citizen, in the measure justified by the resources and capacity of the land.

But it is not enough to achieve these purposes alone. It is not enough to clothe and feed the body of this nation and instruct and inform its mind. For there is also the spirit. And of the three, the greatest is the spirit.

Without the body and the mind as all men know, the nation could not live.

But if the spirit of America were killed, even though the nation's body and mind, constricted in an alien world, lived on, the America we know would have perished.

That spirit—that faith—speaks out to us in our daily lives in ways often unnoted, because they seem so obvious. It speaks to us here in the capital of the nation. It speaks to us through the processes of governing in the sovereignties of 48 states. It speaks to us in our counties, in our cities, in our towns, and in our villages. It speaks to us from the other nations of the hemisphere, and from those across the seas—the enslaved, as we as the free. Sometimes we fail to hear or heed these voices of freedom because to us the privilege of our freedom is such an old, old story.

THE DESTINY OF AMERICA WAS PROCLAIMED in words of prophecy spoken by our first president in his first inaugural in 1789—words almost directed, it would seem, to this year of 1941: "The preservation of the sacred fire of liberty and the destiny of the republican model of government are justly considered... deeply... finally staked on the experiment entrusted to the hands of the American people."

If we lose that sacred fire—if we let it be smothered with doubt and fear—then we shall reject the destiny which Washington, strove so valiantly. The preservation of the spirit and faith furnish the highest justification for every sacrifice that we may make in the cause of national defense.

In the face of great perils never before encountered, our strong purpose is to protect and to perpetuate the integrity of democracy.

For as we master the spirit of America, and the faith of America.

We do not retreat. We are not content to stand still. As Americans, we go forward in the service of our country, by the will of God.

FOLKS and THINGS ABOUT TOWN

Thanks to our Mayor and Council, we have eliminated from the landscape over 90 percent of the old City warehouse. It has been moved down to the City Waterworks property and scenery along there is much better now.

Saw this along the highway the other day and many of you will recognize it. Thought we would pass it along so that you can think it over while at the President's Ball tonight. You can't reach eighty, Hale and hearty; By driving eighty, Home from the party.

Well, it looks like the Woco-Peppers really take their Basketball seriously. Last Saturday night they scalped the well-known Oklahoma Indians 49 to 31. E. Easterling, manager of the locals, says it wasn't so hard... you just gotta know how.

Attended a meeting of those interested in putting this President's Ball over at the City Hall Monday afternoon. Cohen Stapp, County Chairman, had a few brief remarks to make in regards to the ticket selling. The catch, of course, was to give all those who would come to the meeting a hand full of tickets to sell. It was one of the cleverest stunts to insure a large crowd that we have ever seen pulled in a while. When everybody is interested in the working of an organization or in a worthwhile project, it always goes ever big. Our guess is that the Ball Thursday (tonight) night will also go over in a big way.

Yes sir, we really attended the Alabama Press Association's 71st Encampment at the Whitley Hotel in Montgomery last week end. And a lovely time was had we assure you. Highlight of the meeting was the afternoon spent at Maxwell Field where we just about walked 'til our tongues dragged. The Editors were no guests of the Commanding General but of the Commanding Officer of the Club and before that at the Officer's Club and before that at a string of hard-boiled Lieutenants, those soft-boiled Editors were giving up the ghost. The Officers Club and those "refillments" that had been promised.

Seriously speaking, we have never seen a more intelligent looking, or a finer looking bunch of young fellows anywhere. They are the cream of the American Youth and are undergoing the finest training that a young man could possibly get. Even after reaching home last night, we still clicked our heels together, jumping to attention and saying "yes sir" every time our wife spoke to us.

F. G. Headley, who runs Headley Repair Shop, was running through a tool box on an old motorcycle the other day hunting a certain tool. In the box he found a Montgomery Journal, dated Tuesday, May 11, 1929. Many interesting things appear throughout the edition, one especially, showing at the Grand Theatre, Viola Dana in "Dandereons To Men". How many remember Viola Dana, at that time a top-ranking star?

Don't fail to go down to Elmore's and take a look at their "Peanut Week" window. J. T. King, manager, has done a swell job and more of our merchants should take advantage of "Peanut Week" to boost this local product.

Our good friend Irvin Lande is able to be out again after a siege of the flu and we're glad. We spent a few days in bed recently ourselves and can sympathize with anyone who is unlucky enough to contract it.

Tonight's the night. President's Ball at the City Hall. Cecil Mackey and his Orchestra are furnishing the music and they are depending on you to help put this thing over with a bang. Come on out and be a good fellow. Dance that others may walk.

As we finished the above paragraph, man has just met sudden death on the corner. It was Mr. Jack Smith. It is reported to us that when the driver of the truck turned into the Mapleville Highway he lost his balance and fell under the back wheel, he was riding on the back end of a lumber truck. Too many accidents happen at that corner but we can't understand why. Except for one corner all are safe and one can get a good view from every direction. Ironically enough, none of the accidents that we were witness on that corner were caused from the direction that is blind.

February 1 Is Last Day To Pay Poll Taxes

Tax Collector, T. M. Taylor warns voters of Chilton County that Feb. 1, is the last day he can issue poll tax receipts and expects you to be in his office before that date. If you expect to be a qualified voter in any of the elections which might be held this year you had better attend to this at once. All poll tax monies goes into the school of our county and your schools need your help.

SHERIFF'S OFFICE HAS FEW ARRESTS

The Sheriff's office reports the lightest week in quite some time. Only nine arrests are on the docket. As is usual, violations of the liquor laws led all others. Two arrests were made for public drunkenness and five were made for violations of prohibition laws. One arrest was made for vagrancy and one for driving without license.

Woco-Peppers Defeat Indians 49 to 31

The Clanton Independents downed the famous Oklahoma Indians here last Saturday night to an unbelievable score of 49 to 31. Reports are that Clanton was just a little too peppered for the warriors. The Independents play Selma V. M. C. A. here Thursday night, (tonight) and Isabella here Tuesday night, February 4th.

A CORRECTION

In reporting the draftees and replacements of the local boards last week an error was made. John D. Caffee was given as a replacement for Board No. 1 when he should have been a draftee of Board No. 2. General Nix was given as the draftee of Board No. 2 when he should have been the replacement of Board No. 1.

Coach Dewey L. Cox's Chilton County High School basketball team hung up their thirteenth consecutive victory of the season last Friday night, by defeating a scrapping Ramsay quintet to a score of 35 to 28. Clanton took a 6 point lead in the beginning before Ramsay was able to ring up a marker. In the second, third and fourth quarters, Ramsay gave Clanton one of their toughest fights of the season.

"Punk" Johnson, captain and center was high-point man for Clanton with 14 points, while Gilmore, captain and forward, was high for the visitors with 11 points.

Old Manuscript Reveals Many Interesting Facts Concerning Infancy Of Montgomery

An original manuscript of the work of Alabama's great historian, A. J. Pickett, which should prove of great interest to those interested in the early history of Alabama and Montgomery, has turned up in Clanton. This manuscript which should add a number of interesting footnotes to the history of Alabama's capital city may be seen at the office of the News.

The manuscript is the original draft of a short history of Montgomery and was written in 1852 by Col. A. J. Pickett, Alabama's most famous historian.

J. M. VanDerveer, Jr., an employee of the News found the manuscript among a number of old papers which have been in the family for years. According to a notation for years. According to a notation for years, the face of the manuscript this is how it came into the possession of the VanDerveer family.

Col. Pickett, a resident of Montgomery, and already famous for his history of Alabama (1851) was asked to write a short history of the city of Montgomery. This was to be placed in the cornerstone of the First Baptist church, which was then in process of erection. Col. Pickett wrote the history as requested and a copy of his history was made and enclosed in the corner stone. He gave the original draft to W. P. VanDerveer of Montgomery and

Board Of Education Announces Vocational Courses

A. a part of the National Defense Program, the Board of Education is organizing definite trade courses in the following trades:

1. Typing and Shorthand.
2. Auto Mechanics.
3. Electric Welding.

These courses are for Out-Of-School youth, and N. Y. A. enrollees between the ages of 16 and 25. The comprehensive specific training in each trade and upon completion will enable the student to obtain employment in industry. The State Employment office and trade agencies are cooperating in finding suitable employment for all young people as soon as they have reached proficiency in any of these trades.

This is an opportunity for boys and girls out of school to learn a trade and at the same time help defend the country by being able to contribute their part.

Some of the courses are designed primarily for high school graduates but regardless of education one can enroll, provided he can profit from the instruction given. These courses will begin about February 3 and February 15. Those interested in any of these courses see B. E. Evans, Coordinator at the Chilton County High School, Racco Madox, Superintendent of Education or Lucile Sims at the N. Y. A. office.

Youths are urged to enroll before classes begin.

Committee Will Work On Raising Swimming Pool Funds

A committee from the three civic clubs of Clanton has been selected to solicit the funds to be raised locally for the building of a swimming pool for Clanton and for preparing and equipping the recreational center. There are eight people on the committee—two to work each of the four sections of the city, the dividing lines being the highway and Second Avenue. The work of soliciting will be done this week, so it is hoped that the citizens of Clanton will support the proposition before the solicitors come around and have your mind made up as to the amount you wish to put into the proposition.

The plan is to raise approximately $3,000 locally, and this money is proposed to be raised on the same basis that the money was raised for the lights at the football field—that is, the money only loaned to the recreational center and the same to be paid back as the revenue is collected from the operation of the pool and other forms of amusement at the center. It is stipulated on the agreement that "Up on the first day of October, 1941, and upon the first day of October of each succeeding year thereafter, that the City of Clanton will prorate to the contributors forty per cent of the net receipts from the recreational center for preceding twelve months."

The swimming pool, which is to be built on the city well property near the new filtering plant, will be 105 feet long and 45 feet wide, with a maximum depth of eight feet. This will be approved.

POLIO DRIVE ENDS WITH PRES. BALL

Cecil Mackey's Orchestra To Furnish Music; Large Crowd Expected

The biggest and best President's Ball yet is anticipated when the doors open tonight at the City Hall at 9:00 o'clock in celebration of the President's birth. day and the drive ends to raise money for the Warm Springs Foundation.

Cecil Mackey's Orchestra from Montgomery is furnishing the music and all who are accustomed to attending dances know he has a good band. The Hall will be decorated for the occasion and fun and merriment will be the order of the evening.

Cities all over the country celebrated this day in the same manner and the money raised is divided between the national fund and the local County Fund. Hall of all proceeds will remain in Chilton County and be used in Crippled Children's work.

Mayor Cohen E. Stapp, chairman of the local organization, reports that so far everyone is contributing liberally and urges those who have not sent in their money to do so now. It is a last job and one that is really worthwhile, come out to-night and "Dance That Others May Walk."

MAN KILLED IN FREAK ACCIDENT SAT.

Jack Smitherman, age 35, was killed almost instantly last Saturday about noon at the intersection of the Birmingham and Selma highways. Literary Criminal Now in Cell After Sensational Theft Directs Aids in Stealing Shakespeare Folio From Library.

BUFFALO.—Impossible feats always have held a hypnotic fascination for a certain few quixotically minded people.

For them, no mountain is too high to assault, no abyss too great to start across on a tightrope, no problem too knotty to tackle.

It was the spirit of such endeavor, perhaps, which a year ago led a 22-year-old Buffalo, N. Y., draftsman, to conceive the fantastic project of stealing the Shakespeare first folio, one of the most bizarre modern crimes.

It was a venture comparable in principle to the classic theft of the Mona Lisa, an equally impossible feat of successful completion.

The Shakespeare folio, the first compilation of the bard's plays printed in 1623, was in the library of Williams college at Williamstown, Mass., and was one of the few copies extant.

They are worth upwards of $50,000, and the ownership of each is known to thousands of rare-book connoisseurs.

Had Experience.

William Kwiatkowski already had considerable experience in illicit literary transactions, so the assistant district attorney's office says. In 1934 he sent to a magazine as his own work a story which had been published by another magazine 14 years before, and had been discovered. He was put on probation upon his agreement to return the $300 he had been paid.

This time he laid more careful and elaborate plans.

To do the actual stealing, he enlisted a friend, Donald Lynch, and assigned his own younger brother, Edward Kwiatkowski, 19, to assist.

Last February 7, Edward drove Lynch to Williamstown, and the latter, equipped with the simple disguise of a pair of scholarly shell-rimmed glasses, and carrying a brief case, walked into the Williams library.

To the librarian, Miss Lucy Osborne, he presented a letter forged in the name of the president of Middlebury, Vt., college, describing the bearer as a Middlebury professor, and asked to see the folio.

Miss Osborne escorted Lynch to a private room and put the valuable volume on a table before him.

Exchanged for Dummy.

The minute she left the room, Lynch slipped the book into his brief case and substituted a dummy he had brought. He waited a few moments and then rushed out, affecting restrained excitement.

The folio was so marvelous, he exclaimed, that he must call his wife to come see it. Then he vanished.

The theft was discovered in a few minutes. Massachusetts state police quietly arranged observation of every bookstore.

Whatever strange plans he may have had for disposing of the folio probably never will be learned, because five months later, while Kwiatkowski was still hiding his while, Lynch became overburdened by his guilty knowledge and went to the police in Albany.

They turned him over to the Massachusetts police, who took him to Buffalo, where the whole group presently were rounded up by federal agents.

A short time ago William Kwiatkowski, the "master mind," was sentenced to two years in prison. His brother-in-law, the financier, and Lynch, the actual thief, got a year and a half; and the younger Kwiatkowski a two-year sentence, suspended.

Handless Hunter Kills

Giant Bear in Mountains

WALLA WALLA, WASH.—A man who lost his hands seven years ago has the hide of a 400-pound bear to prove his prowess as a hunter.

He is John Tamplin, and he shot the bear in the Blue mountains of Oregon.

After Tamplin lost his hands by amputation, he supervised the making of mechanical hands which he now wears. With the artificial members, he learned to shoot a rifle and soon was an adept rifleman.

A Blue mountain rancher, Jake Klicker, told how the huge bear had charged at Tamplin after Tamplin had fired two shots at it and missed. The third shot dropped the bear at Tamplin's feet.

'Romance Knows No Age,' Bridegroom, 90, Insists

SANGER, CALIF.—"Romance knows no age," says the Rev. J. M. Spencer, 90 years old, who revealed that he had married Mrs. Belle Hurst, 55, of Oklahoma City after a whirlwind letter writing campaign.

A matrimonial agency put him in touch with Mrs. Hurst last July, he said, but he had told her that he was only 80, for fear she would not be interested if she knew he was 90. "I think I've got a prize package and I know we'll be happy," said Spencer, a bridegroom for the fourth time. "Nobody ever took me to be older than 65 anyway."

Find Initialed Turtle

Again After 30 Years

LANESBORO, MASS.—While picking strawberries with his brother in 1910, Sidney Newton found a snapping turtle. Dean held the reptile while Sidney cut the initials "S. N. 1910" on the shell, then released the turtle.

Now, 30 years later, Dean E. Newton spied the initialed turtle while walking on his farm.

Will Use Magic to Pack Church Pews

Handsome Performer Goes To Work for Christianity.

CHICAGO.—John Booth, a handsome youth who has lived off magic the last six years, transfers his tricks and fancy talk from night club floors to the church pulpit to "pack the pews."

He has promised to "rekindle enthusiasm for the church if I have to pull jackrabbits from the organ stops."

He made a lot of money amusing crowds at theaters and night clubs from Canada to South America," he said, "and I'll pack the pews for Christianity, too."

Booth, 28, is a theology student at the University of Chicago. He said he decided to become a minister when he realized that "something constructive" should be done with his powers of entertainment.

For six years after his graduation in 1924 from McMaster university, Hamilton, Ont., he pounded the footboards as a career conjurer, winning reviewers' plaudits from scores of metropolitan newspapers. A national trade journal rates him "one of the nine foremost magicians of the day," and, additionally, he has written three books of instruction in the art.

Tall, dark and mustached, Booth said he learned early that presentation—"gift of gab" he calls it—was "90 per cent" of any trick.

"If I could make presentation pay with mere tomfoolery I figured I could make it do big things for truth," he said.

Booth long had nurtured an ambition for the ministry because it was as a child in Sunday School at Clifton, N. J., that he learned that "magic" from Carl Germain, a prominent showman and a teacher in the church school.

"Of course I cannot hope to make the money I made on the stage," Booth said. "But I will have been as useful to myself and to mankind."

He said he expects to bring magic and logic together in the pulpit "in a modernized setting in a biblical, ritual, magic and religion were united in ceremony, he said, to impress the congregations.

Whistle of Train Lures

Baby, Mother to Death

GASTONIA, N. C.—A funeral bell and not the locomotive bell that he liked so well tolled for the infant Lawrence Chavis and his mother.

Lawrence, the neighbors said, liked to watch the train roar by his home; he'd cock his head when the bell rang and imitate the whistle.

He apparently decided that such a friendly thing as a train wouldn't hurt a little fellow. So while his mother was busy with the household, he slipped away and headed for the tracks.

His mother saw him there, saw the train bearing down upon him. Screaming, she ran to his side, threw her arms about him and there they died together.

Alarm Clock Sounds Off

And Cat Goes to Work

ADRIAN, MICH.—City Surveyor Kurt Franke, with the aid of a cat, has found a "winter" method of getting to work on time.

During the summer, Franke, the "sleeping man in town," had his alarm clock connected with a pair of water placed above his bed, but cold weather made this scheme unbearable. Franke's cat, which may be allergic to alarms, starts pulling his hair now whenever the clock's bell rings, and Franke says he must rise in self-defense.

Woman Gives Birth to

Second Twin Set in Year

ST. LOUIS.—James and Jacobine Jones, twins, are only 11 months older than their twin brothers.

Parents of the two sets of twins in less than a year are Mr. and Mrs. William Jones.

James and Jacobine were born December 3, 1933. Franklin and Henry, born the day after the election, were named after the President and the vice president.

One Shot in the Rabbit

Worth Two in Appendix

RENNSELAER, N. Y.—The gunshot wound so often inflicted on rabbits finally "felled" Charles W. Weston himself.

Stricken with severe abdominal pain, Weston was taken to a hospital where an appendix operation was performed.

X-rays disclosed bits of buckshot lodged in his appendix, leaden souvenirs of rabbits he had slain and consumed.

PRESS ASSO. SELECTS NEW PRESIDENT

Scores Of Newspaper Gather For 71st Annual Convention

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—More than 125 newspapermen, who attended the 71st annual convention of the Alabama Press Association Friday, Saturday to consider the many complex problems of the press, and to dedicate their country to the state and nation.

Leadership of the veteran organization was entrusted to the new generation of publishers who demonstrated their ability by a major share of the awards in the thirteen newspaper contests sponsored by the journalism department of the state of Alabama.

James H. Faulkner, youthful of Bay Minette and publisher of the Baldwin Times, was elected president. Charles G. Dobson, publisher of the Anniston Times which rated Alabama's best all-around weekly, was elected vice-president. R. C. Brown, Clipper, was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

Governor Dixon Reported his visit to Washington, where he considered the inauguration of Franklin Roosevelt and presided over the call of Governors, in order to take the program of the press.

The governor gave a business accounting of his administration, the progress that has been made in the state along the line of agriculture, search and development, conservation, education, health, highway, safety protection. All of such services, he pointed out, have made possible the present treatment.

In giving a report on the situation in Washington the governor for "more sympathetic understanding of the crisis that confronts the nation" and predicted that the present serious situation will be apparent to us within the next 10, 20 or 30 days.

The important part that will play in the present crisis, years to come was stressed by Richard C. Foster, president of the University of Alabama. In his address he urged that we should secure our own state's future of our own state and meet current world events to stop the state's social, agricultural and industrial problems.

The publishers secured an interesting picture of the progress of the national defense program, which was escorted beyond the "No Visitor" at Maxwell Field and shown to the interesting departments of the Corps Advanced Flying School, watching several planes return to their first squadron flying formation. The publishers were escorted to officer's club where they were met by Col. Floyd E. Galloway, commandant and General Weaver.

Scores of publishers participated in the roundtable discussion which developed around the main subjects of organizing the newspapers, increasing reader interest, and the strength of the newspapers as medium building business and greater civic service.

Birmingham's bid for the 1936 convention was accepted, and the list of Huntsville civic leaders for the next meeting was referred to the convention program committee.

The members of the association unanimously adopted a resolution of appreciation to Doyle L. Buckle, manager, and the University of Alabama for the "individual contribution to the improvement of the newspaper represented in the association thereby to the economic and progress of the entire state."

Prattville. The citizens of the city will be asked to subscribe their amounts, the first payment on or before Saturday, February 15th, 1935.

Clanton needs a swimming pool. The federal government will contribute much in building at this time. So, it seems we should not let the opportunity pass.

REVIEWS and PREVIEWS

By Irvin Lande

There have been those of us who have branded Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh a fifth columnist, a pro-Nazi sympathizer, and even an outright agent of Hitler in this country. Others of us have not been so outspoken. We have believed that Colonel Lindbergh has been misled, and, inadvertently, was trying to lead this nation down the wrong course. Still others of us have said that Colonel Lindbergh should be allowed to "speak his piece," but that it would make no difference to us what he said.

There is no doubt about it that we have had a right to call the famous flyer a fifth columnist. Some of the things that Colonel Lindbergh has done have not been accepted by Americans as the real way a patriotic American should act. Some of his views show misguided intentions, and others even show a lack of clear thinking and a lack of information. Even the things that Colonel Lindbergh has acted, has been to partially destroy national unity.

But now is the time, not to continually destroy opinions for national morale, but to ignore those opinions which we know are misguided and unintentional, and to take the best and most well-informed portions of those opinions and use them for the sake of the common American defense.

So it is with the opinion of Colonel Lindbergh. For instance in his recent speech, Lindbergh said that we should make a negotiated peace with Hitler. We know that such a peace could not be made, without the destruction of American democracy. Furthermore, it is not a question of whether we would make a peace or not—it is a question of whether Hitler would make peace or not. Because we know that Hitler would not make peace if he is winning, the assumption of Colonel Lindbergh showed most wishful thinking than logical thinking. Likewise, the idea that our aid to Britain was a "mistake" showed that Colonel Lindbergh was not thinking of the possibility of a quick Hitler victory. Our aid to Britain, even a school-boy knows, has strengthened British morale, and has given the American people time to prepare our spiritual and material resources.

But those things should be discounted, because we know that they will have no basic influence on American public opinion. However, the Colonel did say certain things which deserve the consideration of the American people, and should be carefully reviewed and interpreted.

His most important remark was that even an American and British combination can not defeat the Hitler forces. In all respects, the Colonel's thinking in that remark shows a certain amount of deep thought that has been neglected by most Americans. We Americans have assumed that we are invincible and unconquerable, that there is no hope for Hitler once the United States gets underway in production. We would rather believe that we can defeat any and every nation on earth. It is nice to have that security, and because it is nice, we have accepted it without reservation.

First of all, before we go into the possibility of American preparedness, let us look for a moment at the possibility of a British victory. Recently, the retired Admiral of the United States, William H. Standley, said, that "America's aid, if extended now, fully and openly, without limit or reservation, can still save Great Britain and so save America". Now just what did the Admiral mean? How can full American aid save Britain? In fact, how does Great Britain hope to defeat Hitler?

First of all, we know that the victory of Greece against Italy even though such a victory would greatly strengthen British morale, would have no great effect on the ultimate outcome of the war against Hitler, because Hitler did not have the aid of Mussolini against Britain, and the defeat of Italy would not weaken the German position except possibly in morale. Likewise, the loss of Africa in Africa is not going to defeat Germany even though such loss might greatly aid the British.

Furthermore, it is folly to assume that Great Britain can bomb Hitler into submission. If such were true, then Germany would already have been defeated by Britain into defeat. Even the British blockade, effective as it has been, can not defeat Hitler. Where then lies the course of British victory? Certainly it is not in the invasion of the continent; for even superior German forces are unable to invade the smaller British Isles.

The British can not defeat Hitler over the seas, for Hitler has no navy. Essentially then, American aid will help Britain hold out against Hitler in Europe. We can not possibly supply enough equipment to give the British a victory, because there is no logical course for a British means of carrying out a victory. The hope for the British lies in the rising up of subjugated people on the continent. Until then, the British will have to hold out as best they can against the Nazi, and for their resistance to Hitler, they need all possible American supplies.

Hence, then, Colonel Lindbergh was right when he said that an American and British combination cannot defeat

Lost Combination Is Found, Safe Is Barren

TULSA.—A cry of triumph rang through the city hall when H. H. Smith, secretary to Mayor C. H. Veale, found a long-lost combination to a safe in the mayor's office which hadn't been opened since the former mayor left.

Smith called Veale and together they opened the safe. It was empty.

Dying Miner Seals Body in Solid Ice

Believed Done to Save It From the Wolves.

FAIRBANKS, ALASKA.—Of the frozen Yukon came the uncanny story of an aged Alaskan soursough who, dying in the wilderness, was believed to have deliberately entombed his body in ice to save it from the wolves.

Encased in solid ice, the body of 84-year-old Edwin A. Robertson was found by a searching party in a glacial stream where a trickle of water still flowed over the ice.

His rifle, the tracks of wolves and a thin heap of sticks with which he had tried vainly to build a fire were found beside the stream.

Robertson, a Maine man who had spent most of his life in the wilds of interior Alaska, lived in a lonely cabin on Seventy Mile river. On November 14 he set out for Eagle, near the Alaskan-Yukon territory border and less than 100 miles below the Arctic circle.

The weather was bitterly cold, the route untraveled and without shelter, and the country infested with packs of wolves.

As United States Commissioner R. E. Steel reconstructed Robertson's end, darkness overtook the old timer on the trail and he tried to camp for the night beside the stream. But when he was unable to light a fire, death from freezing swiftly approached.

The commissioner believes the howling wolves and the certainty of death by exposure led Alaskan pioneer to take the step which cheated the wolves.

From the position in which the body was found with parka pulled over his head, his arms folded, Steel was convinced that Robertson had purposely lain in the stream, with the freezing water trickling over him, to make sure the wolves would not get his body.

Once-Rich Man Is Found Sewing in Stripped Home

DWICKLEY, PA.—There was no sign of life in the huge, ornate house set in spacious grounds in this exclusive Pittsburgh suburb when police approached. They had been called by neighbors, who reported that they had not seen A. Campbell Stewart, owner of the house and last of a once prominent family, for several days.

The officers knocked. Receiving no answer, they crawled through a window into the great drawing room. It was cold and barren except for a few pieces of worn furniture—pieces that obviously had been pricelessly sold.

In an upstairs bedroom, cluttered with family heirlooms, they found Mr. Stewart lying, semi-conscious. He died at Valley hospital soon after he had been removed there. A post-mortem was to be performed, but authorities believed malnutrition and exposure—there was no heat in the big house—had caused his death.

None of his wealthy friends, who frequently had attended social gatherings at his home, had known of his plight. Too proud to ask for help, he had been selling the furnishings of his home little by little to obtain food. Apparently he had balked at parting with the remaining heirlooms.

Only a few months ago he had lent treasures left by his grandfather, Col. David Campbell Stewart, Civil war hero, for exhibition during a Sewickley centennial exhibition.

Hitler as such a combination has no place to give battle.

But in the same speech, the Colonel reversed himself and said that we should not aid Britain. Because of that, Lindbergh showed that he was undecided, and had not realized the best possible means for America's keeping her security. He had not realized that either because he did not want to or because he could not.

But the essential point for us, as Americans, to remember, is that, now in this crisis, we need the best thinking of all of us, and that we should not let our minds be swayed by the thoughts of others of us as the thoughts of fifth columnists and enemies of democracy, merely because such opinions differ from our own opinions.

If we Americans can cultivate such a tolerant attitude, we shall have made a very significant contribution to our battle, for we shall have developed here a deeper and fuller meaning of that which we are striving to preserve.

Farm Product Prices Rise for 1940 And Ratio Shows Slight Gains

Prices received by producers for farm commodities in mid-December averaged 101 per cent of the 1910-14 level, the Agricultural Marketing Service reports. This average was 2 per cent higher than in mid-November and 5 points above the level of December 1939. Gains in the prices of fruit, dairy, and poultry products more than offset minor declines in the prices of other groups of commodities.

Grains averaged 2 points lower than November, declines in corn, wheat and rye outweighed advances of other cereals. The cotton and cottonseed index was unchanged, with lint prices slightly lower and seed prices higher. Meat animal prices higher. Meat animal prices during the month with sheep and lambs registered the only advances in that group. (However, hog prices at terminal markets have advanced substantially since December 15.) Dairy product prices, which usually advance seasonally from November to December, were up 7 points. Prices of eggs, contra-seasonally in many sections of the country, lifting the index of chicken and egg prices 2 points.

Compared with a year earlier, the general level of farm product prices was 5 points higher. Poultry products averaged 25 points higher; and fruit and meat animal, and dairy products were all up 10 points. Declines in prices of other commodities, however, offset the greater part of these gains. Truck crop prices averaged 8 points lower, grain prices were down 6 points, and cotton and cottonseed prices averaged 3 points lower.

RATIO SLIGHTLY IMPROVES

The general level of prices paid by farmers for commodities in mid-December was 122 per cent of the 1910-14 average, holding unchanged since June and the same as in December 1939. The index of prices paid, interest, and taxes was adjusted upward from the November 15 level at 122 per cent of the 1910-14 average to 128 on December 15, on the basis of the most recent information available regarding tax payments per acre.

The ratio of prices received to prices paid, interest, and taxes, at 79 per cent of their 1910-14 relationship on December 15 was 1 point higher than a month earlier, reflecting the more rapid increase in prices received than in prices paid, interest, and taxes. In mid-December a year ago, the level of farm product prices was only 75 per cent of the general average of prices paid, interest and taxes.

PRICES RATHER STABLE

Farm product prices were relatively stable during 1940, the Agricultural Marketing Service stated in a brief year-end review. While holding most of the gains made in September 1939, when prices increased sharply with the outbreak of hostilities in Europe, the price index for all farm products declined from 101 in February to a low point for the year of 95 in June and July. From that point on, the index rose steadily and ended the year at 101.

Prices received by farmers during 1940 averaged higher than a year earlier for all groups of commodities except meat animals and grains. We up 13 points; cotton and cottonseed prices were 8 points higher; truck crops, 14 points; fruits, 2; dairy products, 9; and chickens and eggs, 2. Meat animal prices, at 108, were 3 points lower than in 1939.

Prices received by farmers for corn from the 1939 crop averaged 56.7 cents per bushel. This was 8 cents higher than the 1938 season average price of 48.7 cents per bushel, including an allowance for unredemmed loan corn at the average loan rate.

BAD YEAR FOR WHEAT CAUSES PREMIUM DEFICIT

Crop insurance last year offset heavy losses by wheat growers, particularly in four of the largest producing states where near-record abandonment occurred, says Leroy K. Smith, manager of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation.

Unusually large abandonments in Nebraska, Texas, Kansas, and Oklahoma. Mr. Smith said accounted for the greatest part of about 22,000,000 bushels in indemnities paid farmers throughout the country under the 1940 crop insurance program. The growers paid premiums for their protection with almost 15,000,000 bushels of wheat but the corporation paid out about 7,000,000 bushels more than it took in.

Mr. Smith emphasized that excessive acreage abandonments such as occurred this year will not take place every year, and that when the wheat belt experiences a year of average yields, premium collections can be expected to exceed indemnity payments.

FOOD STAMP PLAN USES SURPLUS FOODS

A total of $5,756,000 in new food buying power in the form of blue food stamps was filed in November to the incomes of 2,532,000 members of families receiving public aid, enabling them to use large quantities of surplus Marketing Administration says in its monthly report on the Food Stamp Plan.

About 65 per cent of all blue stamps were used for the purchase of 1,519,000 dozen oranges and 291,000 dozen grapefruit. Other surplus foods bought with blue stamps by families taking part in the Food Stamp Plan included 6,330,000 pounds of apples; 2,234,000 pounds of dried prunes and raisins; and 648,000 pounds of fresh prunes.

Among the other blue stamp purchases for November were 12,068,000 pounds of pork products; 2,194,000 lbs. of butter; 2,621,000 dozens eggs; 22,675,000 pounds of white and Graham flour products; 24,383,000 pounds of potatoes; and a combined total of 10,184,000 pounds of dry beans, fresh cabbage, spinach and onions.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this method of expressing our sincere gratitude to our many friends who helped us in any way during the illness and death of our dear father E. B. Owens. Especially do we thank Dr. Hayes, Dr. Gragg and their nurses and Martin & Sons for their kind services. May God's richest blessings abide with you all.—The Children.

ALABAMA FARM OWNERS URGED TO MAKE LIVING FOR FAMILY AT HOME

"The poor prospect for cash incomes on Alabama farms is the basis for the suggestion that every owner and manager of a farm in 1941 devote enough time, thought and cooperation to see that each farm family starts producing plenty of food for the people who live on the farm," say agricultural leaders here.

"While America has plenty of food, many Alabama farm families do not have a cow, chickens, a garden, enough potatoes, or corn, home made syrup, hogs for home slaughter, wheat for home use, nor the power to purchase these things.

"Encourage, manage, demonstrate, and coerce them with all reason if necessary to get started in some of these things according to economic and natural possibilities. Adjusted contracts with tenants and croppers may be made to help working families help themselves.

"Good health and ability to work are known to depend on adequate diets and shelter. The average working farm family of Alabama apparently will either produce more of its own staples than heretofore or will further reduce its already low food standards.

"The national welfare and self interest will lead owners, tenants and croppers now to use every possible means of increasing their cash incomes, and with remaining lands, resources, and to provide a better living for themselves."

EMERGENCY CROP AND FEED LOANS AVAILABLE

Emergency crop and feed loans for 1941 are now available to farmers in Chilton County, and applications for these loans are now being received at Room No. 12 Courthouse by Roy S. Hassell, Field Supervisor of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration on Fridays and Saturdays.

These loans will be made, as in the past, only to farmers whose cash requirements are small and who cannot obtain a loan from any other source, including production credit associations, banks or other private concerns or individuals.

As in former years, the money as loaned will be limited to the applicant's necessary cash needs in preparing and cultivating his 1941 crops or in purchasing or producing feed for his livestock. Borrowers who obtain loans for the production of cash crops are required to give as security a first lien on the crop financed, or, in the case of loans for the purchase or production of feed for livestock, a first lien on the livestock to be fed.

These statistics are obtained from the records of the County Health Department and are published for the purpose of birth and deaths. Filing a certificate of promoting better registration for the births and deaths with local registrars is made compulsory only on the presentation of a birth certificate within five days after the birth rests on physicians or midwives in attendance; undertakers or persons in charge of burials are required by law to obtain a burial permit before the body is interred. Such permits are obtained by the presentation of a completed death certificate to the registrar.
Anyone having knowledge of births or deaths occurring during December and not included in the above list should report this matter to the County Health Office immediately.

Girl, 21, Wins Deputy's Gold Star From Sheriff

SHARON, PA.—Twenty-one-year-old Sally Deale has a regulation gold star to back up her claim to the distinction of being the youngest feminine officer of the law of the United States.
Sally, a clerk in the Mercer county sheriff's office for the last two years, reached her majority June 28. Accordingly she went to the county commissioners' office and signed her name on the rolls of qualified voters.
Then she looked up Sheriff Alex Elliott to learn when he was going to make good on an old promise to make her a deputy on her twenty-first birthday.
The sheriff polished an extra star, administered the oath and placed on the payroll the name of Deputy Sheriff Sara Belle Deale.

Will Spend $3,000,000 To Advance Television

WASHINGTON.—Expenditure of more than $3,000,000 on research and experimentation with television is proposed by 10 television projects which received the approval of the Federal Communications commission.
This brings the total budgeted for that purpose by the two-score individuals and firms which have been authorized to date by the commission to engage in experimental operation to $8,000,000.

Dime Shop Wedding Rings To Seal Unions in Reno

RENO.—Many of the young people who come here to be married to escape the California "gin marriage" and blood test laws do it with dime store wedding rings. The local 5 & 10 has done a big business in rings, although the only high-priced rings sold are to local residents or Easterners who come here.

Death Notice Reunites Pair Apart for 46 Years

BRISTOL, CONN.—A brother and sister were reunited recently after a separation of 46 years.
Mrs. Mabel Rich, 65 years old, hadn't seen her brother, Edward L. Minor, 68, Bristol, in nearly a half century, when she read about the death of his wife.
She contacted him, and now Mrs. Minor, who was living here with her brother.

Vast U. S. Sections Are Lacking Title Parts of Five States Make a No Man's Land.

WASHINGTON.—Dusty titles in the general land office disclose the strange fact that five states contain whole areas which, as far as the country's title, are not a part of the United States.
Only one of the states, Colorado, has taken the trouble to do anything about the situation, hoisting a flag several years ago and claiming the area in the name of the federal government.
The land office relates the story of the paradox which has existed for 137 years:
When Napoleon peddled that large subdivision known as the Louisiana Purchase to America he could have used a better surveyor, to say the least.
Broadly, the territory included the western drainage basin of the Mississippi river. The negotiators made mistakes, though.
They believed certain sections drained into the Mississippi when actually they drained into the Great Lakes. So, under terms of the treaty, parts of what became Minnesota, North and South Dakota, are not properly parts of the Purchase.
The same thing happened in Louisiana.

A portion of this state—thought to drain into the Mississippi—turned out to drain into the Sabine river.
A part of Colorado was a little more involved.
A small part near Estes Park was discovered not to drain into the Mississippi, and hence was not a part of the Louisiana Purchase. On the other hand, it was east of the Continental Divide and not a part of what Mexico ceded to the United States in 1848.

Colorado State Hospital Helps to Pay Own Way

PUEBLO, COLO.—Colorado taxpayers consider the state hospital here one of the best money-makers they have expended their money to maintain.
A report of the financial board for the last fiscal year shows that the hospital not only topped $14,610 of the tax expenses of the institution, but had provided constructive labor for many patients and has provided the 5,500 inmates and employees with vegetables.
Last year the gardens at the hospital produced $20,319 worth of produce at a cost of $6,169—a saving of $14,150 to the state. Included were $10,000 worth of vegetables in season, $5,689 stored in pits for winter use, $2,881 canned for winter consumption and $1,485 surplus sold.
The canning factory turned out 62,696 cans of tomatoes, 45,090 of string beans, 34,558 of peas and 2,000 of carrots.

Omaha Girl Organizes Club for Tall People

OMAHA, NEB.—Organization of a social club for tall men and women in Omaha is announced by Marie Tre, 19, who is three-fourths of an inch over seven feet.
Qualifications for the club: men must be at least six feet four inches tall and not over seven feet; women six feet to six feet four. Age limits are 18 to 35 and any member marrying a person under the height requirements will be dropped automatically.
Circulars distributed by Miss Tre promised picnics, hikes, dances, winter roasts and parties to make the members the envy of all small fry.

Golden Fleece Is Found! No Myth for Bulgarians

BUCHAREST.—This is a modern story of the golden fleece.
Rumanian customs officials became suspicious of blood on a flock of sheep some Bulgarian peasants were taking out of Rumania into Dobruja, now part of Bulgaria.
Investigation showed hides had been cut, gold inserted under the skin and the cuts sewed up. Some sheep wore gold bells around their necks, others had gold pieces hidden by long wool.
The Bulgarians were arrested.

Conservation Farming Swells Supply of Milk

AMHERST, MASS. With 1940 feed supplies and pastures improved by conservation farming, dairymen could provide every person in the United States with 45 quarts more milk and cream this year than in 1939, according to the Agricultural Adjustment administration. It is also reported that they could furnish 81 pounds more cheese, butter and ice cream than last year.

Boy's Note Asks Care For Abandoned Puppy

PHILADELPHIA.—How it must have hurt!
A shivering, whimpering puppy was found on a doorstep with this note, in boyish scrawl:
"Her name is Dixie Sprawl. She was 9 months old Nov. 25. Things she can do. Sit up and shake hands—also was on two feet—Please take care of her."

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

Things You Wouldn't See Anywhere but in Clanton: A doctor and a leetling and roofing expert working on a worn out cash register in Clyde Mims' Grocery Monday afternoon.

This bit of verse was contributed by our good friend Mrs. Mamie Smith and it is very appropriate. Read it slowly and digest every line of it.

If you want to live in the kind of town, That's the kind of a town you like, You needn't slip your clothes in a grip bag and start on a long, long hike. You'll find elsewhere, what you left behind.

For there's nothing that's really new; It's a knock at yourself, when you knock your town, it's you. It isn't your town, it's you.

Real towns are not made by men afraid, Lest somebody else get ahead; When everyone works and nobody shirks.

You can raise a town from the dead, And if while you make your personal stake, Your neighbor can make one too, Your town will be what you want to be.

It isn't your town, it's you. —Author Unknown.

Clanton and Chilton County are going to have a Trade Day. On Saturday, March 1st, the merchants of Clanton are offering unheard-of bargains to bring the largest crowd here in years. If you haven't made preparations to be in town on that day you had better get busy and make them—everybody else will be here.

Our friend over at LaFayette received a letter this week addressed to Mr. Bonnie Hand, Editor, Chilton County News, Clanton, Alabama. It was from a lady graduate of the University of Alabama and she was looking for a job or something. The letter started something like this: "Some day I am a tired little violet." That was enough for us, we forwarded the letter to Bonnie at once.

Jack Smitherman, who was killed at the intersection of U. S. 31 and the Maplesville Highway the other Saturday carried a small insurance policy with a local insurance agent. Monday afternoon following the accident, the agent had a check for Mrs. Smitherman. First payment on the policy was made.

TRAGEDY—Last Monday morning Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Adams, of Tuscaloosa, were called to the bedside of Mr. Adams' mother, who was seriously ill. She died Monday afternoon shortly after her son and wife arrived. While funeral arrangements were being made for Mrs. Adams, Mr. W. L. Williams was taken suddenly ill and died Tuesday morning. Mr. Williams was the father of Mrs. Adams. Mrs. Adams' mother, Mrs. Adams' father were both buried Tuesday. Mrs. Adams is in the morning. Mr. Williams died the afternoon. "And we worried because we had no shoes."

Long, tall, jolly Bob Oglesby, That's the manager of the new Chilton Implement and Truck Company which has moved into the Galloway Garage building. We like him and so will you when you meet him. The next time you are around that way stop in and meet him. You will feel at home when you walk in the door.

We can't help but mention the fact that Chas. Wade is getting better pictures lately. Three cheers and hoorays we needed them. Those for the past week or so have been exceptionally good and those coming soon will be even better. Let's support our local theatre and then Chas. can afford to give us the best. He will if we will.

Patrons of our local Post Office will be glad to learn that the mail coming in on No. 4 at 7:39 in the evening is being put up the same evening. Postmaster Lowe says that the windows will not be open but all first class mail is worked up before employees "call it a day."

And speaking of post offices reminds me of E. W. Miller last Thursday completed thirty years of service to the people of Chilton County. Now thirty years is a long time and a lot of water has run under the bridge since that day in 1911 when Mr. Miller started for the first time on the job that was to be his life's work. Much good can be done and much service to ones fellowman can be accomplished in the capacity in which Mr. Miller has been engaged these many years. We are sure that no one could possibly have grown closer into the hearts of his constituents than

HOWARD THOMAS THANKS FRIENDS

Howard Thomas, who was so seriously hurt in an automobile wreck a few weeks ago was in the News office last week. Howard and the wife have both improved wonderfully and wants his friends to know how much he appreciates all that they have done for him and his family. He asks us to tell you and we are glad to do it. Howard says that Mrs. Thomas will be able to be up and about after awhile and he truly thanks all who have been so kind during his trouble. When the Mrs. is up and about, Howard promises to bring her around and thank personally, all that he can for their kindness.

V. J. ELMORE

Executive Offices And Warehouse Will Start Moving Very Soon

The Clanton Warehouse of the V. J. Elmore 5c, 10c and 25c Stores will start moving to their new location in Birmingham, February 17th. The executive offices will start moving March 1st.

This was Clanton's biggest commercial asset and it is squarely up to the business men of Clanton to get busy and find something to take its place.

A greater loss than the commercial one is the transfer of personnel. Leaving Clanton between now and March 1 with the transfer are:

MR. and MRS.—V. J. Elmore, O. M. Webb, W. I. Smith, G. F. Parr, John W. Powers, Jr., E. N. Hester, C. O. Hester, W. A. Willis, Jr., R. H. Levison, C. A. McSpadden, Joseph Jernigan and Reese Barrow.

Office Girls—Misses Edith Hand, Ruth Cox, Margaret Johnston, Maxine Glasscock, Edith Mae Jones, Sally Jo Cox, Margaret Ward, Christina Bowworth, Hazel Gray, Ruth Hand, Jeanette Sumner, Mary Will Smith, Velma Frymick, Oleen Miller, Mildred Popwell, Inez Bishop, and Miss Adel Scott.

Also Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Moore, Mr. A. T. Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Calfee, Mr. Alvin Bridges and Mr. E. D. Minor, Jr.

JEMISON P. T. A.

The Jemison P. T. A. will have a special Founders' Day program in the February 12, at 3:20 o'clock. All of the parents and friends of the school are invited to attend.

President's Ball At City Hall Big Success

The President's Ball held at the City Hall here last Thursday evening proved a big success. A large crowd attended and a most enjoyable time was had by all.

A nice sum was realized from the cards, dance and counter boxes for the Warm Springs Foundation for victims of the dread infantile paralysis. Of course half of the amount raised will stay in Chilton County for crippled children work.

Cohen Stapp, chairman, requests through his secretary, Miss Patsy Polk, that all who have tickets for the Ball that have not turned them in, please do so.

At the same time Chairman Stapp wishes to thank all who worked so diligently in making the undertaking a success.

Baptist Training Union Meets

The Unity Association Baptist Training Union Conference conducted jointly by the Association, Sunday School Board and the State Department will meet Wednesday afternoon and evening, February 19, beginning at 2:30 at the Maplesville Baptist church. This conference has been planned in an effort to help all churches in the Association in their Training Union work for 1941. Every church is urged to be well represented.—Mable King, Director.

has he. He is universally loved by all who know him and we want to congratulate him on this thirtieth anniversary of service as mail carrier.

Essence of Democracy

Boy Scouts throughout the country celebrate the 31st anniversary of the movement in America during the week of Feb. 7-13. While the slogan on the poster above emphasizes the fact that "Scouting strengthens and invigorates democracy" all America agrees that Scout membership is in itself the essence of democracy.

Scouting Spirit Is Service

(By Walter W. Head)

President of the Boy Scouts of America. Never in the history of our country have we needed the character building and citizenship training influence of the Boy Scouts of America so urgently as we do today. Scouting instills in our boys reverence for God, admiration for country, love for home and respect for their fellows. It is a genuine brotherhood.

During the 31 years the Movement has served America, more than nine million boys and men have been registered on its membership rolls. Today more than one million five hundred thousand are active participants in its program. And every day throughout the land this vast brotherhood individually and collectively is doing something worthwhile to "strengthen and invigorate our democracy."

Indeed, it is my conviction from personal observation in many hundreds of communities in every section of America over a period of twenty years that Scouting epitomizes all the attributes of democracy. It is a great movement charged with the responsibility of working ceaselessly for our great country. Its idealism is practical; its acceptance is universal. It is free and voluntary. Its spirit is service.

ALABAMA POWER COMPANY TO SPEND $6,500,000

According to Thos. W. Martin, president, Alabama Power Company will spend $6,500,000 during 1941 for construction. About one-third of this sum will be for the completion of a steam plant now under construction at Chickasaw near Mobile, and expected to be in operation by May or June.

Clanton Methodist Church

Church School, 9:45 a.m. L. J. Stewart, general superintendent. Morning Worship Service, 11:30. Young Peoples' Meeting and Junior League, 6:30 p.m. Evening Worship Service, 7:15. Prayer meeting, Tuesday evening, 7:15 in the Ladies' Parlor at the church.

The pastor will preach at both Worship Services. His subject for the morning service will be "The Gospel of Christ" and for the Evening Worship Service will be "Christ Knocking at The Door of The Heart."

Would you learn the good and right way and walk therein? Then attend these Worship Services and the Prayer Meeting in addition to the Church School and Young Peoples' Meeting and Junior League, and "Pray Without Ceasing."

TRADE DAY FOR CLANTON COMING UP SOON

Trade Day means bargain day in Clanton on Saturday, March 1st. The merchants are putting on a real Bargain Day and one of the largest crowds in the history of the town is expected to be present on that day.

Merchants are cutting their prices to the quick in order to do their part in making the day a success. Everybody is anticipating a big day and getting ready for it.

Entertainment will be furnished and you will get the surprise of your life when you learn what is in store for you. Watch the coming issues of the Chilton County News and Union-Banner for further details.

Stamps Dixie Four To Sing In Clanton

Arrangements have been made with Mr. Graham (Gene) Lowery for his quartet, the Stamps Dixie Four, of Memphis, Tenn., to appear in concert in Clanton on Thursday night, February 20th. The concert will be held in the gymnasium of the high school building and is being sponsored by the Chilton County Singing Convention.

The Stamps Dixie Four, radio and concert artists, are said to be one of the best bunch of singers in the South. They have been appearing over radio Station WMC for the past several years, and make a bit everywhere they go.

Gresham Lowery is a Chilton County man, the son of the late Rev. W. P. Lowery and Mrs. Lowery of Thorby. and has made a mark already in the music, radio and concert world.

Postmasters On The Azalea Trail

Alabama postmasters will hold their annual convention in Mobile on Monday and Tuesday, March 17th and 18th respectively. They will combine business with pleasure, and their wives are enthusiastic over the proposed trip to the coast when the azaleas are in bloom.

Many postmasters have expressed a desire to visit through the new tunnel to visit the colonial homes that will be open to guests.

Mobile is a charming place, a little out of the way for some postmasters but well worth the time required to make the trip.

Postmasters are getting together in county groups to attend in a body. Mr. Lowe suggests that all postmasters in this county who plan to attend to get in contact with him at the postoffice.

PATTERSON-ELLIS

A wedding of much interest to their many friends was that of Miss Velma Patterson of Verbena, and Mr. Warren Ellis, of Opp, Ala., which was solemnized Thursday, January 30. Miss Patterson is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Patterson and is widely known in many sections of Alabama. Mr. Ellis is a prominent business man of Opp. We wish them a long and happy life.

New Teacherage At Marbury

A crew of 30 boys has built a teacherage at Marbury, Autauga County. Using material salvaged from the Old Confederate Soldiers' Home at Mt. Creek, the NYA boys have built an attractive teacherage, they are going to construct a brick venter cafeteria for the school.

RECRUITING OFFICE TO BE HERE FEB. 15

U. S. Navy Recruiting Station, Birmingham, Ala., accepted 2108 men for enlistment during the fiscal year and 56 re-enlistments. Quota of January filled without witnessing any difficulty. In excess of these 191 minority enlistment between the ages 17 and 18 to be discharged one day prior their 21st birthday. Those accepted from Chilton County are: Homer Sims, Thorby; Aubin A. Kelly, Rte. 2, Clanton; Thomas G. Burnett, Stanton, Ala.; and Morris C. Crivier, Rte. 2, Clanton.

After six weeks of military training will be granted leave of absence returning to attend one of the Navy trade schools at the Naval training station, Norfolk, Va. Those interested may pick up to succeed Mr. Nelson at a joint meeting of the board of directors who served this year, and the board which began serving Jan. 2, under the presidency of Kenneth E. Thomas. Prior to going to the University of Virginia, Mr. Pipes attended the University of Alabama.

PAVING TO START ON U. S. 31 SOON

Work Will Begin Between March 1 and 15th

With average weather conditions prevailing work of paving down the asphalt paving on the 10 and one-half miles of the Birmingham-Montgomery highway U.S. 31 between Thorby and a point 3 and one-half miles south of Clanton, being improved, will begin sometime between March 1 and 15. This will be completed by June 1. This information just released by the State Highway Department through the office of William Herzberg, construction engineer, will be of special interest to thousands of motorists residing both inside and outside of Alabama who drive over this important trunk highway.

Approximately nine miles of paving has been completed on the 10 and one-half mile section. Approximately one-half mile on the north end, between Thorby and Clanton; and one mile south of Clanton, consisting of two sections separated by finished pavement, has been completed. By March 1 it is expected that work will begin on applying the "prime coat" of bituminous material to the remainder of the base, leveling it both mud and dust free until the permanent paving is put on.

Reconstruction and improvement of this 10 and one-half miles of U.S. 31 has long been needed. The improvements now nearing completion, consists of reconstructing, relocating at various points for elimination or reducing of curves and grades, repaving "streamlining" process consists of widening of shoulders on each side of the roadway, and flattening of slopes, as well as elimination or reduction of grades and curves.

Though to assure normal speeds without loss of time for through traffic between Montgomery and Birmingham, Highway Department officials have, during extremely wet weather since this project started last fall, recommended that this through motor traffic use the alternate route via Wetumpka, Rockford and Sylacauga, between the two cities, the highway has been closed, and will not be, it is announced. At times where vehicles vetured too far on to soft, newly constructed shoulders, and temporarily bogged down the Highway Department has had tractors standing by day and night to push these vehicles back on the roadway.

The work of improvement which required repavement of the entire 10 and one-half miles was begun in the Fall so that all preliminary operations could be completed in time for the paving of the section could be completed without delay immediately after return of warm weather in the Spring. The laying of asphalt pavement cannot be satisfactorily carried out in cold weather.

FIFTH AND SIXTH GRADE DISPLAY IN BANK WINDOW

There is a most interesting display of articles made by the Fifth and Sixth grades of the Clanton Grammar School now on display in the windows of the First National Bank.

These articles were made by the children themselves and represent a lot of hard work and patience on the part of Mrs. Thomas and Miss Bratton, teachers.

Verbena Schools Closed

Due to the mumps, flu and the measles, the Verbena schools have had to close their doors for the remainder of this week. It is reported today by Superintendent, Rasco Mallow. It is thought that they will be able to open next Monday as the worst of the epidemic is past.

REVIEWS and PREVIEWS

By Irvin Lando

With the approval of the lease-lend bill by both Houses of Congress, the United States will begin an era of giving aid to the rest of the democracies in the world. That era will, in fact, be the most unbridled of ideas in the history of the world. A nation which not two hundred years before had waged a terrible war with a mother nation, is now coming to the aid of that mother nation for the second time within thirty years, and, in coming to its aid, is giving that aid with all the strength of the country and all the resources of a land of 130,000,000 people.

Two hundred years is a short period in the history of the world, and for the United States to aid Great Britain in 1941, as in 1917, after waging wars with the country she is now aiding in the years of 1777 and 1812, seems both paradoxical and stupid. But, because there have been more changes in the past two hundred years, than in any other similar period, we know that to aid a former enemy is not stupid when the military and economic strategy of the safety of a nation proves the wisdom of such aid. For even after the fall of France to note the change in the attitude of the British had to wage war with a country to put the French fleet out of operation. The French had been defeated by Germany, and, to prevent the Germans using the French naval vessels against the Royal Navy, the United States authorized their fleet to sail through British ships and not to be captured by the British.

It is not surprising that the United States should have been the only nation to regular way of defending itself without the loss of blood of its own men. The nation, which has been the most powerful in the world, has been the only one to have been able to defend itself without the loss of blood of its own men.

able to defeat the Axis powers of aggression on the field of battle, then those democracies ought to be able to make a strong peace and ought to be able to uphold that peace.

Thus, then, while still in the heat of battle, those nations ought to be able to make a strong peace and ought to be able to uphold that peace. With such things clearly stated, then all will have a heart to carry on with greater besides the immediate conditions of strength what they have started. And peace, which should, and must, insure peace throughout the world for a long period, we ought to make sure that there will be no loopholes in which a conflict might start.

I say that we ought to do these things now, because, in the light of past historical experiences, we have learned often that allies have failed to make definite statements of their peace aims and have turned against one another.

Right at this moment, the Dutch in the Dutch East Indies, the British ships stationed at Singapore, and the Americans at Manila have failed to come to any agreement about the carrying on of the war. If a Japanese attack should come, if any such agreement has been worked out, it has been kept a secret, and the actions of the three parties concerned do not seem to show that there has been such agreement. If the Japanese, with their new bases in Indo-China and Siam, were to attack Singapore and the Dutch East Indies and the Philippines now, they could easily conquer all those possessions, provided no agreement had been reached among the defending powers. Reversing the situation, and saying that the Dutch, British, and Americans, had reached an agreement, they could easily defeat the Japanese.

Hence, then, an agreement before an attack should come would be worth much more than an agreement after the attack. Likewise, an agreement on peace terms now would be more easily carried out than an agreement after the war. In the time-saving element, then, a peace brought about among the United States, Britain, and the other democracies after the heat of battle and the great and glorious plans of a hemisphere peace had been laid down, and had given way to new plans for making money off the defeated.

Suggestion has it that Mr. Roosevelt's personal agent in England, Mr. W. L. Ladd, is there to negotiate peace terms. If he is, he is as much a part of the American opinion as the rest of the world. He is as much a part of the American opinion as the rest of the world. He is as much a part of the American opinion as the rest of the world.

BEST ALABAMA COTTON VARIETIES ARE NAMED

AUBURN, ALA.—Results of cotton variety tests in Alabama have been announced by the Alabama Experiment Station and sent to all Alabama county agents for release to farmers desiring to study best varieties to plant in various sections of the State.

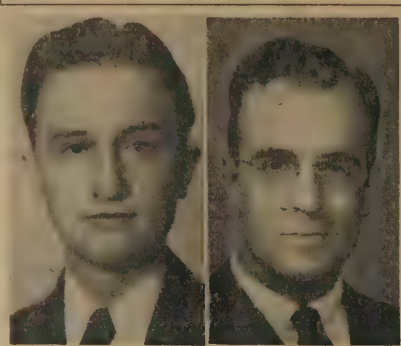

Results indicate that Stoneville 2B and N. White (Cook) are the best varieties in the Delta and Stoneville 2B is a satisfactory staple length for any section of Alabama which is not infested with the cotton wilt disease, says the report. "Highbred is a high yielding variety in such sections but generally produces staple less than 15 1/2 of an inch and is susceptible to unfavorable moisture conditions."

It is advisable to plant a wilt-resistant variety of cotton in Central and South Alabama on account of the prevalence of the wilt in these sections. The planting of such varieties will tend to check the spread of disease and will help promote the one-variety community program.

There are several wilt-resistant varieties that compare favorably in yield and other qualities with the best non-wilt resistant varieties. Cleveville 7, Cook 14, Dixie Triumph, and the Wilt-Resistant Cleveville are good yielding varieties in the tests in every quality except resistance to wilt. It showed weak resistance and it should be planted on land that is badly infested with wilt. Cook 307 is one of the most wilt-resistant varieties but it is not a staple length shorter than 15 1/2 of an inch in seasons with favorable moisture conditions.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL STUDENTS TELL OF TRIP TO ALABAMA STATE CAPITOL

(By Byron Lowery)

Thursday, January 9th, we went to Montgomery to visit the Capitol and other interesting places. That morning we met at school and waited for the cars to come. I went with Mrs. Bell.

First we got in the cars. We stopped at Maxwell Field to watch the airplanes take off and land. When we came to the Alabama River we saw a big boat that had been sunk. That was the first time I had ever seen the Alabama river.

I was the first one to see the dome of the Capitol when we arrived in Montgomery.

When we got up the steps we saw a six-cornered star where Jefferson Davis stood when he was inaugurated President of the Confederate States. As we entered the door we saw a statue of William Crawford Gorgas and other portraits of famous people. Then we went down the hall to see if Governor Dixon was in. We could not see him right then, so we went out and saw a big monument of war heroes.

After that, we went back to see if the governor was in. He was in then so we got to shake hands with him. He said to me, "Hello son, glad to know you."

Then we went to the First White House of the Confederacy. There were all of Jefferson Davis' family's things. We ate dinner at Perry's Cafe, and boy, was I hungry when I smelled all the good stuff cooking.

After we had eaten we went to the building of Archives and History. We saw many things that were used in the old days.

Then we went to Oak Park and played. We were having the most fun when Miss Manning called us to go, but we had to go anyhow. We played Cow Poker come back. The other side won. I had the best time I have had in my life.

(By Bobbie King)

On Thursday, January 9th, the fourth grade went to Montgomery. We could hardly wait until it was time to go. In our studies we have been studying about the State of Alabama. There were a few people in our room that had never been to Montgomery.

We got some of our mothers and our teacher, Miss Manning, to carry us to Montgomery.

On the way we sang songs and had a very nice time.

Our class had to wait until eleven o'clock came before we could see Governor Dixon.

I was the first to shake hands with the governor. After we visited the governor, we went to Jefferson Davis' home. It was located across the street from the Capitol. Jefferson Davis lived there when Montgomery was the Capital of the Confederacy. The furniture in his house does not look like the furniture in our houses. Montgomery is sometimes called "The cradle of the Confederacy." On February 18, 1861 Jefferson Davis was made President of the Confederate States.

When we left Jefferson Davis' home we ate our lunch. After we ate we went to the History and Archives building. In this building we saw all kinds of birds and their eggs. We also saw other interesting things there. We next went to Oak Park. There I saw monkeys and a bear. They looked so funny that I laughed and laughed.

After that I rode the merry-go-round. Soon it was time to go home. We all wanted to stay longer. We all enjoyed our trip to Montgomery very much.

On Thursday, January 9th, our class went to Montgomery. We went in five cars. On the way we had a lot of fun. We sang songs and asked riddles. We got to Montgomery about 9:30. The first thing we did was to go to the Capitol. There we got a guide. He took us to see where Jefferson Davis was inaugurated president. A star in the floor represented the spot. The star had six points that represented the six states that seceded from the

Good Reasons For Good Service

The traditional courtesy of telephone men and women and the efficiency of the service often prompt telephone users to ask if there is not some secret formula for this consistent performance.

In reality there is no secret. It is just the practical operation of group cooperation, individual interest and pride in the job, and company spirit.

Telephone employees are selected with care. They are constantly trained, kept fully informed about the company's affairs, and are continually encouraged to acquire the skill and experience necessary to maintain and improve the speed, accuracy and dependability of the service.

The consciousness that theirs is an essential public service gives them a sense of personal responsibility. Good working conditions and recognition of individual merit are also sources of inspiration.

The company's plan for retirement and care of its workers during sickness or disability, and the provisions for death benefits all safeguard their present and future and promote peace of mind. Further incentives to their cheerfulness and efficiency are stability of employment and good wages.

Telephone men and women also know that the appreciation and interest so often expressed by the public is fully shared by the management of their company.

Montana Ranchman Has An Interesting Hobby

GREAT FALLS, MONT.—Charles Bovey, young Great Falls rancher, has found that his vocation and hobby—collecting—go well together.

No albums or trophy cases will hold the articles that Bovey gathers and he finds the spaciousness of a ranch convenient for the accommodation of the old automobiles, carriages, fire engines and buildings he has assembled.

Bovey says he has found that much of Montana's history is woven around his unusual collection. The latest addition is the state's first aerial truck ladder. It's the 49-foot Butte aerial truck No. 1, purchased by the Butte fire department in 1913. Bovey brought it here on a railroad flat car—it's still the biggest piece of fire-fighting equipment of its type in Montana. Recently he put it in running condition and took it out for a spin.

Historic Fort Benton, where Missouri river steamers once ended their up-river runs, has contributed several articles to Bovey's collection.

The rancher also has a steam pumper that was bought by Anaconda about 1890.

Bovey began his collection with old automobiles, and now has 19, the oldest built in 1902.

Bovey has a score or more of carriages, many of them of considerable historic importance.

Collecting buildings and fire engines is a bit more complicated than saving matchbox covers. Bovey has visited scores of cities and towns in his quest. Many of the articles he saved from vandals and junkmen; some he purchased and some were given to him.

New Technique Aids in Teaching of Chemistry

AMES, IOWA.—Chemistry now is fun at Iowa State college—ever since it tangled with streamlining and came out second best. For Iowa State has adopted "semimicro" chemistry.

Test tubes no bigger than the little finger—liquids measured in a medicine dropper—that is "semimicro" or "midsize" chemistry. And this method on a small scale has injected a new fascination into the college curriculum.

In semimicro chemistry students need use only one-tenth the chemical material under the old, old macro-chemistry system, but that isn't the only advantage.

Perhaps the most important thing about this streamlined version of chemistry is that it makes the laboratory a healthier and a safer place. Since chemicals used are cut to fractions, so are laboratory odors. Existing ventilating equipment can whisk away in a jiffy the fumes on a scrap of metal.

System Ready to Keep Check on the Ohio River

CINCINNATI.—A radio-telegraph system to keep communications open in time of flood and other emergencies in the Ohio river drainage area has been placed in operation.

Col. E. H. Marks, army district engineer here, said that the system will be manned at all times, ready for 24-hour emergency duty. It will be used for regular messages in normal periods.

While essentially a telegraph system, radio telephone is provided for patrol boats in flood emergencies. There are 24 stations and 500-watt power and 18 of 100 watts. Six are land stations and the rest on boats. The chief stations are located at Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Huntington, Louisville and Nashville.

Work is progressing on a chain of 14 stations of 15-watt power at dams in the Muskingum conservancy district, to be used normally to send news of rainfall and water stages.

King Zog's Law Restored In Greek-Held Albania

ATHENS.—Gen. Alexander Papagos, chief of the Greek general staff, issued a decree recently providing for restoration in Greek-occupied areas of Albania of the law of King Zog, who fled when Italy seized Albania early in 1939.

The decree set forth that normal Albanian civil tribunals would administer justice henceforth and that Albanian law would be applied except in cases where it might obstruct the Greek forces of occupation. Validity was restored to the deeds and laws of King Zog's reign.

(Ex-King Zog was last reported in London, where he has passed most of his exile. The opinion there was that he would not return to Albania soon.)

Crossed Pipes Bring Free Charged Water

PORTLAND, ORE.—Apartment dwellers in the West Side district found their faucets spouting charged water.

Sid Benedict, water engineer, traced the cause to a near-by service station. The attendant said he accidentally had attached an air compressor hose to a City water pipe instead of to the station's air hose.

BIBB, THE BUILDER, JUST KEEPS ON KEEPING ON; HE'S IN WASHINGTON AGAIN SHAKIN' THE PLUM TREE

Atticus Mullin in last Sunday's Montgomery Advertiser:

Col. Bibb Graves, the plumbtree-shaker, left for Washington Saturday evening determined to stay there until it was officially announced that Montgomery would be the location of an aviation ground school designed to take care of 3,500 students a year.

Col. Graves was a bit chatty about giving out information before he left for Washington. He did say that he would be accompanied by Weldon Doe, of Montgomery, and that his visit to Washington was on invitation from the Secretary of Agriculture to attend the National Advisory Council on Agriculture.

"Montgomery is the logical place for the aviation school," said Col. Graves in one of his rare interviews since he retired from public office. Now, of course, he heads up the board that has to do with the construction of low cost housing projects in Montgomery.

Col. Graves had landed a $750,000 project the other day for Montgomery.

Going further Col. Graves said, "It is my understanding that aeronautical experts in the army have said that the Southeast should have a ground school where would-be aviators could be taught the fundamentals of aeronautics. Not flying, mind you, but what flying means. I think Montgomery is the logical place for this ground school which would have an ultimate capacity of 3,500 students."

Col. Graves would not divulge any official information about the proposal except to say:

"The school will be located. Why not in Alabama? And why not in Montgomery where we have the basic training flying school and Maxwell Field for advanced fliers?"

If the ground school is located in Montgomery, it will not only mean the construction to house the 3,500 students but construction to house at least three soldiers for every student. That would mean more than 10,000 men added to the 6,000 Montgomery already has in its military forces.

Legions of the country are now furnishing the ground schools for those who want to be aviators. A score or more of colleges in the South are doing this work. But it is understood that the army and aviation authorities in Washington do not feel that the colleges are doing the work fast enough to furnish this country aviators to meet the onrush of Germany, when and if it comes.

The aeronautical authorities of the army want two or three such ground schools in the United States to hasten preparations for defense. They feel that they are necessary to supplement the work that is being done by the colleges.

"BIBB THE BUILDER"

"When are you coming back?" was asked of Col. Graves.

"I don't know," he said. "It is my intention to remain in Washington until we land this great school. I will confer while there with our able senators and congressmen and will have their help in getting this permanent school for Alabama."

Col. Graves, the writer knows, is closer to President Roosevelt and closer to the powers that be under Roosevelt in Washington than any other living Alabamian.

If Col. Graves shakes down the plum he is after, it will mean more to Montgomery and to Alabama than Maxwell Field and the Municipal airport field mean now.

Col. Graves as chairman of the Montgomery Housing Authority, will also confer with Federal Housing Authority officials on plans for the $750,000 negro housing project approved Wednesday for Montgomery.

Definite site for this project, he said before leaving, has not yet been decided upon. Architects and all others to be employed in building the slum clearing houses for some 300 negro families will be selected by the entire membership of the local authority.

As soon as specifications are completed, Col. Graves said further, they will be open for bidding by contractors.

Draftees To Get Jobs

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—Draftees and National Guardsmen who were jobless upon their induction into Federal service may expect to find jobs open for them when they complete their training.

Adj.-Gen. Ben M. Smith last week asked all local draft boards in the State to furnish his Department with the names and addresses of all such soldiers. His request to the boards followed his recent conference with C. F. Anderson, Director of the Alabama Employment Service, and W. F. Gough, Assistant Director.

The Adjutant General, of course, already has the employment record of National Guardsmen who have been called to duty. Employers have promised these men their jobs back upon their return. It is for the soldiers who were unemployed that the present move is being made.

The State Employment Service will make every effort to procure employment for the men that group when they come back home.

Governors To Meet March 15-17

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—Gov. Sam Jones, Louisiana, last week invited Southern Governors Conference members to meet next in New Orleans; and Governor Frank Dixon, Alabama, conference chairman, set the dates for the meeting as March 15-17. The Alabama Chief Executive said he will preside at the Conference. Chairman, but stated the program for the meeting is as yet incomplete.

Gov. Dixon met with tax officials from the Southeastern states in Tuscaloosa last week at the National Defense Program and State Finance was discussed. Later he was guest of honor at a special Chamber of Commerce dinner in Birmingham.

CHILTON COUNTY TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

The P.-T. A. of the Chilton County Training School held its monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon, January 28, at 2:30 p.m. with the vice-president, Mrs. Eunice Craig, presiding in the absence of Mrs. Lula M. Gordon, president. There were 35 present including the faculty of the Training School.

The contest ended between the city patrons and the rural patrons, with the rural patrons winning, raising $10.10 and the city patrons $15.73. The losing side which was the Clanton City patrons, are to entertain the rural group with a Buffet Supper, February 14.

Actual amount raised was $34.83 which is to be spent for various debts of the school. The interest ran so high between the two groups until they decided to enter another contest which will end the last Tuesday in March.

Since the Rural Electrification project has reached the vicinity of the school and the parents and community feel the need of lights in the school, Principal Sledge was named chairman to look after plans to get lights for the school along with a group of patrons which he selected to work with him.

Mrs. Leila C. Wood, county president, was present and reminded the patrons about the State Meeting and also urged the local units to send a delegate to the meeting. Ice cream and peaches were served the parents' after the meeting.

Miss Rose V. Lee, of the faculty, was appointed to give a play in the interest of the P.-T. A.

The Sr. III class of the school is presenting "A Wild Flower of the Hills" a comedy in three acts, Thursday night, February 6, in the auditorium.

The annual faculty play "Eyes of Love" is soon to follow the date to be announced later.

New Enrollment Periods Set By CCC

As head of the Department of Public Welfare which is the State selective agency in Alabama for CCC enrollments, Miss Loula Dunn, Commissioner, has been advised by James J. McEntree, Director of the Corps, that four enrollment periods for Junior CCC enrollees have been established to supplement the regular quarterly periods during which new selectees are now inducted into the Corps.

The intermediate periods will extend from Feb. 18 to 28, May 20 to 31, Aug. 20 to 31 and Nov. 20 to 30. The regular quarterly enrollments will be made as in the past in the periods between Jan. 1 and 20, and the same dates in April, July and October.

"The intermediate enrollments will make for greater stabilization of the strength of many camps would fall off was quoted as saying. Under the previous program, in which enrollees were accepted at three-month intervals, the strength of many camps would fall off greatly due to discharges to accept employment and other causes. We feel it will work for more efficient camp operation if the strength of each camp is kept as close as possible to its maximum of 200 men."

WAY TO HAVE PLENTY WINTER BUTTERMILK

AUBURN, ALA.—The best way for Alabama farmers to have buttermilk to drink with ham hocks, hoe cakes and collards next winter is to breed some of their cows now for freshening early next fall.

This advice comes from F. W. Burns, extension dairyman, who gives several reasons for breeding cows to freshen during September and October:

"Within the next 90 days there will be a surplus of milk on most of our markets but there probably will be a shortage in September and October with an increased demand for fresh cows at high prices," he says. "This condition could be corrected if more farmers and dairymen would breed a larger proportion of their cows in January and February so as to have them fresh during the fall and winter."

Farmers with two cows for home use should have one cow fresh in the spring and the other in the fall in order to insure an ample supply of milk for home use during the entire year. Farmers producing cows for sale to commercial dairymen also find that they can get a much better price for their surplus cows if they will have them bred to freshen in the early fall or winter.

Farmers who sell milk to cheese plants and creameries will also find it profitable to have a large proportion of their cows bred to freshen in September or October. At this season milk prices are higher, farm labor is not so busy in the crops and the milk or cream can be gotten to market in better condition during the cool weather.

Experiments also have shown that fall freshened cows produce more milk than those that freshen in the spring."

COTTON ALLOTMENTS

AUBURN, ALA.—Preliminary state cotton acreage allotments totaling 26,699,917 acres for 1941 have been announced by the AAA. These allotments do not include acreage increases to be made to growers under the minimum allotment provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1939. If in 1939 and 1940, these preliminary allotments result in the planting of about 25 million acres, normal yields would result in a production of approximately twelve and one-half million bales.

The farm problem is not even studied, much less understood, by the big shots of the big cities, including newspaper editors.

ALABAMA CAN AFFORD CONCRETE ROADS

Concrete Roads Can Take It

Once more newspaper headlines like these, following the recent heavy freeze, broke the bad news to motorists.

But there's another side to the story. Concrete resisted the damaging effects of heavy rains and severe cold—saved millions of dollars for motorists.

Concrete has the "bridging strength" needed to keep pavements from breaking up when the supporting soil is weakened by frost and soaking rains.

Because of this simple engineering fact, your concrete roads remain safe and efficient in all weather—need no "load limit" or "detour" signs—are kept in prime condition without expensive maintenance.

Concrete is a true "low-cost road" over a period of years.

GRAND JURY REPORT

STATE OF ALABAMA.
CHILTON COUNTY.
The Grand Jury of said County: To the Hon. Arthur Glover, as Judge of said Court:

We, the Grand Jury, empaneled for the January Term, have completed our investigation of all matters that have been referred to the Grand Jury and herewith submit the following report:

During our investigation, we have considered 32 cases and have examined the witnesses and are returning herewith 28 indictments.

We have examined the fee book of the Probate Judge and find it neatly kept and correct insofar as we were able to ascertain. We have examined the bonds of the various county officials and find that they are satisfactory for the protection of the public and in our examination of the Sheriff's account with the State for housing prisoners, we find that it is correct in accordance with the law. On our examination of the office of the County Superintendent of Education, we find that his books, records, and papers are neatly kept and correct as we ascertained, were kept fully in accordance with the law.

We have made a personal inspection of the county jail and believe it to be sufficiently safe for the keeping of prisoners and find that the prisoners therein confined there are being well fed and cared for with reasonable comfort.

The Grand Jury wishes especially to thank you for the very able assistance given us when we were first organized and that it has been best helped to us throughout our investigation.

The Sheriff and his deputies and the Jailor for the Grand Jury, Mr. Albert [Name], have given us valuable assistance and have been most efficient in receiving witnesses that we needed to complete our investigation; all of which we greatly appreciate.

We now, having complied to the best of our ability with your honor's request, respectfully ask that we be discharged, as it has been best helped to us throughout our investigation.

This is the 30th day of January, 1941.

Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

This & That: Porters at the new airlines terminal are now officially "skycaps". . . The name won a $100 prize for Willie Wainwright, of New Orleans, in a contest in which there were 8,000 entries. . . It is my guess, however, that the luggage toters, if it is in the night, will continue to answer the call "Porter, please." . . Or come without being called. . . Job I wouldn't trade at this time of the year: Washing skyscraper windows. . . Or at any other time, for that matter. . . Job I surely wouldn't care for during the holiday rush: Elevator operator in a department store. . . Woman shoppers seem to have evils of ox-droop sharpness. . . The oldest singer in New York is that at the Brass Ball restaurant. . . It soon will be two years old. . . In a midtown restaurant is an oyster opener who, in 20 years of employment, has never found a pearl.

In many apartment houses, washing machines are available to tenants for a 10-cent fee. . . Superintendents have to use vigilance to keep neighbors from sneaking in and using the machines. . . Also, maids in need of dimes, keep the coins handy, lest by the mistress's do and the work by hand. . . Billy Hill has been dead more than two weeks but the strains of "The Last Roundup" keep running through my head. . . And I think of how, when all those melodies in his soul, to support himself, he had to work as a doorman on Fifth avenue. . . It was Broadway, my friends, that he was through with the theater. . . Writing for the stage means a lot of hard work, a terrific buildup. . . And then "Bang!" . . . So he plans to stick to short stories and novels at least. . . Though I hope he changes his mind and turns out another "Bury the Dead". . . Or "The Gentle People". . . Four extremely comely young women, all dressed alike, are seen night after night in various clubs, especially the openings where celebrities are present. . . The girls are paid out store models whose business it is to display what's new in clothes. . . In other words, they draw a salary for doing what other folks pay money for.

Sign in a Madison avenue window noted by Charlie Spivak: "Dictionaries. If you are thinking of sending a letter to Her they won't be of any use to you. Otherwise, they're a bargain at 98 cents". . . Harry Salter each month receives dozens of requests from inmates of Sing Sing Prison for books and other necessities all over the country. . . But the favorite tune of the convicts is not "The Prisoner's Song". . . Right now, it's "Star Dust". . . Like the "Star Dust" Adele Tange featured in the Terrace Room of the Hotel New York. . . Among other things she does is turn a forward somersault without using her hands. . . She's only 15 and her home is in Clayton, Mo.

Things that stirred my emotions: That radio conversation between Emyln Williams in London and his wife in New York. The British surely can keep their chins up. . . Refugee children standing in awe before the big Christmas tree in Radio City. . . The Palisades blushing as the morning sun caresses them. . . The acting of Ethel Barrymore in "The Corn Is Green". . . and the acting of Jane Cowl and Peggy Wood in "Old Acquaintance".

A nice, here to visit Bess Johnson, quizzed her about actors with whom she works. Miss Johnson, having told a little about them, said, "And sometimes Mr. Barker is in the cast—he imitates dogs." The youngster pouted and exclaimed, "Don't try to kid me, Aunt Bess. I'm a big girl now." And Aunt Bess had a hard time winning back the trust of the child although the man who imitates dogs actually is named Bradley Barker.

Remarks: Speaking of unemployment, says Virginia Payne, the average man has 12,000,000 brain cells. (Don't blame me if that's true.) . . . Eddie Paul opines that the wise husband talks in his wife's sleep. . . Vincent Lopez observes that some favorite sons show how blind they are when they react with a shrill, sirenlike call.

MILWAUKEE.—The Milwaukee zoo has two "air raid sentinels." Director Ernest Undermann says the Brazilian-trained screamers are of proved reliability. Possessing superkeen senses developed through generations of vigilance against natural enemies, the birds can hear an airplane 10 miles distant and they react with a shrill, sirenlike call.

Planting And Care Of Kudzu

By Pat Smith
County Agent, Chilton County

Kudzu is a three-purpose crop that is gaining in popularity and importance in Chilton County. This crop is being used to control erosion, as a temporary grazing crop and to produce hay.

In response to many requests the following suggestions are given on planting and caring for kudzu.

Kudzu, with proper care, grows well on any Chilton County soils except the low, poorly drained, moist areas. It grows successfully if fertilized and cared for, on ditch banks, gauded areas, in gullies, and on hillsides.

Kudzu should be planted in late February on a good seed bed that is prepared in early February. Now is the time to prepare the beds for planting kudzu. The rows should be laid off about 25 feet apart with a middle-buster or other plow that will open up a furrow. These rows should be laid off as near on contour as possible. As much barnyard manure as is available should be put down in the furrow. Apply not less than 200 pounds of 16 per cent superphosphate (or its equivalent) or 400 pounds of basic slag per acre in the row with the manure. It is recommended that this phosphate fertilizer be used in every case regardless of how much manure is used. Bed on the fertilizer as though water-melons are to be planted. This should be allowed to settle before planting the seeds.

Seedlings and crowns are the most common planting stocks used in this county. The roots should be cut to about 6 inches in length. Dig a hole for each plant in the settled beds. This hole should be large and deep enough to accommodate the roots of the plant. Pack the soil firmly about the roots of each plant and leave just the growing point sticking out of the ground.

Kudzu will need cultivating for the first year at least. It is suggested that a clean-cut hoe be planted between the rows of kudzu.

The method used in setting kudzu on a ditch or gully is different from that given above. Holes should be dug on the sides about 2 feet apart for 10 feet apart. Mix the fertilizers well with the soil and plant 2 crowns per hole. Several rows may also be set several feet back from the sides of the gully. There is a $4.50 per acre payment for setting kudzu under the 1941 AAA program provided the kudzu is fertilized with not less than 200 pounds of 16 per cent superphosphate or its equivalent per acre and provided that there are not less than 350 growing plants per acre. There is a payment for using the phosphate also. The most that anyone can earn in this way is the amount of the soil building allowance.

The 1941 AAA Conservation Program provides for the establishment of at least one acre of Kudzu or Sericea Lespedeza for each 15 acres in cropland on the farm. This may or may not be established on crop land.

With proper care it requires from 2 to 3 years for Kudzu to become well established on an area. Overgrazing will kill it. All classes of livestock will eat kudzu green or as a hay. Kudzu can be confined to any desired area with proper attention.

To increase livestock and livestock products, Chilton County farmers need an abundant supply of cheap feeds. Kudzu is one of the most important permanent feed crops that can be grown in this county and it is especially needed on those farms where it is expected to increase the production of dairy cows and dairy products.

This year. For this reason it is suggested that the stock of kudzu be increased that all of the local supply be used. Only 50 crowns properly fertilized, planted and cared for, will furnish an abundance of planting stock three years from now.

FARM FAMILIES URGED TO PRODUCE FOOD SUPPLY

AUBURN, ALA.—"Let us make every Alabamian stronger, sturdier in body, steeper in nerves and surer in living than ever before," pleads Mildred Simon, nutritionist of the Alabama Extension Service.

"Food will play an important part in this defense undertaking, she says. 'Well balanced diets contribute greatly to increased vitality and physical fitness. Getting along on poor food, week after week, will surely result in chronic fatigue. An ill-fed person may be up and at work; but he will not work effectively and his resistance to infection may be dangerously low.

"Will the food situation on farms contribute its part in 1941? This is for farm people to decide. A family that accepts the challenge of making its members strong through better diets will take stock of its resources and follow a live-at-home program during 1941," she concludes.

CHEVROLET SALES UP

Detroit, Feb. 1.—During the second 10-day period in January, Chevrolet dealers bolstered the record sales report submitted in the previous 10-day period by establishing new sales marks in company history, both for the period and for the first 20 days of the month it was announced here today by W. E. Holler, general sales manager.

In the period, dealers sold at retail a total of 30,479 new passenger and commercial cars, a gain of 20.3 per cent over the comparable period last year and an increase of 67 per cent over the preceding 10 days this year. Combined sales during the 20 days totaled $8,978, a 24.4 per cent advance over the same period in 1940.

Used car sales in the 10-day period were 47,493, an increase of 22.7 per cent over the same period last year and a gain of 16.9 per cent over the preceding 10 days this year. The 20-day report shows used car sales 23 per cent in advance of the same period in 1940.

Retail truck sales also held upward course established since the new models were introduced last fall, advancing 36 per cent over January 1-20 last year, with total sales being 12,336 for the 20-day period.

There is nothing more amusing than the citizen who does his first bit of community work, without pay or the expectation of reward, and then begins to urge others to do likewise.

Sunday School Lesson

THE CHRISTIAN ATTITUDE TOWARD POSSESSIONS

International Sunday School Lesson
For February 9, 1941

Golden Text: "Ye cannot serve God and mammon."—Luke 16: 13.

Lesson Text: Luke 16: 18-15, 22-23.

It will probably surprise some people to learn that Jesus had more to say about earthly possessions and man's relation to them than about anything else. Jesus never condemned money, as such, or the possession of money.

He never loved the poor just because they were poor. He condemned in ringing tones the wrong use of money, the covetousness which usually accompanies the accumulation of material things before and above the kingdom of God.

"A careful student of the sayings of Jesus declared that 'sixteen of his thirty-eight parables, one verse out of every seven in the four Gospels—in fact, one-half of his teachings—relate to this theme'—earthly possessions and man's attitude toward them. The average church member enjoys hearing his pastor preach about anything except what his, or her, attitude should be on the subject of money.

The first section of the printed text for our lesson follows immediately after Jesus' parable of the Unjust Steward, in which Jesus pointed out that most men are shrewd enough when it comes to their own material welfare and that they should use some of this shrewdness in the more important, spiritual matters of life. Jesus certainly did not approve the methods of shrewdness of the unjust steward.

Jesus declared, "No man can serve two masters." This is a truth that has been demonstrated innumerable times. "A person may divide his attention or his time between two duties, but he can give his supreme loyalty to only one. There can be no middle ground.

The second portion of our printed text concerns the story of a rich man we have come to know as Dives and a poor beggar, Lazarus.

This parable was spoken by Jesus to rebuke the sin of selfishness, and it teaches the truth that retribution over, takes the sinner.

The name, "Dives," is not a proper name but is the Latin designation of a rich man. The parable is not to be taken literally in every detail for Jesus was more concerned with the social doctrine involved than he was with revealing the state of the life hereafter.

We have the picture of two men contrasted. Dives, the rich man, in his luxurious living, and his selfish employment of the good things of life. On the other hand, Lazarus, sick and sore, hungry and unattended, an abject object of misery and one for pity.

The tragedy of the story lies in the fact that Dives was unmoved by the suffering and distress of a fellow man. A thought for most of us lies in the fact that in this day and time many such people are possibly lying at our gate, as well.

Dives accepted the different circumstances in life which came to him and Lazarus as a matter of course. He did not ask as to the causes which produced such an undesirable condition of life for a man.

There are many social problems which confront us today and very often we excuse ourselves by the conviction that they are the result of forces and circumstances beyond the reach of an individual to alter. Today there are people living in luxury while others are starving; there are tremendous fortunes and unbelievable destitution existing in the same social fabric. What made Lazarus an afflicted beggar? Certainly, he did not choose it for himself. Modern Christianity has its problem to improve living conditions so that every person can have the necessities of life and be happy.

If Jesus in this parable furnished us with any clues as to the life hereafter they were interesting, because they show that personality, consciousness and identity are all retained in the world to come. Yet it is probable that Jesus adopted the current fancies of this day in regard to the life beyond the grave to emphasize the social teaching.

After death Dives entered upon punishment, from which the parable gives no new abode. The implication is that both received the reward of punishment which their conduct merited. If one feels that the picture of the punishment of Dives is harsh and cruel, it should be remembered that it is painted by a man who died in an effort to save other men from such fate.

The parable does not mean that each person has a fixed amount of good or evil for his life. On the other hand, it is that people will develop into the characters they seek to be. Dives sought pleasure and wealth in a material world and neglected to cultivate the higher and eternal qualities of good generosity and faith. Therefore, he was unfitted to live in a spiritual world in which those qualities which he had neglected were a prerequisite. As was said in the Sermon on the Mount about those who prayed or gave alms in public to receive the praise of men, they have their reward, that is, having deliberately chosen what they wanted they received it.

The one redeeming point in the picture of the character of Dives in his remembrance of his brethren, even in torment he is concerned about his five brothers and asked that a messenger be sent to warn them of the future. He was afraid that they, like he, would neglect the higher things of life until when they found them attractive, attainment would be out of reach. Unfortunately, it was too late for Dives to help his own brothers from a probability.

The conception of life and its responsibility is responsible for the intensity of his suffering and distress which plagues human souls. The spendthrift who wastes his fortune while children starve and die cannot be held guiltless. Those who tempt others to theft or shame by a life of ostentatious display must assume the guilt for what they encourage. So, also, every man or woman is responsible for the use they make of every talent and possession with which they are entrusted.

No greater argument for the practice of separating a certain portion of one's wealth for charity and religion can be made than that of the great English statesman, Gladstone, who said: "The greatest advantage of making a little fund of this kind is that when we are asked to give, competition is not between self on the one hand and charity on the other but between the different purposes . . . among which we ought to make the most careful choice."

FOUR ALABAMA MEMBERS WILL ATTEND 4-H CAMP

AUBURN, ALA.—T. A. Sims, state 4-H club leader, has announced that the 1941 National 4-H Club camp will be held in Washington, D. C., during the period June 18 to 25, inclusive. Delegates will be chosen on the basis of meritorious club work, during the year, with two boys and two girls eligible to attend. The theme for the 1941 camp is "Rural Youth's Responsibilities."

Bystanders are the people who can do the job better.

A little man is afraid of competition.

Literature is easy to produce but hard to sell.

The cosmopolitan person is a resident of a big city, with the conviction that what is done by the multitude around him is correct.

The average big business man, despite his talk about a free competitive system, wants nothing more than a monopoly in his own field.

There are enough churches in Clanton to suit everybody, pick one for yourself and join it. If you already belong to a church, support it and its work.

The Italians have scored another victory at Bardia because, according to Rome reports, the fall of the Libyan fortress did not put Italy out of the war, as the British expected.

U. S. May Gain Rare Volumes

Great Britain Plans Sales Of Valuable Tomes to Get War Cash.

NEW YORK.—The man who once paid $108,000 for a book, $77,000 for a manuscript and $57,000 for a signature believes that this country—its stays out of war—will become the world's greatest treasure house of rare books.

Even now, there are many rare books in this country of which there are no copies in Europe, said Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, one of the world's leading bibliophiles. And British authorities are considering sending a number of the finest manuscripts and rare books in some of England's famous private libraries to be placed on sale here to get American dollars for her war needs.

Nothing now in British museums would be sent under the plan on which Dr. Rosenbach has been consulted. Britain is holding on to her national treasures, such as two Fourth century codices of the Bible, which are in the British museum, and Shakespeare's will.

Boost Book Collecting.
A plan to send some of her private library treasures, if carried out, would bring new impetus to book-collecting in this country, which for the last 40 years has been the world's leading market.

There are, for example, four times more copies of the first folio of Shakespeare now in the United States than in the whole of England. A number of wealthy young American men have been coming up in recent years as book lovers and buyers who give promise of ranking with the great collectors.

Dr. Rosenbach, who once wrote that "after love, book collecting is the most exhilarating sport of all," said that all over Europe, except in Switzerland, collectors have had virtually ceased their activities because of the war—an even greater cessation than in the last war.

On this side of the Atlantic, rare books are changing hands for war relief.

A Lifetime Collector.

Backed by tall book-shelves full of the treasures he has spent a lifetime collecting all over the world, Dr. Rosenbach, a ruddy, healthy-looking man in his early sixties, sat puffing his pipe.

A church-like quiet pervaded his library and the adjacent rooms housing one of his three collections. The other are his Philadelphia home—the city where he and his family before him have had a book business for a century, and the other at his estate at Strathmore, N. J. A number of wealthy young American men have been coming up in recent years as book lovers and buyers who give promise of ranking with the great collectors.

The $77,000 was the highest price ever paid for a manuscript's autograph; the $106,000 he paid for the Melk copy of the Gutenberg Bible the highest ever paid for a printed book, and the $57,000 he bid for a document signed by Button Gwinnett, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, the highest ever paid for a signature.

Boston Yields Fishing Stakes of Early People
BOSTON.—Fish weir stakes, unearthed 35 feet below filled-in marshland in Boston's Back Bay supply evidence of New England's earliest people and culture.

Prof. Albert Morris, Boston university sociologist, says the fish traps date the era of prehistoric man 2,500 to 3,000 years ago in a considerably warmer climate.

He believes a band of "pre-Algonquian Indians drove their adze-sharpened stakes" down in the shallow waters of an inland bay. Discovery of the work was made in August, 1939, during excavation for a building foundation.

"The weir is important," Morris said, "for the discovery yet made that permits an approximate dating of the earliest people and culture of New England. There is evidence that the climate of Boston was considerably warmer at the time the first weir was built than it is now."

"The evidence of the Back Bay deposits is supported by studies of fossil flora everywhere in this country which indicate the ending of a warm dry period in northeastern America about 3,000 years ago."

Conducted By Miss MATTIE JO BARBER

Miss Pauline Ousley of Plantersville, Ala. R-5, has been named the most outstanding 4-H Club girl in Chilton County for the year 1940. Pauline has carried the following projects in her club work since becoming a member. Home Improvement, Canning, Gardening, Foods, Poultry, beef calf, and Dairying. She has entered four health contests and one dress contest. She received second place in health activities in the County. She has held the following offices in 4-H Clubs: song leader of Stanton Club, President of the Maplesville Club, for two years and Planter of the County Council. She represented Chilton County at the State 4-H Club Camp in Auburn in 1939. She also represented Chilton County in the State Public Speaking Contest for Home Demonstration Club Women held in Auburn, having won this honor over Home Demonstration Club members in the County.

Besides 4-H Club activities she is a member of her school basket ball team, represented Maplesville School at the State Dress Reveal in Montevallo and takes an active part in community church activities; being pianist and member of church choir.

In her scholastic rating in her school she is an outstanding student. Pauline says, "I have derived many things from 4-H Club work that has improved me as an individual."

This is about the time of the year that certain residents of Clanton get the impression that anybody can have a beautiful garden by ordering seed from a catalogue.

ALA. - COOSA WATERWAY PLANS PUSHED

Senator Hill Hopes For Approval Of Nine-Foot Channel

Channel

BY CARROLL KILPATRICK
Special Washington Correspondent For The Birmingham News

WASHINGTON—The War Department is giving serious consideration to the proposal for a long range navigation, power, flood control and recreational development of the Alabama-Coosa River basin, Senator Hill announced Friday.

The long-discussed and bitterly-contested project for development of the vast inland waterway route in Alabama is being studied by the board of engineers for rivers and harbors of the War Department, the junior Alabama senator revealed.

"I wish to point out," he said, "that this is not something we can expect to develop overnight. The words 'long-range' should be emphasized.

The senator added, however, that he has other reasons to believe the developments that have been advocated by him and other Alabamians over a long period of time will be favorably passed upon by the War Department board within a few months.

"Even then it is necessary for the secretary of war, the president and Congress to approve the plans before work actually can be started," Senator Hill explained.

"But we are not going to let the difficulties in our way stop us," he insisted.

One proposal calls for expenditure of nearly $100,000,000, while a counter proposal calls for the expenditure of more than $500,000,000.

Regardless of which plan is adopted a nine-foot channel from Mobile to Montgomery and from Montgomery to Rome, Ga., will be the goal.

Once Rejected

Six years ago plans for the Alabama-Coosa development as a part of the Mobile river system were rejected by government engineers.

In recent months, however, both district and division engineers in the War Department have studied the plans all over again and submitted the favorable reports to the board of engineers for rivers and harbors.

The belief has been expressed in Washington that construction of the smokeless powder and, bag-loading plants at Childersburg would necessitate this river development program.

Engineers point out, however, that there is no connection between the two projects. River transportation would not be used if quick deliveries of powder were demanded. Moreover, time could not be spared for the construction of hydro-electric power dams on the Coosa River to supply Childersburg with the necessary electricity.

In April, 1936, as a member of the House rivers and harbors committee, Hill obtained passage of a resolution calling for a re-study of proposals for the Coosa-Alabama river development. A similar resolution was passed a year ago by the Senate commerce committee of which Hill is now a member.

As a result of this action, the U. S. district engineer, Col. Richard Park, reopened the study. The long-range plan recommended by him involves 21 different projects, including six navigation and power dams and locks with a extra lock in the Leesburg cutoff.

More Locks Needed

Also there would be flights of locks at three existing dams—Lay, Powell and Jordan, all on the Coosa River. The old lock and dam at Mayo's Bar would have to be re-constructed.

There would be, furthermore, six navigation locks and dams on the Alabama River and smaller projects on several tributaries. Flood control projects would be developed at Rome, Gadsden, Wetumpka, Montgomery, Selma, Cahawba and Prattville.

The total cost of this long-range development proposed by Col. Park would be $95,000,000 of which $27,000,000 would be devoted to navigation purposes, $43,000,000 to flood control and $65,000,000 for power development.

The alternative plan suggested by U. S. Division Engineer Col. R. H. Powell calls for expenditures of $62,292,000 and would be carried out in two phases.

First the nine-foot channel from Mobile to Montgomery would be developed at a cost of 717,783,000 and after that would come the development of nine-foot channel and power sites between Montgomery and Rome, estimated to cost an additional $44,909,000.

The plan suggested by Col. Powell would not provide for as many power dams as the project suggested by Col. Park, the district engineer.

Col. Powell also refused to recommend development of locks on the tributaries, arguing there were unfavorable geological and topographical features.

Hydro Electric Plants

Col. Powell urged furthermore that hydro-electric developments should not be initiated until after the secretary of war finds that a market for the power may be reasonably expected.

Replying to this Senator Hill asserted the need for power is already apparent. "I believe the demand for power is there and I have submitted facts and figures showing where the market is," Hill said.

It has been reliably estimated, the senator added, that by 1950 the demand for power in Alabama will be greater by 60 per cent than it was in 1939.

"We are intent upon developing our national resources to make us strong; at home and strong among the nations of the world" Senator Hill pointed out. "Back in 1905 Senator John Tyler Morgan, of Alabama, in a report to the Senate emphasized the fact that when our rivers are so connected by interlocking canals that the navigation of any of them will be common to all the people the United States will be the greatest power in the world, because its home power will excel that of all the other world powers." That is what we are working toward today and that is why we must continue to press for the development of the Coosa -Alabama River basin."

FOLKS and THINGS
ABOUT TOWN

Julian Evans, down at Southern Seed and Plant Company, has a chick in a jug. He says he is going to raise it to be a grown rooster. That is he hopes it is a rooster, he hasn't been able to find out yet. Now here's where the joke is going to be on Julian. Suppose that rooster is a hen. Julian wants to sell the line, "Come Hear A Rooster Crowing In A Jug." It looks to me like rooster might cackle. Anyway, he's hunting some advice as to how you get a grown chicken out of a water jug without breaking the jug. He says he paid $2.98 for that water jug and sure doesn't intend to break it to get that (rooster-hen) out.

The bald-headed row at the showing of Earl Carroll's "Night At Earl Carroll" at the New Wednesdayian the other night was practically nil. These Clanton wives must keep pretty close track of their lesser-halves. We couldn't get any closer than the back row.

We saw this tacked over the desk of Mr. Martin's down at the Funeral Parlor. "If money is the only thing that you are getting out of your business, you're not getting enough."

As we mentioned before, anything can happen on the corner of U. S. 31 and the Mapleville Highway. Last Saturday morning a truck turned west heading toward Mapleville and a crate of beautiful white eggs were on the back of the truck. We say beautiful white eggs, but they were only beautiful until they hit the pavement.

After that it was one beautiful mess. The truck spent several minutes trying to move something from its cargo but gave it up and had job and continued toward Mapleville.

We're going to have a Valentine Dance Friday night down at Starlite. The Starlite and Cecil Mackey's Orchestra are furnishing the music. Cecil Blow is moderating for the occasion and as usual, a large time is expected by all.

Our good friend Parker Taylor is again in the Wholesale Produce business. Parker is old at the game and knows what he is about. We wish him the best of luck in this new enterprise.

An odd accident happened last Saturday at Teel's Service Station. V. J. Parker was putting air into his truck tire when the tire blew out and tore the rim off the wheel. The rim struck him in the chest and caused a painful but not serious injury. The Highways Patrol was called and they picked him up and rushed him to Central Alabama Hospital where his injuries were taken care of.

R. W. Lowe, our genial postmaster, is counting on the Postmaster's trip to the Gulf of Mexico this year. He is very anxious that all of the postmaster in the county get in touch with him if they are interested in making the trip. We have visited the Gulf on numerous occasions and can't think of a better place to go to enjoy one's self. If you are a postmaster, or mistress, and interested, get in touch with postmaster Lowe and start making plans.

A bit out of town but darn good reports are Barney and Gladys DeRamus and Verberna, Barney and Gladys were guests of Clanton at the President's Ball and looks like Clantonians will get a chance Friday night to return the compliment when Cecil Mackey's Orchestra plays at Starlite for the Valentine Dance.

Loren Smith is conducting a Fireman's Ball at the City Hall on Wednesday evening from 7:30 till 9:30. These classes are conducted for the purpose of teaching firefighters where to look for fire hazards and what to do when they are found. This school is held twenty-two weeks each year during school term. Of course to get the real down-on the duties of a future firefighter you will have to go down and talk to Loren, believe us there is a heap more to it than hearing a sirens and rushing for a fire truck. Loren says that for every fire he fights in reality he has fought some fifty times in practice.

Red Cross Doing Fine Work

The Red Cross workers here have been doing a fine job this year. They have shipped this week 30 baby Layettes, 70 girls' dresses, 15 Ladies' Dresses, 30 boys' shirts, 15 Men's Pajamas, operating gowns and 40 sweaters. This work is done by the ladies in Clanton, who have been so willing to give their time and efforts to helping the war effort. If you would like to help in this work, get in touch with Mrs. M. M. Parker or Mrs. G. H. Heflin or Mrs. M. M. Jones.

Jack Wyatt Victim Of Burglar, Thief And An Arsonist

Jack Wyatt, of Clanton Route 1, was the victim of a burglar, a thief, and an arsonist last Saturday night about twelve when someone (or someone) entered his home and took about $5.00 worth of canned goods and other food. Not satisfied with that, they set his bed on fire and ruined about $20 worth of bed clothing and wearing apparel. Jack says, "I wouldn't have cared so much for the goods they took, but I would have appreciated it very much if they wouldn't have tried to burn me out (or up)."

Clanton To Get $85,479 City-Wide Street Project

We are advised by a telegram Tuesday from Pete Jarman and Lester Hill of the approval of WPA Project 50271. This project, for improvement of Clanton streets and amounts to $85,479.00. The disbursement is at the discretion of the State Administrator.

Local Officers Destroy Huge Distilling Outfit Past Week

On Wednesday, February 5th, deputies George Murrah, Ed Littlejohn and Jess Motes went up on the Chilton-Shelby line, southeast Calera, and destroyed four four-hundred gallon distilling outfits and several gallons of beer. The deputies stated that the outfit wasn't in operation but preparations were being made for a run. Two men, George Wilson and Jim Mayes were arrested and placed in jail, while one unidentified person escaped.

Also during the past week, Cecil Taylor was arrested, alleged to have been operating a 40-gallon outfit in the western part of the county, which the officers destroyed several weeks ago. Other arrests for the week were: one white, grand larceny; one colored, shooting into dwelling; one white, public drunkenness and one white, violating prohibition law.

Clanton Lions' Have Guest Night

Clanton Lions celebrated Guest Night last Friday night with a large attendance. Several inspirational talks were made by visitors and members.

Miss Lillian McKee was present with two of the boys who received glasses from the Club. The Lions Club has bought twenty-three pairs of glasses for the needy and is giving them away in the past twelve months. Miss McKee helps wonderfully in this Lion Activity. The membership voted to put $100.00 into the fund for the new recreational center and swimming pool.

Alfred W. Mims Passed Tuesday

Alfred Washington Mims, age 41, died Tuesday morning at 3:45 o'clock. He was well-known in Clanton and Chilton leaving a host of relatives and friends to mourn his passing. Services will be conducted Thursday Morning at 10:30 at Temple church. J. M. Martin and Sons in charge.

Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Grover Langston. The deceased is survived by his mother, Mrs. Laura Mims, three daughters, Emerine, Willodene and Betty Joice; one son Moses and one sister, Mrs. John Paton; six brothers, Jonah Mims, Ocie, Evon, Charlie and Archie Mims.

FIRST NATL. BANK HOLDS OPEN HOUSE

The new home of the First National Bank of Clanton which has been under construction since the early part of 1934 is now in the final stages of completion and will be ready for occupancy by the middle of next week. Mr. John C. Page, cashier of the bank, states that open house will be held Tuesday, February 18 from 10 a.m. till 3 p.m. The public is invited to visit the new home of the bank; to inspect it and see for themselves the many new and modern conveniences which have been installed. The bank expects to open its doors for its first day of business in its new home on the morning of February 19th. Those in charge of erecting the building have spared nothing in order to fit it to the convenience of the public. The building occupies the same site as the old one but has been completely rebuilt.

The new building has an imposing bluff stone front and a frontage of 20 feet. The fixtures and wainscoting are of marble. For the protection of the funds of the bank, a burglar proof, concrete reinforced vault with a fifteen-ton door has been installed. The vault containing safety deposit boxes is likewise made of reinforced steel and concrete and is mirrored so that a person may not be approached from the rear and take unawares.

The entire building is of the latest type of construction and fireproof throughout. The construction was done by the firm of Montgomery and Coker of Sylacauga.

Mr. Page and the other employees of the bank wish to thank the public for the consideration they have shown them during the time they have occupied their temporary quarters in the Sartor Building. They wish to again remind the public that the aim of the First National Bank is Service and ask everyone to call on them in their new home and see what has been done to make the First National Bank of more service to Clanton County.

Sunday Shows Go Back To Old Time

It was announced by Mrs. Chas. Wade Wednesday that the Sunday night show will start at 8:15 o'clock. The doors will open at 8:00 o'clock. This is the same schedule observed last summer and fall before time was moved up to 6:45 p.m.

History Lives Again For Postmasters

Postmaster Lowe says, the postmasters of Alabama have selected the new Admiral Semmes for their Convention hotel in Mobile and that reservations are being taken up fast. For two days, Monday and Tuesday, March 17th and 18th history will live again in Mobile, the proud city of five flags. The gallantry and charm of by-gone days will live again in the old homes that have grown lovelier with the years and still stretch their graceful white columns in the shade of ancient oaks. Nine homes are included on this year's tour, starting in downtown Mobile and taking in homes in the western, residential sections and suburban Springdale.

Pretty young girls, many of them wearing the dresses their grandmothers wore as they strolled through the azalea gardens, will be at each stop on the tour to guide visitors over the grounds and through the many high-ceilinged rooms, showing them priceless mahogany and rosewood furniture, shining silver, gleaming china and glass, waxed oil paintings, and the historic documents preserved in some of the homes.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAS TWO CALLS DURING PAST WEEK

Clanton had two fire alarms during the past week but both proved of minor consequences due to prompt action of the volunteer fire department. Minor damage was done to the roof of the Church of Christ about 11:30 Sunday morning when a spark ignited the shingles. The second fire, a brush fire near the grammar school, which was quickly extinguished on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. George Polk and Miss Pottery Polk spent last Sunday in Birmingham with the George Parris.

Only Two High School Games Remain

CLANTON TAKES THREE GAMES OVER PAST WEEK; DEFEATS SELMA HIGH TWICE

By Clark Headley

Clanton loop fans now have only two more chances to see coach Dewey Cox's machine in action in Clanton before the tournament. Those two games being against Lanier and the Auburn freshmen.

Chilton County High will play Sidney Lanier of Montgomery here Thursday night (to-night), February 13, in what is expected to be a battle royal. Lanier defeated Coach Joe Riley's Montgomeryans by a score of 23 to 16 in their first clash. But, the Poets had only been out for practice four days and that was their first game of the season, since they have won some very important games about over the state. The game with the Poets is expected to be another thriller as was the one with Albert G. Parish High of Selma here last week, although Clanton defeated the Selma lads 33 to 25.

On Wednesday night, February 19, Clanton will play Elmer Salter's Auburn freshmen on the Clanton court, which will be their last appearance before entering the Third District Tournament in Selma February 28 and March 1st.

On Wednesday night, February 5th, Clanton defeated Parrish High of Selma here winning by a score of 33 to 25 in a rattle-tattle scrap. Luke Chambers, that speedy little guard, stole the show by holding Selma's high-classed dribblers down, allowing him to ring out nine points, while he marked up seventeen for Clanton, being high-point man.

On last Friday night, Clanton walked off the court with a 35 to 15 victory over a team of 13 to 15, in a cash war.

W. G. Taylor Passed In Montgomery Hospital Last Week

Clanton and Chilton County lost one of its most valued and esteemed citizens last week in the passing of William Grady Taylor, age 43, who died in a Montgomery hospital Thursday, February 6, at 1:00, following a lingering illness which proved fatal to this beloved character.

Grady was well-known in Clanton, Chilton County and Central Alabama. Having been engaged in business here for years. At the time of his death he was operating a feed and grocery store, which he set up shortly after leaving Bear and Taylor of which he was part-owner. Before he operated what was known as Peoples' Cash Store and had been active in livestock dealings for a number of years.

Funeral rites were conducted from the Concord Baptist church last Friday at 2 p.m. with the Rev. G. G. Williams, pastor, officiating, assisted by Revs. A. S. Bentley and M. Lockhart.

The deceased is survived by the widow, Mrs. Maggie Wyatt Taylor; his father, T. G. Taylor; three sons, Morris 21, Milton 18, and Edwin 14; three brothers, T. M., Jimmie and Roland Taylor; and four sisters, Mrs. E. P. Mims, Mrs. Ollie McDowell, Mrs. I. O. Black and Mrs. S. M. Deraugh. Active Pallbearers were Reedy Taylor, Carl McDowell, Aubrey Taylor, Buddy Ellison, Durwood Teel and Mack Godwin.

Honorary Pallbearers were Wiley Bean, Grady Heflin, Frank Higgins, Hugh Jones, Eli Moats, W. J. Easterling.

Flower girls were Mrs. Aubrey Taylor, Mrs. Melvyn Mims, Dorothy Nell Black, Maurer Maddox, Delene McDowell, and Myrtice Easterling.

All Merchants Cooperating In Making It The Largest Trade Day Ever

Clanton is going to have a Trade Day. You are invited and urged to be in town on that day. The day has been set for Saturday, March 1st. All of the merchants are cooperating and have adopted as their theme: "Not How much we can get for an article, but rather, how little can we sell it for." This is one time the farmer is going to get the best of the deal, the merchants are seeing to that.

Anyone who has something that has no use for can bring it to Clanton on Saturday, March 1st, and trade it, as they like. A plan has been prepared by the merchants, a trading center, and all who care to trade their commodity on this lot and out their trading. Complete details have not been worked out but will see more about Clanton's big Trade Day in the next issue of the Chilton County News. Watch for further details.

The Boy Scouts Need Men

Nearly a million and a half members of the Boy Scouts of America will observe Scout Week from February 7th to 13th. This is one week which should interest parents of boys.

This great movement for the development of boys was instituted in England by Robert Stevenson Smyth Baden-Powell in 1907 as an experiment and in the following year the scouting movement was actually founded. In this country the Boy Scouts of America was founded February 8th, 1910.

Adults who are familiar with the work of the Boy Scout organization do not have to be told of the value of its training. It encourages boys in outdoor activities, giving them an opportunity to develop traits of character and leadership which will help to make them successful men.

More than nine million persons have been connected with scouting since its organization in the United States. Today, we understand, scouting requires the volunteer services of capable men, willing to give some time to the interest of the boys of their neighborhood.

There may be men in Chilton County who will read this article with an anxious desire to devote a small part of time to some enterprise for the common welfare. If they are interested in boys, we suggest that they do themselves a favor and help extend the scope of scout activities.

DRY COWS NEED MORE FEED AND BETTER CARE

AUBURN, Ala.—Alabama farmers are not getting the amount of milk produced by cows during their lactation period as they should because of the lack of proper feed and care.

Dr. F. W. Burns, extension veterinarian at Auburn, Ala., says that the hay is probably the best feed for a cow during the period of lactation. It supplies the mineral in liberal amounts, he says.

A cow needs to feed the cows at two pounds of hay per hundred pounds of body weight. In addition, green grass crops such as oats and corn should be available.

It is also important that the cows be kept in good health. They should be vaccinated against diseases which are easily contracted. Unchecked, they can be a source of trouble.

It must be at least six months before a cow can be used again. I would hardly have a cow in my herd that has calved less than once in six months.

Yes, it is a long time. If you remember your cow, I can guarantee you either.

JAMES F. BRAWNER

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—Gov. Frank M. Dixon has appointed Capt. James F. Brawner, of Andalusia, as Acting Director of the State Department of Public Safety, to serve during the absence of Director T. Weller Smith on active military duty with the Alabama National Guard.

At the same time the Governor granted Director Smith leave of absence for one year to perform the military service to which he has been assigned. Director Smith, graduate of the Virginia Military Institute, World War Veteran, and who for many years has been an active member of the National Guard of this State, holds the rank of Executive Officer of the 10th Anti-Aircraft Battalion. He was scheduled to leave with that organization on Tuesday, February 11, for Camp Stewart, near Hinesville, Ga.

Capt. Brawner, also a World War Veteran, has served as head of the Driver's License Division of the Public Safety Department, with the rank of Captain, since the Department was organized at the beginning of the present administration.

IN MEMORY

We wish to express our deepest appreciation to our neighbors and friends who helped in any way during the sickness and death of our loving father, Mr. C. R. Childress.

We especially thank Dr. H. G. Franklin for his kindness at this time. May God bless each one of you, is our prayer.—The children and grandchildren.

Last Thur day night, February 6th, at 11:30 God saw fit to call Uncle Charlie home. He had been confined to his bed for about four weeks. In all his sickness and suffering he bore it with patience. Everything was done that loving hands could do but God saw fit to call him home.

He leaves to mourn his loss one daughter and two sons. Mrs. G. E. Collins, John Childress and David Childress all of Thorsby. He also leaves ten grandchildren and six great-grandchildren, besides a host of relatives and friends.

Uncle Charlie was born in Chilton County June 2, 1867. He lived to the ripe old age of 73. His funeral was held at New Salem church, February 8 at 11:30 a.m. The services were conducted by Rev. M. L. McLeod and Rev. The pallbearers were: Emmitt Bil-Nix, Hunsley E. E. Porter, Turner Gamble, Lester Deason, M. P. Davenport, and V. E. Wyatt.

IN MEMORY OF MY GRANDFATHER, C. R. CHILDRESS

He is gone but not forgotten. As he sleeps beneath the sod: He brought happiness to others, Now he rests in peace with God.

The Dear Father took his servant, To a place of peace and rest; And his work on earth is ended, And he's dwelling with the blessed.

God has chosen him a worker, One on whom he could depend; To bring love and understanding, To his children and till the end.

There's an empty chair, a silent life, As our father silent sleepeth, But in heaven has a new life, And that life divine he keepeth.

—A grandson, J. Thomas Childress.

Poison Found in Blood Bank Plasma Bound for Britain

Plot Is Suspected and All Shipments for War Victims Guarded.

NEW YORK.—Following the discovery that a deadly poison had found its way into "blood bank" plasma destined for British war victims, a close guard has been placed on all such shipments, it was revealed here by a confidential source.

From the same source, it was learned that the poison was discovered in time to prevent its doing any damage, and that a thorough check-system has been instituted to forestall further happenings of the kind.

It was also emphasized that, while sabotage was suspected, it had not been established as a fact, and that the poison might have been introduced into the serum by accident. However, the nature of the poison—potassium cyanide—was regarded as pointing toward sabotage.

Potassium cyanide, it was pointed out, is not included in the pharmaceutical supplies of hospitals, and is used nowhere in the preparation of the serum.

New Care Is Taken.
No official confirmation of the report was obtainable from the various agencies concerned in the handling of the blood-plasma for shipment abroad. It was admitted, however, that new precautions had been taken to prevent tampering with the fluid.

The donations, which have come from all classes of society, include many pints of "blue blood" from social registries. More than 6,000 had donated their pint of blood each recently, and hundreds of others had registered for their turn to help war victims in this unique way.

Police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation were reported to be pressing an inquiry into the poison mystery.

The poison used is one of the most deadly and instantaneous known to chemistry. Even a minute quantity, introduced into the veins of a patient, would cause immediate death.

The "blood bank" is operated under the direction of the American Red Cross, in co-operation with the blood transfusion betterment bureau of New York and several hospitals which are contributing services of nurses and technicians.

Hospitals Are Warned.
Hospitals where transfusions are made have been warned to examine carefully into the nationality and affiliations of every person—donor, doctor, nurse and technician—who has contact with the "blood bank."

They were also cautioned to lock containers and refrigerators in which the blood is kept until sent to the central storehouse where the blood is held for shipment abroad, and to see that only one or two thoroughly trustworthy persons had keys.

The refrigerated truck, which carries the pooled fluid from the hospitals to the storehouse, was put under guard.

The security methods now employed also include secrecy as to the location of the storehouse. All that has been made public is that it is at a point convenient to ocean shipping.

The refrigerator in the storehouse wherein the pooled blood plasma is kept for seven days is locked. There is only one key to the locks—and only one person in New York has the key. The identity of that person is also a subject about which the Red Cross is more than reticent.

A final checkup of the pooled blood by medical specialists is now conducted under the scrutiny of Red Cross technicians who are determined that there shall be no repetition of the poison incident.

Nonchalant Ex-Convict Goes Back With a Smile

FORT WORTH.—Arrest holds no terrors for one ex-convict. He's willing to take his punishment. The man was arrested while burglarizing a drug store a few days after his release from a state prison farm.

"I was just hungry," he explained to the officers who inquired why he relapsed into crime. His loot was cigarettes only. "Oh, well," said the ex-convict with a grin, "I planned a lot of cotton down on that farm this spring. I may as well go back and pick it."

Sunday School Lesson

JESUS TEACHES FORGIVENESS AND GRATITUDE

International Sunday School Lesson For January 16, 1941.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving each other, even as God also in Christ forgave you." (Eph. 4: 32)
Lesson Text: Luke 17, 1-11-19.

A series of disconnected sayings of Jesus have been combined here by Luke in chapter 17 of his gospel. Our concern today is with verses 1-4 and 11-19. There are three distinct units in these verses dealing respectively with the subjects of responsibility for others, forgiveness and gratitude.

Jesus warns us first against conduct which may lead others into evil ways. Jesus was speaking to his disciples and by that we understand that he was addressing not only the original twelve but a much larger gathering including many more of his followers. He warns his followers against doing anything which might put a snare in the path of another person or against doing anything which might injure the souls of their brethren in faith.

We could well claim that the heart of this lesson is in the words, "Take heed to yourselves." Guard against making life difficult for others. Guard against cultivating the unforgiving spirit. Guard against receiving a blessing, and expressing no gratitude in return. If we did nothing more today than consider these exhortations, our time would be profitably spent.

Self-Examination: Opportunity and Danger

The "taking heed" referred to involves, of course, a close self-examination. There is a danger connected with this exercise. It is the danger of morbid introspection. People may become as morbid about their souls as about the health of their bodies. There are men and women of reasonably good health who are forever feeling their pulse, taking their temperature, inquiring as to their blood-pressure, listening to their heart-beat, standing on the scales. The least variation throws them into a state of alarm. It is nothing but morbidity, and is in itself a danger.

Interest in the spiritual well-being may give rise to a similar morbidity. Over-conscientiousness is as bad as too little conscientiousness. What is a virtue at the normal level may easily become a vice. Some of the great confessional literature of the church—including the Confession of Augustine, the Imitation of Thomas a Kempis, the Thoughts of Pascal, and the Letters of Samuel Rutherford—show this tendency. It is not well to be too preoccupied with the state of one's soul.

On the other hand, it is not well to be altogether without this interest. "Watch and pray, lest ye enter into temptation," said Jesus. "Take heed to yourselves" is sound counsel when earnestly understood and properly applied. Not only is it not wrong to be on our guard lest we put a stumbling-block in the way of another: it is wrong not to hortation to be grateful is to be added the exhortation to be gracious. To be gracious to another is to show him grace and how better is grace shown than by forgiveness? and is not forgiveness to be ungracious and to be ungracious himself cannot expect to be graciously treated? "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us."

Taking Our Blessings For Granted

Especially are we to guard against neglecting the virtue of gratitude. It is one thing to look back over the day night having come and inquire of ourselves if we have been consciously grateful for each blessing the day has brought and then to feel unhappy over the recollection of some omission. That is spiritual morbidity. It is another thing to find ourselves at the point where conscious gratitude has ceased to be a consideration with us and to realize how that indifference endangers our very souls. When we hear the question "Where are the nine?" it will do us no hurt to search our hearts frankly to ascertain whether we are one of them. It is not at all unlikely that we shall find that we are.

How easy it is for us to take the great blessings of life in our stride without "returning to give glory to God!" The proportion of one and nine was shamefully low: nine forgot only one remembered. But have we not a suspicion that the proportion is close to the average? We have a national thanksgiving day once a year. Are there not many who find that sufficient?

The physician renders an important service to one whom we love and we pay his bill. The payment is a legality. How often when we pay the bill do we enclose a note expressing gratitude? To do that is not a requirement but an option. We are free to do it or not to do it. Yet how much the expression of gratitude adds to the joy of life! It is good to cultivate the grace of gratitude—and we do well to "take heed" lest we fail.

Forgiveness and Repentance

The virtue of graciousness is not too far from that of gratitude. To the extent that we are gracious to another, we are grateful to him for the blessing he has given us.

How easy it is for us to take the great blessings of life in our stride without "returning to give glory to God!" The proportion of one and nine was shamefully low: nine forgot only one remembered. But have we not a suspicion that the proportion is close to the average? We have a national thanksgiving day once a year. Are there not many who find that sufficient?

It is good to cultivate the grace of gratitude—and we do well to "take heed" lest we fail.

Forgiveness and Repentance

The virtue of graciousness is not too far from that of gratitude. To the extent that we are gracious to another, we are grateful to him for the blessing he has given us.

A question which cannot be evaded in this connection is that of the relation between forgiveness and repentance. "Forgive thy brother" says Jesus, "often as he repents." But suppose that he does not repent then what? Are you still to forgive him because he cannot be forgiven. A forgiveness which leaves the moral status of the offender just as it was before is only a verbal forgiveness.

We may, of course, say that we will no longer treat the brother as an offender, but unless he can also turn to us as one against whom the offense no longer stands, the meaning of forgiveness remains incomplete. If I wrong, I destroy a personal relationship. There is no a barrier between you and me. You may be perfectly willing to have the barrier removed, which means that you have the spirit of forgiveness toward me. But if I want it removed, I must repent.

Then what is the essence of graciousness? The essence of graciousness is the permanent willingness to forgive. I must forgive when there is repentance, and even when there is no repentance, I must still be willing and eager to forgive.

FIFTH GRADE STUDENTS WRITE OF TRIP TO CHILTON-POTTERY PLANT

(By Christine Lawrence)

On Wednesday, January 22, we went to the pottery. We started about ten-thirty.

When we got there, we got out of the cars and stood and saluted the flag, then we sang "God Bless America". We next had lunch. Just before we finished lunch someone asked, "Where is Mrs. King?" She had not come, so Mr. Elmore went to find her. When they got to the pottery, they ate their lunch. We then looked around at the pottery that had been made. Later we went to the kiln, and then saw the place where they make their wares. When we were ready to go, Mr. Smith, the owner, gave us some clay.

We got into the cars and came back to school.

We went into our room, and wrote "thank-you" letters to Mr. Smith and to the lady, or gentleman who carried us.

(By Margaret Jo Williamson)

How glad we were when the day came for us to go to the pottery plant, and that day was Wednesday, January 22. Yes, Mrs. Thomas, with the help of Mr. Elmore, Mrs. Littlejohn, Mrs. King, Mrs. Hefflin and my mother carried the fifth grade of Clanton Elementary school to Mr. Smith's Pottery about 25 miles from here. This pottery is in Chilton County, and it is a very interesting place. Mr. Smith was very kind to explain his work to us and to answer our questions. He showed us how he made the jugs and pots out of clay. He was so generous as to give us all some clay to bring home.

Before we ate lunch, we pledged our allegiance to the Flag held by Joe Mullins. Then we sang "God Bless America" and Frances Collins led us in prayer.

All were enjoying lunch when I noticed that Mrs. King and the children in her car were not there. Mrs. Thomas said, "She has missed the way and someone must go find her." Mr. Elmore went, found them on another road, and brought them back in just a little while. All were happy to see them coming.

Some of us carried kodaks and made some pictures of the pottery.

I hope we can go again before long.

(By Zolusie Easterling)

On Wednesday, January 22, 1941, our class went to the pottery. The owner of the pottery is Mr. N. E. Smith.

way. It was to be educational as well as fun, for we were to observe the soil, the trees, and those kind of things. At Maplesville we stopped and got drinks because we were to eat lunch at the pottery. Again we were on our way. This time on country roads.

Finally we arrived at the pottery. Now we were spreading our lunches. No, don't eat yet. After the flag salute was given, three pupils came forward to lead us in God Bless America. Then Thanks was returned and did we eat! But wait, someone said one car had not come. Mr. Elmore got into his car and went to look for it. About thirty minutes later he came back with the missing car.

After a while we were ready for Mr. Smith, the owner of the pottery, to show us around. First Mr. Smith answered some questions asked by the pupils. We learned that he started his pottery in 1922. Then he showed us how he uses his glaze. Much of it is made up of forty children a big lump of clay. He was very generous to give us so much. Don't you think so?

(By Marilyn Bean)

On a wintry, pleasant day, our class went 25 miles away; It was a most happy day. The children were so very gay. We ate some cookies that were brown. As we rode through the town; We saw a lot of churns, pots and vases.

All arranged in their places; Mr. Smith gave us some clay. Then we started on our way.

(By Mary Clyde Mims)

We went to the pottery plant. One bright and sunny day. We saw many interesting things Along the beautiful way. There were pots of all colors; Sitting in the sun; Then once more to school we went. And then our trip was done.

BEST ALABAMA CORN VARIETIES SELECTED

AUBURN, ALA.—The Alabama Experiment Station has found that the highest yielding varieties of corn in North Alabama are Nell's Paymaster, Douthitt, and Mobby and that the leading varieties in Central and South Alabama are Hybrid Golden Prolific (G. C.), Nell's Paymaster, Douthitt and Mobby.

"It is evident from the results of these tests that some hybrid corns are being developed from southern adapted varieties and under southern conditions and that these corns may in the future give the producers in the South which hybrid corns generally have given in the Corn Belt. Until such hybrids have been tested over at least three year periods and their performances recorded under various weather and soil fertility conditions, their use may prove unsatisfactory. The seed of hybrid corn for planting must also be purchased from the breeder or grower each year."

BIG SOIL EROSION DAMAGE REPORTED

AUBURN, ALA.—Soil erosion is costing the United States more than $3,800,000 a year and has already damaged half of the land of the country, reports H. H. Bennett, chief of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

The productive soil wealth of the nation is not as great as most people commonly believe it to be, according to Bennett, who warns "That the United States may eventually be faced with a serious land shortage unaltered."

Here Is Full Text Of The Measure As It Goes To The Senate For Consideration By That Body

Following is the full text of House Bill 1776 as amended and passed by the Lower House of Congress last Friday. The purpose of the Bill is to furnish aid to Great Britain and other Nations who are at war with Germany and Italy:

A bill further to promote the defense of the United States, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that act may be cited as "an act to promote the defense of the United States."

Sec. 2. As used in this act—

(a) The term "defense article" means (1) Any weapon, munition, aircraft, vessel or boat;

(2) Any machinery, facility, tool, material, supply, specification, process, manufacture, production, processing, repair, servicing, or operation of any article described in this subsection;

(3) Any component material or part of our equipment for any article described in this subsection;

(4) Any other commodity or article for defense. Such term, "defense article" includes any article described in this subsection. Manufactured or produced under Section 3, or to which the United States or any foreign government has or hereafter acquires title, possession, or control.

(b) The term "defense information" means any plan, specification, process, type, or information pertaining to any defense article.

Sec. 3 (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law, the President may, from time to time, when he deems it in the interest of national defense, authorize the secretary of war, the secretary of the Navy, or the head of any other department or agency of the Government:

(1) To MANUFACTURE IN ARMORIES, SENATORIAL, factories, and shipyards under their jurisdiction, or otherwise produce, any defense article for the government of any country whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States;

(2) To sell, transfer, exchange, lease, lend or otherwise dispose of to any such government, any defense article, but no defense article not manufactured or produced under this act shall in any way be disposed of under this paragraph, except after consultation with the chief of staff of the Army or the chief of naval operations of the Navy, and the disposal of any defense article disposed of in any way under authority of this paragraph and procured from funds heretofore appropriated shall not exceed $1,000,000,000.

(3) To test, inspect, prove, repair, recondition or otherwise place in good working order any defense article for any such government.

(4) To communicate to any such government any defense information pertaining to any defense article furnished or otherwise made available under paragraph (2) of this subsection.

(5) To release for export any defense article to any such government.

(b) THE TERMS AND CONDITIONS upon which any such foreign government receives any aid authorized under subsection (A) shall be those which the President deems satisfactory and the benefit to the United States may be payment or repayment in kind or property, or any other direct or indirect benefit which the President deems satisfactory.

(c) Neither the President nor the head of any department or agency shall, after June 30, 1943, exercise any of the powers conferred by or pursuant to subsection (A), nor shall such powers be exercised if terminated by a concurrent resolution by both houses of Congress, except that until June 1, 1946, such powers may be exercised to the extent necessary to carry out a contract or agreement with such a government made before July 1, 1943.

(d) Nothing in this act shall be construed to authorize or to permit the authorization of conveying vessels by naval vessels of the United States.

(e) Nothing in this act shall be construed to authorize or to permit the authorization of the entry of any American vessels into combat areas in violation of section 5 of the neutrality act of 1939.

Sec. 4. ALL CONTRACTS OR AGREEMENTS MADE for the disposition of any defense article or defense information pursuant to section 3 shall contain a clause by which the foreign government undertakes that it will not, without the consent of the President transfer title or to possession of such defense articles or defense information by gift, sale, or otherwise, or permit its use by anyone not an officer, employee or agent of such foreign government.

Sec. 5 (a) The secretary of war, the secretary of Navy, or the head of any other department or agency of the government involved, shall, when any such defense article or defense information is exported, immediately inform the department or agency designated by the President to administer section 6 of the act of July 2, 1940 (54 Stat. 714), of the quantities, character, value, terms, of disposition, and destination article and information so exported.

(b) The President from time to time, but not less frequently than once every 90 days shall transmit to the Congress a report of operations under this act except such information as he deems incompatible with the public interest to disclose. Reports provided for under this subsection shall be transmitted to the secretary of the Senate or clerk of the House of Representatives, as the case may be, if the Secretary of the House of Representatives, as the case may be, is not in session.

SEC. 6 (A) THERE IS HEREBY AUTHORIZED to be appropriated from time to time, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, such amounts as may be necessary to carry out the provisions and accomplish the purposes of this act.

(b) All money and all property which is converted into money received under section 3 from any government shall, with the approval of the director of the budget, revert to the respective appropriation or appropriations out of which funds were expended with respect to the defense article or defense information for which such consideration is received, and shall be available for expenditures for the purpose for which such expended funds were appropriated by law, during the fiscal year in which such funds are received and the ensuing fiscal year.

Sec. 7 The secretary of war, the secretary of the Navy, and the head of the department or agency shall in all contracts or agreements for the disposition of any defense article or defense information fully protect the rights of all citizens of the United States who have patent rights in and to any such articles or information which is hereby authorized to be disposed of and the payments collected for Royalties on such patents shall be paid to the owner and holder of such patent.

Sec. 8 The secretaries of war and the Navy are hereby authorized to purchase or otherwise acquire arms, munitions, and implements of war, and within the jurisdiction of any country to which section 3 is applicable, whenever the President deems such purchase or acquisition to be necessary in the interest of the defense of the United States.

Sec. 9 The President may, from time to time, promulgate such rules and regulations as may be necessary and proper to carry out any provision of this act; and he may exercise any power or authority conferred on him by this act through such department agency or officer as he shall direct.

METHOD OF CONTROLLING CATTLE GRUBS IS GIVEN

AUBURN, ALA.—Recent experiments of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine show that cattle grubs or "wolves" can be controlled by the use of a wash containing rotenone, announces W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist.

Monthly applications of the rotenone wash should be applied from the time the first grubs are noticed in the backs of cattle until early spring, he says.

"For best results rain water should be used in making the wash. To a gallon of water add two ounces of rotenone and one pound of a dust containing four parts of rotenone. Ordinary flake laundry soap is probably the most desirable form that can be used for this purpose. Dissolve the two ounces of soap and add the soapy water to the rotenone dust, stirring thoroughly until ingredients are well mixed. Warm water is needed for dissolving the soap and if this wash is applied while warm it will be found to penetrate the hair better than cold water. One gallon of material will treat from 12 to 15 animals."

BAPTIST TRAINING UNION

Training Union Conference at Thorsby by Baptist church, February 18th.

The afternoon session will open at 2:30 and the evening session at 7:00.

The ladies of the church will serve supper at 6:30.

This conference has been planned to help the churches of Chilton Association in their Training Union work for 1941.

A splendid program has been planned on which excellent speakers and conference leaders will appear. We are expecting Rev. H. H. Hobbs and Mrs. Albert Woodin of Montgomery, Rev. Oscar Davis of Clanton, and Miss Helen Gardner, of Jackson, Tenn.

It is hoped that every church in the association will be represented. We especially urge all pastors to attend.

NEW SALEM

Next Sunday afternoon is our regular singing afternoon at New Salem church. We are inviting all singers and listeners to attend our singing. Please come and bring someone and your new song books.

FLOYD NEWS

Last Saturday night we had conference for the purpose of getting us a pastor for the unexpired term of Mrs. Wilson. We called Bro. M. Lockhart and he is going to serve. Our next preaching time will be the first Saturday night and Sunday. Let everybody be sure and remember the men the first Saturday night and Sunday. We are glad to have Bro. Lockhart to serve us.

Our Sunday school was good and had good attendance. We are proud that our sick people are able to come back to church.

Our Bro. Y. P. U. was good and we had a good crowd. Our services have been small because the weather was so bad but there is more people coming at now. We invite them all to come.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our neighbors and friends for their kind expressions of sympathy and for the beautiful flowers.

Special thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Verma LeFevre and Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Beam, during the recent loss of our mother, Mrs. Dora Jones.—The family.

Mrs. Bob White was called to Charlotte, N. C. Sunday on account of the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Hazel Doss.

REVIEWS and PREVIEWS

By Irvin Lande

When the historians of the future write down the story of the present in their immense tomes they will undoubtedly call this the age of rumors. For right now, at the present moment, the American people are being confronted with the greatest array of rumors that any nation in the long history of the world has ever had to face before. America, as yet a neutral in the sense that she has not yet declared war, is being the common target of all the official communiques, unofficial "but unimpeachable" reports, and concerned news stories emanating from the capitals of the warring powers.

From the home front, on domestic issues, to the war fronts, on belligerent problems and possibilities, America is being the recipient of all kinds of bellicose and pugnacious rumors. These stories, some false and some true, have been so many and so diabolical that indeed, the success of America in this tragic era will depend largely upon her ability to take the true from the untrue, and the good from the bad.

For the main part, American policy should not be guided by the American people as a whole until the American people have learned the true facts of the situation. For that reason, there will be things which the President will do in the future that the American people as a whole should not know about, and likewise, there are things which Congress should do that the American people ought not to be told. We shall have to trust to the statesmanship of the few rather than the common judgment of the many.

The main reason why the policy of America should be left at times so important as these, in the hands of the few, is that the people have installed multiple channels of communication through which they can be misled. The American people should not be misled. The American people should be able to take the true from the untrue, and the good from the bad. The American people should be able to take the true from the untrue, and the good from the bad. The American people should be able to take the true from the untrue, and the good from the bad.

Of course, it is not possible, at this time, to assume that it is not a terribly necessary for the American people to keep informed at the time. American public opinion will have to be able to take the true from the untrue, and the good from the bad. The American people should be able to take the true from the untrue, and the good from the bad.

The American people should be able to take the true from the untrue, and the good from the bad. The American people should be able to take the true from the untrue, and the good from the bad. The American people should be able to take the true from the untrue, and the good from the bad.

LOOK AHEAD—ALABAMA—PAVE WITH CONCRETE

CONCRETE HIGHWAYS PAY FOR THEMSELVES

Three reasons why concrete is the most economical pavement:

1. Long life and low upkeep — funds which would otherwise be spent for repairs may be used to complete your highway system.

2. Scientific investigation has proved that it costs motorists less to drive on concrete than on inferior surfaces. The saving is in gas, tires and car repairs.

3. Concrete builds business, promotes travel. A town on concrete is moved closer to all markets.

And in addition to these money-reasons concrete pavements give motorists relaxation... comfort... and swift travel with SAFETY!

Relief Map Shows America in Detail

Completed After 17 Years
Of Construction.

WELLESLEY, MASS. — Like Rome, the world's largest United States map wasn't built in a day. It has just been completed after 17 years of construction.

The $150,000 project covers 3,000 square feet and is housed in a specially constructed building at the Babson Institute. Spectators view the 10-ton relief model from a 14-foot balcony.

From Atlantic to Pacific the map measures 64 feet and from Canada to Mexico 46 feet. One inch represents four miles. It is the first map to be built on a grid system. The curve uses seven feet in exact proportion to the earth's curvature.

Roger W. Babson, statistician and founder of the institute, conceived the giant-map idea during the World War.

The Harvard geographic sculptor, George Carroll Curtis, was hired but died two years after beginning the work. He succeeded spasmodically until January, when 34-year-old Dr. Wallace W. Atwood Jr. of Clark university took charge.

The model has buff-colored land and blue water bodies. Mount Everest in California, the nation's highest mountain, stands 4 1/4 inches on the map though it really is 14,495 feet high.

Dr. Atwood says the map would have tremendous military value during wartime. "Airplane pilots could be taught the country's topography. Also, if the United States were attacked, the map would be useful in planning and directing defenses."

Twelve hundred molded plaster of paris blocks form the map's surface. Each block measures one degree latitude by one degree longitude.

Aerial Warfare as Idea

Found to Be Centuries Old
CHICAGO. — Warfare from the skies was foreseen centuries ago in China, according to a book written by the late Dr. Br. Hsien Sheng, formerly of the Field museum, of Chicago, and published by the Museum Press in 1928.

The book, "The Prehistory of Aviation," describes a "flying chariot," designed by a Chinese mechanic, Kikung. The Chinese emperor at that time, however, "caused the airship to be destroyed, as he did not wish his own people to see it."

Centuries later in 1670 the Jesuit, Francesco Lana, after planning a similar flying machine, published the best reason why the early Chinese machine was destroyed.

"I do not see any other difficulty that could prevail against this invention," Lana wrote, "save . . . that God will never permit such a machine to be constructed in order to preclude the numerous consequences which might disturb the civil and political government among men. For who sees not that no city would be secure from surprise attacks as the airship might appear at any hour directly over its market-square and would land there its crew?"

"The same would happen to private houses and to ships crossing the sea . . . Even without descending, it could hurt iron pieces which would capture the vessel and kill men, and the ships might be burnt with artificial fire, balls and bombs."

"I do not see any other difficulty that could prevail against this invention," Lana wrote, "save . . . that God will never permit such a machine to be constructed in order to preclude the numerous consequences which might disturb the civil and political government among men. For who sees not that no city would be secure from surprise attacks as the airship might appear at any hour directly over its market-square and would land there its crew?"

R.A.F. Has Machine Gun

That Shoots Backward
LONDON.—A machine gun that fires backward is the newest Royal Air Force weapon.

Fitted under the plane's nose, the gun is designed to protect the tail and cope with attackers who come up from below. Said to be the first of its type in any air force, it is aimed and operated by the navigator through a series of mirrors.

It was disclosed at the same time unofficially that the new Spitfire, described as "faster and harder hitting" than the fighter so successful in the autumn defense of Great Britain, will be in service by spring or earlier. Some of the machines are provided with cannon.

Farmer Declares Crows

Feast on His Pecans

STILLWATER, OKLA.—Ever hear of crows cracking pecans in a nutcracker? J. C. Cox of near Stillwater has seen them do it, he insists. Here's how:

"The crows carry pecans to a fence post and stand in a line. Then a crow will take one pecan in his bill and hold on to the edge of the fencepost with his claws.

"He hammers that pecan against the top of the post until it is cracked. Some of my posts have half a peck of hulls around where the crows have feasted."

Learned Sign Language

For Deaf-Mute Sermons

CLEVELAND.—A local mission regularly conducts religious services in sign language for its congregation of deaf mutes for whom spoken sermons are valueless. The Rev. H. A. L. Grindon, who is able to hear and speak normally, learned the sign language solely "to enable him to conduct services for the deaf at St. Agnes' mission."

MRS. A. L. THOMAS

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—An outstanding clubwoman and staunch advocate of the Merit System for State Government employees, Mrs. A. L. Thomas, of Auburn, wife of Professor A. L. Thomas, faculty member of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, is now a member of the State Personnel Board, under appointment by Governor Frank Dixon. She was named by the Governor to fill a vacancy created by the death of the late Judge Grover C. Hall.

Tuscaloosa Highway To Be Paved By 1943

University Highway, much-discussed link between Montgomery and Tuscaloosa, will be paved by 1943 if no unforeseen difficulties arise, Gov. Dixon predicted Monday.

Cost of the new road is estimated at $1,800,000. It has already been placed on the Federal system, Gov. Dixon revealed. Plans are being rushed at top speed and surveying is virtually completed.

The highway will traverse Autauga, Chilton, Bibb and Tuscaloosa counties, by way of Maplesville and Centerville. It will reduce distance from Montgomery to Tuscaloosa to 90 miles.

"Counties involved are expected to cooperate in the project—Montgomery Adviser."

FROM a modest beginning, the Louisville & Nashville R.R. has grown to become one of the major transportation systems of the Nation. It now employs an army of some 26,500 people who work and live and spend their yearly wages of $47,000,000 in the territory it serves.

Its friendly service extends to 13 states, mostly in the South, where it operates 4900 miles of well-maintained track.

On its record of long and efficient service to the South this Railroad believes it merits your continued patronage.

Fleeing Rabbit Scores
Knockdown in Cornfield
DES MOINES, IOWA.—Dick Van Whyte, farmer, got the surprise of his life as he walked through a cornfield.
Something hit him. The next thing he knew he was flat on his face, knocked down by the strength of the blow.
He looked around to see what had hit him. Nearby lay a large jack-rabbit, also stunned from the collision.
In its hurry to get away from a dog the rabbit collided with Van Whyte. Van Whyte was bruised. The rabbit died.

Streamlined Army
Relies on Infantry

Foot Soldiers Still Are Indispensable in War.

WASHINGTON.—The infantry still is "queen of the army" so far as the high command is concerned. And despite the emphasis on aviation and mechanization in modern war training, the infantry is not being neglected in modernization plans.
Tanks may break through the enemy line, disrupt supplies and communications and throw the supporting force into a panic. Planes may carry a bombardment far beyond points where the artillery formerly could reach. But the infantry still is the arm which moves into the breach, seizes the territory and holds it until able to advance or forced to retreat, according to army tacticians.
Despite swift advances in other service branches, only two major developments have taken place in the infantry. One is to get it more quickly into the breach at the front; the second to arm it more heavily so it can strike more powerful blows and repel counter-assaults.
Speed has been given by streamlining the motorization of the infantry. Strength has been given by increasing the number of weapons.
At its present contemplated potential the streamlined division will have a war strength of 13,567 of which 8,910 will be infantrymen—the rest artillery and other incidental troops.
Each streamlined division will have 144 heavy .30-calibre machine guns, 108 light machine guns, 36 .50-calibre machine guns, 162 automatic rifles, 5,076 infantry rifles—the new Garand—12 155-mm. howitzers, 36 37-mm. anti-tank guns, 81 light mortars, 36 81-mm. mortars and eight 75-mm. anti-tank guns. This is a vast increase of firepower over the older streamlined division.

The year 1941 will not begin, for some people, until the umpire calls, "Play Ball!"

Looks like the Clanton Grammar School P.T.A. is determined to get the plumbing fixtures and the drinking water facilities for the annex that they set out to get a few weeks ago—now comes a Major Bowes Amateur Show at the City Hall on Friday, March 14th. This is to raise monies to finish the water works job. Leave it to the ladies to finish what they set out to do.

Notice where Chilton County has 125 acres planted in strawberries over last year. Estimating 200 crates to the acre and estimating an average price of $2. per crate, it looks like some of our thrifty farmers will have a little more money to spend this year.

TRUE, ABSOLUTELY—We have an aunt who has a little Rat Terrier twelve years old. That, of course, is not unusual, but this little dog is very fond of the Bible. When his mistress gets a Bible to read he always comes and sits by the chair and listens, he really stands to him. He pays no attention to any other book.

Clanton may become a sweet potato center also. One of our local interested planters went to Cullman last week to study their method of handling and shipping the sweet potato. Many of the farmers in this section are interested and Pat Smith, our County Agent, is cooperating and working with them.

Speaking of centers, was talking to Mr. Wiley Bean about the Milk Company that he has his heart set on for Clanton. He informs us that by May 1st, things will be worked out and ready. Mr. Bean also says that he doesn't expect it to be a big thing to start off with and he doesn't want the farmers of this section to get into their heads that it will be, but he does maintain that it will be a help and a great help, to a lot of farmers to dispose of their surplus of milk at first and eventually, enable them to produce milk for the purpose of supplying a home-owned dairy.

Elsewhere in this issue of the News Bonnie Hand, Editor of the Lafayette Sun, writes in regard to our Trade Day. Bonnie is a native of Chilton County and of course vitally interested in that goes on here. Read his letter elsewhere on this page.

Chilton County High
To Play Isabella There

Coach Cox's Chilton County High school basketball team will tour out to Isabella Friday night, February 21, and will be on Coach McPherson's scrapping Abila boys.

The Isabella High School basketball team is one of the best in the section of the state. This team has been defeated by high schools only once this season and that defeat by Chilton County High School. This season at the Chilton County High School gymnasium the game will be played at Isabella and the Isabella boys are out for revenge. They do not believe that Chilton County High can repeat its first performance. Alvin C. Crenner, Roy Davis, and the Williams brothers, Quinton and Rollin, Hmact Ratliff, Jack Denison and Hmact Ratliff and a host of mighty substitutes before they can get that Chilton County can repeat its first performance. It will have to be. Isabella believes that Chilton County has a tough assignment in convincing these Mustangs. Coach McPherson is driving his team for this game and believes that his boys will "hog down" this team. If you want to see a game long remembered do not miss this one. It will be a preliminary game. It will be Friday, February 21; Time, 7:30; Place, Isabella. Admission 10 and 25 cents.

Bonnie Hand Endorses
Clanton Trade Day

Mr. R. M. Tucker, Editor, Chilton County News, Clanton, Ala.

Having just read practically every word of your current issue of the dear old Chilton County News, I feel called upon to write you and express my congratulations to your paper, and the Union-Banner for your efforts in behalf of your proposed Trade Day for Clanton.

I have been, since coming to Lafayette, and will always be interested in Clanton and Chilton County. It is doomed to a home. I am interested in the welfare of the people there.

I was impressed with Mr. A. G. Johnson's letter to the Editor in this week's issue of the News. As he pointed out, all too many "Trade Days" have been an occasion for merchants to raise instead of lower their prices on goods. It is a proven fact that the public cannot be fooled, and that any trade day where such tactics are used is bound to fail. Trade days should be days that merchants give their year-round customers real values as an appreciation of their patronage. This of course, creates good will, and will keep people coming to that particular town or city for their buying. I believe the merchants of Clanton will do just that and that your trade day will be a success. The idea of encouraging the farmers to bring their products is also another fine feature you are incorporating in your Trade Day.

You probably noted the editorial we carried in The Lafayette Sun this week about a town being first a market center. As long as people come to any particular town or city to trade, that town or city will prosper in every respect. But when people go off to do their buying, then said town or city will cease to be a social, cultural, etc., center. Stores will close and the town will gradually die.

With every good wish for a successful Union Trade Day, and personal good wishes for all the merchants and others friends in Chilton County, I am,

Sincerely,
BONNIE HAND.

Saturday, March 1st Is Trade Day In Clanton

Only one more issue of the Chilton County News will come off the press before Trade Day. Will your business be advertised in this issue? Thousands of double-page, colored circulars will be distributed throughout the county before next week end. Will your business be advertised on that circular?

Clanton has for years been the shopping center for farmers of Central Alabama. In only one way can we continue to be that shopping center—ADVERTISE. Within the next few months, hundreds of thousands of dollars will pour into the pockets of the farmers of this section. The merchants can supply these farmers with anything that they may want. The farmers will continue to come to Clanton for the things they want, just so long as they are told that they can get it here through the columns of your county papers.

Representatives of the News and Banner will call on you this week end for your support in this Trade Day, Saturday, March 1st.

With your support we can make Clanton a bigger and better trading center for these farmers than it has ever been; without your support, the newspapers carry most of the load.

Let's pull together and bring more business to Clanton.

JEMISON CHAPTER F. H. A.
MET RECENTLY

The Jemison chapter F. H. A. held its regular monthly meeting February 5, in the Home Economics Department. The meeting was called to order by the President, Helen Hubbard, and the opening ceremony was given by the officers.

The new business was to decide whether to have a print dress and overall party, or go on a picnic. The majority voted to have a party in the school.

The program was "Talk About Women in Government", by Mildred Ellison, Thelma Thrash, Louise Cooper, Myrdene Martin and Amy Sorrell.

Games were enjoyed, refreshments were served and the meeting adjourned.

F. D. R. Friendly To Coosa Development

WASHINGTON—Sen. Lister Hill said that President Roosevelt is "much interested in and very friendly to" a plan for the development of the Coosa-Alabama River system in Georgia and Alabama. Mr. Hill has discussed it with the President.

The plan involves an expenditure of about $90,000,000, which would produce a nine-foot channel from Rome, Ga., to Mobile, flood control and hydro-electric power.

Senator Hill said the project has already been approved by the War Department's district engineers and division engineers and is now before Rivers and Harbors Board of Engineers in Washington.

Bumper Strawberry Crop
For Section Is Predicted

President Roper Urges Membership Into Association; Dieffenfer Expects To Ship 50,000 Crates

County Agent, Pat H. Smith, Offers Helpful Information To Berry Growers

(By Clark Headley)

In a conversation with officials of the Chilton County Berry Growers Association early this week we were left with the opinion that this year's strawberry crop is going to be one of the largest in the history of the county. Looking from the present standpoint, L. E. Dieffenfer, the genial gentleman who guides the fat checks along about the 1st of May, stated that this year's outlook for the strawberry grower is extremely bright. "Although," he cautioned, "it looked mighty bright this time last year and then the freeze came and almost demolished the crop." Mr. Dieffenfer, who is always eager to give out information pertaining to strawberries, said that he hopes to ship 50,000 crates of berries from Clanton this season, which will be a bumper crop compared with last year when only 14,000 crates were shipped. In 1939, it was reported, approximately 33,000 crates were shipped. With what is hoped to be 17,000 additional crates, Clanton berry growers will be in receipt of some thirty thousand additional dollars when the favored crop of Clanton is harvested.

J. N. Dennis, secretary of the Association, reported that approximately 125 additional acres of strawberries had been set out. Mr. Dennis reported that he had handled approximately 50,000 plants within the past few weeks. The Blakemore variety being more extensively used with the Klondykes coming second. It was also reported.

R. M. Roper, president of the Chilton County Berry Growers Association, has asked us to announce to the farmers of the county that there will be another VERY important meeting of the Association within the near future. Mr. Roper states that this meeting will not be exclusively for the berry growers, but just as important to the peach growers as the strawberry grower, as well as anyone else interested. Watch for announcement of this meeting. Meanwhile, Mr. Roper urges everyone who is setting new grounds to strawberries, or any one who set last year, and are not members of the Berry Growers Association, to please contact him at once. It is very important to you as well as the rest of the growers, that the officials of the association know how many new acres of berries will be for marketing this season. President Roper also states that it costs nothing for you to join the Association and it is very important that you do so as early as possible.

Local Oil Men Discuss Relief To Motorists

The Chilton County Petroleum Industries Committee held their annual meeting last Thursday night at the courthouse in Clanton, attended by oil men from all over the County.

Following the meeting, Mr. W. E. Huddleston, chairman of the local organization, stated, "Our organization is firmly pledged to support three specific types of legislation which we feel are necessary to the well-being of our motorist customers. The practice of levying local (county or city) gasoline taxes is unsound and causes an unjust handicap on service facilities located in the areas concerned. We are also asking legislators to support a measure which will prohibit the use of motor taxes for any purpose other than legitimate highway expenditures. Most important of the program so enthusiastically endorsed at tonight's meeting is the strict repeal of the State's Lubricating Oil Tax and the opposition to any increase of the duplicating Federal gasoline and lubricating oil taxes."

Mr. L. C. Roberts, State Executive (Committee Member of the Alabama (Continued on Page 2)

Tax On Individual Income Proposed

Levy Of 10 Percent Urged To Finance
National Defense Program

WASHINGTON—The National Economy League proposed recently that a special tax of 10 per cent be levied on individual incomes in order to put the defense program "substantially on a cash basis."

Wherever possible, the tax should be collected at the source, that is when salaries, dividends, and interest are paid, the league said. Self-employed individuals, farmers and professional men, would be required to file special returns.

The recommendation was based on a study by Harley L. Lutz, professor of public finance, Princeton University.

"By using the proposed tax in addition to the existing conventional taxes," Lutz said, "it should be possible to come very close to a cash basis for 1942."

Asserting that borrowing was the only alternative, Lutz said that borrowing from individuals would require compulsory loans or such high interest rates that outstanding treasury bonds would decline in value. Borrowing from banks, he added, would "add to the purchasing power of the people without a corresponding increase in the production of the goods they can buy."

$25,000,000 INVESTMENT

Investment of more than $25,000,000 in Alabama industry during the current year was announced in January. It was shown in the monthly industrial review of the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce.

Saturday week will be Trade Day in Clanton and everything is in readiness for the occasion. The merchants are preparing for a big day and those who come to trade are not to be disappointed.

Mr. Dewey Rockett to use the visiting lot behind Clanton Motors for parking and placing your articles for trade.

Next week's issue of the Chilton County News and the Union-Banner will carry hundreds of specials on groceries, feeds, merchandise, hardware and numerous other necessities. Watch for this issue. Also during the week assorted hand bills will be carried throughout the county; you need now or will need for your spring cleaning and planting.

All of those visitors to Clanton who have something to trade, they will list it with the News and they will carry it free of charge in our Trade Day issue. You don't have to send a penny. Just send a list of the things that you will bring to town on Saturday, March 1st, to trade. This will give the other visitors an idea of what they will be able to get when they come Saturday. Remember the day and start planning now to be in Clanton Saturday, March 1st, TRADE DAY.

CORN IS SOLD FOR FUEL

Latest step in the Argentine government's struggle with the surplus problem—shipping out of uncontrolled corn production—came recently when the Argentine Grain Board offered corn for sale as fuel to railway companies and factories.

The Argentine government on Sept. 9 authorized the grain board to purchase the entire 1940 corn crop. It is estimated that farmers who sold their corn to this board (and most farmers did) receiving about 20 cents per bushel for ear corn at their farms. It is this government-owned corn which is now being offered for sale as fuel—Birmingham News.

EUROPE MAY GET FOOD FROM U. S.

Plan To Feed Starving Millions Of Europe Being Considered

CHICAGO—Herbert Hoover, who directed the feeding of starving Europeans during the World War, announced that the British and German governments have under consideration a proposed plan to do the same in this war.

The plan, proposed by the committee on food for the small democracies, was described in a radio address over the Columbia Broadcasting System. Hoover said it was proposed "a few weeks ago," as follows:

1. An initial experiment in Belgium to test out whether these people can be saved without military advantage to either side.

2. That this test comprise feeding only through soup kitchens, where the people come to get their food and thus there can be no question of feeding Germans.

3. At the beginning, 1,000,000 adults receive half a pound of bread and a soup allowance and 2,000,000 children receive special food in addition—requiring about 50,000 tons a month, half of it breadstuffs and half meat, fats and food for children.

4. That the German government agree there is to be no requisitioning of native food.

5. Both governments to give relief ships immunity from attack.

6. The whole to be under the supervision and checks of some neutral body.

Hoover delivered this address at a mass meeting in the Auditorium Theater. He read telegrams to the meeting from Gen. John J. Pershing and Admiral William V. Pratt, former commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet.

Both Pershing and Pratt endorsed Hoover's plan for feeding the democracies and said food shipments could be made to Europe "without military loss or gain to either side."

Hoover argued that suspicion of German good faith could be controlled by limiting the stocks of supplies to enough for three or four days to two weeks, to be stopped immediately if there should be German violation of the agreement.

"Most of these democracies," he said, "have the cash resources with which to pay for their food. They can secure its transport without using American ships in the war zone. Possibly a small financial credit to Finland and Poland should be given, but that would be infinitesimal in the light of other foreign loans being made in this war."

U. S. Surpluses Rotting
"We have surpluses some of which are rotting today and others for which our farmers have no market," Hoover asserted that "hunger in the present war is coming faster and with more violence than even in the last war."

After a year and a half of the present war," he said, "nearly 100,000,000 people are short of food than after three years of the last war."

The most immediate danger, he continued, is "among the 70,000,000 people of the democracies which have been overrun by the German armies," which took part of their supplies, other portions of which were destroyed by retreating armies and battle.

A commission of three Americans reported to the committee two weeks ago, Hoover said, that within a month Belgium, with a population of 8,000,000, "would be practically without food supplies, unless brought from somewhere, somehow."

"The situation in Norway, Holland, central Poland and free France will parallel the Belgian situation later on," he added, but in any event, before the next harvest."

Though he appealed basically from humanitarian motives, arguing that "there are things in this world that are not silenced by ideological argument or armchair strategists or declamation as to who is responsible," Hoover pointed out the danger of contagious disease resulting from famine.

OIL MEN

Petroleum Industries Committee delivered the principal address emphasizing the effect of excessive taxation on the industry, its personnel and on highway users. He stresses the fact that 20 different taxes are levied by Federal, State and local governments on the products, properties and services of the petroleum industry and pointing out they are ultimately paid by the motor vehicle owners. He urged consumers to join with oil men in their campaign for reasonable taxation.

Mr. Roberts, stated, "excessive taxation not only takes away profits, but it also causes decreased sales. For instance, it is a matter of record that after the gasoline tax rate passes 3 cents per gallon, for every one cent per gallon additional, there is a reduction in gasoline consumption of 5 per cent. That average is for the United States as a whole. Here in Alabama in 1931 and 1932 when the last two cent gasoline taxes were enacted, the reduced consumption for each of the increase was about seven per cent."

Earl M. Hearne, Secretary, Alabama Petroleum Industries Committee, Montgomery, outlined the new program of the Committee and discussed pending State and Federal legislation affecting highway users and the industry. He opposed any further increase in the federal gasoline tax and advocated the repeal of the tax when the national defense emergency is passed.

The new program of the Alabama Petroleum Industries Committee was ratified by the Committee. Its provisions are listed as follows:

1. To list that all gasoline and special motor vehicle tax revenues be for highway purposes only and to urge ported that about 400,000 of the new plants just distributed were Blackmore and about 60 to 70 thousands were Klondykes.

STRAWBERRIES

Roy M. Roper, Well-qualified president of the Association, is also very enthusiastically boosting this year's hoped-to-be bumper crop, as much so as Mr. Diehl, and Mr. Dennis. Mr. Roper stated, "we should have one of the largest crops ever if the cold doesn't get us, which we hope it doesn't." Roper left the impression that with the past few sun-shiny days, we shouldn't let spring fever get us going on just yet and do too much prophesying. We might have to take something back. Though, all of the officials of the Chilton County Berry Growers Association see a great berry crop ahead and are hoping that the weather men will be able to allow Chilton County berry growers to harvest the largest crop in the history of the county.

Pat H. Smith, our cooperative county agent, offers below some valuable information to those who are setting out strawberry plants. He will prove beneficial if followed closely. Mr. Smith states that if there be any further information needed regarding the care and cultivation of strawberries let call by his office and he will be glad to help you solve your problems. His information follows:

"The strawberry plants make vegetative growth during the summer. The purpose of this growth is to have a large healthy plant at the end of the summer growing season. Cultivation is to encourage this growth. Plants that have just been set need to put many runners and to have formed a matted row about 16 to 18 inches across by early fall. If this is to be done, weed and grass must be kept out of the strawberry rows. To do this, much hoeing and hand pulling of grass and weeds will be necessary. Grass and weeds compete with the berry plants for both valuable fertilizers and moisture; therefore, berry plants can not produce a healthy, vigorous plant unless they are kept clean.

"If the area was not fertilized before the plants were set, about 200 to 400 pounds of a 4-12-4 or 6-8-4 fertilizer should be worked around the plants at the first cultivation.

"The sides of rows should be cultivated often enough to keep the area free of grass and weeds where the runners develop.

"If the plants grow rapidly, it may be necessary to thin them in the early fall. Strawberries are produced on individual plants. The best berries usually come from the edge of the matted row. This is because they have more room to develop. The idea is to have a matted row about 16 to 18 inches wide with the plants in the row about 4 to 6 inches apart.

"The plants begin developing crowns of fruit buds in the early fall. The fruit buds give rise to the next year's crop of berries. The vigorous growing plant will have used all of the fertilizer applied when the plants were set; therefore, an application of fertilizer should be made to promote the formation of large, healthy crowns. An application of from 400 to 600 pounds of 4-12-4 or a 6-9-4 applied as a top-dressing and worked in the soil around October 1st will promote the crown formation. Another application of about 500 pounds of a 6-8-4 fertilizer should be made about January 15 to promote vigorous blooming."

REVIEWS and PRELIMINARIES

By Irvin Lande

There have been those of us who have not been able to comprehend the possibility of a German invasion of the United States, if, and when, Great Britain falls to the Nazi foe. And because we have not been able to comprehend such an invasion of our precious shores, we have fallen asleep under the guise of giving aid to Britain would mean. American active participation in the second world war. Because we have not been able to understand the ability of the Germans to make such an invasion we have suffered, on the one hand, the loss of time in sending aid to the British, and, on the other hand, the loss of positive aid to the British. We have been seeing this thing through to the finish.

I was not able, I confess, to see clearly the possibility of a German invasion of this continent until I re-read the story of a little attack in America history which is, I think, of very great importance in present day American relations. However, because the incident was of long ago, indeed, during the time of Jefferson, and because Americans have considered that time the remote past, though, in truth, it is the urgent future, the incident has been neglected and it has not been paid the attention it needs must be paid.

American statesmen, the isolationists especially, I submit, have either forgotten their history or have never read it when discussion of the war between the United States and Tripoli is mentioned.

For the United States has fought a war with Tripoli. Tripoli today is a part of Libya, but back in the days of Jefferson and the first days of the American new order of the ages, Tripoli was an independent nation, capable of waging war, and doing an enterprising business of piracy. In those days, all of the Mohammedan states of Tripoli, Tunis, Algiers, and Morocco made a business of piracy. Their cruisers swarmed upon the Mediterranean and the Atlantic, and robbed the merchant ships of all the nations that they thought they could attack and be successful in putting down any and all retaliations.

The plunder and loot which these nations took, was divided with the robber sovereigns. Distinguished captives were held for ransom, and the others were sold as slaves. Such robbing by the states of Tripolitania had been going on since the times of Columbus, and nations had paid vast sums to the robber countries to bribe them to keep the peace. Americans, too, had begun in the same way—of giving plunder and bribes to Tripoli and her allies to keep peace. Large presents had been made from Americans to Algiers and Tunis to keep their ships from seizing American vessels. Then, however, the Bashaw of Tripoli informed our government—and this was his colossal mistake—that he would wait six months for a handsome present from us, and if the present did not come, he would declare war against the United States and declared war after the present did not come. The Bashaw was as good as his very words, but, to the unbelievable surprise of the pirate nations, a small American fleet entered the Mediterranean and bombarded the city of Tripoli. After hostilities had continued for a couple of years, Tripoli was thoroughly humiliated, and the experiment of blackmailing the Americans was never tried again, by those barbarous states. All this happened during the reign of Thomas Jefferson and it was during this that the cry went up "Millions for defense, but not a cent for tribute."

That incident is, as we have noted, of great importance in present day American relations. If the majority of American people could see that incident in the light it should be seen in, American foreign policy would right now take an even more definite pro-British turn—that is, any aid Britain short of war turn.

For America in the days of Jefferson was comparatively small nation. We had not adopted to a great extent the mechanical ways of Europe, and our country was still disunited, our foreign policy was based on the role belief that it is better to die free than to live in slavery.

For America, in those days, the only logical course was to send a battle fleet to Tripoli to wage war. And wage war they did. The story of the battle in the harbor at Tripoli and the story of Commodore Decatur, as told by James Fenimore Cooper, makes thrilling reading.

But the glory and the sacrifices of the war are not what we are to discuss here. What we have to discuss is the policy of Hitler in his respect to wage the same kind of war on us that we waged on Tripoli.

For the American battle fleet to pass the Atlantic and the Mediterranean and to wage a successful war on Tripoli was indeed marvelous. But had Tripoli the necessary sea power to withstand the attack of the Americans, then America might still be paying tribute to Tripoli. But, there was no major power between the United States and Tripoli—a deadly, incidentally, of much greater length than the distance between the United States and German-held ports in France—and so, the Americans, without the aid of airplanes, attacked and subdued Tripoli. No major power being interested in the war, it carried on for several years.

Thus, then, if the United States could have fought Tripoli, then Germany can attack us today if Britain falls, and the British navy falls, too, then America will be open to just as easy an attack as she inflicted upon Tripoli. For then, the ocean would become a highway—no longer a barrier to an invasion of America. And it is not ab-sured to compare American strength with the strength of Tripoli in the face of a much longer war. Then, then, the lesson of history has shown us that America can very easily be invaded, if American battleships no longer control the seas.

Thus, then, it is necessary to repeat that which has been repeated countless times—that America's first line of defense is Britain. If Britain falls, then we shall have to rely on our battleships to keep off a Hitler invasion. If our battleships fail, we shall rely on our airplanes. And if our airplanes fail, we shall have to depend upon our conscripted men to defeat any attack by Hitler on the very shores of America.

Recently someone brought out the very significant point on "The America's Town Meeting of the Air", that though Britain is not being invaded on her shores, she is being invaded through the air almost every day in the week. And so, the argument was presented that America could likewise be so invaded if Britain fell. That argument was refutation to the remark that how could Hitler invade America, over a thousand miles away, if he could not invade Britain, just a few miles across the Channel. But the real truth of the matter is that Hitler could invade America much more easily because the United States is further away and has more coastline to defend than has Britain.

For all these reasons, and many smaller ones besides, American aid to Britain is absolutely necessary now.

Sunday School Lesson

JESUS CALLS TO PRAYER

International Sunday School Lesson
For February 23, 1941.

Golden Text: "Lord Teach us to pray."—Luke 11: 1.

Lesson Text: Luke 18: 1-14

In considering prayer, there is much for us to think about. What is prayer? Why should we cultivate it now? How should we depend upon it in ordinary and unusual affairs of life?

The person who believes in the reality of Jesus and neglects prayer is neglecting an avenue which leads to great comfort and blessing. Time and again Jesus taught, by word and example, to enlighten his disciples about the function and power of prayer.

Very often in his own life, Jesus practiced prayer—it was the medium by which he communicated with the eternal. In this day of radio broadcast we should not be confronted by any doubts as to the ability to transmit a spiritual message through thought. In preparation for the momentous moments of his life Jesus resorted to prayer, and, usually, he followed them likewise.

In seeking to furnish his followers with the correct conception of prayer and its usefulness, Jesus spoke various parables, two of which constitute our lesson. In both of these strangely the author explains the point of the parable before he gives it. The first emblemized the need for constant prayer, and second warned against an attitude of self-sufficiency in righteousness, which would destroy the value of prayer.

We have the picture of an unjust judge, fearless and defiant of God and man who was finally prevailed upon to execute justice by continual urging and seeking. Therefore, the Christian is free to represent all our interests, all our wants, great and small, without reserve, and with prolonged repetition. No man can earnestly desire any moral equality without tending in himself toward the goal. Prayer fixes our aim, attracts our own efforts, and assures our own cooperation with God.

One should not have a false notion about prayer. If we ask for selfish, harmful things we will not acquire them. Adoniram Judson could say: "I have never been deeply interested in any object and prayed sincerely and earnestly for it, but sometime—no matter how distant the place, somehow, in some shape, probably the best I should have devised—it came." His experience not only testifies to a great faith but to a spirit in harmony with divine purposes. God answers prayer if the request is in keeping with his plans and beneficial in its entire effect.

People who have puzzled over unanswered prayer might critically examine their own purpose in asking or carefully consider if their judgement as to its desirability is wisely taken. Some of our petitions, if granted, would harm us; often, they would prevent greater blessings in the future. The honest believer in prayer accepts the answer, whatever it may be, as the better judgement of an Eternal Being, superior in love and wisdom to the supplicant. Prayer without such trust lacks an essential element of faith and sincerity.

No greater contrast in attitude should be presented than exhibited by the Pharisee and the Publican represented in the parable as praying in the Temple.

MORAL ECROES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

In the days of the old South the mistress of a Southern home had an old servant who had a wide reputation in cooking biscuits. A noted Statesman was to be guest at the evening meal and the old Mammie was to do her best. When the biscuits were being served the Mistress saw that they were not up to standard and she looked up, "Aunt Lizzie, what on earth has happened to the biscuits?" The old cook replied, "I jus do not know missus, I pinch dem as I alus do, putting in a pinch of salt, soda and baking powder, but they spilled on me. It must have been in de oven. Dey were all right until I put dem in de oven to bake and den da squat before dey riz and dey browned de da squat." When you have a wide reputation for any one thing, better be on the look out for you will spoil it before you know it. The best of us will make mistakes. . . .

Just now the boundary lines of nations are being changed. Creeds are being expressed in new languages. The altars of yesterday are becoming the curios of today. Even the temples of worship are the resorts of tourists who are amazed at the simple minded who once worshipped there. Change and decay are to ever be found in the path of man, but listen to me, there is one thing that changes not, and that is the

ple. The former, self-righteous in his own estimate and conscious that his formal religious rites have won him a similar appraisal from the public, really no need for help—he does not pray—he seeks to parade his virtues before God for the secret edification of his own soul. The Publican, self-abased and ashamed by his own unrighteousness, seeks God through prayer, desiring an assistance certain to be obtained. A very simple illustration used by Bishop Carey points out the different attitudes of praying people: "The sort of illustration which rises to my mind in connection with prayer is that of the dog which wants to go for a run, and lies on the target with his eyes on you while you write a letter. He does not bark or whine, but just looks, watches. If you raise your eyes, he wags his tail. His appeal, though voiceless, is simply eloquent. It is an attitude which expresses a relationship of faith, affection, patience, and of implicit trust in your goodwill . . . it implies a previous thinking and recognition. The dog would not do it for a stranger . . . but for its master it waits because it knows him."

law of justice. "Whatever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." The principles of justice are eternal. Only those governments founded upon these principles will last to the end of time. We sometimes chafe under the slow movement of the justice of God, but do not become impatient, justice will arrive. Have faith in God until justice comes. . . .

A boy friend of mine showed a keen sense of justice. His mother gave him some bread and grain to feed the little chicks and ducks in the back yard. While they were eating he observed that the ducks were scooping up the most of the food, while the chicks had a scramble for a meager supply. He saw that the large bills of ducks gave them a decided advantage and this he did not like. He ran into the kitchen and secured his mother's sharp butcher knife and came out to chase the pestering ducks. When he caught one he proceeded to trim his bill down to the size of the little chicks. As we observe the scramble of mankind to day we are fully persuaded that there is a form of injustice going on. Men have duck-like bills and they are getting the best of everything. They gobble up the goodies, while the rest of us have to scramble around for a mere existence. I am not much concerned about utilizing money, but I would like to see justice given to all alike. I may be a bit cruel, but it seems to me that some bills need trimming. . . .

One morning I needed some help and along came a healthy, strong looking white boy. I said to him, "Would you like to work for me?" He stopped and seemed interested. I asked him many questions and he answered them. I found that he had not worked a day in months and that he did not intend working that day. The last question that I asked him was this, "Young man, how do you live? I have to work for my living and if you do not work it seems that you are requiring some one else to make your living." He turned away saying, "My mother makes a living for me." If I had been alone I guess I would have gotten mad. Such a boy who is a lot of lazy wags, strolling around who should be allowed to get hungry. Oh, justice come quick, you are seriously needed. . . .

One day I stood on the banks of an inland stream and saw a dredge at work cleaning out the channel of the river. This dredge would scrape the bottom and bring up all kinds of tools, iron and brass that had been dumped into it for years. All of this went into the junk pile to be sold. Buried up into every life there is much junk. We should lower the dredge and scrape out the bottom pieces of our inner life and bring to the light all the rubbish that is buried there. Drag deep to the light all the rubbish that is buried there. Drag deep and bring up all that buried injustice, superstition, hate and selfishness. Send this away to the junk pile. . . .

Talking back to the teacher is one way to demonstrate what you don't know. . . .

Farm and AAA News From the County Agent

County Agent Lists Ways To Improve Current Farming

County Agricultural Extension Agent H. H. Smith, this week offered 15 suggestions which Chilton County farmers would do well to consider in carrying out agronomy work during January, February and March. Making individual farm and home cropping plans was foremost in the list of suggestions recommended by the County Agent. Choosing crops for 25 per cent soil conservation requirement was emphasized by Mr. Smith. He said farmers would benefit by planting those crops which can be utilized to the best advantage on the individual farm. "Choosing planting seed is another job which deserves much consideration. Seed that will germinate 90 per cent are worth many times more than those that germinate 60 per cent, even though there is just one-third more live seed in the former. Poor seed are expensive at any price. "February and March provide excellent opportunities for seeding and planting permanent pasture," the agent continued. "As in many instances, there is established permanent pasture that needs improvement, such as drainage, removal of bushes and briars, fertilization, plowing, reseeded, and possibly terracing." Mr. Smith called attention to small grains and pointed out that these crops are subject to great increases in yields through application of 100 to 200 lbs. of nitrate of soda or its equivalent in other quickly available fertilizers. When active growth begins in the spring is the proper time to apply top dressing, he asserted. "Kudzu is becoming an important crop in Alabama because of its many uses on the farm. Land should be prepared and sown out now if best results are to be expected. Many old pastures now becoming unproductive can be revived by applying 400 to 600 pounds or more of 16 per cent superphosphate or its equivalent per acre and discing thoroughly while the plants are dormant. "Another leading crop—lespedeza—should not be overlooked during the next few weeks. Lespedeza does best when sown in February and March and covered lightly. Thirty to 40 pounds of seed, depending on the variety, are required per acre."

County Extension Agent Smith, emphasized the value of attention to other farm jobs, including turning under cover crops, preparation for planting corn, laying off rows on contour, saving and using farm manure, and choosing fertilizer and time. "A very important thing in all cropping plans is to plan for seed production to meet farm needs. Include seed crops for producing lespedeza, white Dutch clover, Dallas grass, croutaria, Oatman soybeans and other crops. The farmers with plenty of home grown seed can plant more of the soil-conserving crops and not be embarrassed with seed bills," concluded Mr. Smith.

ALABAMA HATCHERIES MEETING REQUIREMENTS

AUBURN, ALA.—This year 88 Alabama hatcheries, with a total egg capacity of 2,360,000, are meeting the requirements of the National Poultry Improvement Plan, announces John Ivey, extension poultryman. Over 1500 flocks in the State have been officially selected, blood tested, and banded during the last few months. In these 1,500 flocks there are over 150,000 individual hens.

ALABAMA FARM WOMEN PRESERVE FARM FOODS

AUBURN, ALA.—Alabama home demonstration club women canned 8,823,262 quarts of fruits, vegetables and meats and dried 92,600 pounds of fruits and vegetables valued at $3,614, 624 in 1940, reports Lavada Curtis, extension specialist in food preservation. "The success of the state-wide preservation program was due to the assistance of home demonstration agents and the 2,005 volunteer local leaders," she says. "Canning budget needs were filled by 12,626 farm families; 15,000 families canned on a budget basis, and 30,000 families received instructions on canning budgets," she concluded.

CHILTON FARMERS OFFERED STAMPS AND FOOD CASH PAYMENTS; NEW PLAN

Farmers of Chilton County can earn double benefits under the recently announced supplementary cotton program. They can earn an additional $3 payment for increasing food production and preservation at the same time they are earning $25 in cotton stamps for voluntarily reducing cotton acreage, according to A. W. Jones, AAA administrative officer. Each farm operator, shareholder, or tenant can earn up to $25 on a farm for reducing his cotton acreage, while operators with two or more tenants can earn up to $50 in cotton stamps. The stamp payment will be divided in each way that the Agricultural Conservation Payment on cotton is divided. Farmers will receive stamps at the rate of 10 cents per pound times the farm's normal yield on the acreage reduced. If his yield is for instance, 30 pounds per acre, then he could earn $25 in stamps by reducing his cotton acreage by 1 acre. Each farm operator on behalf of all the interested producers on the farm will advise the AAA of intentions to participate in the new program before June 15. As soon as possible after his cotton acreage is checked and approved he will receive the cotton stamps with which he can purchase cotton clothing and cotton tools. Jones emphasized that the new voluntary program in no way changes the basic conservation and parity payments of the present AAA program. Farmers can earn all other payments for soil building practices and for participating in the acreage adjustment provisions on the program. The new program is a supplement to the existing program.

CHICKENS TRANSMIT CHICKEN TB TO HOGS

AUBURN, ALA.—Hogs are more susceptible to chicken tuberculosis than are chickens themselves, according to a recent experiment by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This has caused the Bureau of Animal Industry to warn that it is hazardous to allow chickens to run in the same lot with hogs. It is not only hazardous—but it is a menace to the health of the hogs if there is any trace of avian tuberculosis (chicken TB) in the poultry flock. In the experiment 50 chickens and 3 hogs, all negative to the tuberculin test, were placed in a pen with 50 tuberculous chickens. After the hogs and chickens had been exposed to the infection for a year they were tested with tuberculin and 93.5 per cent of the hogs and 54 per cent of the chickens reacted. When 28 of the hogs were slaughtered, 23 of the carcasses showed slight lesions of tuberculosis and avian tubercle bacilli were recovered from most of them. The other five were classed as "no-visible lesion reactors."

More Funds For Alabama Highways

Federal funds are now, or soon will be, available for the resumption of work on the Birmingham-Chelsea-Columbia-Clanton-Montgomery highway, according to advice from Senator Lister Hill and Congressman Pete Jarman. The following is from last week's issue of The Shelby County Democrat: Senator Hill advises us from Washington that the Works Project Administration project No. 50255 which was sponsored by the Shelby County Board of Revenue has received Presidential approval in the amount of $188,828. We congratulate the members of the Board of Revenue and are duly grateful for Senator Hill's valuable assistance in obtaining this amount for the further improvement of roads in Shelby County. We join legions of interested citizens in a plea for the development and completion of the Chelsea Road. We know of no more important highway than this would be for Shelby County citizens as a whole than would be the completion of this Chelsea-Shelby highway connecting with the Clanton Road into Montgomery. . . . We hope this road will receive the consideration, we believe it merits. Advertising is the first step in salesmanship. You can spot a big man by his high-class assistants. SINCERITY

HERE, in brief, are the four steps in the Brewers and Alabama Beer Distributors Committee's campaign to make conditions in retail beer outlets as wholesome as beer itself:

- Sincerity of purpose in every phase of our work;
- Education of retail beer dealers to their responsibilities of maintaining clean, orderly establishments;
- Cooperation with the Alabama ABC Board, county and city law enforcement officials in the elimination of persistent law violators;
- Self-Regulation of Alabama's $6,500,000 beer industry, which provides employment for 7,000 persons and pays over $1,000,000 annually in state, county and city taxes.

You can help promote this program by patronizing only reputable beer retailers who abide strictly by the spirit and the letter of the law.

LOOK AHEAD—ALABAMA—PAVE WITH CONCRETE

SAFER ROADS will decrease accidents!

Needed: More roads with built-in safety—that make it hard for accidents to happen!

Three Essentials of a Safe Road

MODERN ROADWAY DESIGN
Highway engineers know how to make roads safe by easing sharp turns, eliminating dangerous grade crossings, by providing ample widths, long "sight distance," AND a safe pavement surface.

SURE NON-SKID SURFACE
The safety answer is concrete—skid-resistant, wet or dry—durable, true of surface, free from bumps, ruts, waves and other accident-breeding defects.

UTMOST VISIBILITY
Concrete's light-colored surface reflects light without glare; makes headlights more efficient. Helps the driver see better.

CONCRETE SAVES—not only lives, but money. Concrete costs less to build than other pavements of equal load-carrying capacity. And far less to maintain than less enduring surfaces.

College Night at Montevallo

Against a background of scenes from the College Nights of other years are pictured the four girls who will lead the Purples and the Golds in the twenty-third annual renewal of College Night, February 21-22, at Alabama College, Montevallo. This great all-student show finds the student body divided into two groups—the Purples and the Golds—whose impersonations, songs, and skits draw 3,000 visitors to the Alabama College campus yearly, with other hundreds regretfully turned away when tickets are gone. Purple and Gold leaders are Miss Nell Wooten, Montevallo, and Miss Jean Farr, Alexander City. Assistant leaders are Miss Ann Canon, Opelika, and Miss Betsy Robbins, Birmingham, respectively.

MT. CARMEL

So glad to say health at this place is better. No one very sick at this writing and we are very thankful for this.

Mr. Sewell came home last week from Vets. hospital where he has been since December 9th. He may not feel too good but glad to be home again. Mrs. Sewell is able to be up now after having flu and pneumonia.

The miscellaneous shower given for Mrs. Turner Wooten last Saturday afternoon was greatly enjoyed even if the weather was cold. About thirty guests were present and many were played after delicious refreshments of sandwiches and other delicacies. She received many useful gifts and many congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Gwen Williams, and Leah J. Williams of Sylacauga, visited home folks over the week end. Mrs. Hattie Lenoir and children, and Mrs. Callie Wright at Jemison Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Sewell of Bessemer, were here Monday and Tuesday of this week.

BIG FALL DEMAND EXPECTED FOR OATS

AUBURN, Ala.—Agricultural leaders here and in Montgomery are predicting a big demand for oats to plant next fall and are advising farmers to produce and save all the oats possible this spring so that they may meet this demand.

They base their prediction upon the fact that one of the requirements under the "Alabama Plan" is for cover crops on 25 per cent of the cropland. Fall planted oats is one of the crops which may be used under this provision. Experiments and experience show that oat yields may be materially increased by top-dressing the oats with 100 to 300 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre late in February or early March.

When every citizen looks out for himself the nation is apt to succumb.

FRIENDSHIP NEWS

Our crowd at Sunday school Sunday was small, but we are glad to report that most of the people are recovering from sickness and we hope will soon be able to attend church again. Let's not forget that next Sunday is our regular preaching day.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Robinson and little son, Jerry, were in Clanton last Thursday visiting friends and relatives.

Miss Evelyn Wilson visited her Aunt Mrs. Lester Pate in Jemison over the week end.

Miss Ida Mae Popwell made a business trip to Montgomery last Thursday.

Mr. Jimmie Bell and Mr. Grady Popwell and Mr. James Gillespie motored to Auburn, last Sunday.

Mrs. Mattie Collins visited her sister Mrs. Leona Dorniney at Lay Dams Sunday.

Our regular singing will meet March 5th, Wednesday night. We have the singing every other Wednesday night. Visitors are cordially invited to attend and bring their new books.—Reporters.

The Answers

1. No, her real name is Hedwig Eva Maria Kiesler.

2. About $550,000,000.

3. Yes; British Somaliland.

4. John G. Winant, Ambassador to Great Britain. He served three terms as Republican governor of New Hampshire.

5. Elmer Layden, former Notre Dame director of athletics.

6. A small, quickly constructed anti-submarine ship.

7. One taken by roll call and answered orally by each member.

8. About six miles.

9. Yes, except six now under construction and to be named for our territorial areas.

10. Phobos is a Greek word meaning fear; hence an Anglo-phobe is anti-British.

TREASURY TO TAP NEW TAX SOURCES

Funds Must Be Raised To Help Defray Cost Of Re-Armament

WASHINGTON—The treasury, officials said Saturday, is ready to start immediately on a campaign to tap the savings of children, housewives and small-salaried workers for a sizeable part of the nine billion dollars it must borrow in the next 12 months to finance the defense program.

All that is holding it up is final congressional approval of the bill to increase the federal debt limit to 65 billion dollars. Both House and Senate have approved the measure, but the House must act on minor Senate amendments.

If the House accepts these changes next week as expected officials said, Secretary Morgenthau will announce a money-raising plan calling for sale of:

1. Postal savings stamps in denominations of 10, 25, and 50 cents and $1. These will be "national defense" series of the regular postal stamps now on sale throughout the country at all post-offices.

2. Either postal or treasury "savings certificates" in denominations of $1 and up.

3. United States savings bonds, commonly known as "baby" bonds, in denominations from $25 to $1,000. These bonds are sold at a 25 per cent discount (for example a $25 bond sells for $18.75, but is redeemed by the treasury after 19 years for full face amount. These are also sold at post-offices.

4. A new type interest-bearing bond, possibly maturing in 40 years and bearing 2 per cent, or a little more, interest. The exact terms of this issue haven't been settled.

5. Intermittent sale of regular $1,000 denomination treasury bonds, notes and bills.

Morgenthau has instructed his aids to avoid in the sales campaign "coercion or propaganda" of the type used in some communities for the sale of Liberty Bonds in the World War.

The campaign will emphasize two ideas—helping national defense, and thrift.

As part of the thrift program, children and adults, alike will be urged to make regular weekly or monthly purchases of whatever type of security best fits their purses.

For instance, children may be urged to buy 10-cent stamps until they get 10 and can trade them in for a dollar certificate, and to repeat the process until they have enough certificates to buy a baby bond.

Others may be advised to start with baby bonds and accumulate them for trade-ins on bigger securities.

At least at first the treasury plans no sales quotas for states or communities, because some officials believe that real to meet quotas caused some liberty bond salesman to use too much pressure in some areas.

The "four-minute speaker" of Liberty bond days is out, too. In his place will be radio and newspaper appeals.

MINERAL SPRINGS

We were glad to have Rev. Jadie Thomas and wife Sunday and Sunday night. He delivered two fine messages which was enjoyed by all.

There was a real good singing here Sunday afternoon with a large crowd attending. The chairman, P. M. Cleckler had charge, opening with a song, followed by prayer.

Directors were: Estelle Cleckler, E. L. Glasscock, Vernette Cost, L. Northcutt, Daisy Martin, A. H. Glasscock, Will Northcutt, Winnie Kate Robinson, Maude Rutherford, Myrtis Gore, Gladys Dobbs, Clara Nell Cleckler, Sara Dean Glass, Bernice Davis, Clyde Davis. Rev. Jadie Thomas dismissed with prayer. We were glad to have the visitors from Oak Grove and other communities and invite them back every third Sunday afternoon.

Everybody remember next Sunday and Sunday night is our regular preaching time. Come.

Life would be much simpler if everybody was willing to pay for what they want.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

BY BEN

The proceeds from the Lion-Kiwanis basketball game which was sponsored by the Grammar School P. T. A. a few weeks ago, has gone in to Plumbing equipment for the Grammar School Annex. Reports are that the work is near completion and within a very short while the children in the annex will have drinking water without having to go out in the weather to get it.

In this issue of the News you will notice an advertisement for R. C. Williams, who is Shell Jobber for this territory. R. C. came into the News office Saturday afternoon and asked that a picture be made which could be used in this ad. Well, that's asking for some speed. However, we hunted up our trusted colleague C. E. Scott the photographer, and had the picture made. Then final proofs late Sunday afternoon. Got them off on the night train to Birmingham and back in time for this issue. We hope you like the picture and we hope you go and buy some gas from Mr. Horsley White, manager of the station, so that we will get some more advertising.

Our field man, Marvin Ellison, has been getting wonderful response from subscribers over the county on his rounds. Results seem to show that all the readers with the paper that we are giving them. (We say all, but that is, we mean practically all, nobody ever plesed all the people, according to Mr. Lincoln.) But with the help of these subscribers we intend to give you a really good weekly paper. Try to get each week to outdo the week before.

The News comes out this week in a new hat. We can't call it a new dress for the type is the same. But we have you noticed the new headliner type, and more important do you like it? It was obtained in order to give you a more attractive front page and we hope our choice meets your approval.

One of the most worthwhile things that has come to our notice in a long time is the organization of a Business Men's Club for Clanton. It is an organization that can do a lot for Clanton and for the business men of Clanton. It deserves the support of every business man in our City.

Blondie Taylor, super-salesman de luxe has shifted his position. He is now keeping the bushes for Radio Electric Company. Blondie is popular amongst all-liked around Clanton and we wish him well.

"Red" Mims, who hangs out down Western Auto Associate Store was telling us the other day of the coming football game. It seems a bit cut off to be talking of football, but nevertheless, says Red, there is going to be a game. The local High School team is having spring practice and the team that will be used in the game is the one from the next year's team, and former players who have graduated and moved out into the world of business. Red says that as soon as he is doesn't expect to stay in very long while he is in there they will hear from him. We will depend on Red to get us posted on just when this game comes off, we are anxious to be on hand.

Did you ever see so many new automobiles roaming the streets of our City? You no sooner get your mouth shut from gaping at one before here comes another that you declare was better than the one just passed.

R. C. Williams tells us that next Saturday will be grand opening of the H. White Shell Station. He also informs us that there will be beautiful girls all around the place to make you 'comfy'. He is going to give away a set of Ice Tea glasses with each purchase of five gallons of gas, sky's the limit. The girls to pass out the glasses and get your name and address. We don't know whether or not we will need as much that day, but we bet we buy them.

Have you ever stopped to think how we fire get anywhere in Clanton? The Fire Department we have functioning on a "T" and just about ninety per cent of our fires are "nipped in the bud".

And Speaking of Fires—I believe it was about three o'clock in the morning the time was late Saturday night or rather early Sunday morning. The first thing I knew of the gigantic conflagration, (it was Earl Parrish's settee)

County High Announces '41 Football Schedule

Sylacauga and Selma Teams Exchanged For Columbiana and Prattville

Coach F. H. Spicer, of the Chilton County High School, this week announced his football schedule for 1941, with two changes from last year. In the schedule, it will be noted that Selma, who has been out of Clanton's class for the past several years, has been omitted from the new schedule. Also, Sylacauga, the team that provided so much excitement last season, has been omitted. In their places, Coach Spicer lists Columbiana and Prattville. And, too, according to the schedule, Clanton fans will have almost a full season of Football-at-Home, with the exception of Columbiana. The game between Clanton and Maplesville, is pending as to the place of the game, but it is likely that it will be played on the Clanton field.

The 1941 schedule handed us this week by the Coach follows:

Sept. 19	Verbera	Here
Sept. 26	Montevallo	Here
Oct. 3	Maplesville	Pending
Oct. 10	Columbiana	There
Oct. 24	Centerville	Here
Oct. 31	Wetumpka	Here
Nov. 7	Holtville	Here
Nov. 14	Isabella	Here

Red Cross Institute Meets At City Hall, March 3

American Red Cross Institute will be held at the City Hall in Clanton on Monday, March 3rd. Miss Charlotte Johnson, National Red Cross Disaster Relief Staff Member and Mrs. Beatrice Vines, Field Representatives for the conduct the Institute. The Institute will open at the City Hall at 10:30 a.m.

The Chilton County Board Members, Disaster Chairman and the Disaster Sub-Committee Chairman and Committee members will be expected to attend the meeting.

At 1 o'clock there will be a luncheon at the Exchange Hotel. At 2:30 p.m. the crowd will again be assembled at the City Hall for further instructions.

At 7:30 p.m. there will be a short meeting of Disaster Registration and Information Committees, and various Disaster Sub-Committee Chairmen.

Singing At Enterprise Sunday Afternoon

The first Sunday will soon have rolled around again, and there will be singing at Enterprise school house next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. We hope to have another good one. The school has somewhat subdued and the attendance might be a bit good. Everybody come along and bring your new books and come with the mood to use them.—Phillip Headley, Cimm.

my wife was pulling and shaking, trying to get me awake to tell me that there was a fire in the neighborhood. Well, up we jump, and like the character in "The Visit to St. Nicholas", we rush to the window. . . . sure enough there is a fire at Earl Parrish's home, as we have stated before. We rush out the front door. . . . then we rush back. . . . boy, we bet it's at least ten degrees below. . . . grab our lounging robe and rush back out again. . . . this time we got to the sidewalk, stopped, watched and shivered awhile and rushed back into the house. . . . we never saw so much smoke in our life, we mean that smoke from the pine kindling that we piled on the fire to warm by, boy it was black and boy, that fire felt good. . . . After warming up considerably we ventured again into the ozone, we could see dimly J. E. Easterling, Chas. Wade, Earl Parrish, W. C. Nuss, Gene Gore and scores of others—all working frantically on poor Earl's bettee. About three-thirty they got it out and everybody happy, especially Mamie and Earl. The local fighters drove away and J. E. Easterling called as they drove away into the night. . . . "I bet they saw more damage than they can do. Earl just call us." The living room was a total loss. . . .

New Shell Service Station, To Have Formal Opening

Locals Favored In District Cage Tournament

Chilton Has Three Strong Entries To Vie For District Championship

(By CLARK HEADLEY)

Coach Dewey L. Cox and his 1941 Chilton County High School basketball team left early this morning for the Third District Tournament in progress in Selma this week end, with a record that any coach or school might feel proud of.

The tournament this year provides more competition than ever with thirty-two teams competing for the title. Beginning at 9:00 o'clock Thursday a.m., Clanton will start the ball rolling against the Magnolia quintet of Marengo county.

Coach Cox and his boys have every chance that could be expected to come from the battle grounds Saturday night with the second leg of the trophy in their possession. From the beginning of the season, Coach Cox has played his team against some of the strongest teams of the state, picking for them the harder ones. Teams such as Lanier, Selma, Jackson Freshmen Auburn Freshmen Warrior, Isabella and many other outstanding quints of the state have fallen to the Chilton County lads as the season progressed.

Clanton's most dangerous foes, from our present information, will be Sidney Lanier, Parrish High and Isabella, unless a "dark-horse" shows up. Although, Lanier and Selma both being in the Lower bracket, while Clanton is in the upper. Clanton will not have to play both of them if they get far into pay dirt. Perry County High is also one of the teams favored in the tournament.

As we have already stated, Clanton will play Magnolia at 9:00 o'clock Thursday a.m. After this if winner, (Continued on Page 2)

COMMITTEES MEET TO STUDY PROJECT

The committee named by the various service clubs of Clanton met Monday afternoon at the City Hall to study ways and means of finishing the job of giving the City a swimming pool.

More than one-third of the total amount needed, or $1,000.00 has already been raised and more enthusiasm than usual was shown by all who attended. Friday of this week has been set as the goal line for contributions and if no one has called on you for your contribution, get in touch with Mayor Stapp or his office at the City Hall and they will have a representative call at once.

BUSINESS MEN MEET TUESDAY NIGHT TO ORGANIZE

Clanton Business men met Tuesday night at the City Hall to organize a Business Men's Club. Some twenty business men attended and appointed committees to work out details and get things ready for business at the next meeting which will be next Tuesday at 7:30.

The committee was composed of five members. Frank Scott, chairman, Reddie Taylor, Chick Fiquette, Ben Margolis and Leonard Farley.

ANDREW PORTER HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

Andrew Porter is in the Central Alabama Hospital suffering from injuries received when he walked into the side of a car driven by Roy Titus, of Birmingham late Tuesday night. At this writing the condition of Porter could not be learned.

Titus was questioned by Clanton officers and released. The accident took place a mile north of the City on the Birmingham Highway.

HILL GROCERY COMPANY MARKS ANNIVERSARY WITH BIG SALE

Beginning Friday, February 28th, Hill Grocery Company will start its big Anniversary Sale, according to L. J. Stewart, manager. The sale will last through March 6th and many rare bargains in groceries and produce are offered.

Hill Grocery Company has been buying home-grown meats and produce for the past thirty years and here is what the Company offices in Birmingham have to say about it:

Thirty years ago our Company started selling produce purchased from farms in and around Birmingham. Later after buying a tremendous amount of produce, they were very instrumental in creating a curb market in the City of Birmingham that is second to none in the Southern States. We are extremely proud of the fact that Hill Grocery Company could and did do this to help our farmers, and have grown to where we purchase from the farmers of the State around two million dollars annually. Also, we have created a Poultry Department of which we are justly proud, buying from almost every county in the State of Alabama. And, too, we purchase any number of livestock grown in our state. We certainly believe in buying home grown products first, and that our Company has done so by buying millions of dollars worth.

STATE OF ALABAMA, COUNTY OF CHILTON, CITY OF CLANTON, February 28th, 1941.

We the undersigned citizens and property owners adjacent to the herein after described part of the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway in Clanton, Alabama desiring to see Highway U. SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING

There will be a Sunday School meeting at the City Hall next Sunday, March 2nd, beginning at 2 o'clock. Pastors, superintendents and all interested in the Sunday School work in the Chilton County Association are urged to attend. We hope each church will preach Sunday morning, March 2 at this meeting.—H. R. ODEN, Asst. Supt.

Petition Signed To Widen U. S. 31 Thru Clanton

Practically All Property Owners On Highway Express Approval

Landowners with property fronting the Birmingham-Montgomery highway signed a petition Tuesday agreeing to pay their part in getting the highway widened through the city. The cost of the petition is estimated at 75c per lineal foot but Mayor Stapp says that the cost will be much less.

State Highway engineers will be used and all paving other than the curb and gutter will be furnished by the State.

The City and W.P.A. together will furnish the labor for the curb and gutter work. Following is the petition and signed.

City Garbage Crew To Be Congratulated

The crew that works on the City Garbage truck are to be congratulated on the fine work they are doing in getting the city cleaned up. Everywhere you go you will find that they are going beyond their regular duties to get all the trash and rubbish from the rear of the stores and offices. We are all the more proud of them, they deserve it. Clanton's alleys are looking better.

Market for Raw Milk May Be Year Round Says Smith

Questionnaires Being Sent In Effort To Determine Amount of Milk Available

By PAT SMITH

County Agent, Chilton County

An attempt is being made to create a year-round market for milk in Chilton County. In an effort to determine the amount of milk that would be available this spring for operating such a market, a questionnaire has been prepared and is being mailed to Chilton County farmers from the County Agent's office this week.

All persons who are prospective producers of milk and who are interested in cooperating with the establishment of this market are requested to fill out and return the questionnaire at their earliest convenience. Anyone who did not receive a copy of the questionnaire may get one by writing or calling by the County Agent's office in Clanton.

The ultimate goal in this project is to get a milk processing plant established in the County. To get this plant, there must be a large constant supply of milk available. This means that several thousand cows will have to be milked daily to supply this demand. Another purpose of the questionnaire is to determine how many cows are in the county.

When a sufficient volume of milk is available, a market can be established. Since it is expected that this volume will be small to begin with, plans are to get a cooling station established at first to take care of the milk until sufficient volume is reached to warrant the establishment of a milk plant.

Prospective milk producers under the above plan will need a large supply of home grown feeds. These feeds will include good, improved permanent pasture, as well as crops such as corn, kudzu and Sorghum Leys, and grain crops. To be successful it is believed that all of these feeds must be grown on the farm. With proper care, all of the above feeds can be grown on almost any farm in Chilton County.

The 1941 AAA program, if followed closely, has provisions for making possible the production of more feed crops on every farm in Chilton County. It is hoped that every farmer who plans to increase the dairy herd will first make plans for the production of a sufficient amount of home grown feeds to make the undertaking successful. Since this can be done by complying with the provisions of the 1941 Conservation program, it is hoped that the soil building provisions of the program will be used to increase this needed feed supply.

These ideas can become realities only with the full cooperation of everyone. It is expected that the milk volume will be small to begin with but it is hoped that it will grow. For the project to be successful there must be a year-round supply of home grown feeds on every farm cooperating with the project. As the feed supply increases, the number of cows that will be profitable milked may be increased. By increasing the number of cows in the county on the above basis, it is felt that a milk processing plant can be established in Chilton County in the not too distant future.

EDITORIAL TALK

PRINTING PRESS MONEY

A letter writer in the Advertiser asks why it is not common sense for the American government to issue non-interest bearing currency to pay preparation expenses instead of issuing bonds upon which the taxpayers must pay through the years enormous sums in interest.

It might interest the letter writer to know that a good many able economists are advocating that very thing and at the recent gathering of experts at the University of Alabama, some of the speakers contended that a powerful and wealthy government ought to pay its way with non-interest bearing obligations having the nation's wealth and assets behind them.

So-called printing press money has been anathema for generations, yet those university speakers maintained that no nation had ever issued such printing press money until it was bankrupt, and that is the reason such money always causes panics and inflation and ultimate ruin of national financial systems.

They maintained that for a great, successful and stable nation such as the United States, it is the best and most practical way and that actually there is no reason to issue vast sums of interest bearing bonds which require more than double the amount involved for their ultimate redemption. At any rate, it is a subject that is causing a lot of argument now that this country has formally authorized the issuance of sixty - five billion dollars in interest bearing bonds.—Alabama Journal.

BIG MULE STAMPEDE—

The Big Mule candidates for governor seem to be having hard sledding—Hayes Tucker of Tuscaloosa has declined to make the race. Donald Comer of Birmingham announced last Sunday he would not make the race.

Harwell G. Davis bowed out several weeks back and a report from Judge Chauncey Sparks of Eufaula last week said Sparks was "Undecided." While Earl McGowan of Chapman seems buffeted and not interested in making the race.

Thus the big boys are having a hard time in lining up a candidate to face the Graves avalanche. They may be using good judgement at that. Looking closer home we find the old die-hard anti-Graves crowd about ready to jump on The Little Colonel's Band wagon and ride to safety so they can shout "Me Too!"—Huntsville Mercury.

ARCHER'S CHAPEL

The next services at Archer's Chapel will be Wednesday, March 5th, at 7 p.m. Rev. Luther Ballou will preach. At two o'clock March 5th, the Women's Society of Archer's chapel will meet at the church. All women of the community are urged to attend.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

Bishop Ainsworth is authority for the following story of a woodpecker: Said the good Bishop: "Once upon a time a Woodpecker stationed himself on the trunk of a dead pine tree and started pecking with all of his might. The bird seemed to think that no other bird ever pecked half so hard and the longer he pecked the harder he pecked. While he was doing his best the lightning struck the pine and split it half open. For a moment Mr. White-back was dazed, but regaining his consciousness, he turned his head to one side and screamed at the top of his voice as if to say, 'Look world what I have done!' To say the least that was following the example of some human beings. Many a man takes his position and hammers away. While he hammers wonders take place and then he turns his head to one side and with an air of pride he says, 'Look world, see what I have done!' Man claims the credit for a lot of things that God does.

The Doctor informed me that I must not drive my car and I secured Dan, my yard boy to drive for me. He said that he knew how it was done. To prove his skill he backed out of the garage and started to back to the street. He had to pass under the porte cochere and on his side was the steps to the house. His only way to miss the steps and he did so, but he centered the brick pillar and knocked it down with a bang. I held my lips tight but had to listen to Dan's lamentation. He said that during his life he had always tried to do right and he could not understand why God let him hit the brick pillar. Just a host of people look at only one side of life and slam into the brick and then wonder why, God allows them to this disaster. With Saul, we should sometimes confess: "I have perished the fool".

We had a preacher in our Conference of whom it was said: "He moved so many times until when he came out to his hen house with a box, 'the hens and the two roosters would hop down off the roost and stretch themselves on the ground and cross their legs.' They had been tied so many times in the same way, they had learned what was before them. Habit is a wonderful thing. How I wish that folks would form the habit of going to church so that they would go without having to be chased down all the time. A good habit is a mighty good thing.

A whiskey bum walked out of a State liquor store with a quart of whiskey under his skin. He had to travel he stopped and put a lot of the whiskey under his skin. He had to travel two miles to his home and all along he would stop and hide some more whiskey under his skin. At last he trumbled down by the roadside. The blackbirds up in the sky looked down and saw him there and they said to themselves—"Another car accident" and they lighted by his side and proceeded to dig out his eyes. The drunk man pushed them back, saying, "Get back beautiful fowls, you are too hasty, see I am not dead." When whiskey will bring a man down so low that the buzzards will come down to pick out his eyes, that is mighty low. Shame on that our State should sell the stuff that will pile a drunkard up our roadsides. Thrice I saw—Shame on us.

I propounded this question to one of the most noble ministers whose name appeared on our Superannuate list: "Did any of your brethren in the ministry speak words of regret to you when your health failed and you were forced he replied "Only one person came to me and expressed regret and that was the Bishop's wife." When a Minister in a big church dies, or must retire, few tears are shed by the ambitious in the ministry. There is a scramble for his good job. When a judge dies the poor fellow is not cold before there is a scramble for his place. How selfish, O how selfish, we poor mortals are. We want the man below us to get out of our way. God have mercy on our selfish natures.

BASKETBALL

they will play the winner of the Ft. Deposit-Dixon Mills game on Friday.

Report of the Isabella-Clanton game last Friday night may be found elsewhere in this issue of the News sent us from Lanier, Ga. This game they say, was a thriller and those Isabella boys have got what it takes. Clanton was somewhat off-balance though with Collins and Johnson absent from the battle. So, the feud is still unsettled both winning one and losing one, but we will know who has the better quilt after the tournament is played—and Isabella is determined to show their ability in Selma over the week end.

at 9:00 a.m. Then on Friday afternoon in the Quarter-Finals, they were most likely to play Jemison, according to Coach Cox's estimation.

In the Semi-Finals Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock Coach thinks he will play Isabella, which provide a very interesting game, as Clanton dropped their only high school game of the season to them last Friday night. But, Coach says he will handle them on a large court and his boys well of the meacels and spranged ankles.

Then, if ole' lady Luck holds out, Coach predicts they will play either Lanier or Selma in the Finals at 9:00 Saturday p.m. Coach says, "I'd rather think we'll be matched against the Lanier Poets of Montgomery." But regardless of whether Lanier, Isabella, Parrish High, or Isabella, Clanton has won over each of them before hand by a safe margin. But anything can happen in a tournament.

The final game will be played in the Parrish High gymnasium (where all of Clanton's games are to be played) and it is expected that Chilton County will be one of the best represented counties (except Dallas) in the tournament, as fans from Maplesville, Isabella, Jemison, Clanton and other points of the county will flock into Selma Saturday and Saturday night rooting for either of the Chilton teams that might go into the final side of the three days meet.

EASTVIEW

At a conference at Eastview church Saturday, February 22nd, Keener Wells was elected deacon and Ira Smith, trustee. The other deacons are Paul Rushing and Alpha Dobbs. The other trustees are Perry Smith and Tom Traywick. The conference was a resolution of sympathy to the family of our senior deacon, Paul Rushing, for the critical condition in which he now is.

Remember the fourth Sunday is now our regular church meeting date. The Women's Society of Eastview church met at the church Saturday morning. Present were: Mrs. Keener, Wells, Mrs. Alpha Dobbs, Mrs. Ira Smith, Mrs. Grady Griffin, Mrs. Oscar Wells, Mrs. Perry Smith and Mrs. Elsie Ballou. The next meeting will be at the parsonage, Thursday, March 6th, at 2 p.m. All Women interested are very welcome.

Nearly everybody can tell you what they would give to charity if they had a million dollars. It is tough on charity that they haven't got the million.

Miss Elizabeth Williams Is Wed To Lawrence Minchiner Tew

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Williams to Mr. Lawrence Minchiner Tew of Montgomery took place at 8 p.m. Friday in the First Baptist church. The vows were pledged before an altar of smiles, palms and ferns with standards of gladness, in candle light. Dr. H. C. Williams, of Calvary Baptist church, Tuscaloosa, uncle of the bride, officiated.

The wedding music was in charge of Mrs. John B. Derasus, organist, with Mrs. Raymond Mims and Dr. C. O. Lawrence, soloists.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin, fashioned with a close fitting bodice, the neck being edged with rose point lace with long sleeves and flowing skirt that ended in a long train. Her finger tip veil of illusion was draped from a wreath of orange blossoms and three ostrich plumes. She carried a prayer book with lilies of the valley and about her neck was a cross, the gift of the bridegroom.

For traveling the bride's costume was a spring suit of pink, with beige accessories.

Mrs. James H. Roberts, sister of the bride, wore a shell pink over taffeta, and Mrs. Dewey H. Baker of Pensacola, sister of the groom wore blue. Miss Dolly Bell Harris and Mrs. J. A. Broadhead, sister of the bride, were brides' maids. They wore pink over taffeta.

Junior brides' maids were Peggy Williams of Birmingham and Annette Broadhead, were green over taffeta, all carried colonial bouquets.

The flower girls wore peach. They were Mary Sue Williams of Birmingham and Pat Broadhead.

Herbert Roton of Montgomery served as best man. The ushers were James H. Roberts, J. A. Broadhead, Dewey H. Baker, of Pensacola and Beverly Flournoy of Montgomery.

The bridal party and guests were entertained at a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Roberts after the church service. A tiered wedding cake decorated with pulled candy roses marked the center of the lace-covered table and crystal candelabra placed at the sides lighted the scene.

Assisting in the dining room were Mrs. J. W. Murphy, Mrs. Geo. H. Tucker and Mable Wood.

Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Tew wore navy with a corsage of sweet peas.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Tew will be at home in Montgomery.

Circle No. 5 Met—

Circle No. 5 of the Baptist W. M. F. met with Mrs. Spurgeon Calloway Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. J. B. Downs, chairman, presiding. Mrs. Hattie Alred gave the devotional, reading 12th Chapter of Hebrews.

After a business session delicious refreshments were served to the following:

Miss Bettie Mullins, Mrs. Arthur Johnson, Mrs. J. T. Rockett, Mrs. Ed Cooper, Mrs. B. E. Reeves, Mrs. Hattie Alred, and Mrs. J. B. Downs, Jr. A new member, Mrs. Harold Hollingsworth, and the hosts were also treated.

Mrs. Mark L. Tucker spent last week end in Birmingham visiting her daughter.

Mrs. Willie Phillip Jones is visiting in Montgomery.

Homemakers Class Met—

The Homemakers class of the Clanton Baptist church held their monthly business and social meeting at the home of Mrs. Leo Thompson last Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. There were sixteen members present. Mrs. Leon and Farley gave the devotional which was closed with prayer by Mrs. O. A. Davis.

After the business session, Mrs. Lorrain Eubanks and Mrs. Joe Ben Dews Jr. presented a very interesting program. Mrs. Eubanks read a most interesting story, "Aunt Parson's Story", and Mrs. Dews conducted several games and contests. In conclusion, the guests were served a delicious salad plate and the meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Davis.

Circle One Holds Business Meeting—

Circle one held their business meeting on Monday afternoon at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. J. M. Curlee with eleven members and one visitor, Mrs. O. A. Davis. Mrs. Chas. Wade gave the devotional and also presided over the meeting in the absence of the chairman, Mrs. W. C. Golden. Following the most interesting business discussion, those present were served cake and coffee by the hostess and the meeting was adjourned with prayer by Mrs. Wade.

ON WAY TO STARDOM?

Some times, and generally always, Mom and Pop like to think that Johnny or little Nell have a touch of the drama in their souls, but when the public and their dramatic instructors think and say so, well that's a different story. Seems that is the case of the petite Susan, daughter of the Lay Dam Power. In fact they thought so much of Susan's dramatic possibilities in her recital at Montgomery recently, she was awarded the Academy Medal over the entire class of 125 for having done the most outstanding work for the year of 1940. Maybe we have a second Tallulah Bankhead or Helen Hayes among us, who knows?

MISS MARY COURTNEY JONES ENTERTAINS FOR MISS MOORE

The first of the many lovely pre-nuptial parties being planned in honor of Miss Helen Moore, charming bride-elect, was the breakfast at which Miss Mary Courtney Jones entertained on Tuesday at noon at her home.

A bridal motif of pink and gold was carried out in the place cards and breakfast favors. The guests were seated at small tables the center theme of which was a miniature bride and groom in a pyramid of pink and gold spring blossoms. A unique feature of the breakfast was a beautiful doll dressed as a bride. She showered Miss Moore with handkerchiefs from the guests present.

Choice seasonal flowers in the breakfast tones of gold and pink made the home very lovely for this occasion.

Miss Moore wore a trousseau gown of Navy blue sheer with accessories in harmonizing tones. Sweetheart roses made her corsage bouquet.

The guest list was confined to the immediate friends of the bride-to-be.

Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Edgar spent the week end in Butler, Ala.

Mrs. Lois Clevelker of Birmingham spent the week end at home.

Dr. and Mrs. T. C. Casaday visited Mrs. Casaday's sister in Dadeville on Monday.

Annie Cordelia Smith spent last week end at home.

Mr. Billie Smith stopped over in Clanton on last Wednesday for a short visit with home folks.

Mrs. J. B. Tiffin and Mrs. Buster Foshee and daughter spent last Saturday in Birmingham.

Mr. Andrews of Montgomery, was a visitor in Clanton Friday.

Mrs. Welton Nelson and son, of Selma, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Jones.

Mrs. Clyde Jones is visiting in Lay Dam.

Mr. Dewey L. Cox went to Selma last Saturday a.m. to the drawing for the tournament games.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Murrah of Centre, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. George Murrah.

Mrs. Prickett is spending a few weeks in Fla. with her brother.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bennett and children, Ann and Jimmie, of Piedmont, spent the week end with Miss Ada Bennett and Mrs. Bennett.

The week of prayer will be observed next week at the Clanton Baptist church. A short business meeting will be held Monday at 3 o'clock and the program for the week of prayer will begin at 3:30 with Circle One in charge of the program.

Circle 2 will be in charge Tuesday. Circle Three will be in charge Wednesday and Circle Four Thursday and Friday will be an all day meeting with Circle Five in charge of the morning session and Circle Six in charge of the afternoon session.

If you are a W. M. U. member you are urged to be present and if you are not a member we cordially invite you to come and take a part in this Week of Prayer program.

Mrs. A. C. Smith is home again after a visit to her brother in San Antonio, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Wade made a trip to Birmingham Tuesday to take Mr. Wade's mother for a visit to her physician.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bell and family visited Mr. Bell's parents last week end in Atlanta, Ga.

Friends of Mrs. R. L. Bryson will be glad to know that she is steadily improving.

Bert Curlee of Tuscaloosa, visited his parents Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Curlee last week end.

Little Ann Jester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Jester, was the hostess last Thursday to twenty of her little friends, celebrating her third birthday. Our-of-town guests included two of her cousins, Morris and Carolyn Dees, of Mt. Meigs grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dees two aunts, Mrs. Morris Dees and Mrs. Lucian Dees. Games and refreshments, including the birthday cake, were enjoyed and everyone wished little Ann a very happy birthday and many more.

W. M. Bean Relates Progress Of Milk Condensary Project

TO THE PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY:

Again I wish to call your attention to the matters regarding a sale for the milk of Chilton County people. In my last letter through the papers of the county, I spoke against our milk being carried out of the county. Recent developments have shown that just at this time, there are not enough cows in Chilton County to produce a sufficient quantity of milk to justify a condensary being placed in Chilton county. Too, it is pretty definitely known that we can sell all the milk that the county can produce for as much as a condensary here in the county could pay, and allow the milk to be taken to an other place for canning.

I am informed that our County Agent is sending out questionnaires this week to practically all the farmers of the county. This will help to make a very definite check-up on the number of dairy cows, the amount of pasture, and the kind of pasture, and also determine something of the intentions of the farmers toward the growing of feed crops for dairy cows for another year. I wish to insist that every one in the county cooperate in this matter and answer the questionnaire sent you by our County Agent. Now I know, there may be some things in this matter that do not look just as good as perhaps some might think, but I ask you to think carefully and remember that this matter is to us here in Chilton an experiment. Too, I want you to know that in this undertaking we will have to start at the bottom. By starting at the bottom, no one will ever be disappointed. Please be reminded that the money you may get in payment for the milk you produce is not the only income in this matter. It is hoped that you will remember that reduction this will make in your commercial fertilizer bills each year. This is much to be thought of. There are other sources of income connected too, which I feel sure every thoughtful farmer readily knows.

If the farmers of Chilton County will respond favorably to the questionnaire sent out to them and will be willing to sacrifice and start with this milk project at the bottom and on a sound basis, it is almost certain that soon we can be moving milk from the county at a good profit. If we will all co-operate in this movement, learn the ways of the project, start with what we have, I know Chilton County can come to its own. There are other places which have something of this nature working, and I have been informed that it is working very, very satisfactorily.

The plan as I have been informed is something like this: If the farmers co-operate in this movement, respond to the questionnaire sent out in a favorable way, and show that we are interested in this movement, the Nestles Milk Company will then send representatives here to look over the situation and the prospects. If we can impress those representatives of the Nestles Milk Co. that we mean business, and will and can produce some milk here in sufficient quantities the whole year round, the Company will place a cooler in Clanton. If the cooler is placed in Clanton, the milk will be taken up at your door daily, brought to Clanton and stored in the cooler. From this cooler, Nestles Milk Co. will take the milk and haul it to their condensary. As I understand it, it will require about one-fourth as much milk to place a cooler in Clanton as it would take to place a condensary. This makes it possible for Chilton to supply the milk. We can supply the milk. Should we be successful in establishing this set-up in Clanton, soon there will be coming better things and possibly soon a condensary right here in our county.

Allow me to try to impress every person who is interested to make an effort to support this matter. Begin with it at the bottom and let it work upward. This is the right way to look upon this matter. Too, may I insist again that each interested person in Chilton County co-operate in this movement, answer the questionnaire sent you by the County Agent, and give your consent to start this milk project moving on a sound basis. That will, as before stated, necessitate our starting at the bottom and building what we want.

If this matter is properly considered and hearty response given this movement to show up our county in the proper light, it is hoped that soon several milk trucks will be delivering lots of milk each day to a great cooler in Clanton. This will mean good for all. Think on this and let's have this come.

I have been informed that there are four necessary requirements in this matter: (1) People willing to work with it; (2) Plenty of good feed; (3) Plenty of good feed; (4) A market. We have the cows, the market, and those willing to work it feel, so consider this carefully and let's set this matter going by May 1, 1941 if possible. It is for us people of Chilton if we will only get with it. What will you do?

LOCAL OL MEN TO HONOR GASOLINE TAX BIRTHDAYS

There's circle around the date of February 25 on the calendars of many gasoline filling stations in Chilton County, according to J. P. Lawrence of the Chilton County Petroleum Industries Committee. That day is the 22nd anniversary of the American gasoline tax, which was born in the Oregon legislature in 1919. Since then all the states, and the federal government as well, have adopted gasoline taxes.

"Motorists of Chilton County have contributed their full share of the $161,330,000 in gasoline taxes which have been collected in Alabama to date by the state and federal governments," said Mr. Lawrence. These gasoline taxes have been chiefly responsible for pulling this state out of the mud, and motorists with pride may join with petroleum men in paying homage to the gasoline tax on its 22nd birthday.

"A total of more than $10,000,000,000 in gasoline taxes have been collected in the United States in the past 22 years. In 1941 state taxes, because of the present high rates, will aggregate $1,250,000,000. That, said Mr. Lawrence, is more than what everybody in the entire country paid in all kinds of taxes in the horse and buggy days."

"Because approximately half of the car owners have incomes of less than $30 a week, according to studies of the federal government, it is important that the burden of federal and state taxation on gasoline should be kept at as reasonable levels as possible. With both the federal and the state governments taxing gasoline, the burden has been pushed up to where it adds 40 to 60 per cent to the retail price. That is a heavy load upon the millions of motorists in the United States having limited incomes, and limited ability to pay taxes."

NEW HOPE

Health in this community is not so good at the present. The flu is raging. Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Patterson are in the bed with the flu. We had services Sunday and there was a nice crowd out cheering the sickens.

Brother Moatts could not be with us on account of sickness in his home. Bro. Wiley Davis will fill his place next Sunday and Sunday night. Bro. Thomas will preach at New Hope. Everybody come and bring someone with you.

SHADY GROVE

The Rev. J. L. Thomas of Birmingham will preach at Shady Grove church Saturday night, March 1st. Services beginning at seven o'clock. The public has a cordial invitation to attend.

BAKER 4-H CLUB REPORT

The Baker 4-H Club met in the auditorium, February 11, 1941. The minutes were read and the roll called. Being no other business the meeting was turned over to Miss Barber.

She showed us some very interesting pictures of how living rooms should be and not be arranged.

She then showed us pictures of Forest fires which were also interesting. The meeting was adjourned to meet March 11, 1941.—Nora Marcus, Reporter.

MAJOR BOWES PROGRAM TO BE AT CITY HALL

There is going to be plenty of fun for would-be-Radio entertainers at Clanton when the Clanton Grammar put on their Major Bower Radio Hour at the City Hall on March 14th. And there will also be plenty of prizes for those competing.
If you want to be a Radio entertainer for a night and also win a nice prize for being one. Get in touch with Mr. Poarch at the Grammar School. Anyone who wants to can try out on this program.

STRENGTH lies in the FOUNDATION

Anything of safe and lasting usefulness must be carefully engineered and planned from the ground up. Great bridges must have immense concrete and steel bases, great buildings must have deep, secure foundations, though of a slightly different nature. Great banks are founded and developed on the soundest of their policy, their judgement, intelligence and honesty.

Peoples Savings Bank has served Clanton for 40 years, eloquent proof of the soundness of the Peoples Savings Bank's foundation. You can bank here with complete confidence that your money is safe and in competent hands.

Isabella Defeats Clanton; Feud Still Unsettled

On the night of February 21st the Isabella High School basketball team took the unbeaten and untied team of Chilton County High School for a ride, the final score being 23 to 14 in favor of Isabella. These two teams met meeting resulted in a victory for Clanton. This game was played in the gymnasium at Isabella before a capacity crowd and the story was repeated.

The boys on each side played a brand of ball seldom seen in high schools. Both teams weaving dribbling, pivoting, passing and shooting kept the fans on the edge of their seats during the whole performance. By the time they were well into the third quarter, however, it was apparent whose night it was and that Clanton would be compelled to bow to the inevitable.

There were no particular stars of the game except every man on each side played such a game that the coaches seemed to be satisfied that there was no one available who could do better in any place. As a result, there were practically no substitutions. Coach Lawrence McPherson for Isabella and Coach Dewey Cox for Clanton have driven their respective squads to the limit for this performance and between them the feud still exists since each has a game in the bag.

Line-up:
ISABELLA—(23)—O. Cummings (4), Earl Cummings (1), forwards: Alston Chinner (3), forward: Roy Davis (4), C. B. Lenoir (3), guards.
CLANTON—(14)—McClain, Daniels (4), forwards: Smith (4), C. Chambers (3), Riggins (3), guards.
Referee—Abe Demmenberg, Birmingham.

W. M. U. Annual Meeting In Mobile

The State W. M. U. Convention will meet in the First Baptist church, in Mobile, March 11-13, 1941.

The opening session will be Tuesday, March 11, at 1:30 p.m. The convention will adjourn Thursday, March 13 at 12:00 noon.

Some of the featured speakers are: Miss Willie Kelley, Shanghai, China; Dr. W. E. Craighead, Bessabara, Brazil; Mrs. Aaron Hancock, Indian Missionary; Miss Mary Christian W. M. U. Training School, Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Frances Broyles and Mrs. R. M. Averitt, So. Alabama Missionaries.

One of the stated attractions is the Azalea Trail trip Tuesday immediately following the afternoon session of the Convention.

Because of the unusually large crowd expected in Mobile at this meeting, it will be necessary to send reservations at an early date. If you plan to stay with relatives or friends please notify the hospitality chairman anyway of your coming and give her the names of relatives or friends with whom you plan to stay.

Send reservations to Mrs. A. B. McLean, 1913, Hunter Ave., Mobile, Hospitality Chairman.

Postmasters Plan Big Doings In Mobile

Hon. Michael J. O'Rourke, of Beverly Hills, Calif. President of the National Association of Postmasters, will be the keynote speaker on the program of the Alabama Chapter which will hold its meeting in Mobile on Monday and Tuesday, March 17th and 18th. With him will come Hon. Walter Myers, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General of Washington, D. C. Others on the program will be Hon. W. B. Wooten, Inspector in Charge from Chattanooga and Congressman Frank W. Boykin.

According to postmaster R. W. Lowe, the entire program is a strong combination of pleasure and business, with a setting in the Admiral Semmes Hotel, its headquarters, and the Azalea season to lend charm and beauty. The idea of each county attending in a unit has taken well all over the state, and it now appears that every car that heads toward Mobile will be loaded with postmasters of all classes, together with their wives.

YES, CHILEAN SODA is good because it's "Natchel"

LOOK AHEAD—ALABAMA—PAVE WITH CONCRETE

ROAD TINKERING IS COSTLY.
MAKE THE MAINTENANCE DOLLAR
DO FULL DUTY

To get the most out of surface maintenance funds pavements must be of concrete.

This statement is proved by actual cost figures from the twenty-one states which publish comparable records.

And here's what they show! Surface maintenance costs for concrete average only $97.99 per mile per year. For the next lowest paying material the cost is almost double that of concrete. And for all surfaces other than concrete, the cost averages 3 1/4 times as great—although concrete in general carries the heaviest amount of traffic.

Concrete Costs Least

Concrete gives the greatest load-carrying capacity per dollar of cost. It is the safest road—non-skid, highly visible. And it saves large sums on maintenance. All good reasons why your new roads should be concrete.

Sunday School Lesson

THE AUTHORITY OF CHRIST

Golden Text: "Why call ye me, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" Luke 6: 46.

Lesson Text: Luke 19: 1-20: 8

The opening verses of the nineteenth chapter of Luke tell of the conversation of Zachaeus, a very wealthy but sinful Jew. That his conversion was real was evidenced by his changed life. A. B. Davidson describes him thus: "How low Zachaeus, how high he rose! From being hard, he became very merciful; and from being niggard and unjust, romantically liberal—a true child of Abraham, the friend of God. Think of him as he was, and as he became: born again, his flesh became as the flesh of a little child; and his were a child's feelings, a child's repentance, a child's ingenuousness of confession, a child's heart and liberality, a child's resolutions."

Then, Luke tells of the parable of the ten pounds, which should not be confused with the somewhat similar, though in parts definitely different parable of the talents, found in Matthew 25: 14-30. Between the utterance of the parable of the ten pounds and the Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem occurred the beautiful account of devotion—the anointing of Jesus by Mary of Bethany, recorded in Matthew (26: 6-13), in Mark (14: 3-8) and in greatest detail by John (11: 55-21), but omitted entirely by Luke.

While en route to Jerusalem for the Triumphal Entry, Jesus was traveling the road over the Mount of Olives from Bethany. At a certain turn in the curving, mountainous road, the whole city of Jerusalem became visible. Here it must have been that Jesus stopped with his disciples, and looked upon that beloved city, and wept. Was it strange that he, knowing full well that shortly an enthusiastic and adoring throng would welcome him into that city, anxious to proclaim him, King, should weep?

R. C. Trench says: "He knew that all this joy, this jubilant burst, as it seemed of a people's gladness, was but a fire among straw, which blazes up for an instant and then quickly expires, leaving nothing but a handful of black ashes behind it. He knew that of this giddy thoughtless multitude, many who now cried, 'Hosanna, blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord,' would ere a little week was ended, join their voices with the voices of them who exclaimed 'Crucify Him, crucify Him; we have no king but Caesar; and He wept, not for Himself, but for them for the doom which they were preparing for the city, for their children, for themselves."

The detailed prophecy of Jesus concerning Jerusalem was literally fulfilled forty years afterwards, in 70 A.D., at the siege of Jerusalem under Titus. F. W. Farrar describes it thus: "The city was first surrounded with a palisaded mound and then with a wall of masonry. The blockade established was so terribly rigid that myriads of the Jews we are thankful to report this. There are a couple of new cases of measles. We are sorry to saw that the death angel visited our church group and deacons from us. "Build-Up" Good News For Suffering Women

Much of women's periodic distress may be unnecessary!

Many who suffer from headaches, nervousness, cramp-like pain, other symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition are helped by CARDUI.

Main way it helps relieve periodic distress is by increasing appetite and flow of gastric juice. Thus it often aids digestion; helps build strength, energy, resistance to periodic disturbances.

Others find help for periodic discomfort this way. Start a few days before and take CARDUI until "the time" has passed. Women have used CARDUI more than 50 years.

perished of starvation. As regards the phrase "shall lay thee even with the ground," Titus accomplished this prophecy wholly against his will, being driven to utter subversion and destruction of the city by the desperate obstinacy of the Jews. Josephus says, that it was so frightfully desolated by the siege, that any Jew coming suddenly upon it would have asked what place it was!

The second cleansing of the Temple followed the next day after Jesus' triumphal entry into Jerusalem. Angered because the religious leaders had devoted a part of the temple to the business of buying and selling, Jesus drove "out them that sold, saying unto them: It is written, and my house shall be a house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of robbers."

Seeking means whereby they might bring charges against him "to destroy him," the chief priests and the scribes, with the elders came to him to question by what authority "doest thou these things?" or who is he that gave thee this authority? Jesus did not answer their queries directly for two reasons. First, because he knew they were not sincerely desirous of knowing the true answer to their question—they only wanted to entrap him to accomplish their own ends; and, second, they had already done their minds as to the character and person of Christ. He knew they were determined to kill him and he felt under no obligation whatever to answer any question asked by lips from hearts set on murder. Rather, he asked them a question which for them, was unanswerable.

So, we see, that in the conversion of Zachaeus, it is He who seeks and saves the lost; in the parable of the pounds, it is He who distributes possessions and calls for an accounting; King; it is He who cleanses the temple; in the subsequent argument which arose, it is His authority that is questioned, Christ is the Master of the universe, is He the Master of your heart?

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

We can't wait to tell this one on Bernice Vance, who left last week with the drafters for Fort McLean at Annapolis.

A First Lieutenant was heard ordering Bernice, "Stand at attention, Vance." And Vance was heard to reply, "I am sir, it's the uniform that's at ease."

Two farmers were passing on the street Saturday in front of the H. White Shell Station. Incidentally it was the formal opening and business was booming. Horsley had three mighty pretty girls working that day, taking names and addresses and giving away glasses. The pretty girls also had on costumes of red and orange carrying out the Shell colors, with very abbreviated skirts. Those two farmers were so engrossed in watching the young girls or either the beautiful new station that they bumped head-on causing quite a bit of merriment for the onlookers.

Speaking of the new Shell Service Station's formal opening, Horsley White reports that he gave away nearly three thousand glasses and sold more than two thousand gallons of gasoline. The Trade Day. Horsley was also fair enough to give the newspapers credit for a large part of the success and we appreciate it.

Just about all of Clanton turned out last Saturday night to see the Basketball game. Clanton was running again this year but dropped the first game to Sidney Lanier of Montgomery. Last year Clanton was eliminated in the last game by Selma.

This is a tale about Murphy, the shine boy at Ideal Barber Shop. As the story was told to us, Murphy came down Sunday morning somewhat under the weather. It seems that there was a party Saturday night and Murphy had attended. Sunday morning when he got down to the barber shop he was still a bit shaky. Now when your nerves are on edge is no time to clean your gun, but Murphy didn't know this and proceeded with the gun cleaning. While occupied thus he looked up in the mirror and saw that line the shop and saw a negro with a gun on him. Before thinking, he raised his revolver and banged away at himself in the mirror. Harvey Clecker is still looking for Murphy. The repairs came at $20.00.

Gulfride Service Station has changed hands. Julius Smith has sold out to Ben Studdard, who is Gulf Distributor in this district. Julius didn't tell us exactly what he was going into and away we wish him the best of luck and to Ben Studdard we also wish the best. Ben is a newcomer to Clanton, coming from Blount County, Ala., where he was in the oil business before making this his home.

Howard Thomas has also gone into the Filling Station Business, buying out the Kemp, who operated the Wococo filling station on the highway south of town. Howard is a new man here and should do well in this undertaking.

March 31 or April 5th is Alabama's Clean Week. Plans have been made for observance in every County in the state and you will hear much about the doings later in the month.

We just must compliment the City again on this job of cleaning up the alleys and grading them around town. Nothing could have been better or appreciated more by the people. When they do a good job like this one tell them about it. There is one who does not like a word of praise when they have done a good job.

White Expresses His Appreciation

Horsley White wishes to express his appreciation to the people of Clanton and Chilton County for the wonderful way in which they received the grand opening of his Shell Service Station last Friday. He says that it was a big success and he wants all of his friends and customers to come to his new station where he will give them the best quality and service in all of merchandise and guaranteed satisfaction.

Mr. and Mrs. Euell Clark have as their guest Miss Mildred Elliott of Birmingham.

Clanton Loses To Lanier In Finals Of Tournament

Isabella Eliminated In Semi-Finals By Clanton By Decisive Score

(By Clark Headley)

Chilton County High, the terror of the Third District, came out of the Saturday High Gymnasium on Saturday night holding second place instead of first place honors as had been predicted so many times this season. It was at the hands of Joe Riley's Sidney Lanier Poets, that Coach Dewey L. Cox's team bowed to a score of 27 to 21.

Before the final game, to the opinion of almost everyone, it was just murder for Lanier to tangle with a team that had scored 288 points to their opponents' 45 in the four games. Clanton had already played in the tournament. But it seemed that Lanier had saved their energy for the Clanton boys and stepped in taking a four point lead in the first minute of the game, which Clanton was unable to overcome. At the halfway mark, the score was well in Lanier's favor.

Clanton pulled out of the big Lanier lead in the last half and played much better ball than in the first, the game ending with Clanton trailing only 6 points, which makes the second consecutive year Clanton has come from the same court with second place honors. Having captured first place in the '38-'39 season. Later winning the State championship at Tuscaloosa.

Record Crowd Witnesses Game. We believe one of the largest crowds ever, followed the Clanton team Saturday night, and we know it was the most enthusiastic representation ever following a Clanton team anywhere. The ending was packed and jammed with Clanton fans that were yelling their lungs out for dear old Chilton County High. But, after the game, we don't believe we ever saw as many tears shed because of a team's losing. The Clanton boys were really hurt, and you can bet your last dime they're going to try and make up for it all this week end in.

Recreational Center For City Seems A Certainty

The Municipal Recreation Center and Swimming Pool for Clanton was virtually a certainty Tuesday afternoon when the committee met and assembled figures on what had been done to date on raising monies for the project.

The Federal Government was to put up $4,000 and the City of Clanton $3,000 to build a $7,000 swimming pool and park on the property already owned by the City North of town.

The Civic Clubs and citizens of Clanton decided to raise the money by subscription as the City treasury was in no condition to finance the project.

What is needed to finish the amount required will be raised by selling season passes to the pool after it is completed. These passes will probably be printed with amounts up to five dollars on them to be used at the discretion of the holder. The amount already raised is well above two thousand dollars.

Business Men's Club Postpones Meeting

The meeting that was scheduled for last Tuesday night by the Clanton Business men at the City Hall was postponed until next Tuesday night at the same time. The committee, consisting of Frank Scott, of Mullins & Scott; Reddie Taylor, of Chicago Sales Company; Chick Fiquette, of City Grocery; Ben Margolis, of The Leader and Leonard Farley of Alred Drug Company, were unable to complete arrangements thereby necessitating the postponement.

NYA Project Begins At CCC Encampment

The work of maintaining, beautifying and adding to local C. C. camp has been turned over the N. Y. A. boys. Mr. B. W. Ware has been made supervisor of the work. While the work has begun, there is still room for 14 more boys from 17 to 24 years of age. Mr. Ware says the work is to be divided into two shifts. Shift No. 1 will work 40 hours one week, then 38 hours one week. Then off for two weeks, then work again. Shift No. 2 will work while No. 1 is out. Anyone interested in this project is urged to let Mr. Ware at the CCC camp or Miss Sims on Tuesday, over Levine's Store and get assigned to the work. Will consider some colored boys for this work.

Kiwanis Issue Bulletin On Club Program

The proof of the pudding is the eating. We appreciate the words of encouragement we received on the last bulletin. We were repaid for our efforts with this encouragement.

This is your bulletin. We want your advice. Give us some suggestions. If you live to be an old, old man you will never live down missing Tom Seary's program last meeting. It was an excellent program.

John Hollis, as usual, delivered a splendid induction speech. John gives us a good talk.

Patterson Hicks is to be congratulated for the inspiring talk he made on Service. He gave us something to think about. We should be better Kiwanians for having heard his talk.

WELCOME into the club, Red Glasscock, Thomas Cassidy, and Ewell Clark. We hope that you will give the club your best support.

Sorry that some of the other members could not be present for the induction meeting Tom. We hope that you can have every member of the club present for the next.

We missed the following members at the last meeting: Judge John Lee Smith, Dr. V. J. Gragg, Ruben Lowe, W. C. Nuss, Rascoe Maddox, Leonard Williams, Burton Mullins, Oscar Davis, Pat Smith and Gene Wyatt. Come on boys, we have a treat in store for you at this week's meeting.

Jimmie Bell is assigned to the Public Affairs Committee, Thomas Cassidy to the religious Educational Committee and Ewell Clark to the Underprivileged Children's Committee.

Remember the show coming, Golgotha sponsored by the club to be shown at the Chilton County High School Auditorium March 31. Please give your every effort in helping to put this show over to a Kiwanis fashion.

Please remember that we can't pay our bills without your club luncheon fees. John Page has charge of the program this week. Every effort is being made to get an out of town speaker who has a great reputation as a speaker. We are looking forward to this program. Don't miss it.

—Horton and Hollis.

Business in Clanton is improving, according to reports that we hear. Everybody should share in the increased turnover of money.

Cemetery Receives Much Needed Cleaning

An orchid to Clanton's new Mayor and Council.

The Cemetery that seems to have been an orphan up until now, has been taken under the wing of the City and much needed improvements have been made. In the past there has been a controversy as to just who has been responsible to this work and various clubs and organizations have done the job. Since the City has assumed responsibility it is hoped that this will settle that question once and for all.

EMPLOYEE OF HILL GROCERY INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

W. C. Rowe, employee of Hill Grocery Company here, was painfully but not seriously injured in an automobile wreck at Sylacauga last Saturday night. He is in the Sylacauga Infirmary. Complete details are not known but a telephone conversation with his wife revealed that he was suffering from a wrenched back.

BUD COOK, NEW MANAGER AT GULFRIDE SERVICE STATION

Bud Cook of Selma, has been made manager of the Gulfride Service Station, it was announced this week by B. N. Studdard, owner.

Mr. Studdard states also that the station will specialize in lubrication work as Mr. Cook is a specialist in this line and has had years experience.

CLANTON BLOSSOM SHOP

The Clanton Blossom Shop and the Clanton Beauty Shop have moved into the building formerly occupied by Dr. Napoleon Johnson. Since the death of Dr. Johnson the office has been closed.

The Blossom Shop will occupy the front of the building and the Beauty shop will have the quarters in the rear.

DR. GRAGG TO VISIT NEW ORLEANS AND CANAL ZONE

Dr. V. J. Gragg left Monday for New Orleans, where he will attend a convention of the New Orleans Graduate Medical Assembly, in meeting on way and another through this week: on Saturday the doctors will take a boat for Havana, Cuba, and the Canal Zone.

Mrs. Gragg will join the doctor the latter part of the week and will make the cruise with the assembly.

Dr. Gragg states that the doctors will visit hospitals in Havana, the Loper Colony, George Hospital, and the United Fruit Company's hospital in Honduras.

It will be March 24th before Dr. and Mrs. Gragg will be back in his office in Clanton, and he wishes his friends and patients informed of the fact.

Airplane production in the United States passed the thousand-mark this month; it will soon pass the 2,000-mark.

Governor Proclaims "Alabama Products Week" March 31 - April 5

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—Calling upon all citizens of Alabama to join with him in a campaign to focus attention of four people on the importance of knowing and using products of Alabama farms and factories as one means of building Alabama. Gov. Frank M. Dixon has, by proclamation, designated the week of March 31-April 5 as Alabama Products Week.

The Proclamation which asks for "the energy and intelligence of every Alabamian in this great program to attain the maximum development of our state" follows:

"WHEREAS, the important work of Building Alabama is the direct responsibility of Alabamians themselves; and "WHEREAS, the energy and intelligence of every Alabamian must be enlisted in this great program to attain

High School-Town Football Game Gaining Interest

Since the High School began Spring Practice this week, the anticipated football game between the school and former football stars of the school is gaining considerable interest. In fact, plans are almost complete with something like sixteen former players already listed. Due to the fact that shoes must be provided, it is asked that everyone wishing to participate in the game see "Red" Mims, Clark Headley, or Blondie Taylor and give them the size of shoes you wear so that Mr. Spicer can get you fitted up. We are also asked to announce that all those wishing to play meet at the high school Sunday afternoon.

MAJOR BOWES AMATEUR SHOW AT CITY HALL

Contestants for the prizes given by the Clanton Grammar School Parent-Teachers Association are coming in and those who wish to try out had better get in touch at once with Mrs. Poarch at the Grammar School.

The show will be a Major Bowes Amateur Contest and will be presented at the City Hall Friday night, March 14th. Proceeds to be used at the Grammar School.

PILOT CLUB MET LAST WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The Clanton Pilot Club met last Wednesday night at the Methodist church. A very interesting initiation program in charge of Mrs. Mary Will Browder and Miss Ruth Sessions was enjoyed. The following new members were initiated: Miss Ada Bennett, Mrs. O'Dell Headley, Mrs. Hollis Jackson, Mrs. A. B. Foshee, and Mrs. Pat Smith. Mrs. N. S. Johnson and Mrs. W. M. Folk, Sr. were guests of the Club.

Peach and Strawberry Growers To Meet

The Chilton County Strawberry and Peach Growers will hold a meeting at the Courthouse in Clanton on Saturday, March 15th, according to a statement by Roy Roper, president made to a News representative this week.

All members and others interested in Strawberry and Peach growing in the County are urged to be present for this meeting. Ten o'clock is the time set for the gathering.

"GOLGOTHA"

Clanton Kiwanis Club has arranged to show on Monday, March 31st, in the High School Gymnasium, one of the most unusual talking motion pictures ever made. The title of the picture is "GOLGOTHA", and it is the first and only talking motion picture ever made of the famous Passion Play. This picture is an immortal story of the crucifixion of Christ in a spectacular and impressive manner. Critics everywhere have acclaimed it the greatest picture of its kind ever made. This remarkable picture should be seen by every man, woman and child in this community. A complete set of the finest talking motion picture equipment will be brought to this city for the showing of the picture. This equipment includes a special projector, a complete sound system and a modern screen. As a result, you will be able to see and hear this picture perfectly.

See and hear the romantic couple, Jeanette McDonald and Nelson Eddy, the enchanting Shirley Temple; the exquisite Deanna Durbin. Forget your troubles and laugh as the Women's Society of Christian Service presents its 1941 Easter Fashion Show. The wittiest combination of comedy and dancing with beautiful models showing new Spring dresses and coats, new ideas, costumes, new collifures, ideas practical yet beautiful.

Entertaining! Enchanting! Different. March 28, at City Hall.

WILEY BEAN EX-PLAINS; PLEADS FOR COOPERATION

To The People of Chilton County:

Again I wish to call attention to the matter about sale of milk for the people of this county. When I wrote the article to the county papers last week I was not in possession of some information which I have received since. On last Wednesday I had the pleasure of talking with the representatives of Nestle's Milk Co., a man who knows milk and dairying in general. From this man I got some very helpful information regarding the milk project here in Chilton County. This man representing Nestle's Milk Co., one of the largest milk concerns in the U. S., told me that his company is very anxious to buy milk and he is ready to show or help show-up Chilton County in this matter to the interest of the people of the county. He is a man who spoke with authority.

The matter, as I understand it, is like this: if the farmers and milk producers of Chilton county and some of the adjoining counties, if they wish, will join in this matter and manifest an interest in this to the extent that the Nestle's Milk Co. can feel justified, the Company will come into this county, establish milk routes, hire men to operate the routes, set in a cooler and washer, and gather up the milk at the farmers' doors every day and pay the same price as the milk paid producers of milk everywhere in the United States. Now, I wish to call attention to the price of milk which appeared in the questionnaire sent out by the County Agent last week. I remember the price mentioned in that questionnaire was 13c per gallon. I was fearful that this price would be very misleading to many and I find it has been. I wish to say that 13c per gallon is for the lowest grade of milk. To make the matter clear, the representative of the Nestle's Milk Co. told me that the milk on present prices would be from $1.50 per hundred weight according to the grade. The milk will be tested daily, each person's milk kept separate from others for the test and each person will receive pay according to his or her milk test. This is fair and this will assure every one getting what is coming to him or her. At these figures you can readily see that I said in my article last week that I said in my article last week and hoping to build to the greatest.

Mrs. Horace Popwell, Member Of Pioneer Family Passes Here

Mrs. Claudie Beatrice Popwell, age 42, died early Wednesday morning after a long illness. Members of a prominent family and scores of friends in Clanton and Chilton county will mourn her passing.

Born in Rockford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McCullers and later moving to Prattville where she was reared, Mrs. Popwell made many friends in this section of the State. Funeral services were held Thursday morning from Clanton Baptist church. J. M. Martin and Sons in charge. Interment in Clanton cemetery.

She is survived by her husband, Horace Popwell, one daughter, Alene; four sons, Billie, Raymond, Ben and Grill also her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Walter McCullers, four brothers and six sisters.

Pallbearers will be: Grady Hefflin, Dr. J. P. Hayes, Dr. W. C. Golden, Julius Smith, R. M. Tucker, Jimmie Bell, Otis Miller, J. B. Downs, Jr., Alonzo Robinson and W. W. Wingard. Rev. Oscar Davis will conduct funeral services.

to consider this will answer that questionnaire and return it to our county agent. It is a chance of a lifetime for the people of Chilton county to get something good that will help all.

If you do not have the questionnaire, please call upon the county agent and get one and give this matter your consideration. You have nothing to lose; you go in with no one; if it is not a good thing, you have all you might have put into it with doubtless a good profit. Think on this and answer that questionnaire without any obligation on your part whatever.

Others are making good at this; why can't we? Please think on this and let's give it a trial.

Tuscaloosa at the State Tournament. You can also place your bet that Clanton will be well represented there too. If they go into the finals Saturday night, which the Clanton team declares they're going to do. They'll say they owe the Clanton delegation something and are going into the State meet scrapping to come out ahead.

Clanton Settles With Isabella
Isabella High, who came from the tournament one step below Clanton holding third place, really let themselves be known in Selma over the week end, by playing some basketball what would be a credit to anybody's school.

It was Saturday afternoon at 2:00 when Isabella bowed to Clanton for their second time this season, after having defeated a crippled Clanton team a week before, for Clanton's only high school defeat of the season, previous to the tournament. Clanton went into the Isabella game determined to win, and did so 53 to 14. With the second team doing a majority of the work in the last half. The Isabella boys though have really got plenty of basketball in them and showed it when they defeated Parrish High to a score of 27 to 14 in a well-played exhibition, backed by the yelling of Clanton fans rooting for Isabella.

Jemison and Maplesville also put up a good fight, although they were both conquered Friday. Lanier stepped on Maplesville and Clanton caught Jemison Friday afternoon.

VISITING THE BRICK KILN

Our science class was studying building materials, so we thought we would like to visit the brick kiln at Lomax. The day after we had decided to go, a number of the class went to the depot to see how much it would cost each of us to ride the train. We found that if we were under twelve years of age, we would only have to pay five cents each, and if we were over twelve it would cost ten cents each.

The next day we made our plans to go. It was decided that we would leave the school room at 9:00 o'clock so we could get our tickets in time. We thought it would be a good idea to have four groups of boys and girls, and a leader for each group. Nila Henley, Thomas Martin, Nelva Yates and Tommie D. Hollan were chosen as leaders.

Thursday morning when the recess bell rang, we all went to the front of the school building and Miss Ousley, our teacher, made our pictures. We made lots of pictures on the trip. Jim Murr and Charles Crossman had been chosen as policemen for the class who walked ahead of us, and when we came to a street they would stop us and look up and down the street to see if any cars were coming.

When we got to the depot we all got in line to get our tickets. Counting Miss Ousley, there were thirty-one of us. Several of the boys and girls had never ridden on a train before. It was lots of fun for us all.

After we got our tickets, Louise Nichols found that she had a stub. She showed it to the ticket agent and he gave her the right ticket and asked, "Does anyone else have a stub?"

When the train came puffing in, we were so excited! We all got in line, of course our policemen first.

The conductor helped us on the train and he said, "I am going to carry you all to see Hitler" of course he was joking.

After he had shown us how they make the Porter came around saying, "Candy, candy, peanuts." Some of the boys and girls bought some.

When we got to Lomax the conductor said in a tickish voice, "All off for Lomax." We all got off, there we saw the brick kiln right ahead of us.

After we got to the brick kiln, Miss Ousley told us to wait and she would look for Mr. Reynolds, the owner, whom we had written to about coming. He was to show us around. He was very nice and told us all about how the brick were made.

After he had shown us how they make the brick and how they put them on little cars to be sent to the kiln. He told us how they made the different colors of brick by heating them a certain length of time.

After we had seen all the brick kiln, we went to see a saw mill, but we did not get to go through it and see it in operation.

So then we were ready to go home.

We had walked about a mile and came by a colored school and as we passed we saw some of the boys and girls outside and some at the windows.

We walked and walked until I thought we would never get back to school.

When we came to the bridge near the cotton mill, we stopped and rested for awhile. We knew we must hurry for it looked as if it would come a cloud burst any minute.

When we got to the school house the lunch bell was ringing. We were glad we were back for it had really begun to rain.

Louise Hand and Grace Miller didn't get to go. They missed lots of fun, because it was a fine trip.

—TOMMIE DEAN HOLLAN.

Mrs. Herbert Klinger and children of Montevallo spent last week end in Clanton.

The W. M. U. of the Clanton Baptist church began the observance of the Week of Prayer for Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. J. P. Hayes. The group sang the hymn for the year, "Jesus Saves" and Mrs. Hayes led in prayer. A brief business session was held followed by a program with Circle One in charge. The most interesting and inspiring program for the Week of Prayer is "I Am A Debtor, Am I Ready?" Mrs. Chas. Wade gave the devotional with prayer by Mrs. W. L. Mullins. Offering on the program were Mrs. W. C. Gold- en, Mrs. J. D. Bell, Mrs. Leo Thompson, Mrs. R. M. Tucker and Mrs. Julius Smith.

The program was closed with scripture and prayer read by Mrs. Gold- en after which the Annie Armstrong offering was taken. "Circle count was made and the Pin goes to Mrs. Hous- ton Nivern for a while. The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. E. E. Upchurch.

Circles will meet as follows next Monday:

Circle One, Mrs. Frank Foshee at 2:30; Circle Two, Mrs. Geo. J. Jester, 3:00; Circle Three, Mrs. J. W. Wood, 3:00; Circle Four, Mrs. J. D. Griffin, 3:00; Circle Five, Mrs. J. B. Atkin- son, 3:00.

The Jr. G. A. Girls were guests last week of Peggy Burns, with eleven members and one visitor present. Their leader Mrs. R. M. Tucker gave the devotional and told them about the origin of the Annie Armstrong offering. All members present took part in scrip- ture readings. Mrs. Burgess served punch and cookies to those present and the meeting was dismissed with Mes- sah to meet March 13th, at the home of Elizabeth Easterling at 3:15.

This week is being observed as the "Week of Prayer at the Clanton Baptist Church. There will be a program at 3:00 each afternoon and on Friday an all day meeting beginning at 10:00 and adjourning at 2:30. Those who at- tend are to bring lunch. Mrs. Frank Scott will teach the Home Mission Book "Trail of Seed" at the Friday meeting. If you are a W. M. U. mem- ber you are urged to be present and we cordially invite all visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. Spurgeon Caloway and Mrs. R. R. Franklin visited Mrs. Caloway's brother in Opp, Ala. last Wed- nesday.

Mrs. J. W. Williams was honored last Thursday with a handkerchief shower at the home of Mrs. Jimmie Bell. There were love tokens of a group of her friends who sincerely hate to see her leave Clanton. Mr. Williams has been transferred to Dothan, Alabama. Happy landings, Mr. and Mrs. Williams in your new home.

Miss Ada Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gore, Mrs. H. M. Newell and Edith and Juanita spent last Sunday in Birmingham.

Mrs. Jack Clouds of Decatur was in town several days last week on busi- ness.

Miss Mildred Gore and Nanette Dodd visited friends in Decatur Sun- day.

Clarence A. Bazzel Is Wed To Miss Mary Elizabeth Peavy

Miss Mary Elizabeth Peavy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Peavy, of this City, was married to Mr. Clarence Arthur Bazzel, of Tuskegee, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bazzel, of Clanton, a pretty ceremony on Saturday. The marriage claims wide spread interest and took place at 4 o'clock in the after- noon at the Dauphin Way Methodist church.

Rev. P. S. Hudson, pastor, officiated. A lovely background was arranged of southern simlax and greens interming- led with almond blossoms.

Following the ceremony, Mrs. Mer- cedith White, organist, and Mrs. Hubert Kimbrough, soloist, presented the mus- ical numbers. Mrs. Kimbrough singing, "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly." The traditional Lohengrin and Mendelssohn wedding marches were played for the processional and recession.

Mrs. Shain Howell attended her sis- ter as matron of honor. She wore a lovely dusty pink ensemble of silk crepe with a picture hat of the same shade of felt. Her accessories were beige and she carried an arm bouquet of pink tulips and blue lilies.

Ann Howell, attractive little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howell, was the junior bridesmaid and was a charming figure in her dress of white georgette. She wore a pink poke bonnet made of shirred chiffon and carried a dainty old fashioned bouquet of pink and white carnations.

The bride, who entered on the arm of her father was lovely figure wear- ing a costume suit of seafam blue, a Carnegie model. The dress was of silk crepe and the coat with which it was worn was a wool of matching color. She wore a chic hat of Maynor straw in the navy blue shade, trimmed in a lighter shade of blue. Her accessories were navy. She carried an arm cluster of pink roses. Her "going away" corsage was a pink camellias.

Mr. Thomas Bazzel, of Clanton, was best man to the bride. Serving as ushers were Messrs. Thomas Kendall Peavy, brother of the bride; Shain Howell, John Kimbrough and George Whittington.

Mrs. A. A. Bazzel, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in a powder blue dress adorned with a corsage of pink roses and wore beige accessories. Mrs. John R. Peavy, the bride's mother, wore a pretty rose corsage dress with black accessories. Her corsage was of blue lilies and fuchsia carnations.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bazzel of Clanton; Mr. Thomas Bazzel, Clanton; Mrs. Albert Ernest and sons, Albert and Bob, of Savannah, and Mrs. S. G. Griffith, of Savannah, aunt of the bride; Mrs. John Kimbrough, aunt of the bride, of Dem- polis; Miss Clara Kimbrough, of Mont- gomery; Miss Bess Barker, of Tuske- gee; Mr. George Balfoush, of Birming- ham; and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Johnson, of Bay Minette.

(Clipped from Mobile-Press Register)

Mrs. Arthur Johnson went to Birming- ham Monday.

Mrs. Grady Reynolds was in Mont- gomery last Monday.

We were glad to see Rev. and Mrs. Daniels of Montgomery in town Mon- day.

Rascoe Connell left Sunday for Colum- bus, Ga., where he has accepted a job.

Mrs. K. A. Hardy and children of St. Louis are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Mims.

SOCIAL CASTE SYSTEM CRACKING UNDER STRESS OF BRITISH UNITY

By HUGH WAGNON

Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON—A silent economic and social revolution is rumoring beneath the surface of a Britain united to win the war and, above all, united to win a better life for the average man who has proved himself a hero under bomb attacks.

The social caste system which molded English life from feudal times appears to be cracking under the necessity of the nation standing as one against the Axis.

The wartime planned economy is effecting changes in the nation's busi- ness and industrial life so drastic that none expect a return to pre-war con- ditions. Some businesses are gone, new to return. Workers are promised a large share in the profits of industry and restoration of the rights set aside by the wartime urgency for "all-out" production of war weapons without re- gard to any other consideration.

Britain's place in the world economy also is shifting inevitably. The war- even though it be a victorious one— may cost the nation its ancient leader- ship of the financial world. The future Britain may be no longer the world's counting-houses and trade center.

Many foresee her role as that of a little, little half-farm, half-factory island, exporting cutlery, airplane en- gines and emigrants to America and to dominions more free from London control and influence than ever before.

Exploitation Is Doomed

Whatever the war brings, most Brit- ons are agreed that the nation will never return to the "bad old days" of laissez faire methods of exploiting la- bor, consumers and "public" schools for the select few.

Promises of a more democratic social framework and a better economic deal for the average man are cloaked in generalities by Prime Minister Win- ston Churchill as well as every other political leader, but the presence of powerful socialist leaders in the gov- ernment may be indicative of the trend likely to be carried forward after the war.

One of the most influential men, Labor Minister Ernest Bevin, discuss- ing "how Britain we want to see" de- clared "socialist principles are of im- mense value when applied to the necessities of war and the prospects of the world that follows a war."

Admitting that no one can foresee the Bevin added, "we must guide our people to a new world order" involving "a willingness to restrict voluntarily our sovereignty and acceptance of obligations to work with others in the world in a great common endeavor to produce a higher civilization."

A hint of the shape of the new Brit- ain that Bevin wants to see was out- lined in 1937 in this program publicly attributed to him:

1. Nationalization of all transport, rail and water.

2. State control of the Bank of Eng- land.

3. Public ownership of all coal, gas, electric and oil resources of the coun- try.

Bevin holds that disarmament for the victor and vanquished alike must be the alternative to balance of power and policy of power politics, etc. if we are to achieve correct economic devel- opment and save the world from re- curring wars."

First Baptist Church

Oscar A. Davis, Pastor

Clanton, Alabama

Members of the Clanton Baptist church who have met in the small auditorium of the church for the last two Sunday will, on next Sunday morning gather in the church auditorium.

Our improvement project considered for years is now nearing completion resulting in increased space, convenience and beauty of the church auditorium. The project includes a new baptistry, copper lined, located conveniently at the front of the auditorium, elevated choir space equipped with opera chairs, together with enlarged rostrum and pulpit accommodations. The placing of a stained glass window back of the baptistry is also contemplated, but cannot be installed for some weeks yet.

The Sunday School has recently pro- vided separate class rooms in two de- partments and plans further expendi- tures in equipment and improvement of teaching facilities. Within the last eight months the Clanton Baptist church has executed repairs and im- provements in the church plant of ap- proximately $2,000.

IN MEMORY OF MOTHER

Tuesday night, February 25th, God saw fit to take our dear mother. She was 60 years of age.

Mother has been in bad health for the past 2 years, but seemed to be as well as usual when she retired Tuesday night. She was found dead Wednes- day a.m. apparently from a heart at- tack.

She leaves to mourn here going, six children, who loved her more than we could ever prove and it seems impos- sible to go on without her, yet we are thankful for such a kind, loving moth- er. Each child hopes the other will follow in mother's footsteps and in the end be a complete happy family.—The children.

STAMPED AND DELIVERED

A practical difficulty in buying votes is the fact that after one is bought the bum may go down the other side of the street and sell it again—to the opposition. But in times past a certain adjoining county a system was developed whereby the bum stayed bought. The man with the pay-off roll stands close to the voting booth. He tells the boss how to vote. If the boss votes like he's bought to vote, the election clerk stamps the palm of his hand with an ink stamp.

Thus certified, the voter returns to the man with the roll. He opens his palm, exposing his ink stamp certificate, and the fellow places on it the amount that is being paid for votes that day.—Grover C. Hall, Jr., Alabama Journal.

They return and call up the merchants and business men and give them a fast line of hokey about their business and asking them to take a $3.50 ad in such and such paper. Most of the merchants have been taken in this sort of thing before and just hang up the receiver but a certain percentage of them will get stuck.

Last week 12 businesses in Andalusia paid $3.50 each or the sum of $42.00 for a space worth $9.60 in a newspaper published in another county. They could have purchased the same space their ads actually received in any Covington County newspaper for 50c each.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

At one time Henry Clay owed the bank quite a sum of money. This debt was worrying the great Statesman and unknown to him a few friends contributed the money and went to the bank and settled the note. Later Henry came to the president of the bank and said, "Sir, I have come to see you about my debt." "You owe us nothing," replied the banker. "A number of your friends contributed the money and your debt is settled." Tears rushed to the eyes of Mr. Clay and he turned and walked out of the bank unable to speak. When a man has friends who will lift his burdens, they are worth more than language can describe. It is so like God when those who love us come to help us when we are unable to help ourselves....

One day I visited a home in which was an adopted boy. He was not much for looks, but I saw that a fine spirit was glimmering from his countenance. There was something in that boy that drew me to him. He was sent to the barn to hitch up my horse to the buggy and when he drove around to the gate I went out and he and I were there alone for a moment. I said to him, "Son, you seem to be having a pretty hard time here, but keep a good heart and you will come out all right. I have always noticed that a boy who had a red head and a freckled face, can not be trampled down". That boy looked at me with an expression of affection and confidence that went like an arrow to my heart. I love him and he loved me. Did he make good? If you were to see him today as manager of a great business you would have your answer. We will never forget that day when we looked into each other's heart at the gate of that country home. A kind word, how it helps....

CHRIST REJECTED

Golden Text: "Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you shamefully, for all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake."—Matthew 5: 11

Lesson Text:—Luke 20: 9-20

Our lesson for this week follows immediately after that of last week and is a continuation of Jesus' answer to the Sanhedrin when they questioned him regarding his authority. As a matter of fact, all of the events recorded in Luke 20 to Luke 21: 5, took place in Jerusalem proper, during what we have come to call Passion Week, or the week immediately preceding his crucifixion.

Matthew followed Jesus' declaration of his authority with the parable of the two sons (Matt 21: 28-32) but both Luke and Mark omit this parable. Still other attempts were made during the day to ensnare Jesus. He was asked by the Pharisees and Herodians about the tribute money: the Sadducees asked Jesus about the resurrection; a scribe asked him what he considered the great commandment. Jesus again denounced the scribes and gave us the beautiful story of the widow's mite. Following this, Jesus went out from Jerusalem with his apostles for a talk together about last things. It was a busy day for Jesus and it was an important day in the history of the world, filled with contrasts of trickery and honesty, hate and love, conspiracy and devotion.

Following the questioning of his authority by the scribes and pharisees, Jesus told them a story, the meaning of which was very clear to them. It was a story of a certain man who planted a vineyard and let it out to husbandmen and then took a journey into a far country. When the owner sent his servants to collect his rightful share of the fruits, they were shamefully treated and sent away empty. Having sent three servants at different times, the owner finally decided to send his own son to collect his share of the fruits.

The wicked husbandmen, reasoning that the son was the heir and that if he were put out of the way, they would inherit the vineyard, killed him also. Pressing home the lesson of the parable, Jesus asked, "What therefore shall the Lord of the vineyard do unto them?" and answered his question by declaring, "He shall come and destroy these husbandmen, and shall give the vineyard to others."

The wicked husbandmen of course, represented the Jewish people, and the scribes and Pharisees caused the imprecation. The vineyard represents the work that God gave them to do as the Chosen people. God entrusted the Jewish nation with a great stewardship when he entered into covenant relationship with them at Sinai. They were the people through whom God would uniquely reveal himself to the world. Old Testament history reveals how shamefully the prophets of God treated and how their messages from God were scorned and disregarded. The last of these prophets was John the Baptist and he, too, was rejected by the rulers and leaders of the people.

Because God is so long suffering with his people, he sent his beloved Son to Israel, but he was rejected and slain by the rulers of Israel. Knowing that this was to happen, Jesus told his hearers that a reckoning day would come to the Chosen People of God because of their rejection of the very Son of God. The "stone" which the "builders" rejected would become the "head of the corner. And what would happen to the heir? "He shall come and destroy these husbandmen, and shall give the vineyard to others."

This prophecy of Jesus was literally fulfilled as we have pointed out before. From that time on there has in fact been no Jewish nation as a nation. The vineyard of the theocracy was taken away from the Chosen People. Out of the ruins of the old theocracy arose a new theocracy, the theocracy of the kingdom of God, the New Israel, of which Jesus Christ, the rejected cornerstone, is the chief cornerstone.

There's a lesson for all nations of the world in the experience of Israel. No nation can escape the judgment of God than could the nation of Israel escape when it rejected the Christ. America as a nation, stands at the crossroad today. Shall we, like Israel of old, reject Christ, and shall our vineyard be taken from us and given to others?

Sex is very important in life, no doubt, but there are individuals who over-emphasize it.

Nobody can complain that the Italian journalists are not fighting a serious war.

Most critics are more concerned with their criticism than the subject considered.

Advertising, we repeat, is the cheapest salesman that a business can employ.

Serving 71 Military Camps in Dixie
Seventy-one military camps and establishments, where more than 570,000 men will be in training, are located in the nine states served by Southern Bell.
In 65 of them, this Company is providing and maintaining the telephone facilities. Necessary switchboards and other equipment and more than 66,000 miles of telephone wire in cables have already been installed. Additional equipment will be provided as required.
Nearly $40,000,000 will be spent this year by Southern Bell for new construction and general expansion to meet the South's increasing telephone needs. New central offices, buildings and local and long distance lines are being put into service, and the net gain in new telephones is expected to reach 115,000 this year.
Aware of the telephone's vital part in national defense, thousands of telephone men and women are devoting their efforts to supplying the increasing communication needs of government and industry.

ALABAMA FARMERS URGED TO PRODUCE MORE SYRUP AS CASH CROP

POULTRY FEED SHOULD BE PRODUCED ON FARM

AUBURN, ALA.—Most important in the economical poultry production in the South is improvement in the efficiency and reduction in the cost of poultry rations, says John E. Ivey, extension poultryman.

Reminding that feed cost is more than 50 per cent of the total cost of poultry production, Ivey points out that most of the basic feeds for poultry, such as corn and oats, are being grown at present and can be produced in greater quantity in the Southern States. Supplemental feeds, as fish meal and other fishery products and soybean, peanut, kudzu, lespedeza meals, meat scraps or commercial supplements containing all necessary ingredients to balance home grown grains are available in almost sections.

It will only require approximately 20 pounds of protein supplement per hen per year and one bushel of corn or corn wheat and oats. Figuring the supplement at $3.00 per hundred pounds, a flock of hens averaging 169 eggs and eggs worth on an average of 24 cents, the hen will furnish a market for home-grown grain at $2.48 a bushel.

"For economical poultry production, the feed stuffs must be utilized to the fullest extent possible in making up rations which contain the proper amounts of high quality protein, the optimum amounts of the various vitamins, and the necessary minerals for both growing chicks and laying hens."

"Methods of feeding and the control of parasites are also very important in the efficiency and economy of poultry production," he concludes.

HOMEMADE BROODER BULLETIN AVAILABLE

AUBURN, ALA.—To supply increasing requests, the Agricultural Experiment Station has been forced to make several thousand reprints of the "Homemade Lamp Brooder" leaflet for distribution.

The leaflet, which has been revised, contains timely information for those Alabama farmers and their families who intend to start brooding chicks in early spring months.

In the leaflet, D. F. King, associate professor of Poultry Husbandry, gives complete dimensions, directions for construction and operation of the brooder. He states that this type of brooder is extremely economical, simple and adequate for brooding up to 50 chicks, and for these reasons has become very popular among Alabama farmers.

Anyone may get one of these leaflets free of charge by writing the Agricultural Experiment Station at Auburn.

Kenneth H. Garren of the Jacksonville, Fla., Teachers College has developed scientific proof that fire does considerable damage to large pine trees. To arrive at his findings, Prof. Garren followed nearly 3,000 pine trees through the sawmills as they were being cut into lumber.

10 RULES FOR HEALTHY HOME

- The United States Public Health Service, Washington, D. C., lists the following 10 essentials for a healthy home:
1. A pure and sufficient water supply.
 2. Sanitary refuse and sewage disposal.
 3. A safe milk and food supply.
 4. Sufficient ventilation, heat and light.
 5. Space sufficient for ordinary family demand.
 6. Absence of excessive dampness.
 7. Screening against flies and mosquitoes.
 8. Protection against other insects and rodents.
 9. Protection against fire hazards and other accident risks.
 10. Adequate play space and sunshine for children.

TERRACE MAINTENANCE BULLETIN OFFERED FREE

AUBURN, ALA.—Alabama farmers realizing that even the best of terraces must be maintained if they are to continue to function, will be interested in new U. S. Department of Agriculture 10-page leaflet entitled, "Plowing for Terrace Maintenance in the South."

Copies may be obtained from the Soil Conservation Service representatives or by writing the Regional Office, Soil Conservation Service, Spartanburg, S. C.

The new leaflet discusses the subject of terrace maintenance in a concise and simple manner, which will enable farmers quickly to grasp the fundamental principles of maintaining terraces by proper plowing.

COOPERATIVE BANK LOAN RATE REDUCED

AUBURN, ALA.—A. G. Black, Governor of the Farm Credit Administration, announces that the 12 district banks for cooperatives and the Central Bank for Cooperatives will reduce the interest rate on new facility loans from 6 per cent to 3 and one-half per cent effective March 1. Also, this rate will be made applicable to all facility loans outstanding, some of which now bear interest and four and one-half per cent and four per cent. This action, he said, will save the cooperatives some $130,000 a year in interest.

ALABAMA DAIRYING IS ON THE UP-SWING

AUBURN, ALA.—Interest in dairying in Alabama is on the 'up-swing,' announces John Liles, extension economist. "It is evident by the establishment of these plants at Boaz, Decatur and Athens last year," he says in reporting that "additional cream stations and cream routes have been established."

Prices have been rather favorable.

U. S. APPROVED CHICKS ASSURES GOOD QUALITY

AUBURN, ALA.—Alabama buyers of baby chicks can order U. S. approved chicks produced under the national improvement plan and know what to expect when the chicks arrive, reports John E. Ivey, extension poultryman.

"All U. S. approved chicks are hatched from large eggs, that is from eggs weighing at least 23 ounces to the dozen," he says. "All the eggs are produced by breeding flocks which have been carefully selected by qualified agents or inspectors."

"All females in those carefully selected breeding flocks are selected for vigor, standard breed and production qualities. The males are also selected for vigor and standard breed qualities."

March 31 is the final date for Alabama farmers to sign applications for ACP payments. Unless each producer signs an application he will not receive an ACP Payment this year.

Alabama farmers have requested the AAA to furnish them about 20,000,000 kudzu crowns as conservation materials this year. The State AAA office has let contracts for about 16,000,000 crowns.

Powergram Cover Picture Of Verbena Nursery

This month's issue of Powergram devotes its cover page to a view of the nursery at Verbena, Ala. The cover picture for this issue was taken at a time when the tree seedlings had about ten months growth and makes an attractive cover. Following is a short history of the company's nursery:

In January, 1934, the Company established its first forest plantation which consisted of two, 5-acre tracts of Slash Pine on Jordan and Martin reservoirs. During Fall of 1933 a small nursery was established near Jordan Dam and produced its first crop in 1934. Since the planting program has been gradually enlarged. Most of the reforestation work was confined to planting of idle lands adjacent to the reservoirs of the Coosa and Tallapoosa rivers. Loblolly, Longleaf and Slash Pine seedlings have been produced at the nursery and their distribution is governed by the suitability of the soils and moisture conditions. Slash Pine has been widely favored due to its rapid growth and its adaptability to a wide range of soils.

The Jordan nursery was abandoned in 1935. A new 5-acre forest nursery with a capacity of one to two million pine seedlings annually was established at Verbena.

Since 1935, 48 forest plantations ranging in size from 1 to 400 acres, totaling 3,408 acres and requiring 3,203,450 seedlings, have been established. The 1940 crop which is now being lifted and planted is estimated at 2,000,000 seedlings. This will plant approximately 1,650 acres and will give a total reforested acreage of 5,058 acres.

Lifting and packing of the seedlings at the nursery usually begins the first week in January and planting operations are started a week later. During the first week of planting this year 100 men were employed by the tree contractors and 560,000 seedlings were planted.

Approximately 215 man days of temporary labor will be required at the nursery for lifting of the 1940 crop and 1,000 man days of labor will be required to do the planting. This labor is supplied by farmers living in the areas reforested.

CHILEAN NITRATE SODA RECORDS INCREASED SALES

World sales of Chilean nitrate of soda for the year ended June 30, 1940, amounted to 1,984,833 short tons, which is the largest figure in recent years, according to the annual review published today by the Chilean Nitrate Sales Corporation. Shipments to United States territory, which is the largest single market, amounted to 720,709 tons after deducting trans-shipment to other countries. The bulk of all these shipments was for agricultural purposes.

"Because a war-time demand must make use of every possible source of supply, the United States Government has purchased 300,000 tons of Chilean nitrate, through the Defense Supplies Corporation, as a strategic emergency material."

"Chilean nitrate has not only proved its value over a short-term period; it has proved it in practical application in this country for over a hundred years. It has been used on practically every crop under practical conditions. At the Delta Experiment Sta. in Mississippi, it has been applied continuously for twenty years on cotton and corn. At the Pennsylvania Experiment Station it has been used continuously on apples, peaches, pears and hay. At the world-famous Rothamsted Experiment Station in England it has been applied continuously for 97 years on a similar rotation. Over these relatively long periods of time, the yields and quality of the various crops have been substantially maintained."

MARION COUNTY FARMER HAS ALL-TIME PROGRAM OF LIVING AT HOME

HAMILTON, ALA.—Meredith Winton, for 50 years a Marion County farmer, has little to do under the five-year program since he has all of his terraces in excellent condition, particularly all of the outlets in good condition, a nice size field of kudzu which has produced hay for several years, several acres of excellent permanent pasture. He also has been in the habit of planting a good acreage of Winter legumes year after year.

Conversation with Mr. Winton revealed that he has not bought corn or hay in more than 40 years, that he keeps livestock sufficient for his farm, that he has plenty of eggs and butter and milk and that he sells the surplus of these products yearly, that he sells yearlings or milk cows occasionally and that his smokehouse has an ample supply of meat in it from year to year, reports E. G. Small, county agent.

Mr. Winton made the statement that he has 300 acres of land and owned nobody a cent. He also made a statement that he has some land which he cleared himself 42 years ago which is producing more today than it did as a new clearing operation is one which proves that producing a living at home and taking care of the soil will not only make a good, secure living, but make a farmer independent financially as well. It is an outstanding demonstration that the Alabama five-year program is a sound program in every respect," says Mr. Small.

Maplesville News

Our Sunday school attendance is still increasing. Bro. John Maples, our superintendent, made special mention of his appreciation for the increase in attendance.

The regular teacher, also assistant, teacher to the men's class, was absent Sunday. Rev. Bearden, who acted as teacher, gave a very clear explanation of the lesson.

Mr. H. M. Nix is a patient at the St. Vincent Hospital in Birmingham. We hope he will soon be well again.

Mrs. George Hamrick has been real sick. I am glad to report at this time she is some better.

Our sympathy goes to Mr. and Mrs. Golden Davis during the illness of their baby. May it soon be well again.

Mrs. F. D. Nix is on the sick list.

Mr. Calhoun Foshee of Centerville, and his sister Miss Louise Foshee, of Parrish, Ala., spent the week end with their father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Foshee.

Mrs. Lucie Hines of Pell City, Ala., spent the week end with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Parnell.

Mr. R. C. McGee relieved the agent for the Southern Broadband at Kimbrough, Ala., last week.

Mr. Stanley Hayer, Kermit Coburn, Hershel Shankles and Charles Gandy motored to Selma Friday night to witness the Tournament basketball games being played there.

The Shell filling station here is being remodeled. Mr. Veazy, the manager, says he is going to have a much larger and nicer building when it is remodeled.

Mr. Charles Parnell spent the week end with his father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. C. N. Parnell.

Mr. and Mrs. Garland Smith of Alexander City, spent Sunday with his mother Mrs. Emma Smith. Reporter.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our many relatives and friends during the recent funeral services of our beloved father, Mr. R. C. Golden, of New Harmony church. We especially thank Spurgeon Funeral Home for their splendid services rendered. May the Lord's richest blessings be with everyone of you in our earnest prayer—Mr. and Mrs. John M. WAYS TO CONTROL VEGETABLE WEEVILS ARE GIVEN

A number of crops such as mustard, turnips, carrots and the other winter crops over the state are being attacked by the fleshy white grubs or the brownish weevil beetles known as the vegetable weevil. These may be controlled by dusting with derris dust, cryolite or calcium arsenate, depending on the type of plant and use to be made of it, according to W. A. Ruffin, entomologist of the Alabama Extension Service.

"If the tops of the plants are to be used for food, the insects may be controlled by dusting with two or three applications of derris containing three-fourths to one per cent rotenone at ten-day intervals," Ruffin says.

"On crops the tops of which are not to be used for food, the insect may be controlled by dusting two or three times at ten-day intervals with cryolite on tender plants, and with calcium arsenate on plants that are very resistant to arsenicals."

Ruffin also advises that now is the time to apply the dormant spray to peaches and apples. If San Jose scale infestations are high, three per cent of oil in an oil emulsion should be used. If infestations are low, the percentage of oil in the finished material may be used. If infestations are low, the percentage of oil in the finished material may be as low as two per cent of actual oil. Growers are advised to get in touch with their county or home demonstration agent for additional information on this control measure.

Alabama county agents have made plans for more than 250 one-variety cotton improvement communities this year. The number in Alabama has increased from 21 in 1935 to 181 in 1940.

A national marketing quota referendum among wheat growers will be held on May 31. The quota will become effective when announced and will continue during the 1941-42 marketing year unless opposed by more than one-third of the farmers in the referendum.

are expected to advance at once on corn syrup and blended syrup as well as farm-made syrup.

Production Suggestions

1. Sugarcane: Varieties—C. P. 807, C. P. 29-116, and C. 290. If possible to secure the seed cane, it is suggested that a trial be made on a small scale of C. P. 28-19 and C. P. 29-32, especially in the upper part of the sugar cane belt.

2. Sorghum: Local varieties that produce high quality syrup which will not go to sugar should be planted. Because of the fact that a variety may have a different local name in different localities, it is impossible to make a variety recommendation. Farmers interested in growing a good variety should go to the local syrup maker and ask for the names of local farmers who grow sorghum that always makes good syrup and get seed from one of these local farmers.

Right you are, Uncle Natchel—Chilean Nitrate of Soda is "natchel" and it's a wise plan to rely on natural things.

Natural Chilean Nitrate is good for every crop you grow. Its quick-acting nitrate, plus the many "vital elements" which it contains, help to insure better quality and larger yield.

Use it in mixed fertilizer before planting, and as top dressing or side-dressing. And use it regularly—that is the way to get full benefit of its fertilizing and soil-improving qualities.

BUSINESS FOLLOWS CONCRETE

CONCRETE HIGHWAYS PAY FOR THEMSELVES

Three reasons why concrete is the most economical pavement:

1. Long life and low upkeep—funds which would otherwise be spent for repairs may be used to complete your highway system.
2. Scientific investigation has proved that it costs motorists less to drive on concrete than on inferior surfaces. The saving is in gas, tires and car repairs.
3. Concrete builds business, promotes travel. A town on concrete is moved closer to all markets.

And in addition to these money-reasons concrete pavements give motorists relaxation... comfort... and swift travel with SAFETY!

REVIEWS and PREVIEWS

By Irvin Lande

Miss Dorothy Thompson addressed an audience of some 3,000 people in Birmingham last Tuesday night, February 18. Speaking for an hour on "Democracy in 1941", Miss Thompson gave some basic requirements for world peace.

Dorothy Thompson is one of the most famous women correspondents in the world; certainly she is the most influential. Before the outbreak of the second world war, she had been touring in Vienna, Berlin, Paris and other important cities of Europe. Hers is a keen insight on world affairs, and through her writings, and her radio addresses, her reputation as a journalist has never been surpassed.

And so, when it was announced that Miss Thompson was going to lecture in Birmingham, thousands came to hear her. For they had a feeling and a be-

Vegetable Laxative With Proved Feature

The punctual, satisfying relief from constipation and its headaches, biliousness, bad breath, so often experienced by users of this laxative, is mainly due to its combination of purely vegetable ingredients.

BLACK-DRAUGHT's principal ingredient has high medical recognition as an "intestinal tonic-laxative", helps impart tone to lazy bowel muscles.

A little of this spicy, aromatic product by simple directions at bedtime, generally allows time for a good night's rest, acts gently and thoroughly next morning.

Next time, take time-tested, economical BLACK-DRAUGHT.

lief, that she had something important to say, and that she was going to say it.

They were not disappointed. For, indeed, Miss Thompson gave a masterpiece on world peace. Her address was one based on historical facts, with logical conclusions, and always with the obvious style of a journalist who studied Europe, who knows what Europe needs, and who believes in the greatness of America as the outstanding example of what nations may aspire to.

The talk of Dorothy Thompson began with a comparison of the Anglo-Saxon world of today with the other governments of the world. She went way back into history to find the beginning of the domestic Anglo-Saxon, and from that, she gave the basis for civilization today, from language and art, to literature and invention.

She discussed at length the developments of the United States and the American form of government. Going further than that, she remarked that the United States and Britain should today unite, to bring peace to the world, because the United States and Britain would have the power of the world, to bring peace to the world.

Today, Miss Thompson stated, we are going through the last war we can go through before we shall have to give up all civilization, for, in her mind, this war has come as late as it could come. In 1918, Woodrow Wilson stated that there will be another horrible war in twenty-five years which will require four times as much bloodshed and money as the first war did, and this new war shall inevitably come, unless the United States makes the League of Nations work. At the speech in Birmingham, Miss Thompson asked, "Who was right—Wilson or the debating members of Congress?"

Having stated that peace is our goal, Miss Thompson continued to state that the way to attain this peace was by a veritable United States of Europe. No fancy blueprint will bring peace, only a sympathetic understanding of the problems of men will bring everlasting peace. Along this same line, we should, she said, redistribute the world's population. Those overcrowded areas should be relieved of their surplus people, and the surplus people should be put in areas not now productive.

To carry out these things, Britain must win the war. Because of that fact, Miss Thompson advocated all-out aid to Britain. Asked if she would favor a declaration of war, Dorothy Thompson told the true fact when she declared that the only reason we haven't declared war is that by declaring war, we would mean to send an army abroad, and as yet, Britain does not need an American expeditionary force. Therefore, we haven't declared war.

Now, the United States and Britain must unite. For the English-speaking world is the only world which can bring peace to all the world. After her address, John Temple Graves, who introduced Miss Thompson, asked the audience if they favored an out-right federation with Britain—and most of the audience agreed. In Congress, politicians have tried to make us feel an out-right federation with Britain would mean that America would be tied to Britain's coat-of-tail. The real truth, Miss Thompson figured, is that Britain has one of two choices—to give in to Hitler, or be obligated to America throughout the rest of the history. Britons prefer the latter. America will be dominant factor in all the world, if Britain wins, for America shall have been the main force behind a British victory.

America has, for the last twenty years, tried to get away from her destiny. Instead of using the forces which would enable her to bring about peace, America used those forces to destroy world unity. From the end of Wilson's administration to the beginning of Roosevelt's, the chief executives, instead of using the war debts to give America power, used them to lessen the American position. Instead of wiping out the debt, and making higher the tariff rate, or keeping the debt, and lowering the tariff rate, American administrations kept the debt and made the tariff higher. In other words, to the minds of Miss Thompson, the administrations of Coolidge, Harding, and Hoover made every possible mistake. "It was as if they tried to sit up nights and advise mistakes."

Furthermore, in Miss Thompson's opinion, instead of using our goal treasure to make the world come to us for conditions of everlasting peace, we have neglected our destiny, and hoarded our gold in Kentucky.

The American course for the future, Miss Thompson seemed to believe was for us to join ourselves with Great Britain, and through the union of the English-speaking peoples, make an alliance for peace and thus lead the world

THORSBY NEWS

Thorsby Institute will hold its fourth term examinations on Thursday and Friday of this week.

Parent's Night was held at Thorsby Institute on Friday night, February 28. There was a good attendance. The evening was begun by having a number of games led by Mrs. Campbell, Mr. Adams, and Miss Waters; afterwards, a program was rendered. Miss Tinker sang "Sweet Mystery of Life" and a short one-act play entitled "Paying Off the Piper" was presented by Miss Jones, Mrs. Glasen, Miss Tinker and Miss Waters. The Ladies quartet composed of Mrs. Campbell, Miss Tinker, Mrs. Tucker, Mrs. Bickensderfer and Miss McGee, sang "All Through The Night". Refreshments were served.

The Executive Committee of the Christian Endeavor held a special meeting on Sunday afternoon at 4:00 on Sunday afternoon, March 2. Miss Lucy M. Elredge, extension secretary of the National Board of Congregational Churches, was present. She conducted an interesting discussion on methods of improving our Christian Endeavor programs. After the discussion, a luncheon was served in the Fellowship Hall by Rev. and Mrs. Gonzales. Following the luncheon, there was another assembly of the Executive Committee with Miss Elredge where further discussions were given on better programs. At 7:00 Miss Elredge spoke on "We are Building" at which time she showed some interesting pictures of your people's work throughout the world that she had attended. There was a large attendance for this meeting.

The Ladies Aid Society of Thorsby will hold its regular meeting on Friday afternoon, March 7, at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. H. R. Maddox. Everyone is invited.

Miss Lucy M. Elredge was the speaker in Chapel, on Monday morning, March 3. Her subject was "Purpose in Life". Miss Elredge is the extension secretary of the National Board of Congregational churches.

to an everlasting era of peace based on democratic good-will. On Tuesday, after his hour-long speech, an open forum was held, in which Miss Thompson was asked many questions from those which had been written during the lecture or immediately after. One of the first questions was "What is the position of Mr. Henry Ford?" In reply to that, Miss Thompson uttered the belief that Ford thinks all the world should be run like his twenty-four hour a day factory. Because his factory, he said, he has no time to think of his dream, he has no time to think of his workers take all their pleasure in his factory. But his workers care little for the Ford company except for the money. Another question asked was what did Miss Thompson think of the position of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. This subject, it seems, is a favorite one with Miss Thompson. In reply, she said that she thinks Lindbergh is a "queer egg". After his famous flight, until a year or two ago, Lindbergh dodged publicity in the most spectacular way anyone has ever dodged publicity. Now he is asking for publicity, and seeking it in every way. Lindbergh, to Miss Thompson's mind, is pro-German, for he has shown himself to be that in every way.

When she was asked whether she thought the signing of the new Turkish-Bulgarian treaty would hinder the position of the British, Miss Thompson replied that Churchill is fighting the classic war, and as such, he is trying to scatter Hitler on all fronts. After Mussolini's failure to conquer Greece, Churchill found his opportunity to put Hitler on the run, and did. But it is for the future activities of Hitler, Miss Thompson said that she did not know for she could not read the German ruler's mind.

Likewise, Miss Thompson said she felt that the British were going to win, but she didn't know why. A friend of hers, she said, a biologist, had remarked that the salt air around Britain gave the Britishers a strong set of nerves. Whether that be it or not, the British will win.

After forty-five minutes, Dorothy Thompson did not answer any more questions, and nearly two hours of information had been told to the Birmingham audience.

To all those who heard Dorothy Thompson Tuesday night, hers was an ability that lived up to its reputation. But, to the sterner critic, there were those points that had to be criticized for not to criticize them would be phlegmatic, and unprogressive.

One of the things which nearly everyone noticed was Miss Thompson's stern disapproval of the Congress and her unlimited approval of the present executive body. Miss Thompson left the impression that there were no good Congressmen. But, still she thought out that to carry out our destiny we must get Congress to act. If one might ask, Miss Thompson, Congress is of no use, why use it to carry out world peace? Furthermore, Miss Thompson left certain of her points open to much debate. But the main point for us to remember is to accept the best of all speakers, and use them in the formation of a sound and healthy public opinion.

With a public opinion that is able to reject all radicalism, all racial prejudices, and all colored ideas, and is able to accept the clear and the logical, the right and the true. America will go forward to the fulfillment of her destiny.

For an America which has a full insight on what she wants to do, and who knows how to do it, there is nothing that can keep America from marching on to the greatest era of history for both itself and for the world.

There will be an open meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society on Friday night, March 14, at 7:30. The program will consist of two plays presented by the Pushmataha and the Philomathic Clubs. Everyone is invited.

The slogan, "What helps business, helps you," leads us to conclude that smart business men, when they have good year, immediately increase the salaries of all workers, including cooks, porters and yard-boys.

A very few years ago it happened in a downtown store where one of you may remember the incident, many more years ago he died the store, but it's true. A farmer walked into the store one old Saturday morning and asked that he buy a sack of flour—he was refused. He had no money. He told the clerk that his children were starving and that he must have food for them—he was refused. The farmer, in desperation, picked up the sack of flour and walked out of the store. The clerk saw the sack and the Sheriff went to the farmer's home and there he found the small children eating raw dough, unable to wait until their mother could cook it into bread for them. The Sheriff turned and came back to the store and told the clerk to get the merchant the price of the flour, intending to pay for it himself. After hearing the Sheriff's story, of course the merchant refused to accept the money and took the loss himself.

Ralph Johnston lost $300.00 last week in a "fifty-cent" piece dated 1886. Some fifty-cent pieces with this date are worth real money, but Ralph says that he has lost run that way. After checking the coin for proper markings, he found that the coin was worth exactly fifty cents. So Ralph says that he lost exactly $299.50.

Have you noticed the new booths at the Bus Station? They're beautiful. It's worth the price of your drink just to sit for a while in them and rest. They have also installed the watchmen that you get your music from the booth without having to go to the machine, boy, we're getting city-fied.

Star Route From Clanton To Birmingham Established

Beginning on Monday, March 17th, a new mail route will be instituted between Birmingham and Clanton.

This Star Route will leave Birmingham at 6:15 a.m. each week-day morning and come down U. S. 31 to Clanton. Only first class mail and special delivery letters will be carried.

Contract for handling of the mail has been let to Vincent Reynolds of Calera for $1,078.80 per year. The route will be 61 miles long.

This will give the box holders on the Birmingham-Clanton highway early morning mail service where heretofore it has been late afternoon in most respects before the mail could be delivered.

AMERICAN LEGION TO MEET FRIDAY

The Clanton Post of the American Legion will meet at the courthouse in Clanton Friday night, March 14th. The meeting will start at 7:00 o'clock. All ex-service men are requested to be present.

Jr. High Tourney Begins Friday

The Junior High Schools of Chilton County will hold their annual basketball tournament at the Chilton County High School gymnasium Friday and Saturday, March 21 and 22. Eleven schools have entered this tournament and the first game will be played Friday afternoon at nine o'clock between Thomas Junior and Thorsby. At two o'clock basketball plays Vermont, and at three o'clock Cooper plays Concord. The second round of plays under way at four o'clock when Mr. Pleasant meets the winner of the first game. Games will be played until nine o'clock Saturday afternoon, and the finals at 7 and 9 o'clock Saturday night.

A small change will be made to all these sessions and the same change will be made to all students, children and adults.

Coach Dewey L. Cox will be in charge of the tournament.

Teams participating are the following: Thomas Jr., Concord, Mt. Pleasant, Vermont, Union Grove, Collins Chapel, Cooper, Baker, Thorsby Jr., Enterprise and Stanton.

NOTED EVANGELIST COMING TO TEMPLE CHURCH

Evangelist Guy Shields, one of America's great preachers, has been secured to hold services at the Temple church, two and one-half miles south of Clanton, on March 28th and 29th. April 6th, according to announcement by Grover Langston, pastor of Temple. Since Rev. and Mrs. Langston served on the Faculty of the School, Brother Shields acted as President and since Brother and Sister Langston has traveled throughout the South, he is a "hot" director in meetings with Brother Shields, can speak of the many good sermons of Brother Shields.

Brother Shields is a noted Evangelist, Author, Pastor, Builder of churches and has spoken in fifty of America's largest Camp meetings from coast to coast. He served thirty years as President of the Field of Faith Bible Institute, Fort Worth, Texas. Regardless of your denomination, you should make plans to attend these services.

On 5th Sunday in March there will be an all day fellowship meeting at Temple and several counties will be represented that day.

Clanton Defeats Millersville For Basketball Title

Collins Wins Place on All State Team After Brilliant Performance

After coming out of the Third District Tournament holding second place, Coach Dwyer and his Clanton County High School sharpshooters traveled to Tuscaloosa last week and easily captured the state basketball championship game from a little but strong Millersville team to a score of 30 to 19.

The Championship game with Bibb Graves High (Millersville) was somewhat a one-sided tilt with Clanton having a safe edge throughout. Curtis Daniels and Luke Chambers were high pointers in the Championship game with ten points each. The entire team played a nice game, with no medals to any particular player. Little James Payton played a nice defense game against the losers, doing some guarding seldom seen in high school meetings.

Beginning Friday, the Clanton quint faced some keen competition before reaching the championship game Saturday night. First they defeated Vina 47 to 31; next Hackneyville, 52 to 23 before reaching the Semi-finals against the highly favored McGill five from Mobile.

The McGill game, according to reports, was really a breath-taker. McGill gave Clanton their hardest fight during the tournament. Clanton edged by with a score of 28 to 24. In this game, Bob Collins, Clanton forward, to everyone's surprise but Clanton fans held McGill's Weinacker to two points, both of those being foul shots. Weinacker's pick for the third consecutive year. From Collins' performance in this game, as well as other tournament games, he was placed on the All-state team as forward, being the only Clanton player in this honor.

Remembers When Only Three Democrats in Beat 9
First Item Sold In Clanton Bought By Brother

(By Clark Headley)

If you want to buy book full of old quaint, queer, and forgotten anecdotes of "old days gone by," we advise you to get in touch with Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Davis, of North Clanton, who recently celebrated their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary. They'll (at least he will) fill your wants to the hilt.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones, together with scores of friends and relatives, celebrated this significant occasion on Sunday, February 23, at their home two miles north of Clanton.

Mr. Jones is a retired lumberman, having served his favorite occupation since boyhood, his father being one of the first sawmills in Chilton (Baker) county, moving here from Dallas county.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones said the "I do's" on February 24, 1886, and have shared companionship in Chilton County through the entire fifty-five years.

Mr. Jones' health began failing him some two years ago when the flu took hold on him and forced him to retire from his sawmill duties. Mrs. Jones is in fair health and still daily goes about her housework with as much enthusiasm as that first day when they moved out to themselves.

Through their fifty-five years of companionship, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Jones succeeded in raising seven children; five boys and two girls. The boys are C. O. E. L. J. D. Clifford, and J. D. Jr. The two girls are Mrs. Homer L. Bruce and Mrs. Eva Martin, all of Clanton.

From Mr. Jones, one can get a very interesting conversation (if you can keep him from talking sawmills) of the old hunting grounds on Yellow Leaf creek and the section Southeast of Thorsby where he spent the majority of his years. He enjoys telling how he and his friends used to save their earnings for a week's hunting "spree" up Yellow Leaf. There they hunted until their powder horns and shot sacks were empty and then they were home-ward bound. Mr. Jones says with the old "muzzle loaders" one had to be very clever. Suppose you were about to shoot a squirrel. You pulled the trigger and before the gun went off the half way down the tree when the old muzzle went off and the powder smoke filled your eyes and created a dark cloud around your head."

Mr. Jones also enjoys telling about his brother's buying the first dime movie camera in Clanton; in the year 1871. It was bought from Alfred Baker, from whom the county was first named. Mr. Baker had just opened the first store in Clanton, the site being somewhere near that of McCain's barn and the Chilton County News. The store, Mr. Jones states was a roughly constructed building and sold everything from wheelbarrow seed to the old-fashioned left-handed monkey wrenches (ever see one) and the such.

It was a dime's worth of candy his brother bought, brought in from Montgomery and Mr. Jones declares he got a piece of the party too.

Mr. Jones also says that when his father moved them to Beat 9, there were only three Democrats voting in Beat 9 and his father was one of them. As we said before, the old couple has practically retired from everyday duties, and merely sit around home and tell the boys how it should be done. They enjoy talking with old-timers and extend to them a cordial invitation to visit at any time.

Many Amateurs Register For Major Bowes Night

Numerous contestants have registered in the past week with the Church at the Grammar School to take part in the Major Bowes Amateur night at the City Hall on Friday night, March 14th.

This show is sponsored by the Clanton Parent-Teachers Association and promises to be a big night in entertainment in Clanton.

The ladies of the P. T. A. are working hard to make this a success and tickets are being sold by the school children. The proceeds are to go to improvements on the Grammar school.

THURSDAY NIGHT SINGING AT THORSBY BAPTIST CHURCH

There will be a Thursday night singing at the Thorsby Baptist church next Thursday night beginning at 7:00. Everybody is sure to come out and be with us. The new books will be used.

Wyatt Publishes History Of Chilton County

T. E. Wyatt, editor of the Union-Banner and long time resident of Chilton county has published a most interesting and informative history of the county.

Beginning with the early Indian tribes that roamed the hills and valleys of what is now Chilton and bringing it step by step up to the present time he has presented a most vivid picture of the past. It is a book well worth reading.

CONCERT AT THORSBY JR. HIGH SCHOOL TONIGHT

Don't forget folks, tonight, (Thursday, March 13) at 7:30 the Junior High School Department will present a "comedy" in the local school auditorium.

Singing, comedy, recitations, clever dialogues, witty monologues, "string music, funny playlets, etc. all combined to afford one and one-half hours of real enjoyment.

You'll delight in the many capers and cut-ups supplied by the youngsters.

University Speaker

UNIVERSITY, ALA.—Miss. E. V. Curie, the brilliant daughter of the discoverer of radium, will include the University of Alabama in her second lecture tour of the United States. She will speak here on March 24 in the Tuscaloosa branch of the American Association of University Women and the University of Alabama.

Miss. Curie will speak on "Science and a Woman" and will tell of her mother's almost superhuman devotion to research and of the part played by her scientist father, Pierre Curie, in the collaboration that led to the discovery of radium.

Many prominent club women of the state are expected to attend the dinner to be given in honor of the noted speaker.

Clanton Lions To Visit Montgomery Thursday

The Clanton Lions have been invited as guests of the Montgomery Club to attend a banquet there Thursday night in honor of the International President, Karl Sorrick, who will be guest speaker. A number of cars are going down for the occasion.

Mrs. F. A. Gray, Mrs. Greer Culver and Mrs. Willard Stanley attended the funeral of their nephew, Hugh Willoughby in Birmingham Sunday.

Kiwanis To Show Picture March 31

"GOLGOTHA," that is to be shown Monday, March 31, at C. C. H. S. gymnasium, is not an ordinary motion picture. It is a spectacular and thrilling entertainment. And in addition to being highly entertaining and interesting it also renders an outstanding moral, religious, and educational value to every community in which it is shown. "GOLGOTHA" is one of the most costly pictures ever produced. The average feature picture in Hollywood costs approximately $200,000.00 to make, but Golgotha cost $800,000, over four times the cost of an average feature motion picture made in Hollywood. This gives some idea as to the size and magnitude of this great picture. The picture was made in the old country but all speaking parts are in English. It is a tremendous spectacle. The costumes, and setting make it one of the greatest scenic dramas ever filmed. It is necessary to see the picture to appreciate its greatness. The Kiwanis Club feels fortunate to have the opportunity to present such an outstanding motion picture in this community. To see it is a rare opportunity.

Fifty Historic Places Found In Mobile

"I am going to enjoy one of the best thoughts of my life" says Postmaster R. W. Lowe, "when I attend the state convention of the Association of Postmasters which will be held in Mobile on Monday and Tuesday, March 17th and 18th". There will also be several other postmasters from our county who will attend.

One of the best things that Mobile is offering us is the tour of fifty interesting points, which once played an important role in the history of the Gulf city, under six different flags. Some of these are the site of the first settlement in 1711, Christ Episcopal Church, The Jordan Home, The Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, Gold by Horatio, Old LaFayette, Alabama State Docks, Old LaFayette Hotel, the tunnel, the paper mill and the military development now under way.

Man Dies When Struck By Car Sunday Afternoon

Wife of Victim Remains In Serious Condition At Local Hospital

John William (Buck) Heath, age 23, of Clanton Route 2, was instantly killed last Sunday about noon when a car driven by Jim Smithman, hit him on the Mt. Pisgah road southwest of Clanton near the home of Jess Aldridge.

Heath's wife, Mary Lee, was seriously injured and was carried to the Central Alabama Hospital where her condition at the present is announced as serious. She suffered a broken left ankle and a lacerated right leg, besides other serious body bruises.

According to Highway Patrolmen, J. E. Probst and J. M. Glass, who investigated the case, the Heath couple along with Mrs. Heath's sister, Murrell Cleckler, age 9, were on the way to the Heath's home. The little Cleckler girl escaped injury by darting to safety in a nearby woods section. The deceased is the Patrolmen, both parties were going north when Smithman came over the hill and lost control of his automobile, crossing the road and hitting Mr. and Mrs. Heath. Smithman, who was driving a 1939 Ford Coach, was placed in the county jail charged with manslaughter. He was released Monday morning on a $500 bond.

Funeral services were conducted for Mr. Heath Monday afternoon at 2:00 at the Central Alabama Hospital, conducted by Rev. Charlie Moats. The deceased is survived by his wife, Mary Lee Cleckler Heath; his father, Dick Heath and one sister, Mrs. Grover Vance. Martin & Sons were in charge.

Born to Rev. and Mrs. Oscar A. Davis last Tuesday morning a daughter. The young lady weighed six and one-half pounds. Mother and daughter are both doing fine.

4-H Calf Club Making Fine Progress

(By M. R. Glasscock)
Assistant County Agent

The Chilton County 4-H Beef Club boys are making very promising progress in their calf feeding projects. There are 12 feeder calf projects in the county at the present time and many of the calves are showing prospects of definitely being "condemned" for high breeding stock at the Montgomery 4-H Beef Calf Show.

The Calf Show is to be held April 8-9 and already a great deal of public interest is being shown in the calves that the Chilton County 4-H Club boys are feeding and training. The calves are well-bred beef type animals. Both Hereford and Aberdeen Angus calves are used in the project.

4-H boys carrying on Beef Calf Projects are: Ned Dennis, Douglas Wells, Felix Earl Nelson, Hoyt Thrash, Johnnie & Ruben Ceckler, J. L. Daniel, Jr., Winston Lockhart, J. B. Coe, Jr., Bart and Milton McJohnson and Rudolph Smith.

The Chilton County boys are to be highly commended for the thorough and excellent work that they are carrying on in these projects. The public interest and support that these boys have received and will receive in the future is well earned.

ESCO-CREW

Miss Ruth Esco and Raybon Crew, were quietly married Wednesday afternoon and immediately on their honeymoon. Of course, the destination is unknown.

NEW WADSWORTH TO PRESENT VAUDEVILLE

Vaudeville is coming to the New Wadsworth Theatre next week. Tuesday, March 18th, the show and according to Chas. Wade it is something good. Billy Barty and Company, of Hollywood, California, will be the attraction. Billy Barty played in numerous Mickey-Rooney and Our Gang pictures a few years ago. A large company of Singers and well-known beautiful girls accompany him.

Mr. and Mrs. George Murrah and family spent Sunday at Collins Chapel.

Friends of Mr. Marion Gore will be glad to know that he is able to be out again.

Blind Salesman HasTraveled for 47 Years

WHATELEY, MASS. — Carl Fay, 64-year-old Boston native, became blind at the age of 10, yet his travels exceed 100,000 miles. Wandering through the United States, Great Britain, Ireland and Scotland, Fay has earned his way since he was 17—selling shoe-strings.

Fay travels mostly on foot.

Jobless, He Makes Good Gold StrikeSteel Worker Believes His Unlucky Spell Broken.

MARTINS FERRY, OHIO.—Albert Milbert, an unemployed steel worker, calculates his unlucky spell has been broken at last. Milbert struck gold in the bottomlands of the Ohio river near here while digging the foundation for a new house.

A government assayer in the Denver mint confirmed the strike. Two samples of ore were sent to him, and although the first was worth only 70 cents a ton, the second had a valuation of $395.35 a ton, Milbert said.

Milbert and his family—a wife, four children and his father-in-law—had been having tough sledding. He hasn't been able to work in the steel mills for the past two years because of his health, and the family's chief income came from six houses which they rented for $2 to $5 a month—"when the tenants had the money."

But let Mrs. Milbert tell the story: "We were digging a hole when we first noticed the gold. Last summer we started digging again."

"I told my husband 'that's gold.' We sent the first sample to Charles W. Va., but the report was unfavorable."

"I didn't have a dollar to send it to an assayer. The West Virginia chemist thought it looked like pyrites (fool's gold)."

Later the two samples were sent to Denver. Milbert explained the variation in their values by saying the first sample was surface gold, and the second from four feet down. Their big problem now, is whether or not the find is worth developing on a large scale. They've had several offers, one from a Pittsburgher who offered $2 a ton.

Woman Carillon PlayerLikes Exhausting Work

GLOUCESTER, MASS.—Miss Mary Mesquita, daughter of a sea captain, is one of the few women carillon players in the world. By accident she became official carillonneur of the Church of Our Lady of Good Voyage in 1922. No experienced player could be found to operate the bells, so a wedding was asked, being a pianist.

After 18 years Miss Mesquita still plays the carillon as recreation from bookkeeping for a local fishing concern. She uses both feet and hands to operate the bells, which is operated by foot pedals and hand levers.

Miss Mesquita describes the music as "a physically exhausting job" because the largest bell weighs 2,826 pounds, the tongue alone weighing 126 pounds.

Monkey Barred From AirShelter; Owner Objects

LONDON.—Mrs. Eleanor Hardingham, who gave a fashionable Kensington address, was hailed into police court because she kicked and abused a policeman who protested her action in taking a pet monkey into a West End air raid shelter.

Fellow shelterers objected to sleeping in close proximity with the monkey. The magistrate dismissed the case after a scolding.

"I quite sympathize with the people who complained about the monkey's presence," the court said. "They wouldn't know whether it was clean."

Grab-and-Run MongrelOpens Up Charge Account

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Butch, a mongrel pup owned by Henry Van Buskirk, was permitted to carry home a can of dog food.

Now he practically camps at the store. As soon as a customer opens the door, Butch dashes in grabs a can of the same variety and runs home. The proprietor tried hiding that brand behind other cans, but the pup dug through the pile and came up with his favorite.

Chasing the dog did no good. So the store owner just adds each of Butch's "purchases" to the Van Buskirk account.

Surgery Restores SightTo Eye Blind 50 Years

AUGUSTA, GA.—A delicate operation has enabled J. A. A. Evans of Crawfordville, Ga., to regain use of an eye in which sight was lost 50 years ago.

A flying wood chip cost Evans use of the eye. He had long ago abandoned hope of having his sight restored. But when he went to Dr. Wade Bedigfield, Augusta specialist, to have his good eye treated, the doctor also performed an operation on his blind eye.

Evans can now see well enough to read a newspaper with the long-used eye.

Experts Trace Faint Red StarsFaded Suns, Perhaps 101 of Them, Seen in Eight Years' Search of Sky.

EVANSTON, ILL. — For eight years astronomers at Northwestern university have photographed and studied the sky in a quiet hunt for elusive celestial bodies known as faint red stars.

The other afternoon Dr. Oliver J. Lee, director of the university's Dearborn observatory, revealed a partial result of this search in announcing the discovery of 56 new faint red stars and the probable discovery of 45 others.

He reported this discovery before the annual meeting of the American Astronomical society in Philadelphia.

Red But Not Hot.

Only 56 such stars had previously been known in those zones of the sky, located in the Milky way, which were investigated by Dr. Lee and his associates, Ralph B. Baldwin, David W. Hamlin, and Richard F. Kitchin.

The particular types of stars studied are known as classes R and N in the Draper classification. They are red in color, low in temperature, and have spectra characterized by bands of carbon and cyanogen.

Scientists are agreed that stars are constantly radiating away tremendous quantities of energy. Such a condition should result in their losing their luminosity, becoming in fact dead suns of the universe, small in size and relatively low in temperature. If such is the case, there should be great numbers of small stars of low temperature, like classes R and N stars, even in our own region of the galactic system.

Reason to Expect More.

Heretofore astronomers have observed relatively few of such stars. The results of the present investigation therefore seem to prove that the vastness of the universe is considerably greater than our present knowledge would indicate.

The region of the sky selected for the investigation—in scientific terminology—centered at 0 degrees, plus 9 degrees, and plus 18 degrees of declination to a magnitude of 11.5.

This represents an area about as large as one-third of the whole hemisphere of the sky visible at any one time. A star of magnitude 11.5 is only 1,200th as bright as the faintest star visible to the naked eye. In the course of the study more than 100,000 stars were photographed and examined. Of these, 111 were positively identified as faint red stars of classes R and N. The Northwestern astronomers listed with a question mark 45 others which they believe will prove to be of types R and N when they are observed by more powerful instruments than those of Dearborn observatory.

The paper read at Philadelphia by Dr. Lee presented findings which are only a part of a much broader investigation on which he and his associates have been engaged since 1932. This is a spectrographic survey of the whole sky, designed to classify all faint red stars up to a magnitude of 11.5.

Father Saved a GermanOnce, So Poilu Is Freed

VICHY.—Forty years ago Roland Regnier's father saved the life of a German marshal at Peking during the Boxer rebellion.

Today authorities revealed that Regnier had been freed from a German prison camp with full military honors and had rejoined his family in the occupied zone.

While in the camp, Regnier told another prisoner how his father, a French colonial infantryman, hauled Marshal Von Waldersee from a burning building just before it collapsed. The story worked its way up to officials, who checked and found it correct.

Telescopes Take GuessworkOut of Peak Spotting

LAKE PLACID, N. Y.—Guesswork in spotting the peaks of the northern Adirondack range has been largely eliminated for travelers up the Whiteface Mountain Memorial highway.

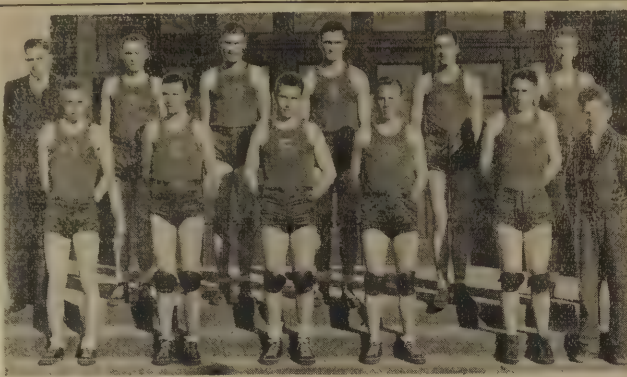

As each visitor passes the toll-house he is presented with a chart, which identifies the principal mountains, lakes, and rivers, and gives the elevations of the different peaks.

At strategic points along the highway powerful telescopes have been placed. Here the mountain "climber" can adjust the sights to suit his vision and the weather conditions, and gaze away at the almost limitless panorama.

Owned 10,000 Horses,Dies Penniless at 83

SALEM, ORE.—W. W. ("Bill") Brown, 83 years old, who owned some 10,000 horses on central Oregon ranges during the World War, died penniless in the Methodist Old People's Home here.

At the height of his prosperity Brown owned 10,000 horses, 22,000 sheep and over 100,000 acres of land.

STATE BASKETBALL CHAMPIONS - 1941

Bean Family Unites

Last Sunday, March 9, the 'Bean family celebrated the birthday of Mr. Elbert Bean along with three others. Their names and ages are as follows: Mr. Elbert Bean, age 69; Mr. Oscar Bean, 63; Mr. Frank Collins, 50 and Billy Oaks age 9. Their birthdays all centered around March 9.

A very beautiful table was arranged by the ladies within the family. There were nine beautiful and delicious cakes, and a host of other delicious foods. The elder members of the family were served at the first table. Then all of the young people were served cafe style.

Before and after dinner was served groups got together and had lots of fun talking and joking with one another.

Next year the reunion will be held at Mr. Burber Beans and we hope that everyone that came and those that could not come this year may be able to come in 1942.

Those attending the day's event were: Elbert Bean, Oscar Bean, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Collins, Charlie Collins, Dave Childress, Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Maddox, Eason Maddox, Mrs. Joe Littleton, J. D. Bean, Mr. and Mrs. Cary Bean, Curtis and Margaret Bean, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sellers, Betty Sue Sellers, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Bean, Donnie and Dorothy Dean Bean, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Oaks, Billy and Mary Frances Oaks, Arnold and Sterling Bean.

Mr. Lillia Hayes, Byron, Ralph and Mary Louise; Mr. and Mrs. Burber Bean, Curtis and Margaret Bean, Mr. and Mrs. Elgie Blankenship, Martha Ann Blankenship, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Ann Blankenship, and Charles Leonard Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jr. Collins, William Hicks, Emogene Lowery, Thomas Childress, Billy Childress, Mrs. Alice Jones and Mr. Whydon Collins.

The parents of these children and the classes who contributed to the refitting of these rooms are especially invited.

CEMETERY CLEANING AT COLLINS CHAPEL

The News has been requested to announce that there will be a cemetery cleaning at Collins Chapel Friday morning. All interested parties are requested to come and bring tools.

beautiful Trophy by the Tuscaloosa Junior Chamber of Commerce. The trophy was presented Capt. Osmond "Punk" Johnson by Mr. J. P. Creel, President of the Alabama Athletic Association, which the Clanton team is justly proud of as well as the entire school, Clanton and Chilton county.

Coach Dewey L. Cox, we think, should be given special credit for his success since coming to Clanton four years ago. Before hand, Clanton was hardly known in basketball circles. Since, you know the story; Clanton has gone, to the State Tournament all four years, and has won the state championship twice. The first year, Prof. Cox coached at Clanton, he went and dropped the first game to Lexington. In 1939, he won the State Championship for the first time. In 1940, they were eliminated from the ranks by Jacksonville and everyone knows the story of this season. Next year, according to a statement from Coach, Chilton County High will have even a stronger team with the complete team returning and many substitutes that are going to make the first stringers play ball to stay in the game.

GIRL FOUND

We are glad to announce that a former resident of Gane Creek and Friendship community, Miss Myrtle McKinnon, now of Calera, Route 2, whom was thought to be lost or probably dead for 6 hours, was found and is quite well.

Last Friday, Myrtle was sick, therefore did not go to school and around noon she seemed to be feeling much better and, clad only in pajamas, house coat and boots, she decided to walk around hoping to feel better.

Later in the afternoon when her brothers came home from school, Myrtle had not yet returned and her parents became very much alarmed. Her father was ill, and under a doctor's care, got up and notified the Sheriff and Fire Department of Calera to join them in the search. The search went on until 7:30 o'clock when a neighbor brought her home.

She stated that she had been looking for wild flowers and wandered far off in the woods, when she realized she was lost, she walked 15 or 20 miles and in a very hard rain, and the night coming on and very dark, she came to the Birmingham and Montgomery highway above Calera. This made her feel something warm to eat and brought her home to her heart-broken parents.

After this terrible experience, she has been quite ill, but is better now. The McKinnons wish to express the deepest gratitude to all that helped in the search.

Dependable Electric ServiceMakes Flight by Night*SAFE

YOU hear the drone of a motor. You peer into the night sky, and if you look sharply, your eyes will find a tiny moving star. The star is one of the wing lights of an airplane, with its cargo of passengers and mail. As you look, a long flash of light stabs the night, and circles swiftly. It is the beam of an aviation beacon, many of which are placed at intervals along established airways and contribute to safe flight by night.

These high-powered beacons get their electricity from the same dependable electric power system which serves your home, store or factory; the same system which, because of planning ahead, is able to meet demands of National Defense as they arise.

Wins Twelve Consecutive Games Without Defeat; Interest And Good Sportsmanship Shown Says Coach

(By Clark Headley)

The Chilton County High School team may be the State Champions, but a team in Maplesville claims themselves to be the only team in the county to go through the season undefeated. No, it's not the team that went to the tournament in Selma. It's the Maplesville High School Girls' team.

This Maplesville team feels quite proud of themselves by being the only feminine dribblers in the county (that's our understanding) and went through the entire season without meeting a single defeat. They marked up twelve victories, scoring 414 points to their opponents only 188, and that's quite a margin.

Mrs. Dorothy Daniels, who coaches the Maplesville lasses, states that the girls' main difficulty all season was finding someone to play them, since most schools in the county have abolished girls' basketball from high school athletics. Mrs. Daniels adds, "The quality that I as their coach, appreciates most is their good sportsmanship." The team is the team's closest score was against the Plantersville Independents, but won by a score of 41 on 36. Their best win of the season was when they championed Marbury 51 to 17 in their first game of the season.

The team is composed of twelve players, which gives them plenty of reserves. The team's captain is Miss Maudie Nichols, with Miss Bess Nix as Alternate. Other players on the first team are: Elsie Harrison, Pauline Ousley, Polly Gask, Ernestine Davis. Substitutes are: Ruby Lee Latham, Viola Walker, Ruby Irene Lawley, Helen McGee, Catherine Cagle and Betty Sue Gandy.

The scores for the season are as follows:

Marbury 17	Maplesville 51
Billingsley 10	" 34
Blocton 10	" 33
Blocton 13	" 22
Billingsley 15	" 49
Felix 12	" 34

OUR CLASS PARTY

On Friday night from seven to nine, our Class Party was very fine.

Almost everyone was present.

To miss it would not have been pleasant.

I guess we made lots of noise.

As we played games with girls and boys

We had for refreshments cookies and ice cream.

The party was so nice that I was afraid it was only a dream.

At the end of the party when all was through.

Some seemed happy and some seemed blue.

This was because they didn't want to go home.

They'd rather stay at the party to romp and roam.

Some went one way and some went another.

Soon they were with daddy and mother.

That was the best fun we've ever had.

Now that it is over, we're very sad.

Elizabeth Easterling, Sixth Grade, Clanton Elementary School.

On Friday night, March 7, 1941, our teacher, Miss Bratton, with the help of some of our mothers, gave us, the Sixth grade, a party. It was held at the City Hall. The party lasted from seven to nine o'clock. There were five of our mothers present, who helped serve refreshments. We played lots of games and then had group singing. There were a lot of balloons hanging on the wall for decorations, before the party ended the balloons were given to us as souvenirs. The mothers served us with ice cream and cookies.

This party was the most fun we ever had.

—Betty Foshee, Sixth Grade, Clanton Elementary School.

We had a party Friday night. I liked it alright.

There were five not present, if they had been there it would have been more pleasant.

The flowers were red, yellow and white. The lights were very bright and we had a very nice time.

We ate the ice cream very handy.

I wish we would have another party.

When the party was over we got a balloon.

We thought the party ended too soon.

—Helen Stroud.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank relatives and friends for the beautiful floral tributes and your sympathy expressed in the recent death of our beloved husband and father, Mr. Frank J. Nelson. Especially do we want to thank the Spanish-American War Veterans, the Masons, Knight's Temple and Mr. Mell Martin.—The family.

MRS. ADA PITTS LEAVES STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

JACKSONVILLE, ALA.—Hundreds of former students of the Jacksonville State Teachers College will be interested to know that Mrs. Ada Pitts, sister of Percy M. Pitts of Clanton, and head director and house mother of Daugette Hill, has resigned her position after serving in this capacity for twenty one years. She resigned to make her home with her son, Jack Pitts, of Sylacauga, whose wife recently died.

She directed the social activities of hundreds of boys and girls and endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact.

She was noted for her youthful outlook and always the champion of the modern young woman, contending that the girls of today possess all the fine traits of character which their mothers and grandmothers did before them, and are better equipped for living.

Huge Fighting Ship Ready Soon

35,000-Ton North Carolina First Battleship Added In Twenty Years.

WASHINGTON.—The North Carolina, first battleship to be built for the United States navy in 20 years, will go into commission April 11.

The most powerful fighting ship in the world, according to navy officials, she will join the battle line this summer under command of Capt. Olaf Hustvedt.

No announcement of her assignment has been made, but it is believed she will go to the Pacific and may become the flagship of the United States fleet.

The North Carolina was built at the New York navy yard. The Washington, a sister ship, is nearing completion at the Philadelphia navy yard. The speed of each ship is expected to exceed 28 knots. Each will carry nine 16-inch guns able to fire 10,000-pound shells more than 25,000 yards.

Many Experts Engaged.

The North Carolina was launched June 13 and is being completed about five months ahead of time. She is the result of more than 140 separate battleship designs in the working out of which from 40 to 70 naval design experts were engaged.

The designing covered 19 years and included studies of every type of battleship, its hull, superstructure, fire control, cruising radius, power, speed, gun power, anti-aircraft protection, etc.

The outcome, in the opinion of naval construction experts, is the best battle unit, offensively and defensively, built up to the present time. Larger ships, embodying many improvements, are under construction for the navy, but it will be two or three years before the first is ready to join the fleet.

The North Carolina is one of six sister ships each of 35,000 tons and each having as a main battery nine 16-inch guns. The Massachusetts, Indiana and South Dakota will be launched this year and the Alabama early in 1942.

Fourth of Name.

The North Carolina is the fourth American combat ship to bear the name of the Tar Heel state. The first was a ship of the line of 2,833 tons, mounting 74 guns, launched at Philadelphia in September, 1820. This ship was the flagship of the United States squadron in the Mediterranean from 1825 to 1827 and continued in commission until 1866. She was sold in 1867.

The second North Carolina was an armed cruiser of 14,500 tons and was a unit of the fleet from 1906 until scrapped in 1930. In the first World war she was in the overseas transport service.

Her name was changed to the Charlotte in 1920 and the name North Carolina assigned to one of the six battleships then under construction. When the naval limitation-of-armament treaty was ratified the first battleship North Carolina was scrapped along with her sister ships and a squadron of battle cruisers.

Gold in Doodle-Bug but Not in an Agent's Heart

KANSAS CITY, MO.—A real estate agent was amazed recently to find a hole, 15 feet wide and 25 feet deep, dug through the floor of a room in an old mansion.

Two roomers in the house, a man and a woman, told him that they were digging for gold, with the aid of a "doodle-bug."

When held over the hole, the "doodle-bug"—a glass jar suspended on a string from a magnet—swung in a circle. This was a sure indication that there was gold underneath, according to the pair.

"You see, you just put in the jar something made of the mineral you wish to find," the real estate agent was told. The couple had a gold wedding ring and chain in the jar.

"We had only a few feet to go," the woman said. "Let us finish and we'll turn the gold over to the owner of the house."

However, the agent decided that there had been enough excavating and ordered the hole filled up.

Penny Saver

WATONGA, OKLA.—Twenty-four years of hunting and saving have given C. E. Fitzwater, a rural mail carrier, a unique collection of pennies. With the exception of six years, he has one from every year, including those from 1793, 1804, '08, '09, '11, '17.

- ELEGY -

BY A COUNTRY DOCTOR

This Elegy we found in the March issue of Hygeia, a magazine published monthly for Physicians.
We thought that it was exceptionally good and pass it along to you—

Should I meet death somewhere today, though I should cringe, my head I'd bow.
I'd have to meet him anyway in some such place, sometime, somehow.
And though my humble life's been passed in poverty, distress and strife.
I'm satisfied to go at last. I've had my day. I've lived my life.

I've known a mother's tender care, the lovelight of her soft blue eyes.
Intrigued by her evening prayer, the crooning of her lullabies.
I've known a father, stern but good, who earned our bread by sweat of brow.
A man I never understood; while there was time, but I know now:

That love lay back of knowing smiles and pregnant precepts truth be telling.
Intrigued by proselyter's wiles, I heeded not his honest tongue.
Brothers and sisters, I've known too, who played with me in childhood hours.
With laugh and shout the long days through; in wildwood glades, midst wild-flowers.

I've known a sweetheart's first shy kiss, like nectar from the gods above.
A golden honeymoon of bliss, with her who bore me sons to love.
Nor wealth in house, stocks nor lands, may take the place of baby's smile,
The heart tugs of his tiny hands are things that are truly worthwhile.

Through him, when I'm returned to slime, the spark of life God gave to me.
Will march down the corridors of Time till Time becomes eternity.
I've known a June dawn's first, faint glow, the sunrise red, the light of noon,
The setting sun long shadows throw. Twilight; and then a pale new moon.

I've seen the first warm kiss of spring, the summer verdure comes and go,
The tinted leaves that fall winds bring, the winter with its cold and snow.
I've worked in forty-five below and under suns of burning red.
I've waded through great drifts of snow, to beating rain, I've bared my head.

I've heard night winds sought through the pine, the prelude of the birds at dawn.
The crow of cock, the lowing kine, dear homely sounds till day was gone.
I've known the scent of lilac rare, arbutus on its trailing vine.
The poppies red, the lilies fair, the wild rose and the columbine.

I've eaten food quite fit for queens, served with the sauce of appetite.
I've slept and dreamed of noble scenes, wherein I fought for what was right.
I've known delusions grand but vain, been puffing off till I nearly burst.
Then found my sanity again, in pain and hunger, toil and thirst.

I've known grim foes and loyal friends and both helped to mould my soul.
Both aided me to meet my ends, assisted me to make my goal.
Midst loud applause, some fights I've won or coming free in combat fair.
Against some sore defeats I've run, abandoned by all, save despair.

Tho better men have fought me down some few rewards have come to me.
I have some standing in my town, I've earned a medical degree.
I've practiced 'mongst God's helpless poor, who could not stand the great expense.
Of calling experts to their door, their thanks to me 'was recompense.

I've held out hope to ailing folk, my many fevered brows I've saved.
Allying fear with quips and jokes. I think, perhaps some lives I've saved.
I've helped babies during their first sweet breath, at midnight or the break of day
I've eased the agonies of death. I've helped to lay the dead away

I've bound the wounds and eased the pains of those who fought upon the Lys.
And on the Meuse in Argonne's rains, when dread war stalked the lands and seas
I've seen the horse and buggy go. Electric spark mak'd day of night.
The advent of the radio. The oceans spanned by airplane flight.

I've seen the cinema mature and greater gifts of God to man.
Free surgery brought to the poor, serums, vaccines and salvarsan.
I have been strong. I have been brave. I've stuck and reckoned not the cost.
I have been weak. I've played the knave. Ran out on men whose cause seemed lost.

And when I reach Elysian sod, beyond the bright and golden shore,
I hope to see the face of God and dwell with him forever more.
So let death come, as come he must, and bear my living soul away.
And change my body into dust. I've lived my life. I've had my day.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

The fast train passing through the place where I live, some twenty minutes within sight of the depot. An important passenger walked up and down in the waiting room, blowing smoke and fire as he ranted about the train losing so much time. The train had a long run ahead of it, but twenty minutes were spent in taking off coal and water. That engineer could have gone through in high speed, but down the track his train would have come to a dead stop. No fuel and no water. He would have lost out completely. Many a person gets impatient in the morning and rushes by all the tank supplies of the soul. No Bible is read, no devotion. The spirit life of that person slows down before the wife, or the family, down before the close of that day. What water and coal are to the engine and the moving train, Bible reading and worship are to the Christian man, the Christian woman. Prayer is the supply tank.

In places of pleasure and business I often see signs like this: "No smoking allowed no drinking allowed, no gambling allowed." Listen to me people, I have never seen a sign like that in the temple of God. When people are near to God, when they enter the place where God is worshipping in the beauty of holiness, they do not need to be told to refrain from drinking, swearing or smoking. They know that such things are out of place in God's house. I am asking two questions. Think as you read them. First, do you refrain from cursing and the like in God's house because of where you are? If so, you most likely will curse elsewhere. Second, do you refrain from cursing in the church because of who you are? If so, then you will not curse if you are in the field.

At one time General Grant visited the Naval Academy at Annapolis. He stood watching the young cadets on parade, with that ever present cigar in his mouth. One of the young officers on duty walked up to him, saluted and addressed him thus: "General Grant, I beg your pardon sir, but it is against the rules of the academy to smoke on the grounds." "All right," replied the General, throwing his cigar to one side, "I most humbly beg your pardon, sir." When the great General knew the laws of the Academy he obeyed them without a question. Why should we be like minded in our esteem and respect for the laws of God. When God says, "Thou Shalt Not" we should be ready to obey as was the great General. When God speaks it is time for us to obey.

During the closing days of the Christmas season, we were on our return from Texas. A young man caught the train out of Pensacola with a large flask of whiskey in his possession. Long before we had reached Crestview this rowdy was drunk inside and out. He insulted many of the college students who were on their way back to school. His repulsive familiarity and disgusting manner continued until the train ran into the town of Chipley. Then wife and I walked down to the front to get off. Here came the drunken sot and proceeded to add his insults to my wife. I had to speak a word of reproof and then the drunken idiot pushed his face into mine and cursed the most vile oath that I have ever heard. I had to let it go by for reasons known to me. My Lord, why must decent people be insulted. Whiskey, prefrancy, gambling, impurity, and dishonesty are the Quintuplets of the devil. My Lord, how I hate all of them.

Sunday School Lesson

Golden Text: "Be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving each other, even as God is in Christ forgiving you."

Golden Text: Luke 17: 1-4, 11-19
The seventeenth chapter of Luke includes the teaching of Jesus on several different subjects, the probability being that they were words spoken by him at different circumstances. The first two verses concern the heavy responsibility of those who cause others to sin. Verses 3-4 admonish mankind to be forgiving to every brother. Then comes a comparison from nature to illustrate the power of faith, followed by a lesson in humility contained by a parable. Emphasis on gratitude is revealed in the story of the ten lepers and the closing of the chapter contains a statement of conditions which will take place before the second coming.

Jesus was interested in the development of life to the fullest extent for each individual—a development recognizing the primary importance of spiritual and eternal values. He fully understood that very often these higher qualities were contrasted unfavorably with the world with material things of lesser worth. Jesus knew that one who sought to live by the principles of his kingdom would necessarily encounter temptations and obstacles as he pursued his way through a material world. While one who fell a victim to such delusions and traps would be harmed, Jesus spoke the greater condemnation which would be visited upon that one who caused him to stumble. Apparently greater punishment awaits those who deliberately entice striving men and women from the path of rectitude than those weaker ones who succumb to the wiles and allurements craftily placed in their way.

An unforgiving spirit may be a cause for stumbling to others and to that extent there seems to be the possibility of the thought connection between the first four verses. Jesus warned his disciples that a forgiving spirit was necessary for his kingdom, insisting that if one was done wrong he must forgive the evildoer. Some emphasize the words, "if he repent" as the condition precedent for the Christian requirements of forgiveness for wrong but while this particular text may allow such an interpretation it would be so much out of harmony with the example and teaching of Jesus that it should be rejected. As a matter of fact, on the cross Jesus prayed for the forgiveness of those who were executing him.

that they knew not what they were doing. Failure to realize wrong-doing negatives the fact of repentance.

The apostles asked Jesus to increase their faith. The supplication indicates that the apostles realized the insufficiency of their faith and recognized in Jesus a power to increase it. Jesus answered that faith "as a grain of mustard seed" would perform the impossible.

The parable in verses seven to ten concern the attitude of the servant. When he has performed the duties laid upon him by his master, he should not expect any unusual reward as a matter of right because he has only performed his duty. So, the lesson is when his follower of Jesus has performed his task, he has no right to self-complacency and pride for doing what he should have done. The reward that comes to him will be a matter of generosity from his creator. This parable was directed particularly to the pretensions followers of Judaism, who paraded and boasted of their righteousness. In this day we can also see examples of pride of religion in many.

As Jesus proceeded towards Jerusalem he met ten lepers who hailed him with the request for relief from their malady. Jesus instructed them to go to the priest whose duty it was to examine and pass upon those who had suffered with leprosy so that if cured they would no longer be subject to the ban against contact with others. The ten lepers set out and as they proceeded, an act of faith on their part, they realized that they had been healed. Only one, a Samaritan, Luke alone informs us returned to Jesus to thank him. The others, too eager to re-enter their own lives, either were too careless to give thanks to their benefactor, or put it off in the expectation of doing so on some other day.

Commenting upon the Samaritan whose gratitude caused him to express himself immediately, Albert Schweitzer says: "In the same way we ought all to make an effort to act on our first thoughts and let our unspoken gratitude find expression. Then there will be more sunshine in the world and more power to work for what is good. We must all of us take care not to adopt as part of our theory of life others' bitter sayings about the ingratitude of the world."

DEMAND FOR COTTON
HOSE INCREASING

AUBURN, ALA.—Figures released by the National Association of Hose Manufacturers reveal that cotton hose produced in the first nine months of 1940 had risen to 422 per cent of all hose manufactured. This increase in production of cotton hose is in contrast to a drop in silk hose to 34.3 per cent, rayon to 18.5 per cent and an increase in wool to 3.3 per cent of the total hose production.

In 1939, cotton hose made up approximately 72 per cent of all hose made. By 1937, the production of cotton hose had dropped to a low 5 per cent.

"The new fashioned lisle hose is a boom to thrifty women, and it features style and attractiveness as well as thrift," says Catherine Haynes, extension clothing specialist. "This hose has been placed on the market as a result of the conscious effort to stimulate consumption of American cotton."

"The new lisle hose are made on full fashioned machines so that the leg and foot are made to fit."

"The hose are knitted from tightly twisted mercerized yarns in sheers or service weights, in a variety of shades, and in plain, mesh or lace."

"Cotton hose are back in vogue and are styled for dress, sport or service wear."

Cotton Improvement
Progress in Alabama

(By J. C. LOWERY)
Extension Agronomist
(J. T. BELUE)

Extension Specialist in Cotton Improvement

The progress of cotton improvement in Alabama is best evidenced by the fact that in 1939 only 23 per cent of the crop was 15/16 inch or longer, whereas 85 per cent of the crop was 15/16 inch or longer in 1940. Furthermore, in 1940 less than one per cent of the Alabama crop was shorter than 7/8 inch, whereas in 1939 it was shorter than 7/8 inch in 1929.

Alabama is now being pointed out by the State which has made outstanding improvement in its quality of cotton. Many mill managers now state that Alabama is producing some of the most satisfactory fiber in the South. Ten years ago these same mills could use very little Alabama cotton because of its short staple.

Ten years ago from 5 to 20 different can re-stock at frequent intervals at minimum cost.

Varieties that have been introduced by county agents and other agricultural workers have been varieties which the Experiment Station, through years of tests, has found to be best for the particular localities.

Coordinated with the extension cotton improvement program has been a research program by the Alabama Experiment Station and Bureau of Plant Industry. This research program includes breeding (testing of varieties, spinning tests and many other fiber studies to obtain as complete information as possible on cotton from the breeding plot to the fiber in the finished garment.

Accomplishments in cotton improvement in Alabama have been due to the research program and to the unusual cooperation of all groups interested in cotton. Mill cotton ginners, bankers, businessmen, the press, and varieties, strains were produced in each important cotton community. Today 4 or 5 varieties constitute most of the cotton produced in the State.

Available evidence shows that Alabama is now growing fewer different kinds of cotton than at any other time in its history but much remains to be done in improving the quality of the cotton. The amount of good staple cotton, averaging as good as that of the country as a whole but lags behind Georgia and the Carolinas.

This change has been brought about through a cotton improvement program based on the one-variety community plan of production conducted so as to reach as nearly as possible all cotton producing communities of the State. A definite cotton improvement program has been followed by the Extension Service for six consecutive seasons; this program has been based on farmers buying small lots of the highest quality seed obtainable from the breeder and planted seed patches to produce their own seed. By this method, the farmer is stocked with good seed and others have cooperated fully with the Extension Service, vocational teachers, FSA, and other agricultural workers in introducing and maintaining the purity of the better varieties.

A State Cotton Improvement Committee has planned and projected the program throughout the period. On this committee are representatives of the Extension Service, Experiment Station, FSA, Vocational Agriculture Department and Bureau of Plant Industry. Members of this Committee have met with the Alabama Ginners' Association, the Alabama Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and other organizations, in projecting this program.

A continuation of the present cotton improvement program in Alabama will, according to best informed authorities, place Alabama, in a very few years, as one of the outstanding States in the Cotton Belt as to quality and staple length of the crop produced.

Questions and Answers On The 1941
Supplementary Cotton Program

The Department of Agriculture is offering cotton farmers in 1941 a Supplementary Cotton Program designed: (1) to reduce the acreage planted to cotton this year, (2) to increase the consumption of cotton goods among farm people in the Cotton Belt, and (3) to help improve living standards through increased production and storage of food for home consumption.

Cotton more than any other American crop is dependent upon foreign buyers for its markets. War abroad has sharply curtailed our exports of American cotton. As a result, the large carry-over of 10 and one-half million bales of cotton in this country last August will be substantially increased by the end of this season. This huge supply has accumulated in spite of the fact that cotton farmers have given full support to the AAA Farm Program.

Now that the War has closed many foreign markets, the need for holding down the already large cotton surplus continues to be acute, and with this reduced outlet for cash crops, it is more necessary than ever that farm people produce more food and feed for home consumption.

These have been, and continue to be, objectives of the AAA Farm Program. The new Supplementary Cotton Program puts added emphasis on the efforts to reach these goals through special payments. A total of 25 million dollars worth of the cotton stamps will be made available by the Surplus Marketing Administration for distribution. In addition, 3 million dollars in cash payments will be added to encourage additional food production and storage by the AAA to cooperating farmers for home use.

The 25-million dollar order for cotton goods, which will be placed in the normal channels of trade by cotton stamps, will aid industry and contribute to reemployment.

The purpose of the leaflet is to tell how the Supplementary Cotton Program works and to point out the benefits to be derived from it by individual farmers.

How To Earn Cotton Order Stamps

1. Q. How will cotton farmers be compensated for making an additional voluntary acreage reduction in 1941? A. They will receive cotton order stamps, which can be used to purchase cotton goods. These stamp payments are in addition to the regular payments provided for under the 1941 Agricultural Conservation Program.

2. Q. Will underplanting of the 1941 cotton allotment affect the farm cotton allotment in future years?

A. No. Underplanting of the cotton acreage allotment on any farm in 1941 will not affect the cotton acreage allotment for the farm in 1942 or subsequent years, except in case no cotton is planted in 1941 on a farm on which cotton was planted in 1939 and 1940.

3. Q. Does participation in the Supplementary Cotton Program affect allotment under other phases of the Triple A Program?

A. No. The Supplementary Cotton Program provides for additional payments and does not affect payments under other phases of the AAA Program.

4. Q. Who is eligible to participate in the Supplementary Cotton Program?

A. Any farm owner, operator, tenant or sharecropper entitled to share in the 1941 cotton crop on any farm for which a cotton allotment was established for 1941, provided cotton was grown on that farm in 1940.

FSA BORROWERS URGED
USE COTTON PROGRAM

AUBURN, ALA.—Borrowers from the FSA in Alabama are urged by M. H. Pearson, Farm Security Administrator, to participate in the new supplemental cotton program recently announced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Under the new program, cotton producers are able to divert further acreage from cotton production into other uses, particularly gardens.

"The greatest need in the Cotton South has long been crop diversification, and home production to meet the small families' food needs," Pearson states. "We have been preaching, and FSA borrowers have been successfully practicing this sort of balanced agricultural program for six years."

SIX-POINT PULLET
PRODUCTION PROGRAM

AUBURN, ALA.—John Ivey, extension poultryman, is advocating that Alabama farmers follow out a six-point profitable program:

1. CLEAN CHICKS—Secure chicks from flocks and hatcheries having a known, definite breeding and disease-control program.

2. CLEAN GROUND—Move brooder house to new location, or rotate chicks from yard to yard, or use wire or slatted sun porches.

3. CLEAN BROODER HOUSE—Several days before the chicks arrive, thoroughly clean brooder house: wash with hot lye water (1 lb. lye to 15 gallons of water) or spray with a good strong disinfectant.

4. CLEAN LITER—Use reasonable amount of absorbent litter; keep dry; clean house and change litter every three to five days.

5. CLEAN FEED AND WATER—Use approved hoppers for all feed.

6. CLEAN MANAGEMENT AND CARE—(1) Practice sanitation (2) Keep chicks comfortable; avoid overheating. (3) Allow 1 square foot floor space for every two chicks. (4) Start chicks early. (5) Never place over 250 to 350 chicks around one brooder. (6) One 4-foot hopper for each 100 chicks. (7) Two half-gallon jars of water per 100 chicks. (8) Provide plenty of green feed. (9) Teach chicks to roost early. (10) Get chicks outside early. (11) Separate pullets and cockerels as early as possible. (12) Place pullets on clean range at an early age. (13) Vaccinate pullets against fowl pox.

HOW TELL WHEN TO TURN
LEGUMES EXPLAINED

AUBURN, ALA.—For the best returns from winter legumes it is important that they be turned at the right time, advises J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist in reporting that it is very easy to determine when sufficient growth has been made to justify turning.

"When the green vetch tops from 100 square feet will weigh from 12 to 15 pounds, or when Austrian winter peas will weigh from 15 to 20 pounds from 100 square feet, the legumes are ready to turn," he says. Measure off area 10 feet by 10 feet, pull the green tops and weigh immediately.

"It is a serious mistake to wait until the legumes have made a very large growth. This may delay the normal planting date of the crop that is to follow the legumes of such an extent as to seriously reduce yields. The heavy growth is more difficult to turn and frequently destroys make it very difficult to plant."

"Play safe by turning winter legumes at the right time and determine the right time to turn by: making green feet by 10 feet to determine the amount weight measurements from an area 10 of growth," he concludes.

CROTALARIA IS GOOD SOIL BUILDING CROP

AUBURN, ALA.—Crotalaria used for soil building and adapted to practically all soils of the State except the Black Belt lime soils, succeeds when seeded either at the last cultivation of corn, or in every third or fourth row with corn, or on small grain in early March, announces J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist.

The variety most commonly grown is speckled. The plant is usually fertilized with 400 to 600 pounds of basic slag or its equivalent, and in southern part of the State with 50 to 100 pounds of muriate of potash.

When it is seeded on small grain, the ground is usually scarified with a spike tooth harrow or similar implement. Scarified seeds are used at the rate of 7 to 10 pounds of seed per acre in 3 to 3 and one half foot rows or 25 to 35 pounds when broadcast.

EASTVIEW

Rev. T. A. Coleman, pastor of Pleasant Valley, will preach for us Sunday morning, March 16th, at 11 a.m. Sunday School at 10 a.m. and Christian Endeavor at 7 p.m. every Sunday except the 4th Sunday. Christian Endeavor at 6:30 the 4th Sunday.

The Annual Women's Rally of the Central Association of Congregational Christian churches will be at Mt. Creek Union Church at 10 a.m. March 29th. A plate lunch will be served at noon by the entertaining church. All women from the Eastview church desiring to go will meet at the parsonage at 9 a.m. Please notify Mrs. Ballou as soon as possible if you plan to go.

The next regular meeting of the church will be at 7 p.m. Saturday, March 23rd instead of in the morning as usual. A conference will follow the service to conduct a new dedication.

At the meeting of the Women's Society at the parsonage last Thursday, the women decided to put on a playlet, "Mrs. Jones Has a Vision" as a part of their part of the program for the Women's Rally. The cast is Mrs. Lala Nelson, Mrs. Alpha Dobbs, Mrs. Vera Traywick, Mrs. Sally Gray, Mrs. Susan Moores, Mrs. Alpha Dobbs, Mrs. Lala Nelson, Mrs. Ocie Rushing and Mrs. Elsie Ballou.

ARCHER'S CHAPEL

Rev. J. D. Hughes will preach for us at Archer's Chapel, Sunday morning at 11 a.m., April 6th. Our next regular meeting will be the Saturday before the 3th Sunday, March 29th at 7 p.m. in the 4th Sunday as usual. At conference last Wednesday the church voted to have the meeting regularly the Saturday before the 5th Sunday any month when there is a fifth Sunday. This is to accommodate those members who have difficulty in attending 4th Sunday afternoons.

LOOK AHEAD—ALABAMA—PAVE WITH CONCRETE

No Need for Danger Signs on A MODERN CONCRETE ROAD

Concrete pavements, built to the standards developed by highway engineers of this state, are the last word in safety. Yet they actually cost the public less than so-called "cheap" pavements.

Concrete is safe because it provides a better "track" for vehicles. From your own experience you know that its even, gritty surface reduces skidding, wet weather or dry. Its freedom from bumps, ruts and chuckholes gives you better control at the wheel. Concrete's light gray color and high reflection factor help you see better at night.

Yet, with all these advantages, concrete is actually the cheapest road to have. First, because it costs less to build than other pavements of equal load-carrying capacity. Second, because concrete costs less to maintain—saves hundreds of dollars per mile, every year, compared with less enduring surfaces.

Urge public officials to build your roads with safe and saving concrete.

More Farms Is Need in Britain

Engineer Says Food Supply
Can Be Assured by Using Modern Machinery.

WASHINGTON.—The impending intensification of agricultural production in the British Isles means an increasing use of mechanized equipment such as caterpillars and tractors and the laying down progressively of vast new cultivated acreage if the Germans drive against British supplies is to be combated successfully, in the opinion of Sir Charles Ross, inventor of the Ross rifle and of many farm implements.

Sir Charles, who has been a resident of Washington since the last war, saw the importance of the problem even before the outbreak of the present war and since then has urged it in correspondence with Lloyd George and British government leaders. He believes it is not too late to beat the U-boat menace on the farms of England.

Can Be Self-Supporting.
In a letter to Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain a year ago he said:

"A study of the whole of the German naval armaments shows that they were designed and built on the theory that England would continue her misguided agricultural policy. The very nature of the pocket battleships, their sphere of operations, the action of the submarines and the mine-laying in the Thames estuary conclusively prove that German economists and military designers work hand in hand.

"It is only fair to conclude that had England reversed her misguided policy and gone into full agricultural production a year ago, Hitler would have immediately realized that the whole of the naval armaments would have been comparatively ineffectual. Under these circumstances it is doubtful whether Germany would have undertaken a major war in September, 1939."

The gist of the matter, he contends, is that while Britain "realizes that foreign trade is her financial lifeline, she does not see that domestic agriculture need not suffer, that the island can probably be made entirely self-supporting."

It is a question which, according to his letters and memorandums, can be met by making the British Isles self-supporting with reference to meats and also vegetables. Then, he contends, Britain can even see shipping cease entering her ports, half her merchant fleet lost and the rest tied up in foreign waters, and yet not be beaten on the food front.

Used on Scottish Farm.
This is much the same line of argument that has been used by Lloyd George since the outbreak of the war. Sir Charles has seen it from the vantage point of his own 300,000-acre farm in Rossire in the Scottish highlands, where he has long employed the very methods that he has since urged on the government leaders in London; and he says he has used them successfully.

Moreover, he has studied the farm problem in France and Germany, and has been in close touch with the United States department of agriculture. Now on a vacation in Florida, he is hopeful of seeing his views put into practice before his return.

Sir Charles established his residence here during the last war when he was an adviser on ordnance for the British, helping to speed American arms production. Since then he has established his own system of agriculture in Scotland, based on American practice, by introducing silage of peas and beans as a complete substitute for grass in winter, by using caterpillars and tractors and other farm machinery, all in a program designed to produce sheep and cattle.

In Scotland sheep and other meat animals could be concentrated on the hillside to his views, and in England more land would be plowed through modern machine methods; to even now it might not be too late to solve the food problem.

Machines Replace Clerks

To Keep Tab on Soldiers
WASHINGTON.—The army is turning over to the new electronic machines the job of keeping individual tab on the million men expected to be in uniform by spring.

Complex punch card machinery already has replaced clerks in the adjutant general's office, and is to be installed at important military posts.

By means of special cards with holes punched at appropriate positions, this machinery will keep up to-the-minute records of both personnel and material, assuring that the soldier will get his pay, receive mail from home promptly, and be assigned work for which he is best fitted.

Bandit an Artist At Attire Changes

Adapts His Personality to Various Costumes.

CHICAGO.—Chicago avenue police arrested a quick-change artist early the other day and found he had committed three robberies in rapid succession—changing his attire out of a suitcase after each crime.

The first robbery was in a filling station at 527 Broadway. The bandit, who obtained $15, was blond and wore smoked glasses, a plaid jacket, a tan shirt, and a uniform cap. Police could find no one in the neighborhood who answered that description.

The next night a blond bandit garbed in much the same attire, but wearing spectacles instead of smoked glasses, robbed a grocery at 645 North State street of $23.50. Police again were unable to find anyone resembling the bandit.

Early the ensuing morning a bandit took $20 from a bakery at 550 North Dearborn street. George Adams, the clerk, said the gunman was blond and wore glasses, a plaid jacket, a soft felt hat, a white shirt, and a necktie. He scooped up a suitcase from the sidewalk when he fled.

The suitcase puzzled Detectives Joseph McCarthy and James Dwyer—but not for long.

A few minutes later they saw a blond man wearing glasses, a uniform cap, and a tan shirt at Clark and Erie streets. He was carrying a suitcase. They arrested him. Inside the suitcase they found an unloaded revolver and the miscellaneous collection of clothing which had been worn in the three robberies. The suspect confessed, saying he had fled to the nearest alley and changed clothes after each hold-up.

He identified himself as Ronald Blackwood, 29 years old, South Bend, Ind. He told Sgt. Robert E. Ryan he had stolen the revolver in South Bend.

He changed into the attire which had been worn in each of the robberies and his three victims identified him.

CINCINNATI.—The shadow of death lay across the high school auditorium stage in Cincinnati as Shirley Joan Hall, 15 years old, walked on, but she played out her role in the age-old tradition of the theater.

Just before first curtain at the leading part, Shirley, who had a leading role in the play, fell from the stage leading to the girls' dressing room. Laid tenderly on a cot by fellow Theatians, she cried a little, but when her call came she went on and played her role well. After the play, she developed a severe headache, lapsed into unconsciousness. Her parents rushed her to a hospital, where she died of a skull fracture.

So Lavery is going back to jail, after being granted his request by Sheriff W. R. Tice. Lavery was given his choice last May of remaining in the Woodbury county jail for two years or staying away from Iowa. He went to jail for two months, then was released when he agreed to stay out of the state.

Annual Senior II Play To Be Presented March 25th

There has been a great deal of speculation as to what play would be chosen by the Senior Two Class of Chilton County High School. At last it has been announced that by special arrangement with Samuel French of New York City. Permission has been secured to present that greatest of all plays, Mary J. Holmes' LENA RIVERS.

Last week the students were picked for their parts, and we are very fortunate in obtaining the very best amateur talent that has ever been collected in this play, and we know that this performance is going to be the very finest one ever given here.

A Summary of the play—The story deals with the plight of young and pretty Lena Rivers and her beloved Granny Nichols, who are compelled to leave their New England home and seek refuge with John Livingstone, a young man who has changed the family name of Nichols to Livingstone because of the social ambitions of his dominating wife, Matilda. When they arrive in Kentucky where the Livingstones have a large plantation they are treated very poorly and are forced to live in a servants house through the orders of Matilda. Durwood Belmont, whom Mrs. Livingstone plans to marry to her daughter, Caroline, causes a serious interference when he is attracted by Lena. John Junior and Anna Livingstone become Lena's firm friends, and champion her cause. Lena in turn aids Anna's romance with Malcolm Everett, her tutor. The whole play is loaded with laughs and much responsible for them are Old Caesar and Aunt Milly who are a show in themselves. The ending is very interesting indeed, don't miss it. The prices are 10 and 25c.

Do you remember curling up in your arm-chair and alternately laughing and crying over the experiences of Lena Rivers the very first time you ever read Mary J. Holmes' celebrated novel. Don't miss seeing the dramatization on Tuesday night, eight o'clock, March 25th.

Characters are as follows: LENA RIVERS—Frances Smith. GRANNY NICHOLS — Doris DeLoach. JOHN LIVINGSTONE — Emmett Blankenship. MRS. LIVINGSTONE — Florence Serrogins. CAROLINE LIVINGSTONE — Ruth Vinson. ANNA LIVINGSTONE — Betty Bon Hollis.

JOHN JUNIOR—Dan Alred. FRANK GRAHAM—Lewis Eubanks. MRS. GRAHAM — Kathleen Armstrong. DURWOOD BELMONT — Melvin Griffin. AUNT MILLY—Mary Ruth Snider. OLD CAESAR—Cecil Little. MALCOLM EVERETT — James Minor.

Ala. Products Week March 31-April 5

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—Preparations for observance of Alabama Products Week in every city, town and hamlet in the state March 31-April 5 are going forward rapidly, it is announced here by Mrs. Perkins J. Pre-witt, state chairman for the observance. Local chairman to direct local campaigns will be named within a few days, she said.

Mrs. Pre-witt, representing the Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs which is sponsoring the week along with the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce, revealed that response from over the state indicates an even greater observance this year than the first Alabama Products Week last year.

Throughout the state women's organizations, luncheon clubs, civic groups and schools are laying plans for holding special programs on the importance of increasing Alabama consumption of Alabama-made goods.

In all these programs stress will be laid on the fact that increased use of Alabama products by Alabamians will provide a wide increased market for raw materials from Alabama farms, forest and mines, thus providing increased cash income for a large number of Alabamians. Increased activity will result in more jobs for Alabamians in those plants which process or refine these raw materials.

Busy Port Run By Coast Guard

New York Harbor Operated Under Wartime Rule
'Just Be Ready.'

NEW YORK.—Father Knickerbocker's harbor, the world's largest and busiest port, is being operated by the coast guard under wartime rules and regulations—"just to be ready."

Given control of all shipping under a presidential proclamation last June, the coast guard has worked night and day to gear its machinery to an emergency tempo.

In charge of this machine are Capt. Ralph W. Dempwolf, commander of the New York coast guard district, and his aid, Commander John S. Baylis, both veterans of the World War. As "captain of the port," Dempwolf is in complete charge of all shipping here.

One of the first steps taken under the emergency setup was to establish a training school at Ellis island and call for 500 recruits—men who will study the loading of munitions, anchorage problems, espionage and sabotage. More than 300 are already at work.

24-Hour Watch.

Here are some of the things the coast guard is doing outside of its normal routine:

Armed coast guard vessels keep a 24-hour watch at the harbor's three entrances—the Narrows, Throgs Neck and Perth Amboy—and carefully examine each ship as it enters and leaves port.

Belligerent vessels, phantom-like in their coats of camouflage, gray or buff, are forced to fly secret code flags of identification before the patrol allows them to clear.

Anti-sabotage squads work quietly and constantly along the teeming waterfront. In this task coast guardsmen are joined by FBI agents, army and navy intelligence officers.

Coast guardsmen superintend the loading of all munitions—at Bayonne, N. J., Terminal and Gravesend barge, where ships are loaded at 1,000 longshoremen have been required to get coast guard certificates to handle explosives.

All ships loaded with munitions are escorted by patrol vessels through the harbor. Eighteen vessels and several planes patrol the harbor's 770 miles of docks each day, watching for fires, oil pollution, ice and checking the movements of each ship.

Make Daily Report.

A report on the position of every ship in the harbor—there are more than 300 some days—is sent to Washington each day.

The coast guard also does these jobs:

Patrols La Guardia airport. Enforces neutrality, weather and ice patrols in the Atlantic.

Answers SOS calls. Investigates each fire, grounding and collision.

Belligerent vessels are given special treatment. Met at the narrows, their radios are sealed until they leave port. Their armaments are inspected and photographed.

If a ship is judged to be carrying offensive guns, the navy takes charge and sets a time limit for her to stay in the harbor.

The office of Baylis and Stanley, his assistant, is forever busy. Telephones and radios pour in messages, cutters capture report for orders, and civilians seek permits with respect to every description, some of which seem strange even to the officers.

For example, Stanley recently was asked for permission to land 110 tons of Chinese firecrackers.

Woman Collects Human

Skulls as Queer Hobby

CHILLICOTHE, OHIO.—Gerda Lesco collects skulls for a hobby.

"Some people save coins, stamps, paper match covers and the like—but I have skulls," she said. "I don't think there's anything unusual or ghastly in the hobby."

The collection began when Harry Poe, walking along the Sciota river, found a skull on a gravel bank. He gave it to police.

Who is who is an assistant to a doctor, asked for it.

Then Sheriff Joseph Vincent presented her with a skull found by two fishermen on a river gravel bar.

Since then, Lesco has collected other skulls were found from time to time, they were given to the young woman.

"City police, the sheriff's department and the coroner have promised to help build my collection by turning over any loose skulls which come into their possession," Miss Lesco said.

Sand Panned on Beach

For Long-Lost Coins

HAMPTON BEACH, N. H.—Sifting sands for money is proving profitable at Hampton Beach this year. Unusually high and strong tides have stirred up sands that have been undisturbed for years—resulting in numerous "coin panning" expeditions. Some people have found as much as $15 in dimes, quarters and half-dollars in two days.

A few of the coins found bore the dates of 1803, 1822 and 1835.

EXPERIENCE RATING

PLAN PROPOSED

Alabama's experience rating plan which is expected to save employers and their workers who are covered by the unemployment compensation law not less than $2,000,000 and possibly as much as $3,000,000 in 1941 and will continue to save them money in future years will be explained at a special meeting of employers of Dallas and other counties in the section, Tuesday, March 18, at 8 p.m. The meeting will be held at the Dallas County Courthouse, Selma.

The Selma Chamber of Commerce and the Selma office of the Alabama State Employment Service are sponsoring the meeting and the Department of Industrial Relations, which administers the unemployment compensation program in Alabama has invited all employers of Dallas, Lowndes, Wilcox and Chilton counties to attend. The Selma Chamber of Commerce has extended an invitation to all employers of the Selma trade territory.

Judge John D. Petree of Industrial Relations, has sent invitations to all employers in the section who will be covered by the law and is expected to attend the meeting and outline in a short talk the work of the Department of Industrial Relations.

The experience rating plan, which will result in the savings to employers and their workers, will be explained by Frank R. Broadway, General Counsel of the Department, Douglas Stackman of Birmingham, Chamber of the Commerce, and the Selma office of the Alabama State Employment Service. The rating legislation later approved by the Legislature, will talk on the success of the plan in saving money for employers and their workers in the stabilization of employment in the State which will have and operate in the Alabama plan of employment in the State which will have an experience rating plan. Employers will get the benefit of the new rates on their payrolls after April 1 if they have stabilized employment to such an extent as to make them eligible.

In his letter to covered Employers of the Selma territory Judge Petree emphasized that the talks will be limited to one hour and that afterward a question and answer period will be set aside during which it will be possible to be asked to ask any questions about the plan and how it will affect their operations.

W. P. Baker, Manager of the Selma office of the Alabama State Employment Service, has urged all employers of the four counties to attend the meeting if possible. "A tax dollar saved means a dollar held in this section for our own uses," said Mr. Baker. "The experience rating plan, which will become effective April 1, has been devised to save money to employers and their workers without reducing their benefits available to those who become unemployed."

Under the experience rating plan an employer with the most favorable record for labor stabilization can get a reduction of as much as 31 per cent in the amount he is required to pay contributions to the unemployment trust fund. When an Employer gets the maximum reduction every worker in his organization who is covered by law will get a reduction of 90 per cent in the amount he is required to pay. "We believe," Mr. Baker said, "that attend this meeting in order that they may learn how the Department will administer the plan. It should mean money in their pockets."

FSA FAMILIES REALIZE

IMPORTANCE OF GARDEN

The borrowers of FSA have realized that a well-planned garden is the best of food sources. The small plot of ground used for the garden gives us our most important and cheapest source of food.

One of the first things our families realize is the importance of an family round garden. It makes it possible to have an assortment of vegetables every day in the year along with surplus of surplus of goods.

This year, besides seed saved from last year, around 300 packages of seed have been purchased.

Vegetables, radishes, cabbage, peas, turnips, collards, cucumbers, lettuce, beets, pepper radishes, squash, tomatoes, turnips, mustard, okra, and other seed. Already cabbage plant, onion sets, English peas, turnips, and carrots have been planted. Also tomato plants have been planted. With this variety of seed our families will have no trouble maintaining an all-year round garden.

New Type Bomb to Blast Submarines Gets a Test
LOS ANGELES.—A new type of bomb designed to blast submarines was demonstrated by Russell Hart, Los Angeles inventor.
It is fashioned from an alloy which Hart said is highly explosive in water. To demonstrate, he placed a bit weighing a tenth of an ounce through a small iron pipe into a can of water. There was an explosion.
Hart said the explosion equalled that of two ounces of black powder. The water, he said, liberated hydrogen in the alloy and caused the explosion.
"A 100-pound bomb of this material," Hart asserted, "would be equal to a 300-pound depth bomb of the type now used by Great Britain."
The cost would be about 35 cents a pound instead of the present $1, Hart said.
Hart related that he discovered possibilities of the alloy only by accident in removing bark from trees on a farm near Portland, Ore., in 1938. He said a piece of the alloy used in the bark remover slipped and plunged into a water well, causing an explosion.

Youth, 18, Buys Store With Live Stock Profits
STAPLEHURST, NEB.—Earnings from 4-H club live-stock activities have enabled Arden Aegerter, Seward county farm youth, to purchase a half interest in one of Staplehurst's three grocery stores.
Aegerter, who is 18, had the reserve grand champion Hereford in 1936, grand champion lamb in 1935, reserve grand champion lamb in 1937 at Ak-Sar-Ben shows. At state fair exhibitions he had a grand champion in 1937 and generally showed the champion or prize pen of lambs.
Aegerter said his gross earnings and winnings have been about $3,500, for a net of approximately $800.
Arden and his brother, Harold, 23, pooled their finances and bought the store in the town of 300 population.

Chilton County Resident Writes Of Florida and Its Many Wonders

Editor, Chilton County News:

When I left Chilton county in December to come to West Palm Beach Fla., to spend the winter with my son, Guy H. DeShazo, I promised a number of my friends that I would write a letter to the county papers and endeavor to tell what I saw and my impressions of the South Florida country, its climate and the people I met.

I wish first to apologize for waiting until I am almost ready to return home to write this letter, but the truth is I have been so busy for the past two months "seeing the sights" that I have not had the time to write before now. And too, every day there is something new to see, and I have been afraid that if I wrote that I would see something the next day that I would have liked to incorporate in the narrative.

First, my first pleasant experience after arriving in West Palm Beach and getting settled, was to come in with me, my wife and my county friend, "Uncle Remus". We have been almost constant companions since, and have great times going fishing together—sometimes we catch some fish and sometimes we just simply fish.

Now for a brief description of the city itself. West Palm Beach is one of the most beautiful cities in the entire State of Florida. It is located on the shores of beautiful Lake Worth which separates West Palm Beach from Palm Beach. This lake is in width from one-fourth to a mile and a half in width and approximately 18 miles long. The streets of the city are wide and beautifully lined with all sorts of palm trees and other kinds of lovely tropical plants. The predominating palm being the coconut palm. These grow such an abundance of coconuts that it is a real problem for the city to dispose of them. Lots of people gather them all through the year to use as fire fuel when there is a cool spell. The population of West Palm Beach is approximately 30,000, that is the city proper, which does not include a considerable number in smaller suburbs not inside the actual city limits. The city is stretched out in a long narrow strip along the shore of the lake, and for the entire 18 miles of lake there is no break in the development, although there is other municipalities than West Palm Beach included in this stretch. Arriving from the north, there is Lake Park, Riviera, West Palm Beach, Lake Worth (this named for the lake), Lantana, Hypoxule, Inlet Village and Boynton. These cities and smaller towns are immediately adjacent to each other with only the imaginary city limits line dividing them.

In addition to these cities on the West side of the lake, there is Palma Beach on the island between the lake and the Atlantic Ocean, which to view across the lake from West Palm Beach appears to be nothing but a huge dense swamp with only the tops of the taller trees. But cross over the lake on any one of the three bridges connecting the two cities and one finds one of the most beautiful cities that you could wish to see. Broad palm lined streets flanked with beautiful residences and large estates almost as large as some Chilton county farms. The beauty of these places of these places defy description with mere words and cold type. There are magnificent homes built in practically every type of architecture in the world. The business buildings are also constructed in both modern design and replicas of famous foreign structures of France, Spain, and other countries abroad.

A number of years ago there lived a man who foresaw the possibilities of this section of the United States, and when a means of travel were provided. A man who was willing to stake his entire fortune in the effort to provide that means of getting to and from south Florida. That man was Henry M. Flagler, founder of the Florida East Coast Railway, which stretched its rails through hundreds of miles of marshes and palmetto flats from Jacksonville to Miami to provide a safe and convenient means of getting to this part of the state. As a monument to this man of vision, the people of the state of Florida have seen to it that as long as this country endures there will be lasting reminders of his great benevolence to Florida. This is manifested in the most beautiful streets in West Palm Beach is Flagler Drive which flanks the shores of Lake Worth for almost the entire length of the city. Also, one of the fine bridges which spans Lake Worth connecting West Palm Beach with Palm Beach is known as Flagler Bridge.

I have never had the good fortune to see much of the good old U. S. A., but of that part I have been privileged to see this country here and the cities and towns are the most beautiful places I have ever seen, and I had rather live here than any place I have been. Contrary to popular opinion, I find the people here to be most hospitable and clever that you would care to know. Here you will find people from the poorest to the rich and ultra-rich, but they are all just one big happy family of human beings, with no lines drawn. When you meet one of them about the first thing they ask is: "What state are you from?" They rarely ever ask your name, but will sit and talk for hours about most anything under the sun.

This air of hospitality extends right on down to the municipality itself. Here you find no "cocky" policeman (generally referred to as "flat-foot") and they are the most courteous bunch of city officers that I have ever had the pleasure of watching at their job or come in contact with. About the only thing they have to do is watch the street crossings and keep old country people like myself from being run over by some fellow with no place to go and in a big hurry to get there.

I go down to Flagler Park every day and watch "Uncle Remus" and about a thousand others play shuffleboard, checkers, chess, dominoes, all kinds of card games, and even horse shoes (this sometimes called "barney yard golf"), while others like myself simply sit on the sidelines and watch and cheer the players on. One of the things I see about this city is its effort to see to it that the visitors here have a good time and enjoy themselves to the extent that they will come again.

I should also like to say that although there is anywhere from one to four open bars in most every town, and anyone can get anything he (or she) wishes to drink, I have my first drunk person to see in the two months I have been here.

The climate here is wonderful. While the radio blares forth with weather reports of zero and freezing weather in other parts of the country, I sit and listen to these reports in my shirt-sleeves with no heat of any kind in the house.

Next Sunday Guy plans to take the Missus and myself to see the huge sugar plantations at Canal Point, Pahokee, Belle Glade and Clewiston, which are located on the south shores of the large Lake Okechobee. Clewiston which is the most western of these plantations is some 60 miles west of West Palm Beach and is located on State Road No. 25, the cross-state road to Fort Myers on the West Coast of the state, in which city my oldest sister, Mrs. Henry D. Champlin, (Florence) lives.

Also, before we return to Chilton about the first of April, we hope to spend a day looking at Miami, and will try to write another letter after we have made these trips and tell what we saw.

No doubt most of the people of Chilton read about and saw pictures in the daily papers about the steamship Manhattan which was grounded just off Palm Beach for more than two weeks recently. I had the pleasure of seeing this huge boat. It was some five or six miles north of the city, and to see it required an automobile of some fifteen miles in a stream of curious traffic which moved at a snail's pace for more than five miles and required about an hour and a half to get through. During the entire time the ship was on the ground, an average of more than two thousand cars visited the scene daily requiring the services of about a dozen traffic officers to handle and keep straight and out of hopeless tangles and traffic jams on the narrow road by which the scene was reached.

There is so much that I have seen and so much to write about that to include it all in this letter, I fear would tax the good nature of the editor, so will close for this time and give you more in the next letter. I expect to spend the summer back in Chilton, and will be glad to tell you personally of my experience if the summer is long enough for me to do so, but I will have to get it all told during the summer for comes the first whiff of northwest wind, and it will be West Palm Beach for me and the Missus.

Sincerely,

W. F. DeSHAZO.

LIBERTY HILL

We are glad to report a better attendance at Sunday school last Sunday. We want to ask everybody to come every time they can.

Remember next Saturday and Sunday, March 15th and 16th, are our regular preaching days. We hope everyone will keep this in mind and will plan to be present at both services, and don't forget our singing Sunday afternoon, beginning at 2:00 o'clock. You singers come out and bring your new books with you and enjoy the afternoon in song services.

New Salem

Everyone remember that next Sunday afternoon is our regular singing afternoon. We want everyone that loves singing, singers and listeners, to come to our singing and bring your new song books. We wish to extend a cordial invitation to everyone.

"Build-Up" Good News For Suffering Women

Much of women's periodic distress may be unnecessary!

Many who suffer from headaches, nervousness, cramp-like pains, other symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition are helped by CARDUI.

Main way it helps relieve periodic distress is by increasing appetite and flow of gastric juices. There is also side digestion; helps build strength, energy, resistance to periodic disturbances.

Others find help for periodic discomfort this way: Start a diet change before and take CARDUI until "the time" has passed. Women have used CARDUI more than 50 years.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank all of you who were so nice to me and my family when we moved into our present home the 1st of February. I also thank those friends that were so nice from the 1st until now.

I wish that I could publish all the names of those who helped me but the first list got lost before I came home from the hospital. I also thank those who would have helped but did not have the opportunity. I especially want to thank Mr. J. A. Gore and Mr. Arnold Cox who took their trucks and drove them all day for me one day.

G. H. Carroll, Mrs. W. W. Gray, Mrs. Jack Gore, Mrs. Earl Thomas, Mrs. J. D. Jones, Mrs. J. W. Woods, Miss Annie Gray, Mrs. H. D. Durbin, Mrs. Myrtle Arant, Mrs. J. G. With Japan, Italy and Germany striving so hard to establish peace, with justice it is strange that there is not more peace with justice.

The people of Chilton County can practice neighborliness and promote their own general welfare without waiting on outside help.

91 YEARS OF PROGRESS

A Historical Tour of the Louisville & Nashville R.R.

REGULAR THROUGH SERVICE TO NASHVILLE

ESTABLISHED OCT. 31, 1859

FOLLOWING the opening of stock subscription books, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company held its first stockholders' meeting in September, 1851, and moved into its first general office building at Bullitt and Main streets, Louisville, in October of that year. A year later, after several preliminary surveys, and with $5,818,700 in the treasury, the board of directors definitely ordered the line to Nashville located by way of Elizabethtown and Bowling Green, Ky.

Actual construction of the road was begun on May 2, 1853, but many difficulties were encountered—and six years elapsed before Louisville and Nashville were linked by rail.

As construction progressed, trains were run to the end of the line. Actually the first train was run in 1855 when the track had reached a point twelve and one half miles south of Louisville. That city subscribed its second million dollars to the venture in 1856, and proudly dedicated the L. & N.'s first freight and passenger station in 1858. The first regular through passenger service between Louisville and Nashville began Oct. 31, 1859.

DEPOT 516 & BROADWAY, LOUISVILLE
DEDICATED 1858, Pres. H. M. Offenberg

TODAY 7,000 stockholders own 1,170,000 shares of L. & N. stock and there are about an equal number of bondholders. The Company's investment in road and equipment is now 445 million dollars. It owns 942 locomotives, 53,000 freight cars, 700 passenger cars and 2,000 pieces of work equipment.

ment. . . The ability and the purpose of the railroad to efficiently and courteously serve its patrons are at the highest levels in its history. It is ready and willing to handle all increased business offered it, whether piece-time commerce or for national defense.

FOLKS and THINGS ABOUT TOWN

BY BEN

While walking along the highway the other day we came across an old "jalopy" that through defective wiring had caught on fire. The owner was frantically fighting the flame with his hat. About this time a small school bus came by looked at the fire and said to him "sabotage" and continued along his way.

We're the parent of a 12 year old daughter. Now men, as a rule, spend very little time with their children—they are too busy trying to make a living for them. We had a few hours last week and spent it at home reading—that is, we started reading—several of our daughter's friends came in: Julia Nell Parrish, Peggy Ramsey, Wilford Easterling. It was a pleasure to sit and enjoy the conversation of these little girls. Have you ever thought how little we know of our child's thoughts, wishes and ambition?

We've heard about "Stars Falling on Alabama" but last Thursday evening late in the night, the boss at the hotel in Alabama was Clanton. A plane from Maxwell Field at Montgomery ran out of gas over Clanton and made a forced landing in a field behind the home of Mr. Fate Popwell. In landing the pilot hit a terrace and some damage was done to the plane. The pilot was injured.

Well, our genial postmaster got off to the Postmasters' Convention in Mobile. Just made your hats and when he gets back he can tell you all about it.

The Lion Cavalcade to Montgomery Thursday nights reports one wonderful time, in fact, some say, "the less said better!" Of course, we didn't get to go and we don't know. The boss at that night and we had to stick around town to welcome them. Among those who did get to make the trip were President Gray Heflin, Leroy Martin, Ben Marshall, J. T. King, Bill Evans, Tommy Thompson, Joe Higgins and last but not least Claude Craig. In the next few weeks the Annual Convention will be held at Dothan and we already have our seat reserved. That's one we won't miss, if we can help it.

Listen, if you weren't at the fire last Friday night, you're way behind. . . . Why we can tell you the color of nearly everybody's pajamas and beautiful nightgowns in town. The fire we refer to was that of Hugh Thompson's store warehouse stand and it was some fire. Probably the biggest fire in Clanton in a long time. But getting back to the subject . . . we propose an ordinance making it compulsory for the ladies to fully dress before going out to the conflagration. . . . The wife got excited and ran half a block before she discovered that it was winter and had better grab a wrap. Anyway, I never did get a good look at the fire.

Quite a bit of interest was created last Saturday morning when Jimmie Bell put a tiny mule colt in his show window. The colt owned by Geo. McCain and weighing only about twenty pounds is two months old. Large crowds gathered around the window all morning to get a look at the fellow. . . . but, Jimmie says not to worry, he will make another appearance next Saturday at the same place. Not Jimmie, the mule colt.

Melvin Mims is all broke out with Neon Lights. . . . or had you noticed? Not Melvin to be exact, but his place of business—the Dixie Cafe. Those lights around the front windows look pretty attractive and inviting. . . . but, Esther says somebody will have to use a little less cream in their coffee to pay the sign man.

J. E. Easterling and Julius Smith have taken a position with Hayes Chevrolet Co. as salesmen. Here's looking to the both of them. . . . but, we're serving notice right now, we're not on the market for no automobile, no time.

A posy to Mrs. Anna Thacker for some posies. . . . in the form of a beautiful bouquet brought to our desk Wednesday morning. . . . we are not going to say definitely but we believe they are jonquils and hyacinth. . . . anyway they're beautiful and we appreciate them very much, Mrs. Thacker.

SINGING AT THORSBY

Miss Tinker Will Be Presented In Recital

Miss Elsie Tinker will present a piano recital at the City Hall Monday March 24th, 8:00 p.m. to which the public is cordially invited. Her program will include outstanding selections from Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Liszt and Lecuna.

Miss Tinker is the music instructor at Thorsby Institute coming there after receiving her music degree at Oberlin Conservatory. The Music Club takes pride in presenting such an accomplished pianist.

Miss Katherine Bryan, pupil of Miss Tinker, and Miss Ruby Raybon, pupil of Mrs. Raymond Mims, will give a group of vocal numbers. Chilton County should be proud of these two young ladies both of whom show great promise.

CAPTAIN T. H. WALKER CALLED TO ARMY

Capt. Horton Walker, Educational Instructor at the CCC camp has been called to report to Camp Davis at Holly Ridge N. C., on the 20th of March. Capt. Walker was president of the Clanton Kiwanis Club and popular in business life of Clanton.

Capt. J. B. Ward has been appointed to take the place of Capt. Walker but it is understood that he has been called into service, to be effective in April.

Quick Freezing Units Installed In Birmingham

Will Prove of Great Value to Berry Growers In Chilton County

The following article which appeared in Monday's Birmingham Post will be interesting to every strawberry grower in Chilton County:

The Tennessee Valley Authority has become a sort of maternity hospital for the hatching of new industries in the South.

David E. Lilienthal, TVA director, came to Birmingham today to officiate at the "christening" of two of these industries, both of vital importance to Alabama.

Mr. Lilienthal announced that the Birmingham Ice and Cold Storage Co., 2124 Fourth Ave., is installing machinery for the quick process invented by the TVA industrial research department. It is calculated to double the income of Alabama's strawberry growers.

His second revelation had to do with aluminum, the basic of America's aircraft program and a vital cog in naval development. Aluminum, Mr. Lilienthal disclosed, is now being made out of common Alabama clay at the TVA research laboratory at Muscle Shoals.

This means, he said that the United States will no longer be dependent on foreign sources of supply for this needed product.

Berries K-2p Two Years

Under a new and superior process patented by TVA, fruit will be quick frozen in such a way "that you can have strawberries at Christmas which will taste no different from those you eat in the regular strawberry season," Mr. Lilienthal said.

Strawberries, in this process, are frozen in six minutes, they do not break down when they thaw, and they will keep satisfactorily as long as two years he explained.

Most of the strawberries to be frozen will come from Cullman and Chilton Counties. The new process will produce a high unit cash crop for Alabama and is a part of the TVA industrial research program to develop diversified industries in the South, Mr. Lilienthal said.

He pointed out that 300,000 pounds of strawberries either rotted or were unmarketed in last year's crop.

MRS. APPERSON STILL CRITICALLY ILL

Mrs. D. M. Apperson of Maplesville, Route 2, who has been critically ill in Kings Memorial Hospital at Selma for the past four weeks condition is reported to be unchanged.

Red Cross Drive Report Shows Splendid Response

Letter of Commendation Received By Local Chapter of Organization

My Dear Mr. Stapp:

We acknowledge with appreciation your report of the Roll Call held in Chilton County and the Chapter's check for $453.89, the 'National' apportionment of 907 memberships.

This is a splendid increase over the Roll Call of a year ago, when 516 members were enrolled. It is, I am sure, gratifying to you to have attained this success. We at National Headquarters are most appreciative of the time and effort you gave to the planning and general oversight of Roll Call activities, in addition to your regular duties as Chairman of the Chapter and Chairman of the Disaster Preparedness Committee.

You will be interested to know that for the eighth successive year the National membership has shown a significant gain, and that the reports indicate that the State of Alabama as a whole has increased its membership by approximately 14 per cent.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank you for your leadership. Will you also express to each of your co-workers our appreciation for their assistance and support.

Sincerely yours,
W. W. JEFFERSON,
Assistant to the Manager, Eastern Division.

LUTHER FOSHEE ACCEPTS POSITION IN SYLACAUGA

Luther Foshee who for the past several years has been connected with Hayes Chevrolet Company as salesman, has accepted a position with Brown Brothers Chevrolet Company at Sylacauga.

It is said that his family will remain here for the time being, anyhow, until after school is out for the summer months. He was very enthused about his new work and says that things are really booming in that part of the State.

SHERIFF'S FORCE HAVE VERY QUOTE WAKE

The jail commitment records of the Sheriff's office show that only six persons were committed during the past week. One was omitted for grand larceny, one for petit larceny, three for public drunkenness and one for non-support.

Sheriff Culp also reports that he now has in possession four bicycles. These were discovered in a swamp about a quarter of a mile below Coopers. The wheels were picked up Monday noon and as yet there is no clue as to their origin or rightful owners.

HOWARD L. FOSHEE TO LECTURE AT CHURCH OF CHRIST

On Sunday March 22nd, Mr. Howard L. Foshee will lecture at the church of Christ for men, for the purpose of importance to all. Mr. Foshee will be remembered as once superintendent of Education of Chilton County. Those who know and remember him will at once remember him as a man of unusual ability and able to teach good lessons. The public has an invitation to hear him on the above stated time at the Church of Christ, Clanton.

1,500 White Selectees In Next Call

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—The next call for men for Alabama, April 1 to April 10, Adj. Gen. Ben M. Smith, Selective Service Director for Alabama, has announced provides for the induction into service of 1,500 white selectees and 450 negro selectees; all to be sent to Ft. McClellan, Ala., and Ft. Barrancas, Fla.

With the induction of those drawn in this call, Alabama's total of men furnished the army through the selective service system up to and through April 10 will be 5,407 whites and 2,018 negro trainees, making a grand total of 7,425.

Among those to go during this induction will be 20 from Chilton county.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Murphy of Lay Dam are spending this week in Mobile.

Mr. Earl Andrews of Montgomery was in Clanton Monday.

Football Game Promises Much Excitement

The football game to be held on the Chilton County High School gridiron within the next two weeks promises to be an interesting game. The candidates that are going through their spring training against those players who have already graduated from high school are the contestants.

Gabby Tiffin, who will be coach for the independents, requests all who are interested in playing to be at the high school playing field next Sunday afternoon at two o'clock to get fitted for their uniforms and shoes.

EARLY MORNING FIRE RAVAGES WAREHOUSE

An early morning blaze last Saturday morning early destroyed the old Hugh Thompson Warehouse. Located on the corner of U. S. 31 and the Selma Highway, so near the center of town it attracted large crowds from all directions. The local fire department is due a lot of credit for keeping the fire under control and confining it to one building. With three filling Stations on the remaining three corners, there is no telling what the loss could have been. Since Mr. Thompson moved his cotton it had been used to house used automobiles.

Berry and Peach Growers Met Last Saturday

Growers Look Forward To Most Profitable Season In Several Years

The Strawberry and Peach Growers of Chilton County and those others interested in fruit growing met at the courthouse here last Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

More than two hundred and fifty members and visitors attended. The Association at once got down to business and voted that the growers would pay 2c per cup to the pickers this spring. They also went on record as favoring a U. S. Inspection on all fruits. They learned that crates would cost more this year due to the hike in lumber prices caused by the defense program.

Many of the members made short talks and much good was accomplished. It was agreed by the Association before adjournment that the peach grading machine would be used this year to grade their peaches before shipping.

A Letter To Mr. S. A. Jones

The following letter was received a few days ago by S. A. Jones from J. C. Hodges, president of the Coshy-Hodges Milling Company at Birmingham:

My Dear Mr. Jones:

I noticed by the press that the Clanton and Chilton County boys copped the State Championship in basketball last week, and I wish to congratulate you and your fine citizenship on this accomplishment.

I always follow sports of this kind, and know that your boys really put out—to win so coveted a trophy. Congratulations and best wishes.

Sincerely yours,
J. C. HODGES.

ED PLIER KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

G. Ed Plier, age about 53, was seriously injured in an automobile accident Friday morning at Baxley, Ga. He died early Monday at Waycross and the remains were shipped Tuesday to his home here. Interment was in the Clanton cemetery, J. M. Martin and Sons in charge of burial.

Services were conducted Thursday morning at 11 o'clock from the home of Rev. S. J. Eacl officiated. He was the son of the late Charlie Plier, who died Jan. 5th and a brother. Sid, who died about a year ago. He is survived by his wife and several brothers and sisters of Clanton.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Cox and children spent the week end in Birmingham.

Miss Pauline Steadman and Claud Mezell of Taballa were married March 10 at the home of Dr. and Mrs. T. C. Casady.

EASTER FASHION SHOW

Over the telephone—the through the newspapers—friends—spreads the news of the New Fashion Show! The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Clanton Methodist church presents a streamlined Easter Fashion Show. A show designed to lighten the solemnity. Which do you prefer for entertainment? Romance, singing, comedy, styles? All are combined in this grand show. For romance, we present Jeannette McDonald and Nelson Eddy, singing their well-known and well-loved songs. Shirley Temple will delight you with her enchanting songs and dances. Deanna Durbin, Judy Garland, Mickey Rooney and Edgar Bergen with Charlie McCarthy are just a few of the favorites to bring their unforgettable personalities to the stage of the City Hall. And to entrance the audience further, the merchants of Clanton, with the help of many young models have an astounding and sparkling fashion preview to entertain and bring you styles for 1941.

Don't miss it. Come and bring your family! Friday night, March 21st, 8:00 at the City Hall. Admission 15 & 25c.

CLANTON PILOT CLUB

The Clanton Pilot Club met last Wednesday night at the Clanton Methodist church. Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Crowell were guests of the Club. A very interesting talk was made by Dr. Crowell.

CEMETERY

TO THE EDITOR:

Please express to the hundreds of people who have praised our work in the cemetery, our appreciation. We are natural in that we like praise, but we would like to have some money to help defray the expenses of that work. We have received three $500 contributions. By the time we finish cleaning up, painting, filling in, leveling up and sodding the cemetery so that we can keep it looking creditable to the community, we hope to get some ONE HUNDRED OR MORE FIVE DOLLAR CONTRIBUTIONS. All contributions will be appreciated.

Have you noticed the Water Works plant? If we who are interested in the young people are sufficiently interested to raise $30,000.00 as our part of the proposed swimming pool, we think we will have a Water Works and Recreational Center to be proud of. The swimming pool committee lacks about $800.00 having the necessary funds for the swimming pool. Any citizen who is interested in seeing a swimming pool built for our young people may leave their contribution or loan at the City Hall or report it to one of the committee.

For your information we hope to get started improving Second Avenue, and the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway within the next three weeks.

We have finished our survey relative to Street Signs and House Numbers and hope to meet the Postal Department's requirements, enabling us to get additional mail delivery service by July 1st—C. E. STAPF, Mayor.

A. E. A. CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN BIRMINGHAM

Birmingham on the 27, 28 and 29th of March will be host to the A. E. A. members of the State.

The Convention opens officially on Thursday afternoon in the Municipal Auditorium when Commission President Cooper Green, of Birmingham and P. D. McArthur, vice-president of the City Board of Education, will welcome the visiting teachers. All of the county schools are closed so that the teachers may attend.

Drive To Aid Nations Crippled Children Begins

Maddox Heads Local Committee To Secure Aid For County's Crippled

The annual drive to sell Easter Seals and secure membership in the Alabama Society for Crippled Children to aid crippled children will open March 20, it was announced today by Rascoe Maddox, Chairman of the campaign in Chilton County. The campaign is part of the nation-wide drive conducted simultaneously in thirty other states throughout the country affiliated with the National Society for Crippled Children. Chilton County joins with other counties throughout the State to gain public support necessary to carry on and expand the work for crippled children in America on a local, state, and national scale.

In addition to the Chairman, Rascoe Maddox, who is Superintendent of Education, members of the 1941 Easter Seal Committee are Cohen Stapf, Mayor of Clanton; Mrs. Sophia Jones, Clanton; Miss Lillian McKee, Thorsby; W. A. Gault, Verdena; Mrs. C. N. Parnell, Margsville; Miss Lucile Pace, Jewell and Miss Nolan McRoney, Clanton.

Easter Seal headquarters will be at the office of the Chilton County Board of Education in Clanton and will be open to the public.

In planning the 1941 campaign, Chairman Maddox stated: "The children in our own county whose bodies are crippled from the ravages of disease, accident, or birth, constitute a grave challenge to all our citizens. These children must have a chance to develop mentally and physically, and to become useful, happy Americans."

It is through the sale of the Easter Seals each year that the work of the Society, dedicated to the needs for corrective treatment, education, vocational aid for the crippled children, can be maintained.

Annual Senior II Play To Be Presented March 25th

There has been a great deal of speculation as to what play would be chosen by the Senior Two Class of Chilton County High School. At last it has been announced that by special arrangement with Samuel French of New York City, permission has been secured to present that greatest of all plays, Mary J. Holmes' LENA RIVERS.

Last week the students were picked for their parts, and we are very fortunate in obtaining the very best amateur talent that has ever been collected in one play, and we know that this performance is going to be the very finest one ever given here.

A Summary of the play—The story deals with the plight of young and pretty Lena Rivers and her beloved Granny Nichols, who are compelled to leave their New England home and seek refuge with John Livingstone, Granny's son, who has changed the family name of Nichols to Livingstone because of the social ambitions of his father.

E. L. KLINNER FURNITURE COMPANY TO MOVE

The E. L. Klinner Furniture Company, now situated on Second Avenue next to Levine's mill, is moving to their new home around the first of April. Rather than call it a new home, for it is the building next to V. J. Elmore's on the Highway. The E. L. Klinner Furniture Company was housed there when they moved to their present location. Watch the news for the advertising next week, announcing their big re-opening sale.

THORSBY NEWS

The Seniors of Thorsby Institute will make their annual trip to the Tuskegee Institute next Friday, March 21.

The following students made First Honor Roll during the fourth term of work here: William Callen, Lula Mac Collins, Norman Harris, Irvin Lande, Marcetta Lang, Ocean Walker, Doris Wiley, Augusta Williams. Those making Second Honor Roll were: Ruby Mac Bean, Carrie Berry, Kathrine Bryan, Ruth Duke, Mary Alma Goodgame, Doris Harden, William Hicks, Leslie Huggins, Katholene McLendon, Mary Margaret Mims, Annie Ruth Pate, Annie Lou Payne, Jeanette Plant, Kathleen Powell, Rubye Raybon, and poems, songs and anthems. Lowell Smoot, Jack Vines, Annie Lee Williams and Frances Wood.

Miss Elsie Tinker, Music Teacher at Thorsby Institute, will give a Music Recital in the Baptist Church of Clanton under the auspices of the Clanton Music Club on Monday night, March 24 at 7:30.

The Junior Choir of the Congregational Christian Church of Thorsby presented a most inspiring musical program on Sunday night, March 16 at readings and poems, songs and anthems. The program consisted of several choir. Those taking part in the bell, Betty Jo Raybon, Eloise Piper, Patty Campbell, Charlene Williams and Lorena Patterson. The church was beautifully decorated with daffodils, candles, and ivy. The program was directed by Mrs. T. E. Campbell.

SHOULTS

We had a nice crowd at Sunday school for the rainy weather.

Miss Grace Hicks spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shoults. Mr. Charlie Walker returned home Sunday from a visit in West Palm Beach, Fla. with his daughter.

Mr. Joe Latham spent a few days with his family, Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Latham.

Miss Bernice Sewell spent Saturday night with Mr. Carlos Lee Smith.

Mr. C. R. Sewell spent Sunday with Mr. Coleman Smith.

Mr. Leo Stough spent a while Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Loh.

Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Wright and children from Adams spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Wallace.

We are very glad to have Mr. and Mrs. George Lovelady and little daughter, Murial, moved into our community from Perry county.

Our good friend Judge J. L. Reynolds of Chilton County, visited Montgomery Tuesday but unfortunately he did not get to see him. We have known Judge Reynolds pretty intimately for more than 30 years and know the fine work he did in Chilton County as a judicial official for so long.

Judge Reynolds is a high compliment to the county by the Montgomery police department.

Montgomery is a high compliment to the county by the Montgomery police department.

Judge Reynolds was a longtime friend of the late beloved Mayor Gunter and also of the late Grover C. Hall. Their deaths stirred him deeply. He felt that he had lost two very close friends and that the city and the State had lost two irreplaceable citizens—Atticus Mulin, in Montgomery Advertiser.

School To Open For Additional Patrolmen

Capt. N. W. Kimbrough as Director of Training, the Fifth State Highway Patrol Recruit Training School will open Monday at 9:00 a.m. in the Gay-Teague building for the training of officers who will be appointed to the 12 places in Highway Patrolmen provided for in the recent order of Gov. Frank M. Dixon increasing the strength of the patrol, and as replacements to fill three existing vacancies in the uniformed personnel.

The school which will continue for two weeks will be attended by 25 trainees chosen from those who received the highest marks in the recent examination conducted by the State Personnel Department for the establishing of an eligible list for positions as Highway Patrolmen. The 15 men receiving the highest marks at the conclusion of the school will be appointed to the places now open.

The school will be conducted for a period of two weeks in the hotel except for squad car and motorcycle instruction in a nearby garage. The classes will be observed daily except Sunday with classes beginning at 9:00 a.m. and closing at 8:00 p.m. The trainees will be quartered in the hotel and have their meals there.

Patrolman J. M. Glass, stationed at Clanton, and the Department's best marksman, will handle firearms instructions.

Henry G. Gillespie, of Clanton is one of the 25 attending the school.

Thomas Bazzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bazzel, left last Saturday for Arcadia, Fla., to begin his training as a flying cadet. Bazzel received his private pilot license under the CAA at Alabama Polytechnic Institute the past semester.

Courtesy is too cheap for some people interested in it.

Life would be more enjoyable if more people tried to enjoy it.

REVIEWS and PREVIEWS

By Irvin Lande

President Roosevelt spoke last Saturday night in another one of his famous Fireside Chats, except this speech was more than a Fireside Chat—it was the most important speech that has been made in the United States since the outbreak of the war in Europe.

The United States has been condemned at many times in the past, or not definitely stating her position on matters of world importance. Because of this fact, critics have said that the rest of the world has never known the actual stand America would take on various matters. For instance, it has been said that the United States would have definitely denounced Italy in her invasion of Ethiopia, Italy would have thought twice and if the United States would have carried through her denunciation with clear-cut action, Italy and Germany would not have had the initiative in starting another world war. But as it was, American policy was never definitely defined, and the British could not rely too much on American action, and Hitler was never very greatly disturbed by American press comment, because he felt that the American newspaper talk was merely commercial endeavor and not representative of the American Congress, and certainly not representative of the American people, as a whole.

In the days of the first world war, President Wilson asked Americans to remain neutral as well as in action, and from that speech until the United States declared war on Germany the rest of the world did not know whether the United States was on the side of the Allies or on the side of Germany and Austria. Some statesmen point out that had America showed definite action, the continuance of the first world war might have been prevented.

However, in this war, the story is entirely different, though the United States has been rather slow to state emphatically her position, despite all the talk to the contrary. On the very day that Britain declared war on Germany, the second time within twenty-five years, President Roosevelt addressed the American people and told them that we must remain neutral in action, but that it would be impossible to remain neutral in thought. That statement was the very first concession that America had made to the change of the times—that is this war, at the outset, we could not remain neutral in thought. Of course, the war was not the only reason for the inability of America to stay neutral in thought—persecution, intolerance, and oppression created by the Hitler regime cause much animosity toward the United States toward Germany. But, as has been said, America gave in to the forces of right over night, and told the world that America looked with disfavor on Germany.

It took three years during the first world war, for America to declare war on Germany. In this war, in accordance to the present trend of undeclared warfare, America has already declared war on Germany even before two years of the conflict had been completed.

The declaration of war was the President's speech of last Saturday night, and it was, as it should have been, made at the strongest wordage that any American President has ever used in declaring war on another nation. For in his speech of last Saturday night, America said, though it President, that if Britain needs planes, she will get them. If Greece needs ships, planes, food, or guns, she will get them. Any and all implements of war, needed by the Allied nations, will be supplied by America, and all America is waiting for to carry out such action, though such action has in part already been begun, is the appropriation bill now pending in Congress.

In his address, Mr. Roosevelt summed up some of the sacrifices we shall have to make, named speed as the essential watchword, asked the American people to put aside all personal differences and asked us to banish man's inhumanity to man here in America, and in the world.

Mr. Roosevelt's address was the most important of the present era, and no historian will be able to accuse us in the future of not having definitely stated our position in this world at war.

NEW SALEM

Last Sunday afternoon we held our regular third Sunday afternoon singing. Although the crowd was small, good singing was rendered and enjoyed by all who attended.

Pianist for the afternoon was Eason Maddox. Directors were as follows: Dock Harris, Mrs. Burber Bean, Miss Alice Mae Robinson and Margaret Dean.

We extend a hearty welcome to all singers and listeners to come and be with us each Third Sunday afternoon and bring your new books.

Two big Alabama A-H, club calf shows and sales will be held at Dothan, April 3 and 4 and Montgomery, April 8 and 9.

Vegetable Laxative With Proved Feature

The punctual, satisfying relief from constipation and its headaches, biliousness, bad breath, so often experienced by users of this laxative, is mainly due to its combination of purely vegetable ingredients.

BLACK-DRAUGHT'S principal ingredient has high medical recognition as an "intestinal tonic-laxative"; helps impart tone to flaccid bowel muscles.

A little of this spicy, aromatic product by simple directions at bedtime, generally allows time for a good night's rest; acts gently and thoroughly next morning.

Next time, take time-tested, economical BLACK-DRAUGHT.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. D. HASKEW, D. D.

I do not know the town but somewhere in the South Eastern section of the United States there was a dangerous railroad crossing. Many people had been killed at this point of danger and the road officials saw fit to place a watchman there with a flag. This flagman stood there for months and no accident, but one night his lantern went out and he rushed to a nearby store to get oil. While there a train blew for the crossing. He grabbed his lantern and ran to the center of the road. The engine went by and then just down the highway he saw a car coming at great speed. He waved his lantern and did all that he could to stop the car, but the driver dashed under the moving train. Four people were killed. The Railroad company was sued for three hundred thousand dollars. At the trial the testimony was all in and then they called for the flagman. He answered all the questions of the lawyer and the case went to the jury. In a few moments the jury returned with a verdict in favor of the Railroad Company. A few days after this the president of the flagman came down to do honor to the flagman. He told that president this story and said, "Sir I told the truth. I did have my lantern in my hand, and I did wave it before the driver of the car. I did shout to him to stop, but I did not have my lantern lighted and the lawyer did not ask me that question. If that lantern lighted" the man would have told the truth and the verdict would have been different. Ah my friend, many a person who is standing at the danger places of life, have no lights in their souls. You may wonder why old and young will not pay attention to you when you cry out against the dangers of life. It may be that you yourself, do not carry in your own soul the light of the gospel. The lightless life will not stop the light that is dashing to ruin. Let your lamps be trimmed and burning. Wave the light of truth in your own heart and the reckless driver will stop and take notice once.

The old Indian chief handed a bundle of arrows to his oldest son saying, "My young brave, go out today and shoot the game". I am taking a few arrows and like the Indian chief, I am going out to shoot you. The arrows fly and I want you to think as you read.

When wealth is lost, nothing is lost; when health is lost, much is lost; when character is lost, all is lost. There is usually plenty of room at the top, because many of those who get there go to sleep and fall off. The Isms of today are taking the country. Socialism says if you have two cows, give one of them to your neighbor. Communism says that if you have two cows, give them to the government and then the government will give you a quart of milk. Fascism says that if you have two cows, you just keep the cows, milk them and give the milk to the government. The New Dealism says that if you have two cows, shoot one of them and then milk the other and give three fourths of the milk to the government. Nazism says if you have two cows the government will shoot you and keep the cows. Capitalism says that if you have two cows, sell one of them and buy a bull.

It is much easier to fight for your principles than it is to live up to them. Politicians will please take notice.

What we have done for ourselves alone dies with us. What we have done for others and the world, remains and is our memorial.

Beware of little expenses, a small leak will sink a ship.

A bright little boy stood by his father's chair and asked in all sincerity, "Daddy, why should I go to Sunday school when you do not go? Daddy always should be a good when you are not good?"

The worst bankrupt in the world is that man who has lost his soul.

What's become of that friend who borrowed a few dollars from you a few months ago?

EDITORIAL TALK

WHAT WOULD HE DO?—

We're hearing a lot these days about bringing this country back to its original religious moorings.

I have been shouting for years from the WS house top that we must come back to the Golden Rule and Godliness if we are ever to have permanent peace. Countless others think the same. And I believe this profoundly. It is the only way out for us and for the world.

While I believe in this war against the aggressors, just like I believe in defending our home against burglars and criminals who would come to burn it down, yet I find nothing in the Bible that seems to me to approve war.

So, as I was sitting in church Sunday morning watching a lot of formal dons, with robes and marching and repeating of printed prayers, all of which seemed to pile up added barriers between my Maker and me, "I don't like preachers wearing robes" I asked myself this question:

"What would Jesus Christ be doing about this miserable war matter if He were on earth today, and were President?"—Huntsville Mercury.

WHO WILL HAVE ANYTHING

When this war is over, what will there be left for the winner to claim his own?—Geneva Reporter.

THE MAN WHO PAYS:

Judge W. H. Taylor, of Uniontown, motored to Montgomery the other day and between Lowndesboro and Montgomery he noted a two-mile white fence. He wants to know who is making such a beautiful place. We hear the Sheppards are doing it. It is a beautiful improvement and we expect to hear more about it.

Judge Taylor commented on the fine Pettus bridge, on the big improvement being made near Selma for a flying field. But he failed to note much improvement along the highway. Then he related this, which we think is very interesting:

Four statues were erected, one above the other. The top statue was a king and the words "I Rule For All." The next statue was of a soldier with the legend "I Fight For All." Then there came the statue of a priest with the legend "I Pray For All." And the bottom statue was of a farmer with the legend "I Pay For All."

ALABAMA FISH—

What kind of advertising is Governor Dixon giving Alabama? What will northern tourists think of the fish story he and the state conservation advisory board have made public. Briefly, the story is that Alabama's lakes and streams are too full of fish. They are sitting or lying there waiting to be caught. We have had to abolish the closed season on game fish because the waters are so full of them that they must be thinned out. To such length has conservation been carried in Alabama that we have so many fish we don't know what to do with them.

Governor Graves recently spread a story around to the effect that his reason for going fishing down in Baldwin county was that he had been told fish were so thick in the Gulf that they caused the tide to rise so high as to endanger his seaside cottage, and he felt he owed it as a duty to himself to go down there and catch some of them to save his home.

The fish stories may or may not have influence on tourist fishermen from other states and climes, but it seems that the scientists over at Auburn are backing up the Dixon story with regard to excess fish. The argument is that the situation is really serious in that there is not sufficient food available for the quantities of fish being spawned, and that their quality is likely to deteriorate because they will become stunted. Hence the effort to reduce the fish population to only such numbers as can find adequate feeding grounds.

Fishermen, take notice! Either you have been failing in your duty, or Alabama's fish have proven too much for you—Alabama Journal.

Letters To The Editor

TO THE CANDIDATES FOR CONGRESS IN THE 7TH DISTRICT

I am not a voter in your district and for that reason a hasty critic might say that your election is no concern of mine and that only the people of the Seventh District should be interested in the platform you run on, the principles you stand for, and the measures that you may vote for or against in Congress. But forty-one years of adult voting life in Alabama have taught me better. The Federal laws for my district, state and country are not made by one Congressman, but by every member there. When you are elected you will be as much my congressman as will the Representative from my district. What you vote for or against in Congress will have much to do with the future welfare of the children I love and the country that I am willing to die for. So, I feel that I have a right to know what you stand for or against.

There are some principles of government that I have very much at heart, and if you do not think that I ask too much, I should like to have you tell me through the columns of this paper the stand you will take on them.

First, please tell your stand on the following statement in the last Democratic National Platform: "That the power of falling water is a gift of God, and consequently belongs not to a privileged few, but to all the people, who are entitled to enjoy its benefits." Do you believe that? Will you endeavor to carry that principle to its logical conclusion?

Second: What are your plans regarding the Federal Old Age Pension Law? Do you think the national government should pay old people an equal amount in all the states whether or not the state pays it or is able to pay?

Will you stay one full session in Congress without introducing a bill to amend Old Age Pension act by striking out that clause requiring the states to match the Federal funds?

Have you any prejudice against old colored people being paid Old Age Pension funds?

Third: Are you for or against the option? That is, if a county or state votes dry, would you oppose the mailing being used to circulate advertisements of whiskey in that county or state?

The stand Congress takes on these three questions will affect every citizen of our State and Nation economically, socially, and morally. I trust that you will agree with me that every candidate for the high office which you seek should make his attitude on these matters unequivocally clear to the voters of his state.

Respectfully yours,
C. M. MAULDIN,
Columbiana, Ala.

THE WINNERS
In Our OLD ELECTRIC BILL
Contest

THOUSANDS of our customers responded to our invitation to send us their old electric bills, for the eleven oldest of which we offered rewards. We regret that it is not possible to reward every one who participated. The bills submitted are being returned as quickly as possible. If you submitted an entry and it has not yet been returned to you, it should reach you within a few days.

To all of you who tried, thank you! And special thanks to the many who wrote, expressing appreciation of good service at low cost.

THESE ARE THE WINNERS

MRS. J. L. ROBERTS, Union Springs, Ala.
$50.00 for bill dated May 1, 1900.
MRS. FRANK PEABODY, 503 So. Perry St.,
Montgomery, Ala.
$5.00 for bill dated December, 1903.
MRS. J. S. PINCKARD, c/o State Abstract Co.,
Montgomery, Ala.
$25.00 for bills dated March, April, May, June, July, 1904.
MR. T. BOYLAN, 1610 So. Hull St., Montgomery, Ala.
$5.00 for bill dated July, 1904.
MR. JAS. H. WHITE, Dadeville, Ala.
$5.00 for bill dated February, 1905.
MRS. MARY MOORE, Dadeville, Ala.
$5.00 for bill dated May, 1905.
MR. D. ADAMS, JR., Jackson, Ala.
$5.00 for bill dated June, 1905.

THIS WAS THE OFFER

"Perhaps you are one of those persons who saves checks—maybe you have your receipted electric bills for many years past. If so, and your bill happens to be the oldest we receive, we will pay $50 for it. If the bill you send is not the oldest we receive, but is one of the ten next oldest, we will send you $5 for it. . . . We're going to figure what the electricity those old bills cover would have cost at today's low rates; and run some advertisements comparing this cost with what the same amount of electric service cost in the 'good old days,' when electric service really cost a heap. . . . This offer is good only until March 10. . . . This offer is made only to present customers of Alabama Power Company. However, the old bill may be for electric service you received prior to the coming to your community of Alabama Power Company dependable electric service." (Note: Contest closed March 10, 1941.)

ECONOMICAL METHOD TO STAIN FARM BUILDINGS
AUBURN, ALA.—An economical way for Alabama farmers to increase the length of life and improve the appearance of old, unpainted, weather-beaten wooden structures is to stain them with used motor oil and iron oxide.
This advice comes from H. W. Dearing, Jr., assistant extension agricultural engineer, who gives the following formula for mixing the stain: 3 pounds of iron oxide and 1 gallon of old motor oil.
In preparing the stain, the used, dirty oil is allowed to settle and the clarified oil poured off before adding the red iron oxide.
It is estimated that one gallon costs less than 20 cents. Iron oxide costs 4 5 cents per pound, but can be bought for $3.50 per 100 pounds, enough to stain a brooder house, a laying house, a farrowing house and two tenant houses.
One gallon of this mixture covers more than 100 square feet of surface.

INTERNATIONAL
Sunday School Lesson
For Sunday, March 23, 1941

Golden Text: "What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ?"—Matthew 27:22.
Lesson Text: Luke 23:13-25, 32-34.
Events moved rapidly after Christ and the eleven disciples came down from the upper room after the Lord's Supper. There was the trip to Mount Olivet for prayer. The agony of Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane was followed by his betrayal by Judas and his arrest by the soldiers who bound him and took him into the city for trial.
Upon the arrest of Jesus his disciples abandoned him, only Peter followed his captors at a distance as they carried him off. John soon came back and knowing the High Priest, was admitted into the house, then he secured assistance for Peter, who in his anxiety to be near Jesus, gave way to weakness and denied three times his acquaintance with him. As Jesus looked reproachfully at him Peter broke down and repented. He was forgiven and restored to labor and leadership, becoming the great leader of the Apostles.
Jesus had three trials by the Jewish authorities. He was first carried before Annanias recognized by the Jews as the true high priest, although he had been removed by the Romans. Later Sanhedrin hastily summoned. Soon after sunrise on the following morning he was again placed before a larger gathering of the Sanhedrin, constituting a quorum. By these authorities he was condemned to death for blasphemy notwithstanding the fact that Jewish law provided that no trial could be held at night nor could one be condemned to death on the day of his trial.
The Jews were not allowed to execute criminals, therefore, after the Sanhedrin had condemned Jesus to death for blasphemy, it was necessary that charges be preferred against him before the Roman authorities, who alone could have him killed.
Early Friday morning Jesus was carried before Pilate, the Roman Governor of Judea, a man pictured to us by those who knew him as cruel, selfish and corrupt. As Pilate would not be interested in any ecclesiastical accusation, the Jews changed the charge against Jesus.
They told Pilate that he pretended to be king and advised against payment of taxes to Rome. Even Pilate realized this was a subterfuge because such a position would have provoked approbation from the Jews.
Pilate had no desire to dispose of this particular problem. Then Pilate, the politician, remembered the Hgagd Antipas, the Governor of Galilee, who like himself a visitor in Jerusalem on the Passover, therefore, he told the Jews to carry Jesus to Herod. Thus Jesus came face to face with the murderer of John the Baptist, who himself was curious to see this prophet of whom so many had spoken. Jesus answered no questions & performed no miracle, to Herod's chagrin, who thereupon had him arrayed in a fine robe and mocked.
Jesus was carried back to Pilate who knew that the dispute was over spiritual matters and felt that Jesus was innocent of wrongdoing. He had been warned by his wife's dream so that he wished to set Jesus free, but was without the courage to do so. He tried various expedients to accomplish his purpose. He had Jesus scourged and presented to his accusers a suffering and bleeding spectacle, but it brought no pity. Remembering a custom to free a prisoner on the Passover, he hoped that this would afford him a loophole, but the enemies of Jesus insisted that an insurrectionist named Barrabas be freed.
Pilate allowed the Jews to proceed with the killing of Jesus. No one knows for certain the exact location of the scene of the Crucifixion. Calvary or Golgotha, meaning "The place of the Skull" was either northwest of Jerusalem in the present Christian quarter where stands the church of the Holy Sepulchre or north, outside of the Damascus gate, beyond the present Mohammedan quarter. The former is the traditional site and five religious sects are rivals in conducting services and caring for it.
Two thieves were crucified along with Jesus. One reviled him for not rescuing them all from their fate, but the other recognized the goodness of Jesus and rebuked his companion, calling attention to the fact that they, at least, deserved their fate, while Jesus was innocent. This thief asked Jesus to remember him in his kingdom and Jesus promised him that he would be with him in Paradise. No one reading the gospel account of this solemn scene can fail to be moved by a conviction of its sincerity.
Hanging on the cross and enduring the torture of the crucifixion, mocked and ridiculed by the soldiers and his Jewish enemies Jesus seven times spoke according to the gospel records. First, it was a plea for the forgiveness of his murderers. Then, his promise to the suppliant robber. Third he commended his mother to John. Fourth, he asked God why had he forsaken him. Fifth, an expression of physical agony, thirst. Sixth, a word of success, that his task had been completed. Last, it was a solemn commitment of his spirit into the hands of his Father.

BUSINESS TO BENEFIT FROM NEW COTTON PROGRAM
AUBURN, ALA.—Cotton farmers will receive indirect as well as direct benefits from the new $25,000,000 cotton-goods purchase order available to them under the new supplemental cotton program, according to A. W. Jones, AAA administrative officer.
"In the first place, cotton farmers who voluntarily reduce their acreage below 1941 allotments, and 1940 acreage will receive cotton stamps exchangeable for cotton goods at cooperating retail stores," Jones said. "In the second place, this buying power, represented by $25,000,000 worth of stamps, will be spread widely throughout the business community, circulating among all trade groups. Men and women employed in cities will thus become better customers for the product of the cotton farm as the result of this new business."
"In addition employees all along the producer-to-customer line — mill workers, manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers—all will share in the beneficial effects of this purchase order, a portion of which will soon be placed in retail stores throughout Alabama."
Benefits under the new program are in addition to conservation and parity payments already in effect under the Triple A programs. Special practice payments will also be made to cooperating growers to encourage improved living standards through increased production of food for home consumption.

APRIL 30 FINAL DATE TO APPLY FOR MATTRESSES
AUBURN, ALA.—April 30 is the final day for Alabama farm families to apply for mattresses or comforts under the cotton mattress program, announces Etta McGough, state home agent.
Ineligible families who receive mattresses or comforts under the program will be required to pay $6.55 for each mattress and $1.35 for each comfort. If they have not been used, they may be returned without penalty.
Each family with an income of $500 or less, half of which comes from agricultural occupations, is eligible to receive one mattress and one comfort for each two persons in the family. However, no family may receive material for making more than three mattresses and three comforts.

Experiments by the Alabama Experiment Station indicate that under farm conditions cottonseed meal may be fed to laying hens without affecting the hatchability of eggs.

SUMMARY OF FORD DEFENSE ACTIVITIES

September 17—Ground broken for $21,000,000 airplane engine plant.

November 24—Excavation and foundation for Engine Plant completed; erection of steel frame work starts.

December 6—Ground broken for Navy Service School by Henry Ford through the Ford Motor Company at no expense to the Government.

Dec. 31—Installation of $800,000 Magnesium foundry to produce light weight casting for airplane engines announced.

January 13—First 150 recruits arrive at Navy Service School.

January 15—New Navy School dedicated after being erected in record time of forty days.

January 24—Steel frame work of airplane engine plant completed four days ahead of schedule. Pouring of concrete floors and erection of walls proceed inside a huge box of 900,000 square feet of fibre board erected around the frame work of the building.

January 25—Ford Company announces that 20,000 square feet of the new airplane engine plant have been set aside for an aircraft apprentice school to train 2,000 youths at one time. First students begin training in present Henry Ford Trade School.

February 10—196 more recruits arrive at Navy Service School. Total enrollment now 436, will increase at rate of 308 each month until 1200 apprentice seamen are in training at Dearborn next May.

February 15—Production of 1,500 reconnaissance and command cars for Army starts at Rouge plant. Production of bomber service trucks for Air Corps 1,800 staff cars for Army and 50 field kitchens for British War Relief already underway.

February 21—First section of Airplane Engine Plant completed.

Ford Reports On Defense

The productive and experimental facilities of the Ford Motor Company are being mobilized and expanded to help defend America. Here is the record of progress to date:

1. A $21,000,000 steel and concrete airplane engine plant is nearly nearing completion. Ground was broken September 17 and on November 24 excavation and foundation were completed. More than 4,000 tons of steel piling were driven down 100 feet to bedrock for the foundation. Construction of the 9,000-ton steel framework started November 24 and was completed January 24, four days ahead of schedule. Cement crews and carpenters already were at work and the structure is scheduled to be completed by the end of March. The plant will be in production in June.

The engine plant has sprung from barren ground in the dead of winter through the efforts of the Ford Company in this country—of new cold weather construction methods. A huge canopy of fibre board was built around the job as the steel skeleton rose. Inside the canopy, warmed by charcoal heaters, 1,200 men in the first week 24 hours a day to complete in 6 months a job that would have taken 14 months with orthodox construction methods.

In this strongly built, air-conditioned plant, which can be operated while completely blanketed out, Ford will build an initial order of 4236 Pratt & Whitney engines at the rate of one an hour. These are 18-cylinder, double-row radial engines of two types, one developing 1,850 horsepower and other 2,000.

2. To supply the skilled workers required for fabricating airplane parts, an Aircraft Apprentice School, equipped to train 2,000 students at one time, is being established in the new airplane engine plant. Equipment for the school equipped to train 2,000 students at one time is being installed and 198 students who began their training in temporary quarters in the Ford Trade School will move into the new building in February. The volume of applicants is so greatly that only one in 40 can be accepted.

3. Because the nation's facilities for producing magnesium castings are below the requirements of the expanding defense program, the Ford Motor Company has built its own $900,000 magnesium alloy foundry now in partial production. This is one of the few plants of its kind in the country and probably the largest magnesium alloy foundry in the world. The lightness and strength of magnesium alloy—it is as strong as cast iron but weighs only 1/4 as much—make it vital in airplane construction. The Ford foundry has begun limited production and when the engine plant opens in June the foundry will supply 10,000 pounds of light-weight castings a month.

4. A complete United States Navy School to train Navy recruits in technical duties is in operation in the heart of the Rouge plant. The school was dedicated on January 15 and the first detachment of sailor recruits is now being trained there. Another 300 recruits will arrive early next month and in May the school will reach its full enrollment of 1,200 students. Its three-month courses will graduate 4,500 trained technicians into the Navy each year.

The school was provided and equipped by Henry Ford through the Ford Motor Company at no expense to the government. It was erected in the record time of 40 days. Rear Admiral John Downes, commander of the Ninth Naval District, calls the school "the most important training center the Navy has for schooling its newly enlisted men in the mechanical duties they will be called upon to perform." The Apprentice School instructors and the school is staffed by Ford Trade and $2,000,000 equipment of the Ford industrial schools is at the disposal of the Navy students.

5. Several types of military vehicles are being produced for the Army at the Rouge plant and Ford branch plants. Ford has built 1,200 Army staff cars and will build 600 more. Ford is building bomb service trucks, which have cranes for hoisting bombs into place under the wings of the big planes. These are coming off the line at the rate of 12 to 15 a day.

Especially interesting are the 1,500 reconnaissance and command cars which began building in February. The four-wheel drive 81-inch wheelbase trucks carry machine guns and a crew of three men 60 miles an hour. Only three feet in height and weighing only slightly more than a ton, the cars are designed to be hidden in brush and are said to climb steeper hills than tanks.

Ford has built 50 chassis for field kitchens for the British War Relief Society, Inc.

6. Experimental plans for the production of a 1,500-horsepower airplane to be turned out in huge quantities by the mass production methods pioneered by the Ford Company, are being formulated.

7. Facilities of the Highland Park Plant of the Ford Motor Company have been placed at the disposal of the Red Cross Corps, which is training women volunteers for active work in motor transport, should a national emergency develop.

For months this has been the urgent appeal to the American people by the President and his Secretaries of State Navy, and War.

This is what we are doing:

1. Working night and day to complete in record time a $21,000,000 airplane engine factory.

2. Making all possible speed to complete a new magnesium alloy foundry in which light-weight castings for airplane engines already are being produced.

3. Building military vehicles of several kinds, including the new four-wheel drive Reconnaissance cars which already are rolling off Ford Assembly Lines. Other types are Army staff cars bomb and service trucks and chassis for mobile field kitchens for British Relief.

4. Negotiations and plans now under way for mass production of bombing plane assemblies.

5. Designing a 1,500 horsepower airplane engine of original design for volume production.

6. An aircraft Apprentice School to train skilled workers in this essential field. The school has 200 students now and is rapidly being expanded ten-fold. 7. A Navy Service School which Henry Ford through the Ford Motor Company built and equipped—at no expense to the Government—to aid the United States Navy in training recruits in the highly technical skills required by modern fleets. The first barracks, administration building, mess-hall and recreation rooms were erected by the company at the Rouge Plant in Dearborn in the record time of 40 days. The school will graduate 4,500 trained men a year.

In short, we have stood by the President in his call for National Defense above everything. We have offered the offer stands to take on any amount of work for American Defense to the company's full capacity—and to do it at no profit, if others will do likewise. In his address at the Inauguration of the Navy Service School at the Ford Motor Company, Dearborn, plant, January 15, 1941, Henry Ford said: "During this crisis our organization wants to do everything possible to help America and the President."

But can we be sure that certain pressure groups, likewise put National Defense first? That all too often they do not use it as a club or a smoke-screen for selfish aims?

It is apparent that pressure groups have been attempting to "bring Ford into line," as they put it. Their accusation, in certain instances, with writers hostile to American principles is beginning to come to light. They attempt, among other tactics, to create the impression that Ford refuses to obey the laws.

FORD DOES NOT REFUSE TO OBEY ANY LAW. What Ford has refused to recognize is the right of any individual or board, or anyone but Congress, to write the laws. Refusal to obey a demand not required by law is not a refusal to obey the law. The sin of refusal is on those who without law are attempting to be the law for American industry.

The Ford Company complies with all labor laws, including the Walsh-Healy Act, and in connection with the recent government proposal for Trade Boards wrote the War Department that "we have no hesitation in affirming our full intention to comply with valid statutory provisions, Federal or State, whether in regard to labor or other matters."

"All work executed under such contract . . . will be carried out in compliance of the statement of labor policy, etc."

A statement of policy, open to all sorts of interpretations, does not constitute a law. For this reason, we asked that it be eliminated or changed to read that we would agree to any stipulations required by ACTS OF CONGRESS.

This was the issue, but it evidently was deemed more important by pressure groups that their demands be satisfied rather than save the people of the United States a quarter-million dollars on 1,171 Army Trucks.

The War and Navy Department, knowing the Ford Motor Company's complete facilities, its freedom from red tape, its ability to get things done quickly and its earnest cooperation, are showing their willingness to work with the company.

As an American institution the Ford Motor Company respects and abides by any and all laws passed and enforced by qualified American law-making or law-enforcement bodies.

It has never been otherwise. It never will be.

REPORT OF LIVESTOCK CLINICS

Clinics for horses and mules have been held in almost every community in Chilton County sometime within the last two months. Dr. W. L. Parrish was in charge and the livestock of 309 members of the FSA veterinary co-operative are the "patients".

Clinics were held in twenty communities. Dr. Parrish gave each animal brought a thorough physical examination, treated for bots, floated teeth whenever necessary, and gave advice about the care and feeding of animals during the coming months of hard work.

These spring check-ups are a part of the regular program for animal care carried on by the FSA veterinary co-operative. Whenever necessary, cattle and other livestock also receive clinical treatment. In addition, cooperative members may have the veterinary visit their barns in emergency calls any time during the year, at no extra cost.

"The idea of having these spring check-ups is twofold," Marvin Durbin, FSA County Supervisor explained. "First, in such annual inspections the veterinary has a chance to discover and remedy slight injuries or tendencies to illness that had been given a chance to develop, might have become serious, even fatal. 'See your doctor once a year is good advice for mules, too.'"

"A second advantage of the clinics is that, because he does have a chance to catch illness early, the veterinary is saved many an emergency trip he would have to make otherwise.

"Membership in the cooperative is voluntary," Mr. Durbin said. "Last December when the agreement was renewed, only 358 per cent of the FSA borrowers in this county decided the service was an advantage."

"Each member pays $2.50 a year. Thus, through cooperation, many small farmers are having complete veterinary care for their animals for the first time, and at a price they can afford."

EASTVIEW

A delegation of members of the Eastview Women's Society plan to attend the district Women's Rally at Union church, Mt. Creek Saturday. This meeting will take the place of the usual Fourth Saturday Women's Society meeting at the church.

The church voted to have this month's regular Saturday church services at 7 p.m. March 22nd. Rev. Luther Ballou will preach at that service as well as at the Sunday services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Immediately following the Saturday night service there will be a short conference to elect a deacon to take the place of our beloved senior to be present. Sunday school is at deacon, Paul Rushing, who recently passed away. All members are urged 10 a.m. Christian Endeavor at 6:30.

Threats seldom accomplish amiable settlements but sometimes they help.

Every activity of mankind has its tricks and none is better known than the ancient device of speakers, the setting up of straw men for the purpose of tearing them down, bravely.

We appreciate more than we can state, the kindly expressions of those who are nice enough to say that we are publishing a good newspaper and we are not mad with those who say nothing but send their checks.

More Cotton Questions

Below is a second installment of Questions and Answers on the 1941 Supplementary Cotton Program:

Q. How may a farmer earn cotton stamps?

A. By planting in 1941 an acreage of cotton less than 1941 farm cotton acreage allotment or 1940 measured acreage for the farm, whichever is smaller.

6. Q. Is there any exception to these provisions?

A. Yes. If the County Agricultural Conservation Committee finds that the acreage of cotton measured in 1940 was reduced because of drought, flood, hail, insect pests, or any other natural cause beyond the control of the operator, the 1941 cotton acreage allotment shall be used to determine the acreage voluntarily reduced under this program.

7. Q. Is it necessary for every farmer to give advance notice of his intention to participate in this program?

A. Only the operator of a farm, on behalf of himself and all others interested in the cotton crop, must sign a prescribed form before June 15, 1941, showing the number of acres he intends to take out of cotton production as well as other pertinent information.

8. Q. What will be the result if the 1941 cotton acreage is reduced by more than the amount set forth in the intentions?

A. Stamp payments will be made only for the amount actually reduced, as set forth in the statement of intentions.

9. Q. What will be the result if the 1941 cotton acreage is reduced by less than the amount set forth in the statement of intentions?

A. Stamp payments will be made only for the amount actually reduced.

10. Q. Will there be any penalty for failure to carry out expressed intentions of acreage reduction?

A. No. The Supplementary Cotton Program is entirely voluntary.

11. Q. What is the basis of payment for voluntary reduction of cotton acreage?

A. A farm payment in cotton stamps will be computed at the rate of ten cents a pound times the normal cotton yield determined for the farm under the 1941 Agricultural Conservation Program times the acreage reduced for stamp payment.

12. Q. How would the cotton stamp plan work in the case of a farm operator with no tenants who planted ten acres of cotton in 1940, has a 10-acre allotment in 1941, and has a normal yield, as determined under the 1941 Agricultural Conservation Program, of 250 pounds per acre?

A. This farmer, if he wished to participate in the supplementary program, could reduce his cotton planting by one acre, leaving him a total of 9 acres. For the acre voluntarily reduced, he would receive cotton order stamps at the rate of 10 cents per pound for the 250-pound normal yield, or $25 worth.

13. Q. If this same farmer had planted only 8 acres to cotton in 1940, how much would he have to reduce his acreage to earn his maximum amount of stamps?

A. He would have to plant only 7 acres of cotton in 1941, in order to receive $25 worth of stamps.

14. Q. What is the maximum amount of cotton stamps that may be earned?

A. Each producer may earn a maximum of $25 worth of cotton stamps on one farm, except that producers interested in more than one farm or an operator of a farm with two or more tenants or sharecroppers may earn up to $50 worth of stamps. No one may receive more than $50 in cotton stamps.

LOOK AHEAD-ALABAMA-PAVE WITH CONCRETE

TODAY'S BIG JOB-

Modernize Crowded Highways

Citizens of this state have good reason to be enthusiastic motorists. They have an unusually fine highway system. Hundreds of thousands of vehicles keep the roads humming with traffic. Some of these roads are required to carry more traffic than they can safely accommodate. These urgently need modernizing. Steady driving at prevailing speeds—with safety built into the roads—is what motorists need. State-wide planning surveys now under way will provide facts on which a rational plan of future highway development can be based. Widening, straightening, separation of grade crossings and other improvements based on these surveys will provide useful employment for thousands, greater safety for millions, better business and better living for all.

FOLKS and THINGS ABOUT TOWN

John D. Mullins and Dick Hayes, Charlie McCarthy and Edgar Bergen, respectively, appeared last Friday night in the fashion show at the City Hall. If for no other reason the show was worth the price of admission to see these two. With talent like this going to waste, why go out of town for entertainment?

The Smith family goes to "C". We were talking to Mrs. Mamie "C" the other day and it came to light that every member of the family had "C" as a middle initial. Start at the top and name all of the Smiths in Mrs. Mamie's family that you know and "C" for yourself.

Bill Minor says not to print this so we won't say anything about it. But he will tell you what it was that he said not to print so you will understand. Bill Minor, Melvin Mims and Buck Bice went down to the river last Thursday afternoon in search of the elusive fish (if there is such a thing as one's portion of the fish). Well as the story goes they were all in the boat and getting ready to go up river for a ways. Bill was standing on the back of the boat with the motor in his arms, getting ready to put it on the boat—but Bill got overbalanced, probably the fresh air made him dizzy, and rather than drop the motor in the river and see it Bill went into the river with it. Melvin and Buck fished him out amid much laughter. Melvin says that it was the biggest fish he had ever taken out of the waters around here.

"Pee Wee" Martin was explaining the other day that he and his wife had had time hearing each other over the phone. Someone spoke up with the question: "Why don't you ever try one of you talking a time?"

Remember Bonnie Hand and Pearl moved over to LaFayette and are running the LaFayette Sun over there. Last Sunday's Birmingham News carried a nice story about the Sun and the boys. The boy is making good going places in Alabama as a worthy member of the Fourth Estate. Late Monday afternoon he was through Clanton and called by to pay his respects. He had been named on the executive committee of the Ala. Press Association to fill the place of a body Hall who died a few days ago and had been called to attend a meeting at the Motion Hotel in Birmingham on that date. Bonnie is looking fine and we know that he is doing alright in his profession.

Another item in the News last Sunday struck our eyes—that of Jack McCall's notice about George McCall's male. We were talking to Jim Bell in whose window the male was shown and Jimmie couldn't understand why Jack couldn't just have said Bill Hardware instead of a male merchant.

Were you in the Bus Station Monday when from the bevy of beautiful girls came in from Montevallo? If you weren't, it was your own fault. He didn't find out where they were, but don't think we ever saw so many pretty girls in one bunch. They were some of the "old married men" and what they were doing and where their poor eyesight was a matter. Who, me? Ain't nothing the matter with my eyes.

We thought we had a good story on the new Dog Ordinance today but the officers in charge of impounding the dogs were in a real hurry. They were not in better of one of the City Councilmen but try as they might they never did get the little rascal arrested.

We picked this up somewhere: He should get religion like a Methodist, experience it like a Baptist, be of it like a Disciple, stick to it like a Lutheran, pay for it like a Presbyterian, conciliate it like a Congregationalist, glorify it like a Jew, be proud of it like an Episcopalian, practice it like a Roman Catholic, work for it like Salvation Army, pass, and enjoy it like a colored folks.

We have on our desk an Agricultural Outlook, compliments of our friend, Mr. Smith, county agent. It is check of valuable information on Alabama agriculture and we are anxious to get it to go through it.

Some someone we heard rumor of to come off in the near future. It is a rumor, it will be sponsored.

Millsaps Choir Sang At High School Friday

Sermons in song as interpreted by the 44 voices of the Millsaps Choir was heard at the Chilton County High School last Friday morning. The program was a part of the intersectional tour of the choir which this year takes them through Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio and Mississippi. The choir is directed by Prof. Alvin Jon King.

The Home Economics Department of Chilton County High prepared and served the choir lunch in the Home Economics building.

Burton Mullins Elected Kiwanis President

Burton Mullins has been elected President of Clanton Kiwanis Club to succeed Captain Horton Walker, resigned.

Captain Walker, who was a reserve officer has been called into service.

Crippled Children

Easter will soon be here and the little Easter Seals for crippled children are already here to remind us of the crippled boys and girls throughout our state and the entire country who cannot attend school and run and play as we do.

The crippled boy, whose picture you see on the seal in company with his pals, the bird and poney, looks longingly toward the day when he can run and play and be educated for a happy, useful life.

The money from the seals is used by the Chilton County Society for Crippled Children to help straighten crooked limbs, and to help educate and train crippled children so that they may be happy and useful through life.

The Easter Seals sell for a penny each and come in little packets of ten seals. There is also a cute little bunny baggie for each of you.

I know you will want to help all you can by buying all or as many of the seals as possible. Bring the money back tomorrow in the little envelope. Wear the little rabbit which will mean that you have given some measure of happiness to an unfortunate crippled boy or girl.

Sincerely,
R. COE MADDON,
Chairman of the Seal Sale Committee.

Clanton Pilots Prepare For Spring Meeting

Members of the Pilot Club are getting ready for their Spring Meeting at Huntsville to be held April 19th and 20th. Many notables of the organization will be present at this District No. 2 meet. According to Mrs. Olive Fiquet, the delegates will be chosen at the next meeting and final plans made by the local Club for attending.

"BOUND TO MARRY"

The Cooper school will present a thrice weekly farce "Bound To Marry" in the near future. This play is two and one-half hours long and promises a full evening's entertainment. The date will be announced later.

NOTICE TO DELINQUENTS

Early in April the Tax Collector will have to turn over to the Judge of Probate the names of all taxpayers of Chilton County who are delinquent in payment of taxes for 1940. This will mean extra costs to the taxpayers. If you wish to avoid this extra cost, we urge you to attend to this matter during the next few days. The law tells us what to do, and we have to do it—Tom Taylor, Tax Collector.

ed by the Lion-Club of the City. Rumor also has it that Cecil Mackey will furnish the music and this same guy rumor that it will likely be held at Starlight Inn. Now we don't know who this rumor guy is, but that is what he has been telling us . . . and, oh, yeah, he said that it would be Friday the 18th of April . . . remember that rumor talking.

Virginia Ware's brother, Charlie, was in for the week end. Charlie is a member of the Birmingham Southern Glee Club that leaves today for a ten day tour through the East. One of their stops will be Washington, D. C., where they will broadcast Saturday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock. Tune in on the National Broadcasting System at this time and you will hear some real music.

"LENA RIVERS" PRESENTED BY SENIOR TWO CLASS

The Senior II Class of the Chilton County High School presented "Lena Rivers" Tuesday afternoon and Tuesday night at the City Hall. A large crowd enjoyed the program and a nice sum was realized for the class treasury.

MASS IN CLANTON ON PASSION SUNDAY MARCH 30TH

For the Catholics of Clanton and surrounding communities, the Mass of the passion will be celebrated at the home of Mrs. Hugh Jones at 8:00 on Sunday.

This day marks the beginning of the Passiontide. It commemorates the extreme suffering of Christ. In places of prayers poured to Lent will be hymns in honor of Our Lord's suffering.

The Psalm Judica me Deus is omitted from the Mass. The Preface of the Holy Cross will be said.

Portions of the Holy Gospels appointed for the Mass are those referring to the plotting of the Jews against Christ, and incidents connected with His Passion.

In Catholic churches all crosses statues etc., are veiled in allusion to the concluding words of the Gospel of that day: "They took up the bodies of Him; but Jesus hid himself and went out of the temple."

SPRING SESSION SINGING CONVENTION APRIL 26-27

The Spring session of the Chilton County Singing Convention will be held at the courthouse in Clanton on Saturday night and Sunday, April 26 and 27, 1941. Invitations are being sent out to a number of prominent directors and quartets over the State and out of the State.

The singers of the county will please take note of this annual meeting and the date of holding, and arrange to attend. The new books of all different publishers will be used—all that are on hand.

Thorsby Singing Is Well Attended Sunday

The singing was well attended Sunday March 23. We had several visiting singers with us.

The singing was called to order by the chairman, Thomas Childers. The directors for the afternoon were: A. H. Glascock, Curtis Bear, Paul Hughes, Mrs. Grover Bice, Paul Popwell, The Thorsby Quartet and Alabama Four quartet rendered several special numbers. A bass solo by William Hicks. The pianists for the afternoon were Miss Jean Lowery and Mrs. M. P. Davenport.

There will be a singing at the Thorsby Baptist church next Thursday night, March 27, beginning at 7:00 o'clock. Everybody is sure to come out and be with us and bring a well-filled basket with you. We are going to have several good quartets with us. The new books will be used.

There will be an all-day singing at the Thorsby Baptist church Sunday April 6. Everybody be sure to be with us and bring a well-filled basket with you. We are going to have several good quartets with us. The new books will be used.

Miss Sylvia Miller visited in Clanton and Birmingham last Sunday and Monday.

City of Clanton Makes Donation To Schools

For the past several years it has been the custom of the Mayor and City Councilmen of Clanton to give to the City schools an extra month of school. Under the present set-up the schools would only run seven months were it not for this fact.

For the maintenance of the schools for one month it cost approximately fifteen hundred dollars, and this is the amount that the city fathers have voted to let the schools have again this year.

Teachers In Birmingham Attending A.E.A.

The county teachers are off this week to Birmingham where they are attending the A.E.A. The students are getting a two-day vacation and enjoying the satisfaction of knowing that for these three days each year the teacher has to go to school.

"GOLGOTHA"

The making of GOLGOTHA that is to be shown at the CCHS Gym on Monday, March 31, required a cast of thousands of people. The Film Daily which is the official publication of the motion picture industry states, "No mob scene such as these have ever been recorded on films. They are breath-taking and inspiring. Innumerable close-ups are given of dozens of people in the cast and each close-up represents a distinct individual reflecting his or her individual emotions." The mob scenes will hold you spellbound in their terrific sweep. At the same time all the important characters are portrayed by the finest actors that could be obtained for the various parts.

You have often heard and read the story of the life and crucifixion of Christ but you will never appreciate its full meaning until you see it in the talking motion picture, "GOLGOTHA." This picture attains the highest standards ever set in the production of good motion pictures. It stands out as one of the greatest epochs of all times. This picture is being sponsored by the Clanton Kiwanis Club.

March 31-April 5 Is Alabama Products Week

Purpose Is Creation Of Additional Markets For Alabama Products

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—Widespread observance of Alabama Products Week March 31-April 5 was indicated here today as the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce reported a flood of inquiries from every section of the state asking for program material, window placards and literature needed to arrange observance in local communities.

State chambermen and committees have been named in 127 cities and towns over the state and their reports to the State Chamber indicate that from one to fifty programs on Alabama products will be held in the various communities during the week. Many of the clubs and other organizations will serve local Alabama meals at the meetings.

Observance of Alabama Products Week, sponsored jointly by the State Chamber and the Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs will include programs at club meetings and schools, and addresses, newspaper articles and displays at retail store windows and public places. Objectives of the week, proclaimed by Governor Dixon, is to create new markets for Alabama materials and increase industrial payrolls. Thousands of distinctive blue and white placards, prepared by the State Chamber, have been broadcast over the state to publicize the event. A large number of Retail Buyers Guides listing the products of Alabama factories also have been distributed.

HAND-THOMAS

Wilbert Hand, of Philadelphia, Tennessee, grandson of R. C. Hand of Clanton and Miss Irene Thomas of Jemison, daughter of Emmett Thomas were quietly married Friday, March 21, at the residence of J. H. D. Durbin in the presence of a few friends and relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Hand will make their home in Philadelphia, Tenn.

POSTMASTER LOWE REPORTS BIG TIME AT MOBILE CONVENTION

The Postmaster's Convention held at Mobile last week was well attended and much enjoyed, according to R. W. Lowe, postmaster who spent the first part of the week down there. Several of the postmasters from Chilton county made the trip. Among them were: Mrs. Parnell of Maplesville, Mrs. Meramias of Verbena and Mrs. Littlejohn of Jemison.

Mrs. Sadye Lande, proprietress of The Leader and Ben Margolis have just returned from a buying trip to the important style markets of Nashville and St. Louis. They report that they have found many new fashions for men and women that will be of interest for all the people of Chilton County. These new developments in style are important. The Leader's force will be glad to show you the new fashions for this year.

E. L. KLINNER FURNITURE CO. GETS NEW MANAGER

Mr. M. C. Hamilton, formerly of Bessemer, has been named manager of the E. L. Klinner Furniture Company to take the place of Bill Williams. Mr. Hamilton brings to Clanton with him his experience in the furniture business. The News is glad to welcome the Hamiltons to this city.

Clanton Merchants Are Well Prepared For Spring

After a prolonged trip through the stores of Clanton we find that the merchants have really taken the Easter season seriously and stocked up for the occasion. Just about anything that you could want will be found in Clanton. The store owners have made a special effort to get things that will go to make Easter Season a success and have laid in a good stock of seed that you are taken care of.

Don't go to Birmingham, Montgomery or Selma to do your shopping this year. Give your hometown merchant a try and shop his first. It is a sure bet that you will just be buying that you are looking for and save money to boot.

Australia Adds To War Efforts

Production of Planes, Naval Vessels and Munitions Progresses Rapidly.

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA.—Australia already is committed to a war expenditure of more than $200,000,000 in the year ending next June 30. This compares with $270,000,000 spent in the whole of the last year. The new program has propelled Australia into an industrial revolution. At a cost of $50,000,000 she has established an armament industry surpassing India's in magnitude of output and second only to Canada's.

More than 120,000 men enlisted in the Australian imperial force, the vanguard of which made a brilliant beginning in the capture of Bardia, Libya. Reinforcements are being enlisted at the rate of 5,000 a month. An additional bomber and army of 250,000 men is being raised, chiefly by compulsory enlistment of single men from 19 to 33 years old.

The program for building three Tribal class destroyers and 50 mine sweepers, half of which are for the United Kingdom government, is proceeding and a number of vessels already have been launched.

Air Force Stronger.

The air force is 11 times stronger than it was before the war, having a personnel exceeding 40,000. A total of $37,000,000 will be spent this year in development of the empire air scheme and in strengthening Australia's air defenses. Over 38,000 men have been enlisted under the empire scheme.

In addition to the men training in Australia, many air contingents have gone to Canada and come to Rhodesia for training. Others have reached the United Kingdom for the final stages of training and will soon be in action.

The air force was strengthened in 1940 by the delivery of the one-hundredth Lockheed-Hudson bomber from the United States, as well as hundreds of other aircraft from Britain for the empire scheme.

Hundreds of thousands more Australians have been employed in production of aircraft and munitions and in raising food for Britain. A total of $15,000,000 will be spent this year on new munitions establishments. Australia maintains a steady supply of munitions to Britain and also exports to New Zealand, India, the Straits Settlements and Hong Kong. Training aircraft such as the Australian-designed Wirraway and Tiger Moth are being produced at the rate of four a day and designs are being perfected for a high-speed bomber. Delays are being overcome in completion of a plant for the manufacture of Bristol Beaufort bombers.

Speed Production Rate.

Since Easing Lewis, managing director of the Broken Hill Proprietary company, Ltd., and director general of munitions production, assisted by eight other leading industrialists, a new pace has been set in rate of output. Airplane engines were in production within six months after receipt of blueprints from overseas and a huge factory now is being equipped for the manufacture of optical-glass aircraft instruments.

Orders totaling $2,000,000 have been placed for construction of Australian machine tools for the production of tanks, motor-bodies and automobile-assembly workshops are delivering scores of vehicles to the army daily. There is a steady supply of stores and equipment for technical units.

Factors that assisted in this impressive record are the steel industry, capable of producing more than 1,500,000 tons of high grade steel yearly, and the manufacture of hundreds of components for munitions, machine tools and aircraft in hundreds of private factories.

Girls Find $65 in Bank

Notes in Waste Paper
FORT EDWARD, N. Y.—Sorting old waste paper at the plant of the International Paper company three girls found a total of $65 in banknotes. The money, it is believed, had been placed between the leaves of a book or magazine and had fallen out in the process of sorting.

Reich Bombights Are Found to Be Inferior

WASHINGTON—Three types of German bombights, obtained from captured warplanes in Great Britain, have been examined by United States military experts and found inferior to ours. The sights were reported to have been given to the United States defense commission by the British government.

WEST MAPLESVILLE

Springtime seems to have reached us at last. Lots of plowing is being done and spring house-cleaning is all the rage now.

We still have a few cases of flu and colds in our little town. Mrs. Hamric is seriously ill of pneumonia. Relatives living away have been notified to return home.

Dr. H. M. Nix has returned from a hospital in Birmingham. His many friends will be glad to hear he is doing nicely.

Miss Marcelle Stough spent the week end with her cousin Kathleen Stough of Lawley. They attended 4-H club rally in Centreville Saturday and reported a large crowd and plenty of fun.

Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Hedeketh of Lawley were welcome visitors to Maplesville Friday afternoon.

Mr. Charlie Lawley of this community has been confined to his bed in the CCC Camp of Clanton for several days. His friends will be glad to hear he is doing nicely and will soon be able to come home.

Mr. Alfred Smith of Tuscaloosa is visiting Mr. Paul and Mrs. Emma Smith of this town. He expects to remain here for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Burnett of Tuscaloosa are moving to this place. Earl has a position with Humphrey's Hardware Mill. We are glad to welcome this young couple to our town.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rogers made a business trip to Selma Saturday. Reuben Bearden, Jr. is busily engaged in log and pulp wood hauling these days.

Aunt Sallie Smith is still confined to her bed.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Wallace and family have moved in our community. They are living with Mr. J. R. Bearden.

MARY EUNICE DAVIS ARRIVES

The Rev. and Mrs. Oscar A. Davis of Clanton are the proud parents of a lovely young daughter born on Tuesday, March 11, at the West End Baptist Hospital in Birmingham. This young lady has been given the name of Mary Eunice, being named after her mother, the former Miss Eunice Long. The above announcement will be of great interest to the many friends here of the Rev. and Mrs. Davis, the former pastor of Holt Baptist church—Tuscaloosa News.

A SPRING DAY

When out upon my lawn I play,
I'm happy as can be;
Now listen to this picture brief,
And see if you'll not agree.

Close to my right's a brilliant bed,
Of bright-eyed parsnips here;
While on my left are jonquils gay,
Of deepest yellow hue.

What better could a fellow want,
Than just a Spring-like day;
To spend outside with hat and ball,
And near some flowers gay?

A cheerful pal to share my joy,
A sun or head so bright;
Why I am so contented then,
The world's exactly right.

—Helen Grady Heflin.

SPRING

I love the spring. I love the Spring!
It makes me want to sing and sing.

I can see the lovely trees.
I can hear the humming bees.

Spring will always make me gay,
And I shall want to play and play.

I see the sunshine's mellow light,
It makes me want to do what's right.

There is no spring, I fear afar,
Where they are having ugly war.

They surely are not very gay,
They cannot work or sing or play.

Their homes are gone, forever gone,
They have on places to call a home.

—Peggy Murrah.

SPRING AT HOME

Oh, I'm longing for the spring to come,
Then we children can have so much fun;

What I like the best is flowers,
And to linger there by hours.

When the happy music birds have come,
Then the cleaning of the house is great.

But I do not place on it the highest rate,
It makes everything look fresh.

Even the curtains made of mesh;
But I do not often on that contemplate.

It's some fun into the woods to roam,
But I like it best to stay at home.

For at home there's relaxation,
Throughout my entire vacation;

That's the reason there's no place like home.

Then I like to watch the home flowers grow,
And protect them from the rabbits and the cow;

There's no place like home to me,
When spring comes around you see,

To our gardens let us haste with rake and hoe.

—Martha Wingard.

The Alabama Home Economics Association will meet in Birmingham March 28-29, in connection with the Alabama Education Association.

Moore-Patterson

The marriage of Miss Helen Kathleen Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Watts Moore, to Lieut. Charles Lee Patterson, in the traditional bridal tones of green and white.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Oscar Davis, pastor of the Baptist Church.

An arch covered with Southern Similax and lilies was placed in the background of the ceremony.

Branches of candelabra holding Cathedral taper were placed alternately with tall standard baskets of Ascension lilies and gladioli.

The musical programme was by Mrs. Erle Ellis and Mrs. John Derasum, who played soft preludes and vocal selections.

Included were "I Love You Truly" and "Calm as the Night" were rendered by Mr. Frank Mullins, uncle of the bride.

Candles were lighted by Mr. Joe Moore, twin brother of the bride.

Master John Derasum and Alice Derasum, little cousins of the bride, formed an aisle of white satin ribbon for the bride party.

The bride was charming in an Eisenberg of navy sheer. Her orchid corsage was fashioned with white velvet ribbons.

Her hat, also a navy, was a Howard.

She wore as her only ornament an heirloom crescent of pearls.

Mrs. Moore, mother of the bride, was gowned in English blue, draped along becoming lines. She wore a corsage bouquet of Gardenias.

The bride's mother of the groom, wore a softly draped gown of black crepe. Her flowers were a corsage bouquet of Gardenias.

A reception followed the ceremony. In the dining room where the artistic decorations combined to further accentuate the bridal theme, adornment was of white gladioli, snapdragons, stock and candytuft arranged in graceful sprays in crystal containers.

The bride's table was veiled with an imported cloth Ascension lilies in massive bowl, candelabra burning slender ivory tapers made lovely its appointments.

Three tiered stands of fragrant stock and candytuft arranged in graceful sprays in crystal containers.

The bride who is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Watts Moore, is attractive and charming and is a favorite in society in Clanton and other cities of Alabama.

Following her graduation her degree of Arts from the local high school, the bride entered Judson College. Later attending Howard where she received her degree of Arts and Science in 1938. She is a member of Phi Mu Sorority.

Her maternal grandparents, Mrs. W. L. Mullins and the late Mr. Mullins are pioneer citizens of Chilton county and have played prominent an influential parts in its life.

The groom, Lieut. Charles Lee Patterson, is the influential Patterson and Williams families of Crenshaw county. He attended State Teachers college at Troy, and also the University of Alabama.

At present he is stationed with the United States Army at Camp Stewart, Savannah, Ga.

Among her out-of-town guests were: Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Ezell, of Birmingham; Mrs. D. H. Patterson, Mr. Leroy Patterson, Miss Nell Patterson, Mr. Tony Williams, Mr. Leo Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Anthony, of Gadsden; Miss Virginia Tisdale and Miss Addie Tisdale, Miss Maryville Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Ivy Sikes, Brantley, Ala.; Mrs. Frank T. Woodward, Clanton, China; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mullins and son, Bill Mullins, Miss Sara Beth Mullins, Mr. Pat Mullins from Mobile; Mrs. Anna Gowan and Miss Sarah Frances Gowan, Brewton, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Varnell, Montevallo; Mrs. Eric Hart, Greenville; and Mrs. Jas. M. Parrish, Jr., Birmingham; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Norman, Luverne, Ala.

Declines Freedom, London Tower Is His Chosen Abode

Official Is Given Key to Prison With Leave to Come And Go at Will.

LONDON. — A monocol major, who awaited promulgation of a sentence by a court martial on a charge of assaulting an air commodore, declined proffered freedom. He preferred remaining in the Tower of London, described as a member of Britain's First Guards guards, attached to the Scots guards.

Major Wintle, a slight, dark man with a small mustache, spent many weeks in the tower before his trial, and it was thought he would be kept under guard until promulgation of his sentence.

Instead he was given the key of the quarters, and told he could come and go as he pleased.

He decided to stay on at the tower because, as he told a friend, "I like the place, and the tramp of soldiers' boots is the kind of music I find pleasant."

Trouble With Eyes.

According to Major A. H. Marlowe, prosecuting at the court martial, Major Wintle had practically lost the sight of his left eye as the result of a wound suffered in the last war.

On May 7 he was examined by Major Scott, who found that the sight of his right eye was defective.

At another examination on June 12, Colonel Mackenzie of the war office medical board found that his sight was almost normal.

It was alleged that Major Wintle told the colonel that at the first examination he consciously limited his vision because he wanted to get out of the army and join the French army.

He was born in Russia and moved shortly after to Dunkirk, where his father was in the consular service, and brought up in France before going to the Royal Military academy.

The result was that he could probably talk French better than English and had such a knowledge of French characteristics and character that they were far more ready to impart their secrets to him than to a man they regarded as a foreigner.

After two visits to France in 1939, Major Wintle returned in a depressed state, and after the chances of the French army.

Because of conversations he had with French officers, and in view of his information he obtained an interview with Sir Edmund Ironside and placed his information before the authorities.

Shuns Holy Land Service.

Early this year he was sent to Edinburgh to the Third cavalry brigade. He received an order to act as draft conducting officer to Palestine. That was a terrible disappointment.

Being depressed, he thought that the British army had no further use for a man with eyesight such as his. Sir Edmund Ironside was on the side was a witness for the defense.

He declared that Major Wintle had been "a bit of a nuisance, like many people with guts who want to go and fight."

"It is not easy," added Sir Edmund, "to find jobs for people of that rank."

Prison Mother Starts Life Anew on Big Ranch

CHEYENNE. — Under assumed names, a pretty ex-forger and her seven-months-old daughter are living on a Wyoming ranch.

Mrs. Opal McKinley, 22 years old, was serving a prison term in Canon City, Colo., for forgery at Douglas, Wyo., when physicians announced the baby's impending arrival. Although sentenced in Wyoming, she was sent to the Colorado prison because the Wyoming penitentiary has no facilities for women.

The Wyoming prison board ruled that the baby would become a ward of the state and it was taken to the state children's home in Casper, pending its adoption.

Immediately Mrs. McKinley launched a movement to keep "what is my own and should not be torn away from me."

Wyoming and Colorado officials finally agreed the baby should not be born in prison.

Following Melissa's birth, Governor Neils Smith granted the mother a pardon.

Rat Trap Set in Store Nabs Big Game—Skunk

ELY, NEV. — The next time Frank Callaway, store keeper at Currant Creek near here, sets a trap in his establishment he's going to make sure it's a rat he's after. His wife thought she heard a rat running about the store one night. So Callaway set a trap. The trap worked fine—but Callaway had to put a wet sock around his nose before he could enter the store and remove the animal.

Early Bible Papyri Found in Holy Land

Extensive Fragments of New Testament Unearthed.

BALTIMORE. — Discovery of some of the most extensive fragments of New Testament manuscript that have yet come to light was announced to the American Philological association at its annual meeting.

The find was made on the ancient ruins at Mount Sinai at Aju-el-Hafir, not far from the modern Egyptian border and the last village on the route of the pilgrimage to the holy mountain. It was regarded as of prime importance in that it may throw additional light on the character of early Biblical texts.

Three fragments of manuscript were unearthed in the excavation of ruins of church and monastery at Aju-el-Hafir.

One of the fragments consists of some 30 consecutive pages of The Gospel according to St. John. There is a second smaller fragment from the same book while the third contains scattered pieces of the epistles of St. Paul.

Dr. Lionel Casson, a New York university archaeologist, announced the find in a paper on New Testament fragments and other Christian pieces unearthed in southern Palestine by the Colt Archaeological expedition.

Although the expedition returned to this country in 1936, the manuscript fragments were not identified until late this summer and still are being studied by scholars at New York university.

H. D. Duncombe Colt, a New Yorker, was field director of the expedition and the discoverer of the papyri.

Dr. Ernest L. Hettich, who is working on the manuscript fragments with Dr. Casson, Dr. Casper J. Kraemer and other scholars, dated them as "apparently the late Seventh century A. D."

Northwest Inhabited 8,000 Years Ago, Scientist Finds

PHILADELPHIA. — The first evidence that man existed in the northwestern part of the United States 8,000 or more years ago and fashioned crude instruments to slay elephants, camels and horses for food was presented to the American Philological society.

Dr. L. S. Cressman of the University of Oregon discovered the remnants of the lost civilization beneath a bed of volcanic lava in south-central Oregon.

Never before had scientists discovered evidence that man existed in North America in those prehistoric times in areas other than the Southwest and the Great Plains. It had been thought that man came to North America by crossing the Bering straits, moving immediately down to the warm Southwest.

Cressman's discovery indicates that some of the invaders stopped in Oregon and, armed only with crude stone spears, sallied out from mountain caves to prey on camels, elephants and other animal species which since long have disappeared from this part of the world.

'U-Turn' Is All Right If for Sake of Safety

MILWAUKEE. — Tom White, an engineering student, made an illegal U-turn on an icy Milwaukee street, but got off with a suspended sentence when he explained that:

"Due to wheels accelerating in a given plane and the force of gravity acting in an angle to the rotating plane, it caused rotation perpendicular to the plane of the wheel rotation. In the interest of safety, I felt it better to complete the turn of rotation rather than break the turn and stall in the middle of the street."

In other words, his car skidded on the ice and he thought it safer to complete the skid than to apply the brakes.

Glacier on Mt. Rainier To Vanish in Few Years

WASHINGTON. — One of the 28 glaciers covering Mount Rainier's 14,408 foot eminence is melting fast and will disappear completely within a few years, the national park service reports.

Stevens glacier, named for Gen. Hazard Stevens, first man to reach Rainier's summit in 1870, has become separated from the parent body of ice by a distance of 200 yards. Located on the south side of the mountain, the glacier has melted away until all that remains is a thin piece of ice a quarter mile long. Light snowfall and high temperatures during the last year contributed to the glacier's end, the service reports.

During 1941 Chilton County Should Double Its Production of Beef and Dairy Cattle, Hogs, Poultry, Mules, Sheep and Goats. Strawberry, Peach and Potato Production Should Be Increased One-third. At Least A Dozen Small Industries Should Be Located In Chilton County. It Can and Should Be Done.

Mark Remarks:

I am indebted to our able Congressman, Pete Jarman, for a copy of The Monroe Doctrine, as communicated to the two houses of Congress, December 2nd, 1823, by President James Monroe, and the Valiant Convention of the American Republics. The Monroe Doctrine is of vital importance at this time when invasion of the Western Hemisphere is being so freely discussed.

Rents are said to be 17 per cent higher in Birmingham than the live year average prior to 1940. What about wages?

Too much pick-up can easily cause too many pick-ups.

The ocean steamers can travel a thousand miles up the Amazon river but a flat boat can't travel even a few miles up the Coosa. There's a reason.

Three more of Alabama's leading newspaper men answered the final summons last week. They were: Cody Hall, of the Alexander City Outlook, who died Monday night; B. G. McCallum, of the Troy Herald, who died Wednesday, and James L. Meeks, of the Florence Times and Tri-Cities Daily, who died Friday. Earlier in the Month Tom Williams of the Talladega Daily Home passed on, and last month over Mr. of the Montgomery Advertiser died after a short illness. I have never during my more than fifty years of newspaper work in Alabama experienced the loss of so many of my newspaper fellows in so short a period of time.

So I just write "30" for the Peach on that failed to bloom.

Here in Chil-Co-Ala after the strawberries and cream comes peach cobbler, water melons and cantaloupes, and, of course, legged chickens and home-made pie.

London is crying wolf! wolf! There may be something in what he says. Just about everything said by the American people on his radio program, about preparedness, and the unpreparedness of the other countries has turned out to be true. Calling him names, and disbelieving what he says is mighty poor defense.

In Switzerland, Ireland and Sweden they are prepared and have our European allies. Can we if we want to? How do we want to?

One-fourth of the people of the U.S. are farmers, yet they are getting only one-half per cent of the total income. This is a situation needing attention of Congress fully as much as legal beer war.

LEGAL BEER HELPS LABOR AND FARMER

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Describing the beverage industry as a "vital link" between agriculture and labor, State Director David E. Dunn of the Brewers and Alabama Distributors Committee declared that legal beer means new markets for the farmer and a million new jobs for labor.

Director Dunn held a meeting of Southwest Alabama wholesale distributors here to launch the Committee's "Buy Up or Close Up" campaign on its third year of operation. The program, begun in March, 1939, was inaugurated by the brewing industry to bring about improved conditions at retail beer outlets through close cooperation with law-enforcement agencies and the ABC Board.

"The brewing industry buys $100,000,000 worth of farm products every year," Director Dunn said, "and spends $48,000,000 annually on white clover, barley, much of which comes from Alabama."

"In 1940, for instance, the beer industry bought more than 7,000 Alabama hogs, and more than 5,000 sheep, and more than 100,000 head of cattle, and more than 100,000 head of horses."

"That is why I say the beer industry is a vital link between the farmer and the consumer, bringing substantial benefits to both."

"The beer industry, through its cooperation with law-enforcement agencies, and the ABC Board, has made a beverage made of wholesome farm products—shall be sold in Alabama only under a wholesome label."

Proof Of The Pie

Dixon's Man for Governor may be a Peach, but the People's Man for Governor brings home the "plums" yet by the basketball—and everybody eats—The Chilton County News.

Not everybody eats, Mark, not everybody. Graves himself said, "Those who helped him bake the pie would eat it." We grant you Graves kept his word—and we believe, can print to you proof—Greene County Democrat.

It's true Jim, those who helped Bibb the Builder bake the pie did eat—and are still eating, and so is the beloved editor of the Greene County Democrat, who gets a slice of pie every time he drives his automobile over the toll-free bridges, so numerous in his part of the State; he also gets a slice every time he deducts up to $13.00 from his ad valorem taxes on his home, and takes a joy ride with his family over the more than six hundred miles of bridges built by Bibb the Builder. Every owner of an automobile, truck or bus in Alabama is getting a slice when using these highways.

Every school teacher got a slice when handed a check for long past-due salary (hand-over-from-a-past administration) Friday, Alabama school children got a slice when given an extra month's schooling each year.

Every business man who visits the State Capital Highway Department gets a slice when he has occasion to transact business in this comfortable, convenient and moderately efficient structure. Every lawyer in the State gets a slice when he visits the elegant Temple of Justice which houses the Alabama State Supreme Court.

Every parent of every boy and girl gets a slice when they see their children climb into a comfortable school bus to be transported to a modern consolidated school. An so, on and on.

Yes Jim, everybody eats (higher-ups and lower-downs) when Bibb the Builder brings home the pie.

Jim, print this in The Old Reliable Greene County Democrat.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. D. HASKEW, D. D.

Recently I attended a funeral service. A devoted mother had lived to a ripe old age and had passed away with but little suffering. The preacher conducting her funeral saw fit to bring before her bereaved family everything that would cut the heart of the sorrowing children. As I listened to this preacher I almost lost my religion with righteous indignation. From start to finish it was "Vacant chairs, tear stained cheeks, weeping eyes and sobbing souls." There were many tears and wailings as the preacher stood on tip toe and poured out more sorrow. For one I grew sick at heart. It is beyond me why some preachers try hard to make a funeral a time of weeping and wailing. When the one in the casket has lived a beautiful life, it is like presenting a beautiful bouquet of roses to God. One of the finest arts in a preacher's life is to be able to conduct a funeral that is respectful to God and that is comforting to the bereaved ones.

There are three great evils that we must meet and battle with every day that we live. The first is Ignorance. If that evil be within us, or if it is in the mind and heart of others, it is a very destructive force. Ignorance binds many a life with ball-and-chain that makes the life to hobble, and finally works out ruin. The second great evil is superstition. The third great evil is hatred for truth. Are you wondering why you are not succeeding? Any one of these three evils can drive you off the road to success. Strive to learn, shake off superstition and love truth with all your heart.

When is a man a success. A man is successful when he enters life to learn and go forth to serve. He is a success when he is honest and humble, when he is unselfish and spiritual. A man is a success when he can achieve with honor. Life towers like the mountain peak when the individual is doing things and when he is honored for what he is doing. Off with honor that to the man who can achieve with honor.

Sunday School Lesson
FOR SUNDAY, MARCH 30, 1941

Golden Text: "Behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you."—Luke 24: 49.

Lesson Text: Luke 24: 36-53.

Jesus was crucified Friday evening, following the crucifixion. Two prominent Jews attended to his burial. Joseph of Arimathea, a member of the Sanhedrin, was bold enough to request the body from Pilate and give it a place of interment in his own new tomb excavated in the rock.

Nicodemus, one of the rulers, who early in the ministry of Jesus came to him by night, also assisted him. As it was almost the beginning of the Sabbath the process of embalming was very hastily done.

The three-day period foretold by Jesus passed, not three days as we count them, but according to the Jewish method, that is, part of Friday and all of Saturday and part of Sunday, during which time Jesus was in the tomb.

Early Sunday a group of faithful women proceeded to the tomb to complete the embalming which the two men had hurriedly done Friday evening. To their surprise they were met by angels who advised them that Jesus had risen. They hurried back with the news, and immediately Peter and John proceeded to investigate the report. Peter entered into the tomb and found the grave-clothes perfectly arranged but the body of Jesus was gone.

The first appearance of Jesus was to Mary Magdalene. This is noteworthy in an age when women were not regarded as highly as now. Shortly afterwards he appeared to the other women of the party. The first man who saw Jesus was Simon Peter, although we have no details of this appearance, it being merely stated that he appeared to Peter.

We have a very good account of the appearance of Jesus to two disciples, not apostles, walking from Jerusalem to Emmaus, a village about seven miles from Jerusalem. These two men were discussing the various events of the recent past when Jesus joined them and in answer to his questions they told him briefly about Jesus and his work, how he had been killed and with the hope that he would redeem Israel and then of the strange story from some that he had risen from the dead. In his conversation—Jesus referred to the many scriptural passages about his career and referred to the many scriptural references to himself.

In this interpretation, we may be sure that Jesus stressed such facts as these pointed out by C. R. Erdman: "The Scriptures contain authoritative messages concerning Christ: these messages can be understood only by those who believe in Christ, and are guided by him; the essential truths concerning Christ center in the facts of his death and resurrection in witness of the salvation thus secured, repentance and

These renowned doctors said that three things sent more people to them for treatment than all other things combined. Worry sent them more patients than any other one thing. The next to worry was fear and next to fear was hatred. Worry, fear and hatred, sent thousands to the Mayo Brothers and these three things are sending their millions to a premature grave all over the world. Worry dries up the stream of life, fear hinders digestion and hatred fills the blood with poison. The sharp blade of either one of these three enemies of health will soon chop the line of life and when all three get busy with their power to slay, no living man can last long.

One morning I sat by the kitchen stove and watched the coffee pot as it boiled and boiled. I observed that the hotter the water became the louder the kettle would sing. My friends, if you ever get into hot water, remember the tea kettle. That kettle is full of hot water up to its neck, and yet that kettle sings the louder, the hotter the water. The Bible tells us that a merry heart doeth good like medicine. It is well for us to accept our present joys, to discount all of our sorrows. It is well for us to get all life in life and not wait for the tomorrow. Today is that tomorrow you worried about yesterday, and the present is all that you have of the presence of God. We came into this world naked and bare, and we are going out of it we are not quite sure where. So, we should remember that if we are all right and happy here, we will be all right and happy there.

A Christian father faced his oldest son as he was leaving home to make good, or to fail in life. The old man placed his hand upon that worthy boy and said these words, "Son, remember whose child you are, it matters not where you go." To be sure a worthy child will always remember whose child he is. All alike, we either add to or we subtract from our parents. Which are you doing.

forgiveness of sins can be preached; this salvation is to be proclaimed in all the world; the followers of Christ are the messengers by whom this good news is to be made known; the power for Spirit of Christ who was manifested in such proclamation is imparted by the new power on the Day of Pentecost, and who is now an abiding Presence and a Source of limitless strength to all who seek to do the will of Christ and to glorify his name."

At length, Jesus revealed his identity to these disciples who returned to Jerusalem and found ten of the apostles together, discussing the appearance of Jesus to Peter. The Savior appeared then to this group and a week later to the eleven apostles to convince Thomas who had been absent the preceding week. Several other appearances during the forty days are also given us. Jesus appeared to seven fishermen led by Peter, to all the apostles and to a large gathering of five hundred, also to his brother, James, who became as a result a leader in the early church, and finally on the occasion followed by his ascension from the Mount of Olives.

We cannot understand the mystery of the nature of Jesus during this period. He passed unimpeded through the doors as if spiritual yet he exhibited his wounds and ate food as if material. Perhaps his form was interchangeable. So, the ascension is a mystery to us but as J. Paterson Smyth says, "We believe that the visible event which we call the ascension was His kindly condescension to simple human minds. We naturally connect that higher life which is beyond our present comprehension with the blue heavens above, or the starry heights beyond the blue. In concession to this simple thought, instead of just disappearing as at other times, he rose from the earth and a cloud received Him. It only means that he had passed from our present sphere of existence to another sphere beyond our own."

Something a lot of us have begun to worry about: Just how short is "short of war?"

The best years of a girl's life are the five that she's eighteen.

One of the easiest things to understand and the hardest to learn is that the time to save money is when you've got some.

The tendency of modern readers is to seek something that fortifies their opinion, rather than something that challenges their thought.

A VITAL LINK
BEER INDUSTRY
THE legalized beer industry today forms a vital link between agriculture and labor, bringing substantial benefits to farmer and worker alike.
Taking the wholesome products of American farmlands and making them into a wholesome beverage, the beer industry has increased the income of the farmer and provided new pay-rolls for labor.
Every year more than $100,000,000 worth of the nation's corn, barley, hops and rice crops go into the making of America's beer and ale, and the manufacture and distribution of this beverage give jobs to more than one million persons.
But making a wholesome beverage out of wholesome farm products is not enough. The beer industry is determined that its product shall be sold only under wholesome conditions.
That is why the Brewers and Alabama Beer Distributors Committee starts its third year of work with renewed vigor to provide orderly retail outlets for the Alabama public.
You can help retain these benefits for agriculture and labor by patronizing only wholesome retail beer outlets.

WAYS TO GROW MORE COTTON PER ACRE

AUBURN, Ala.—The Alabama Experiment Station has found that the easiest way for Alabama farmers to produce more cotton per acre is to fertilize the cotton with 36 pounds of nitrogen, 48 pounds of phosphoric acid and 24 pounds of potash. These amounts of plant food can be supplied by either of the following methods:

(1) Use 600 pounds per acre of a ready-mixed 6-8-4.

(2) Home-mix 225 pounds of nitrate of soda or its equivalent, 300 pounds of 16 per cent superphosphate and 48 pounds of muriate of potash. On light sandy soils one-quarter of the nitrate should be applied under the cotton with the superphosphate and potash, and the remaining nitrogen used as a side-dressing at first cultivation after chopp-

(3) Apply 500 pounds 4-10-7 with a side-dressing of 10 pounds of nitrate of soda or its equivalent, or 600 pounds of 3-8-5 with side-dressing of 112 pounds of nitrate of soda or its equivalent.

On soils where rust is found or where peanuts have been harvested, even more than 24 pounds of potash per acre may be profitably used, however, all of it should be applied before planting. A satisfactory fertilizer for such soils is: 500 pounds of 4-10-7 at planting and side-dress with 100 pounds of nitrate of soda or its equivalent.

For cotton following a good crop of winter legumes, apply at planting: 300 pounds superphosphate, 50 pounds nitrate of soda, and 50 pounds muriate of potash.

TERRACING IMPROVED FARMS BY $1,000,000

AUBURN, Ala.—Terracing and other land improvement practices added well over a million dollars to the value of Alabama farms in 1940, reports J. B. Wilson, extension agricultural engineer.

Terraces on some 310,840 acres of farmland were constructed by farmers and alone involved an increase in value of $1,865,040. Gully control, drainage, irrigation, and land clearing constituted an additional increase of farm values.

Wilson states that in 1941 Alabama farmers will double the average terraced in 1940.

Some of these big-town newspapers are going to get a lot of us country boys into trouble with their perfumed ads, there's nothing so hard to explain to a woman as a strange perfume scent in her home.

FARMERS REMINDED OF CLOSING DATE

Chilton County farmers were reminded this week by County Agent, P. H. Smith, that the closing date for accepting applications for payment under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program is March 31 of this year.

"All eligible producers who have not filed their applications under the 1940 program should do so this month," Mr. Smith said. "Applications are receiving immediate attention in the State AAA office and checks are being issued as promptly as possible."

State AAA Administrator A. W. Jones announced that agricultural conservation payments under the 1940 program had been certified in the amount of $4,900,394 on 84,510 applications for all counties on March 19, 1941.

Girls Are Advised To Build-Up For Relief

Lack of knowledge causes many a weak, undernourished girl a lot of suffering!

Many others, however, know how the headaches, nervousness, cramp-like pain of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition are helped by the proper use of CARDUI.

Some take it a few days before and during "the time," to help ease periodic distress. But CARDUI's principal use is to help increase appetite; stimulate the flow of gastric juice; aid digestion, assist in building up physical resistance and thus help reduce periodic distress. Women have used CARDUI for over 50 years.

FARMERS NEED TO SAVE MORE SEED

AUBURN, Ala.—Alabama farmers are faced with a situation which demands the greatest seed saving program ever carried out in Alabama, report State Agricultural leaders.

In a special letter to the county agents and county AAA assistants, A. W. Jones, State AAA administrative officer, says that "in some instances producers are having to pay exorbitant prices for seed and planting materials to carry out conservation measures that are a part of the Alabama four-point conservation plan for 1941. These high prices are due principally to scarcity and to increased demand."

P. O. Davis, State extension director, says that Alabama farmers must produce as much of their own seed as is possible if a serious seed shortage in the State is avoided.

Seed for which farmers are paying high prices are pasture grasses, clovers, and lespedeza seed.

"It is highly important that in every county careful plans be made to produce and save the maximum amount of seed for planting soil conserving crops and for sale," agree those in touch with the situation.

Some of the measures being suggested are seed patches of soil conserving crops, a county seed oil saving campaign, and a seed swapping program. It is reported that the need for saving seed oats is greater this year than it has ever been in Alabama.

A REPORT to America

The Ford Motor Company's business has always been to serve the needs of the American people. In providing them with low-cost transportation for the past 38 years, we have developed one of the country's largest and most useful industrial units. During a national emergency, we feel that these facilities should be devoted without reserve to our country's needs. Toward that end we started rolling months ago, with these results:

1 A $21,000,000 Ford airplane engine factory, started only 6 months ago, is nearly completed. Production will start with an initial order for 4,236 eighteen cylinder, air-cooled, double-row, radial engines.

2 We are building a new $800,000 Ford magnesium alloy foundry, one of the few in the country. It is already producing lightweight airplane engine castings.

3 Army reconnaissance cars—military vehicles of an entirely new type—are rolling off special Ford assembly lines at the rate of more than 600 a month. We have produced Army staff cars and bomber service trucks.

4 The government has given the "go-ahead" and work is now under way for the fast construction of an $11,000,000 Ford plant to produce bomber airplane assemblies by mass production methods.

5 Several months ago work was started, on our own initiative, on an entirely new 1500 horsepower airplane engine especially designed for mass production. This engine is now in the test stage and plans are being developed for producing it in large quantities when and if needed.

6 A Ford aircraft apprentice school has been established, to train 2000 students at a time.

That is a report of progress to date.

The experience and facilities of this company can be used to do much of the job which America now needs to get done in a hurry.

Our way of working, which avoids all possible red tape, enables us to get results and get them fast. This benefits users of our products and workers who produce them.

We are ready to make anything we know how to make, to make it to the limit of our capacity if need be, to make it as fast as we can go, and to start the next job whenever our country asks us to. And to this end, we know we have the full confidence and loyal support of the workmen throughout our plants.

COTTON HOLDS FUTURE OF THE SOUTH

BY DON WHITEHEAD
KNOXVILLE—John F. Leahy is a nervous, intense little Irishman with some unorthodox ideas about creating an economic upheaval in the domain ruled by King Cotton.

But the slim, youngish-looking projects director at the University of Tennessee experiment station is no dreamer—he carries his ideas past the test-tube stage to commercial usefulness, mapping a course of great potential importance to the South's cotton industry.

Leahy looks to a day when, perhaps, the United States will regain its old position of dominance in the world cotton market; when domestic production will reach 18,000,000 bales annually; when staple cotton will be only a by-product of the cotton plant, and when cotton will be even more firmly entrenched as the South's money crop.

Those are big objectives, but Leahy believes they can be reached. He thinks the key lies not in lint cotton, but in new and greater uses for the cotton seed which now produces only about 20 per cent of the total cotton income, although there are two pounds of cottonseed to one pound of lint cotton in the stalks.

The university's engineers, under Leahy's direction, have made a start in this direction. After 12 years of experiments, they have developed for commercial use a new steam pressure cottonseed processing cooker, a new process for using cottonseed hulls as a replacement of a cottonseed humulifier.

There are other cottonseed experiments in the test-tube stage which appear profitable to Leahy.

Laid at Door of Cotton
"The poverty of the South is laid at the door of cotton as if the plant were evil influence over the destinies of Southern mankind," he said. "Cotton has been in the past and is today the mufletier heritage of Southern climate and soil, notwithstanding the tyranny of supposed over-production and ruinous prices."

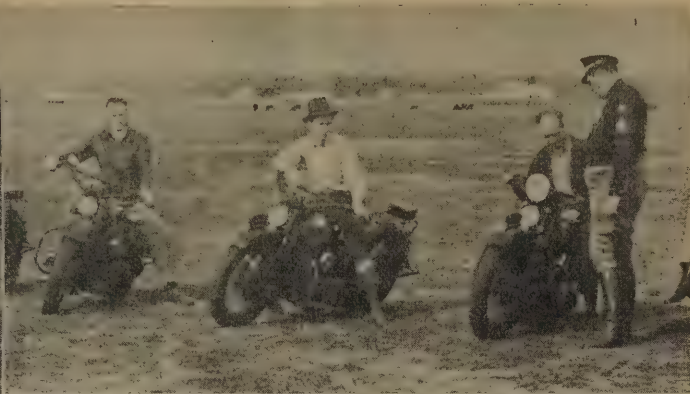

Leahy sees the problem as one of increasing the farmer's acre income—principally by increasing the value of the seed used to permit the farmer to sell his staples at lower prices on the domestic and foreign markets, thus creating a demand for 18,000,000 bale crops.

The university engineers have developed a new steam pressure cooking process obtained a greater yield of oil, as much as 10 pounds per ton of seed crushed and that the refining losses ran only 2 per cent as compared to a normal refining loss of 7 to 9 per cent.

The university has developed a process for using the hulls as a plastic material, suitable for textile sheaves, wall board, ash trays, fountain pens, electrical appliances and scores of other articles. The plastic is described as heat resistant with a degree of elasticity under stress which is not shared by many other materials.

THORSBY NEWS

The 1941 Seniors of Thorsby Institute took their annual trip to Tuskegee Institute on Friday, March 21. It was a most enjoyable and educational trip.

The last open meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society will be held on Friday night, April 4, at 7:30 under the direction of Miss Elsie Tinker. There will be a Christian Endeavor the American composer, Stephen Foster, "From The Old South". The arrangement of the program will be given next week. Everyone is invited.

A music recital under the auspices of the Clanton Music Club was given on Monday night, March 24, at 7:30 by Miss Elsie Tinker, music instructor at the Institute, Miss Ruby Rayborn and Miss Katherine Bryan both students of Thorsby Institute. This was a most enjoyable program.

The Ladies Guild served the Lions Club in the Fellowship Hall of the Congregational Church, on Tuesday night, March 25.

There will be a Christian Endeavor Social in Fellowship Hall of the Congregational Church on Saturday night, March 29, at 7:00. All members and friends of the Christian Endeavor are invited to attend.

The Christian Endeavor was led last Sunday evening by the Missionary Committee. We studied about the churches in other lands and the work they are doing. Special music was rendered by Frances Wood and Jeanette Plant. Everyone is invited to attend these meetings each Sunday evening at 6:20 in the Fellowship Hall of the Congregational church.

KIWANIS BULLETIN

We enjoyed having the state high school champion basketball team (CHS) with us last Thursday evening. The only thing bad about the affair was that our attendance was the lowest of the year at this meeting.

Cohen Stapp has charge of the program Thursday night, which of course always means an interesting program. We are looking for you.

The Judge asked the lady what her grounds for divorce were. She replied, "Judge, my husband has spoken to me only three times since we were married." The Judge granted the divorce. The wife was given custody of the three children.

The meeting will start promptly at 7:30.

Reservations for the International Convention at Atlanta, which is to be held June 15-19 are to be made by April 1st. Be thinking about it and let's have a good percentage from Clanton.

LEND-LEASE BILL WILL HELP THE SOUTH

The lend-lease bill will mean more for the South than has yet been made public. Under its provisions among the materials that the President will be authorized to send to Britain are cotton and its by-products, foods and feed, of various kinds that are produced right here in the South. Our greatest export, cotton, will be made into the bulk of surplus cotton in our various warehouses, if the surplus is not taken out entirely—Anniston Star.

MT. PLEASANT IS WINNER OF TOURNEY

Coach Billy Phillips' Mt. Pleasant basketball quintet captured the county championship game here Saturday night for their ninth consecutive year. They defeated a scrapping Collins Chapel five in the final game of the county-wide High School tournament by a score of 30 to 23 for their ninth trophy. Baker Jr. defeated R. B. Johnson's Thorsby dribblers for third place by a score of 28 to 23.

The tournament began Friday evening under the direction of Coach D. L. Cox in the Chilton County High School gymnasium, continuing through until Saturday night at eight o'clock when the Championship game was played.

Coach Cox presented the Captain of the Mt. Pleasant team a beautiful trophy, which to place alongside their other eight.

Rev. J. Titus Aldridge To Preach At Thorsby Church

Rev. J. Titus Aldridge from Dora, Ala., will preach both morning and evening at the Thorsby Baptist church. Rev. Aldridge comes to us very ably recommended. If possible, everyone come out to hear him. Will have special music.

Wolves Shelter 2 Outcast Babies In Real Life Tale

Story of Romulus and Remus May Be Fable, but This Is Substantiated.

DETROIT—A story of two outcast baby girls in India who were suckled and sheltered by wolves was told here by Dr. Robert M. Zingg, of the University of Denver, at the convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"The fable of Romulus and Remus in Roman history may be only a fable, but here is a story, scientifically substantiated, that proves there is no innate enmity between wild beasts and human beings," the young anthropologist said.

"I have collected a group of 30 similar cases, all of which have been proven to be true, in which human babies have been found living in an animal state and have been brought back into civilized society."

The object of Dr. Zingg's research was to throw light on this question: Is heredity or environment more important in the growth of a child? The answer, he says, is environment.

The Indian girls were discovered in 1920 at Midnapore, in northern India, by J. A. L. Singh, an Anglican missionary, who heard the natives speak of two "tiger men" they saw.

Children Captured.

Singh built a platform in a tree near the giant ant hill in which the "tiger men" lived with wolves, and at nightfall two female wolves, three cubs and the two wild girls, all running on all fours, came out.

The next day he dug into the ant hill. Attacked by one of the female wolves, he shot her. In order to capture the children, who clawed and howled like wolves, he had to throw gunnysacks over them.

Taken back to his missionary home the children were named Kamala, eight years, and Amala, one year. They would eat only raw meat and milk, but gradually they were trained away from wildness. They could not see by day, but had the eyes of cats at night. They had no sense of nakedness and had to be sewn into loin clothes.

With human beings they were frightened, but with cats, dogs, chickens and even birds they had complete friendship and understanding.

For the baby, the ordeal was too much. She died one year later. But Kamala survived for eight years. Mrs. Singh gradually massaged her leg muscles and taught her to walk and to speak 50 words.

Learns to Walk.

Kamala learned to walk, but to run she normally does not. She learned slowly, little by little, her savage past receded in her mind. She learned to love a red dress and wore it day and night. She learned to eat food and to drink. She learned to get out of a plate. Mrs. Singh's constant companionship finally made her feel at home with human beings instead of with animals.

Kamala learned to run errands and do simple chores around the house, and to use her eyes in daylight.

How far she would have climbed toward normalcy will never be known. She died of uremic poisoning when she was 17.

"All the evidence we have," Dr. Zingg said, "indicates that a human is lost in infancy and is actually suckled by female wolves but will never develop into a normal person. If the child is lost at the age of three or four, and is simply suckled by wolves, it may be rescued, but he can be reclaimed into society."

"And that seems to prove that the first three years are the crucial ones. We learn more in those years than in the rest of our lives put together, and what we learn then never will be completely forgotten."

Burglar Alarm System For Great Dream Highway

PITTSBURGH.—The new Pittsburgh-Harrisburg "Dream Highway" will soon be a challenge to hold-up men.

A new burglar alarm system, guaranteed robbery-proof, is being installed at a reported cost of $385,000. It will be placed in all restaurants, service stations, toll booths and maintenance buildings along the 160-mile run.

It works as follows: If a bandit should walk into a service station, the attendant would step on a concealed button. The ensuing alarm would instantly and automatically connect with a radio system which would flash the signal to the Pennsylvania motor police.

Two-way radio sets are being installed in the 25 police cars patrolling the turnpike, so that they will enable patrolmen to converse with headquarters at Bedford, Pa.

Gnat Spins Net to Catch Spider, Then Eats Him

CHARLOTTE.—North Carolina has a fly which reverses the proverbial role of spider and fly. The fly, a gnat which eats manure, when adult, was described recently by Dr. B. B. Fulton of North Carolina State college. In its youthful stages it spins the webs and, lurking at the center like a spider, waits out to pounce on whatever gets entangled, including many spiders.

REVIEWS and PREVIEWS By Irvin Lande

Once again, the ominous hand of rumor and counter-rumor is playing its part in world affairs. And, in truth, it is that most important battle which may be won on the international chessboard of power politics by the actual propagation of bombs and the firing of rifles. As the week turned, the first rumor which has played an immensely important role in world affairs is the one which said that the British had massed troops on the border between Yugoslavia and Greece. This report caused Hitler to wait before signing with Yugoslavia and to think twice before giving the concessions that the German government demanded. It showed Yugoslavia that there was another force in the Balkans.

That more important that that, this rumor has shown that Russia has finally realized that the British have enough power in the Near East to make itself felt. Though Yugoslavia is to sign with Hitler, it is reported that the Russians will sign with the Turks. It appears, then, without a doubt, that Russia has seen the logical course of uniting with the British to stop Hitler in the Balkans.

However, at the same time, the Russians have made another friendship move with the Germans, but this move may throw the Germans off track. Because the British showed enough power to mass troops against the Yugoslav border, the Russians have realized that the British even more reliable ally than the Germans. It has long been known that the Russians never avowed an alliance with Germany, but Stalin realized that such a move was the best way out, and hence, he did that which he thought best, and because he thought that, by uniting with Hitler, he could prevent a German move into the Ukraine and into other Russian territory before the Russians were ready to fight back.

Now, however, the Russians realize that the British are in the Balkans to stay, and that they (the Russians) would do well to unite with them also.

Toolmakers Will Be Trained in Schools

Broad Program Is Shaped by Engineers' Society.

DETROIT.—The United States never again will be caught in an armaments race with Germany, and skilled workers to swing full speed into a national defense production program, according to a broad new educational plan just formulated by the American Society of Tool Engineers.

The society soon will release through its 37 chapters a three-point training program to local school boards. The plan will turn out skilled men by the thousands, Ford R. Lamb, executive secretary of the society, said.

An acute shortage of machinists, tool and die makers and machine designers has been the principal bottleneck in attempts to retool and expand factories for defense production, and the society estimated last summer that 1,260,000 technical and skilled workers were needed for defense requirements.

This figure, Lamb said, has not changed "because we can make a semiskilled machine operator in four to six weeks, but it takes years to train a skilled mechanic or tool and die maker."

Lamb said it was impossible to operate tool and die machine shops on a three-shift day, seven-day week, as requested by Production Chief Knudsen, "because it would take 300 per cent more manpower than we have."

When the nation turned to the immediate problem is longer working hours for each employee, Lamb said, the educational program will assure the industry of a plentiful supply of manpower in the future. Acting only in an advisory capacity, the society, composed of men employed in the industry, will submit programs to high schools, colleges and manufacturers.

Strange Herbs Sold by Mexicans at Juarez Mart

JUAREZ, MEXICO.—At the historic Juarez market where Mexicans shop and where American tourists come to see strange products of Mexico's interior, peddlers and vendors offer herbs from Mexico called "yareba de viora," or snake grass. "It's the future," they say, "it will cure anything," even a broken heart.

In the tiny booths grizzled wise men do a thriving business in herbs and charms which they say their ancestors have found effective for centuries.

For a bad cold they offer a remedy the Mexican swears by. It's called yerba de viora, or snake grass. A little green herb, it grows in the mountains. Brew a tea of yerba de viora, mix it with soot—potent Mexican alcoholic beverage—and the cold will disappear, they vendors assert.

For rheumatism, huchichile is recommended. Gourd tea is reportedly the best cure for chest ailments and tuberculosis. For a hangover grange leaves mixed with yore guessed it—sotol, is supposed to be the best cure.

School Classes 'Wired'

To Children Ill at Home

DES MOINES.—If a child can't go to school the school goes to the child in 15 school districts in Iowa that are conducting an interesting experiment with leased wire hook-ups.

Twenty-eight children who would have been unable to attend school this year because of accidents or poor health have been in regular attendance at their classes.

The device used resembles inter-office communication systems. In the child's room is placed a box-like instrument resembling a radio set. On the teacher's desk at school is another just like it.

The child not only hears everything that goes on in the classroom but he also recites when called upon. The state provides the devices and the school district pays the tolls.

"We believe this system is the only one of its kind in the United States," commented Jessie M. Parker, Iowa superintendent of public instruction.

Army of Toads Saves Day for Oregon Farmers

PORTLAND, ORE.—Recalling the amazing flight of the seagulls to Salt Lake City in early days, an army of toads recently came to the rescue of farmers of southwestern Oregon. Clover growers of the district were using very modern device known in their battle against cutworms including airplane crop-dusters, when the phalanx of toads croaked in view. Slowly moving en masse across field after field the toads devoured the worms as if they were deadly rations.

Students Are Offered Treatment for Colds

MEADVILLE, PA.—Allegheny college health authorities are winning their fight against colds among the student body this winter by providing free cod liver oil tablets and serum treatments for all who wish them.

About 25 per cent of the students have taken the serum treatment with "remarkable results," according to William P. Tolley, college president.

Golfer Shoots for Ace, And He Scores It, Too

NEWTON, MASS.—Bill Blaney, former state amateur golf champion, set a new course record of 67 at Brae Burn by scoring a hole in one on the last hole.

As Blaney stepped up to the final hole, the par 3 sixth, he jokingly asked partners John Cole and Merrill Delano, who had started the round with him, if he should seek the record or try it safe.

"Go ahead—play for the ace," they solemnly told him.

He did—and got it.

New Exemption Claim; Cow Listed as Dependent

BINGHAMTON, N. Y.—Officials of a Binghamton draft board puzzled today over whether a cow could properly be classified as a dependent.

The rural registrant returned his questionnaire and listed his mother as first dependent and his cow as second. He had to furnish hay for the cow, the youth explained.

EASTVIEW

Glennia Rushing, the grandson of Paul Rushing, who for many years was Senior Deacon of Eastview Congregational church, was elected Deacon of the church at conference last Saturday night.

Owing to the inability of the pastor to attend the regular April Sunday morning meeting of the church, as well as others plan to attend the Christian Life Conference at Thorsby at that time, the conference voted to have that meeting at 7 p.m. instead, Sunday night March 30th, which will be a fifth Sunday. The morning and night meetings on the 4th Sunday of April will be as usual. Christian Endeavor will be at 6:30 p.m., Sunday school at 10.

Rev. Floyd Smith will preach at Eastview church the 3rd Sunday night in April.

COTTON STAMPS READY IN JULY AND AUGUST

AUBURN, Ala.—Cotton order stamps to be earned by farmers for participating in the Supplementary Cotton Program, will be issued this summer as soon as possible after performance is checked under the 1941 AAA Farm Program, according to A. W. Jones, Alabama AAA administrative officer.

This means that in the early cotton-producing counties of Alabama issuance of stamps may begin in late June, with the bulk of the stamps expected to be distributed during July and August.

Jones said this estimate is based on past experience in checking cotton performance during a normal growing season. A late growing season in 1941 would, of course, delay issuance of stamps to farmers in the areas affected.

Cotton stamps will be issued to farmers who make a further voluntary reduction in their cotton acreage in 1941. Stamps can be used to purchase cotton goods in local retail stores. Farmers may earn stamps at the rate of 10 cents a pound on the normal yield of the acreage reduced. A farmer interested in only one farm may earn a maximum of $25 in cotton stamps, except that an operator with two or more tenants or sharecroppers may earn up to $50. A farmer interested in two or more cotton farms also may earn up to $50, but not more than $25 of this amount can be any one farm.

Twenty-five cent stamps like that above, bound in small, handy books, will be issued to cotton farmers who cooperate in the new supplementary cotton program by making further reduction in cotton acreage. With these stamps farmers can purchase any article of cotton clothing or other cotton articles from their local stores. The books of stamps will be issued to each cooperating farmer after his compliance in the new program is certified by the county AAA committee. Owners, operators, tenants, and sharecroppers may earn up to $25 in stamps; operators of two or more farms or of farms with two or more tenants may earn up to $50. The new program is designed to help offset effects of lost cotton export markets, prevent further piling up of surplus cotton, increase consumption of cotton by farm families themselves, and further encourage home food and feed production.

POPLAR SPRINGS

Last Sunday was our regular preachings Sunday. We had a good crowd for the weather. Bro Burrell delivered a wonderful message. Our Sunday school was good. Our church is getting along fine. On next Sunday Rev. Hughes from Cooper will preach for us at 11:00. Everybody is invited to come and be with us. We hope to have a large crowd. Bro. Hughes is one of the oldest preachers in the county. I have known him for fifty years.

We need the old-time gospel in the old-time way, that will stir the hearts of men and women and souls will be saved. We hope everybody will come praying that we have a good time with the Lord.

It won't be long until Easter, so don't forget our Easter singing. We invite everybody to come and help us out and bring your new song books and a full basket that we may enjoy the day in song service. We invite all good singers to come and help us out and don't forget the date.

ARCHER'S CHAPEL

Mr. and Mrs. Walker Allen and Mr. A. L. Taylor motored to Montgomery Saturday to visit Miss Blanche Taylor who is in the hospital.

Mr. Crayton Taylor was operated on in Kings Memorial Hospital in Selma Saturday. We wish for him a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Yearger and nephew of Alexander City were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Partridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Calloway motored to Selma Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Satterwhite and son, Leamon, motored to Birmingham Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Taylor and children motored to Selma Sunday afternoon to visit Crayton.

Glad to see several out who have been sick. Hoping to see others out soon who are sick now.

Mr. Dump Culver who has been ill returned to his job Sunday.

Since Sunday, March 30th, I saw fifth Sunday, Rev. Luther Ballou will preach at Archer's Chapel at 11 a.m. He will also preach there Saturday night, March 29th, at 7 p.m.

TURNING COTTON INTO POWDER

Down along the Coosa River, where the Government is preparing for the erection of a powder plant and a bag loading plant at an outlay of some $72,000,000, there will arise a demand for a considerable amount of cotton when the giant enterprises finally swings into operation.

What is to be produced is so-called "smokeless powder," which is a necessary element in war, though it is neither smokeless nor powder. However, it is much less smokeless than ordinary powder and exerts a greater explosive force.

In the creation of this powder, lint cotton is the chief element. The cotton is soaked in nitric and sulphuric acids and when so soaked becomes nitrocellulose.

The nitrocellulose—or acid-soaked cotton—is dried and then mixed with alcohol and water, after which it is pressed into forms of the desired size. Thus it becomes a sort of cake rather than a powder.

Within a relatively short distance of the plant near Childersburg, where cotton thus is to be converted into an explosive of high potentiality, the powder-bagging plant is to go up. This, as the name implies, is a plant in which the powder is put into bags that fit snugly into the gun that it is to be fired when the fighting opens. The bagging plant is to be operated by the Coca-Cola people, the powder plant by the Du Ponts.

As a matter of course, the amount of cotton to be consumed in the production of powder will not be sufficient to cause a bull market, but every little bit helps and the quantity in this instance will be considerably—Gadsden Times.

Some people who don't get everything that's coming to them are just plain lucky.

Learn How CHEAP Electricity Really Is for Cooking and Water Heating

MANY persons who do not cook electrically are surprised when they learn how CHEAP it really is—they have no idea that one can enjoy the cleanliness, convenience and time-saving features of cooking electrically for so little money!

And they're equally surprised, and pleased, when they learn how inexpensively they may have the comfort and freedom from care that the automatic electric water heater gives.

What pleases them still more is the fact that when they begin using an electric range or electric water heater, their average rate per kilowatt hour becomes lower for ALL of the electricity they use in their homes—whether they use it for more and better light, operating a washing machine or ironer, electric dishwasher, iron, radio, toaster or the dozens of other electrical devices which have made housekeeping so much easier than it used to be.

Learn how easily many of these electrical pleasures may be yours... NOW! Inquire at any of our stores, or your electrical dealer.

What A User Says About Cooking Electrically

"My electric stove makes possible an extra half-hour of sleep in the mornings. With a little careful planning, properly balanced meals can be cooked with a minimum of time and effort. Our Sunday dinner is prepared on Saturday, slipped into the oven Sunday morning before leaving for Sunday School and Church, the time and heat controls set, and then forgotten until we sniff the appetizing odors on our return. There are no more baking failures! My cake was my pride and joy—feather light, evenly baked, browned to perfection. No matter how much cooking is done on summer days, my kitchen remains comfortable."

To Whom It May Concern PLEASE READ ALL!

This is to explain our electrical Dept. Some few days ago we announced that we were taking on the Westinghouse line of Appliances. We are adding these appliances to our line, but we are not giving up the Frigidaire line. Some have been wondering about this so we are taking this time to let the public know that we still have the Agency for Genuine Frigidaire Refrigerators, Ranges and Water Heaters made only by General Motors.

Also the Westinghouse Line of Refrigerators, Ranges and Water Heaters. Zenith and Westinghouse Radios.

OUR SERVICE, DELIVERY and INSTALLATION PLAN

We deliver, install and service any appliance that we sell. It has been said by some salesmen, and some people have the idea that you can't get your appliance serviced through an independent merchant. That is to say that if you don't buy your appliances from a Utility Co. that you can't get it serviced when you need it. "That is a false statement." Don't pay any attention to any of it unless they have the proof.

If you buy any appliance from us you get the same, or better delivery and service from us as you get from any Utility Co. or otherwise. Also we are arranging a service Dept. that we can service Ranges, refrigerators or water heaters of any make. Don't be fooled, get the facts.

Also some salesmen are telling that it cost only $10.00 to get a new unit for their make of Refrigerator after the Guarantee is out, and that is cost lots more to get one for Frigidaire and Westinghouse. This is also false. Don't be fooled. Get the facts.

This statement is made for our and your protection, not to knock or hurt any other Company or salesman. Just to let you know about our business policy.

If you plan to trade or buy, get the facts. Get Westinghouse or Frigidaire.

We also handle Maytag Washing Machines and Fairbanks-Morse Automatic Electric Home water systems.

FOLKS and THINGS ABOUT TOWN

That rumor that we got last week about the big Lion-Pilot dance that is coming off was mighty nigh correct. Instead of the 18th of April it will be the 17th, we believe that is the only thing that came rumormongered us on. . . but anyway, you know we can't be right all the time.

Another thing . . . and this ain't rumor. The city fathers have caused to be put on our curbing signs denoting the time limit for parking. Now on Saturday between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 8:00 p.m. if you park in town and it takes you more than two hours to do it . . . you better park somewhere else or else you will receive an invitation from our congenial mayor to visit him at the City Hall the following Monday to tell why, when and where you were that you parked over time. Verily Clanton is fast becoming metropolitan.

Dr. and Mrs. Crowell have returned from their vacation and report a wonderful time. Visiting friends and relatives in Philadelphia and New York. Mrs. Crowell says they traveled through much snow and are really glad to see this sunshine. More than 3,000 miles were covered on the trip.

Well folks, the STRAWBERRIES will soon be ripe and ready for shipping. That is good news to a lot of merchants hereabouts. We visited a place yesterday and some of the berries are as large as your fingernail. A few more days of this sunshine and they will start picking them, the faces of our business men will brighten up a bit.

We were just wondering what became of our Businessmen's Club that was started several weeks ago. That would be a mighty good thing for Clanton too, we might even celebrate each year. Strawberry Festival just like Cullman does only about a month earlier. There's no telling what we could do if we would get together and pull together for the betterment of our city.

Our Wadesonian is giving us some mighty good pictures lately. "East of the River" was very good then came "Rangers of Fortune" still better and "Capt. Cantel" all in one week. Just an example of finding out what folks like and then giving them that which they want. Not so many months ago when you went to the Wadesonian Theatre one never knew whether he would see a show or not—it all depended on whether or not the crowd justified the showing. Now on Sunday night at the Wadesonian the worry is whether you will get a seat or not. It's always crowded.

Old man Hitler sure got the scare of his life last Saturday and poor Mussolini is still worrying about it. Marvin Ellison, the devil at the News, and Homer Wyatt went and signed up for the Navy. And for six years, too. No doubt the war is already won for the Allies. These two will worry them to death if they can't get at them any other way.

It might be a little bit too early to hasten but anyway we got the tar in the new highway north of the city down to the bridge called "Sleepy" at Clanton Motors and told him that the engineers saved a lot of work by getting that tar down Sunday and Sunday night. Cross your fingers—we might get a good highway through Clanton north and south yet.

Hats off to the County Commissioners for that paint job that is being done at the courthouse. All of the halls have been redecorated and you're likely to wonder whether or not you are in an up-to-date building. It looks mighty pretty and lets hope the urge is contagious and spreads over the rest of the building.

"Sleepy" and Audelle Miller had a snary bird. This got to us a little late but anyhow it's worth telling. A few Sundays ago Audelle called "Sleepy" at Clanton Motors and told him that Jimmie, (that's the name of the bird, or was) was dead. Now it was told to me that he answered with "You know that I can't sing, Audelle, Shim Daniels is here and I don't know whether he can or not, but he'll be down there in a few minutes."

B. N. Studdard went fishing a few days ago, all the way down to the Gulf of Mexico. Didn't get a bite, much less catch a fish. B. N. says that the water was nice and clear and he would put his line right in the middle of a large school of fish but the little

Lions-Pilot Dance To Be Held Thursday, April 17

The Clanton Lions and the Clanton Pilots will give a dance at Starlite Inn at Verbena on the 17th day of April. The music will be furnished by Cecil Mackey and his Orchestra from Montgomery. Mr. Mackey is well known in and around Clanton having furnished most of the music for dances here to rest past several years. The proceeds from the dance will go to the swimming pool fund and from present indications looks like it will be a big success.

Bids have already been mailed to Lions Clubs and Pilot Clubs in adjoining counties to be present on that night. If you haven't made plans yet, make them now. Don't miss the Clanton Lions-Pilot Dance at Starlite Inn, at Verbena on Thursday night, April 17, 9 till 1.

County Wildlife Association To Meet Tonight

All Who Are Interested In Conservation Are Urged To Attend

Tonight (Thursday) at 7:00 o'clock at the City Hall there will be a meeting of the Clanton County Wildlife Conservation Association. J. B. Atkinson is president of the county unit and Wm. H. L. Smith is secretary.

The object of the meeting is to reorganize this association into an active organization thereby accomplishing something in the way of Wildlife Conservation in the county.

Following is a letter received the first of the week from Tom Ford, Director of Conservation Planning of the State and who will be on hand for the meeting tonight:

Mr. Mark L. Tucker, Clanton, Alabama. Dear Mr. Tucker:

On the night of Thursday, April 3, 1941, at 7 p.m. at the City Hall in Clanton, there will be a meeting for the purpose of reorganizing the Clanton County Wildlife Conservation Association. For the past year President Atkinson and the Secretary William H. L. Smith have carried the load almost entirely on their shoulders. They are true that the Alabama Wildlife Federation and the Department of Conservation, appeal to you to attend this meeting and to bring at least two to five of your fellow townsmen with you. The ladies are invited too.

It is true that many individuals are now interested, and quite actively engaged in the conservation of our woods, waters and wildlife. It is the intent of these countywide organizations.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING AT MULBERRY

Program for the Sunday School Meeting at Mulberry, Sunday, April 6th.

2:00 P.M.—Song service.
2:10—Devotional, T. L. Lecroy.
2:20—Quartet, singing.
2:30—Extension, Lucene Lecroy.
2:45—Vacation Bible School, Paul Oden.

3:00—Reports from Sunday Schools.
3:10—Address, Rev. G. H. Carroll.
All pastors, teachers, officers and other interested in Sunday School work in the Clanton Association are urged to attend this meeting if possible.—H. R. Oden, Association Superintendent.

Fishes would look up to see where the line came from, see him and sell out. After due consideration of the matter we just about decided it was that face that scared them.

The other night at the Lion Club meeting Fred Brocklew made the statement that he could see more in an alley in three minutes than John Page could in a tank in three days. Let's look in this—we don't get it.

We're mighty glad to hear that our friend and kinsman, Dr. Harvey Nix is getting better. It is understood that he was a mighty sick man but is well on the road to recovery . . . we wish for him and his best.

Checking the picture show advertising for the coming week we ran across "Road To Burma" with Dorothy Lamour. John VanDerwerker says "There's nothing sardonic about Dorothy."

OUR RESPONSIBILITY

In these days of severe distress abroad, we are apt to ignore the plight of those in our own state whose needs are as serious but perhaps not as spectacular, as the needs of those in foreign lands. We speak of the thousands of children in Alabama whose misfortune it is to be crippled physically.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING BAPTIST UNITY ASSOCIATION

The Executive Board of the Baptist Unity Association will be holding a meeting at the Clanton Baptist church Friday afternoon, April 4th, at 1:30 o'clock. This is a very important meeting and much business will come before the meeting. All who can are urged to be present.

The Baptist Quarterly meeting of the Unity Association will meet at Jones Baptist church on Tuesday, April 8th, at 10:00 o'clock.

"Road Builders For Graves"

(ATTICUS MULLIN, in Montgomery Advertiser)

The following paragraphs are taken from Atticus Mullin's report to The Montgomery Advertiser of the Alabama Road Builders Convention at Mobile last week:

The Alabama road builders are not politicians but every four years their annual meetup is a barometer, which has in the past pointed the winner of the gubernatorial campaign just one year off. Four years ago Frank M. Dixon was the choice of the road builders for governor. They not only backed him (not as an organization of course) but in Mobile today the story goes privately in the hotel rooms that they spent a lot of money on the Birmingham war eagle. Col. Alex Hancock was one of the chief boosters in Alabama for Dixon four years ago.

Placing his hand upon the shoulder of Col. Graves in the Spanish room of the Cavellon Hotel Thursday morning, Col. Hancock the president of the Alabama Road Builders, said, "I have my hand upon the shoulder of a man who has twice been governor of Alabama and who is nearing the goal again." The Road Builders present came near wrecking the gorgeous Spanish room with applause.

"Col Hancock has said so much," said Col. Graves. "There is nothing I can add. I am something of a builder, too, and my motto as a builder is to keep

OPERAETTA AT THORSBY

Admission 10 cents for all.

ALL DAY SINGING AT THORSBY SUNDAY

There will be an all-day singing at the Thorsby Baptist church next Sunday, April 6th. All singers and lovers of music have a special invitation to attend.

Bring a well-filled basket and enjoy the day with us.

We are going to have several good quartets from Birmingham and Montgomery and other places.

New books will be used.

Dr. and Mrs. Crowell have returned from a trip to New York, from all reports they had a grand trip.

Berry Growers Urged To Purchase Crates Now

Spray or dust berry plants now for Leaf Spot. The recent rains has caused this disease to spread considerably and unless plants are dusted or sprayed with Bordeaux mixture will do great damage, also buy your crates as a considerable portion of them now and save three-fourth of a cent on each crate we need space to lay in more crates and are giving this discount to those who will buy and pay for what crates they can now.—Clanton Berry Growers Association, R. M. Reper, President.

Mass Meeting At City Hall On Swimming Pool

Committee Reports Project Within $700 Of Realization

On Tuesday night, April 8th, at 7:30 there will be a mass meeting at the City Hall in furtherance of the work now being done to raise money for a swimming pool and recreation center for Clanton. The committee named to raise the amount needed, are $700 short of their goal and ways and means are to be discussed to raise this amount. Ticket books have been printed and are for sale, good for admittance to the pool when it opens. These ticket books will go on sale immediately and all those who are interested in helping in this undertaking are urged to be at the City Hall for this meeting. A valuable ring, worth $50 will go to the one selling the most ticket books during the campaign to finish off this amount.

The Committee named is to be commended for their work on this worthwhile project. They have worked untiringly to raise the $3,000.00 necessary to meet the P. V. S. appropriation. All boys and girls who can should meet at the City Hall on this date and take part in this work. It is something that Clanton needs. It is something that these same boys and girls will be proud of that they had a part in building.

MORE DRAFTS TO LEAVE ON APRIL 10TH

Mrs. Charles Wade spent Tuesday in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Nuss had as their week end guest, Miss Dorothy Will Foust of Cullman. They were joined Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Foust also of Cullman.

City Must Absorb $13,000.00 Loss In Sewerage Work

Council Acts To Stop All Work Not Fully Covered By Assessments

Recently the J. W. Goodwin Engineering Co., who has been doing the engineering for the City for the past several years, submitted the sewage assessment roll in accordance with the ordinance which provided that the cost of the sewage was to be assessed against the property adjacent to and/or benefited.

The recent sewer project cost close to $23,000.00. When the cost was applied to the property benefited at a cost of 53 1/2 cents per lineal foot, and word passed out that the cost amounted to 53 1/2 cents per lineal foot, reports began to come in to the effect that the former Mayor Jones has told many of the property owners that the cost of all of the outfall sewage line would be paid for out of the General Fund, and the assessment against the benefited property would be only 20 cents per lineal foot.

Mayor Stapp called the former Mayor Jones in conference, and Mr. Stapp said that Mr. Jones admitted the report that he had told property owners the cost would not exceed 20 cents per lineal foot.

Following this conference the J. W. Goodwin Engineering Company was asked to make a new assessment roll at 20 cents per foot, to be submitted to the Council. According to Mr. Goodwin's new assessment roll based on 20 cents per lineal foot, the City of Clanton will receive from the property owners $7,870.25. This is approximately $15,000.00 short of the total cost of the project. $13,000.00 worth of General Obligation Bonds were sold and the money used in the sewerage project, and approximately $10,000.00 from the General Fund has been used. In other words the $7,870.25 will not be sufficient amount to replace what has been paid out and/or obligated against the General Fund, leaving nothing to be applied to the $13,000.00 bonded indebtedness.

At a called meeting of the council March 21, attended by Mr. J. W. Goodwin and the City Attorney, in view of the fact that the last administration had told property owners that the sewage assessment would be only 20 cents per lineal foot, the council approved the new assessment roll of 20 cents per lineal foot. The assessments are now due and property owners at the City Hall at their earliest convenience are respectfully requested to call and settle their sewage assessments.

In view of the heavy loss sustained in the sewage assessments, and in view of the fact that bonds and interest falling due this year amount to more than $10,000.00, the council voted to cease all operations that would necessitate the payment of any funds from the City Treasury. The Council regrets very much to have to take this action, but feels that it is the best interest of everybody, to take care of the already existing obligations before making any new obligations. The only work that the council feels that it can do, at least for awhile, is that work where full assessment can be made against the property to cover the cost of the same.

FREE MAGIC SHOW AT HIGH SCHOOL

There will be a show of magic at the High School Gym on Monday night April 7th. The show is sponsored by the Clanton County Exchange and is invited to the show that Everyone is invited. The show will start at 7:30 promptly.

The anti-Gravities cuss and criticize, but keep everything that Bibb the Builder did during his two previous administrations.

If conditions were as bad as these yappers would have you believe during Graves' first administration, why didn't the Miller Legislature repeal or correct them? If conditions were as bad during Graves' second administration as the Dixonsites would have you believe, why didn't the Dixon Legislature repeal all the "bad" (?) laws that the Graves Legislatures enacted during his two previous administrations?

A Much Needed Highway

At last, it seems, there is to be a modern, paved highway between Montgomery and Tuscaloosa, two of the most important places in the state both as cities and as centers of activities of statewide interest. There is probably no greater need for a good highway anywhere else in Alabama today than for a direct paved route from Tuscaloosa to Montgomery.

Actually, Montgomery and Tuscaloosa are not very far apart—less than a hundred miles, but automobile travel between them one must either go a good deal out of the way to strike good roads, or else traverse a highway that, while more direct, is not well improved.

The state has now received $152,000 from the federal government for construction of a direct highway between Montgomery and Tuscaloosa, and an additional $550,000 for this purpose is expected to come from federal funds. The total of $702,000 is from special federal highway funds made available by the Hobbs act, providing that the federal government pay half the cost of all bridges on the federal highway system, when states reimburse the toll charge. Alabama's freeing of its toll bridges thus brings to the state a large amount of federal money for highway purposes.

The money obtained in this way for the Montgomery-Tuscaloosa highway will be matched, furthermore by regular federal-aid road funds. Thus about $1,400,000 of the highway's estimated total cost of $1,800,000 will come from the government. Chris Sherlock, director of the State Highway Department says the rest of the money needed will be obtained through agreements with the contributions from counties through which the road will pass.

The projected highway will be 99 miles long. At the present only about 15 miles of this route are paved. Thus, the Montgomery and Tuscaloosa will be brought closer together.

As the state capital and the center of the state's activities of state-wide importance, Montgomery should be easily accessible to the people of Tuscaloosa and the people of West Alabama. As the University of Alabama, the state hospitals and of other affairs of interest to Alabamians, Montgomery should be as accessible to the people of Montgomery and Central Alabama—Birmingham News.

DO ADS PAY? AND HOW!

In The Sentinel Tuesday we had a small local ad for Temp's Service Station which should have read: "Wanted—Game Roosters, 5 1-2 pounds up, we want them. Like we wanted Temp's Service Station." Our printers missed Temp's handwriting and it appeared: "Wanted—Young Roosters, 5 1-2 pounds up." Before noon Wednesday Temp had nearly 100 roosters offered him, some young, some old, but all game. Like he wanted Temp's Service Station. Temp threatened to make the printers buy these roosters and eat them for getting him this unsolicited business which he could not handle.—Scottsboro Progressive Age.

Our Dad's Birthday

Saturday, March 22 was our Dad's birthday. Only a few short years ago we were so proud to have the opportunity of observing his day; maybe with a nice dinner, with gifts of love and appreciation to the best Dad ever. Today, Dad, we can't do those simple loving things for you, neither can we plan our arms around you and tell you of our great love for you as we have done so many times when we were children in the good old days that are now past and gone. Yet we go on as we promised so faithfully that you are every precious memory.

Today, Dad, we feel that very nearness of you; an imagination we can see your smiling face; we can see you as you were at us as you pass our own little home, going home to mother and the loved ones.

In the old home we can see everything that you loved, mother, sister, our own little boy; your pretty flowers your little feathered friends. Your spirit hovers so near to us. Our longings are unspoken and many times the way gets dark. Our life gets so tangled with problems that are hard to solve and we find ourselves going back in memories to you and even though you are away from us we still have those legacies of love, understanding and kindness.

May the memory of your every birthday, Dad, guide us in all our daily problems so that we will never, never fail.—Lovindes Signal.

Poster being displayed by the local State employment office in connection with a Nation-wide effort to register workers for defense jobs. Those being asked to register are the unemployed and those employed workers who have skills needed in certain defense industries but are not using such skills in their present jobs. This does not include anyone now working in aircraft manufacturing, shipbuilding, machinery manufacturing, or machine shops.

This Week In National Defense

The National Defense Advisory Commission charged the Office of Production Management Plant Site Committee with "the main responsibility" in selecting locations for new defense production facilities. The Committee will attempt to choose uncongested areas and regions suffering a decline in peacetime industries to distribute defense contracts more widely, and increase subcontracting to utilize all human and natural resources. It will also review plans already formulated.

The Maritime Commission announced it favored extension of existing shipbuilding facilities rather than building new plants in order to avoid fly-by-night financing and further "dilution" or scattering of experienced management and labor.

Defense Housing
Congress authorized a defense housing insurance fund of $100,000,000 with which to underwrite $100,000,000 in mortgages on defense homes. Construction contracts for 2,400 new defense housing units, largest number in any one week, brought the total to 43,357—of which 25,377 are for civilian workers, 17,980 for enlisted personnel.

Defense Spending and Financing
The OPM announced scheduled defense expenditures total nearly $40 billion, including $7 billion for British aid. Nearly $30 billion represents appropriations and authorization already made and the rest is in bills now before Congress. Actual cash spending from last June to March 17 amounted to $3.5 billion.

The Treasury announced income tax returns of $1,139,000,000 in the first 20 days of March, far exceeding estimates. U. S. Savings bonds and stamps to help finance defense will go on sale May 1, the Treasury said. Stamps can be bought for as little as 10 cents and bonds as little as $25.

Appropriations
President Roosevelt signed legislation authorizing additional Navy expenditures of $340,526,383, including $65,000,000 to complete air bases in British possessions. Congress voted $75,000,000 more for defense housing and $22,500,000 for National Youth Administration to train 450,000 youths for defense industries.

The House passed and sent to the Senate the fifth supplemental defense appropriation bill providing $407,810,074 for the Army and Navy in fiscal 1942, including $1,000,000,000 for 3,600 bombers.

The OPM Labor Division announced the settlement of eight strikes, meanwhile Secretary of Labor Perkins asked Defense Mediation Board Action on four strikes: International Harvester Company, four plants involving 24,000 workers; The Condenser Corporation, South Plainfield, N. J., 2,200 workers; Vanadium Cor., Bridgeville, Pa., 225 workers; and the Universal Cylinders Steel Company, Bridgeville, 1,400 workers. The Board asked the disputants to resume production and prepare to negotiate with the Board. Shortly afterwards, the Cyclops Company strike was settled.

Secretary of War Stimson stated, "Steps must be taken" to reduce delays on defense orders caused by strikes. Under Secretary of War Patterson said several strikes were very serious, affecting the Army re-armament program. Interior Secretary Ickes said the Allis-Chalmers tie-up was holding back equipment to supply power to defense plants.

Labor Supply
A Social Security Board survey shows many skills in selected defense industries—351,000 available workers, with priorities—more than half in New York, California, Ohio, Illinois, Mich., Penn.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. D. HASKEW, D. D.

From George Washington Carver at the Tuskegee Institute I learned that each flower has a distinct odor and that each flower has a certain time of the day or night, when it gives out its perfume to its fullest capacity. Some give out their odor at sunrise and some at sunset, while some smell their sweetest at noon and others at midnight. How like human personalities this old scientist thought flowers to be. Each individual carries a distinct radiance and at some time in life we give out the fullness of our influence and power. This comes to some of us in the sunrise of life, it comes to others at the sunset while others at their best in the noon hour and others in the time of sorrow. The command of the Christ is to let our lights shine.

When I was a young pastor I served a church where there was a well-to-do man and yet he was as stingy as he could be. If he gave to the church at all, he gave small amounts and then that was given grudgingly. Thirty years later I visited this church again and sat during the morning service by the side of this man. I was not spying in but I saw that he dropped a penny into the collection plate. This brother was well dressed, had a beautiful home and was well fixed, but for some reason he had not given beyond the penny state. Some folks start little, stay little and die little and that in spite of the church and the gospel. The Bible command is that we "Grow".

I knew a lady who carried some nice material to a dressmaker. She returned later for the completed article but found that the cloth had been poorer and then ruined in the making. After viewing the dress, the lady reprimanded the one making it saying, "You have ruined my cloth and made a dress that is useless." The dressmaker burst into tears making reply, "I did the best I could." Quickly came the reply, "My good woman, I am not blaming you for doing the best you could, but I am blaming you for not knowing enough." I had a carter to do a job on a door and after two hours of fumbling and grumbling he finally came to me saying, "I have done my best." I went to examine the work and, nothing left and the lock would not work, that my had been a carpenter for 30 years. Many a person comes along, self that he has done his best, when in reality he has miserably failed in making his best better. Every day a man's best should be better than it was the day before. Nothing poorer can be said of any man than this "He meant well." Good intentions will not answer for good service. A dressmaker is to be blamed if she does not know how to make the dress. A carpenter is to be blamed if he does not know how to do his work. Why be dumb when we certainly can learn.

The records have it that a Hindu knows about all there is to be known on the Science of Sanitation. His knowledge of how to keep his home sanitary and clean will put an American to shame. The trouble with the Hindu is that he takes all this knowledge to his filthy abode and fails to use it to his own cleanliness. He is master of the thing but he has let it all go from them. We say, "Shame on the Hindu," but hold on a minute. Listen to me, over here in America we all know the laws of God and how we should live, but we are more stupid than the Hindu when it comes to keeping the laws of God.

General Pickett of Confederate fame was handed a lunch one day as he rode by a home on the way to battle. He held this lunch in his hand as he rode on his way. By the roadside he saw a young man who had fallen out of the ranks and showed signs of starvation. The good man handed the lad his lunch saying, "eat this and if it makes you strong enough to go on back home to your mother." The boy looked up with a broad smile saying, "Mr. Marse God says if I get strength after eating this I will follow you to the last." A few days later this boy's body was found at Sailor's creek. He had followed until a bullet stopped him. In the strength of the living Bread follow Christ. That is loyalty.

$7,000,000 Highway Expenditures Cited

MOBILE, ALA.—Plans of the Alabama Highway Department to advertise for bids as rapidly as possible on same 60-odd projects involving the expenditure of more than seven million dollars in the completion of the 1941 construction program was revealed by State Highway Director Chris Sherlock in an address delivered at the annual convention of the Alabama Road Builders' Association in session here last week. He said the projects will include secondary roads, and grade crossing elimination as well as work on the regular Federal Aid System.

Declaring that "Alabama will match all regular Federal Aid funds that have been allotted to this State by the U. S. Congress and intend, using those funds to the last penny within the time limit required," the speaker announced that the cost of road construction work in Alabama for the past year has totaled $9,935,000 of which over $6,900,000 was paid to contractors. Approximately 70 per cent of the construction activities, therefore, have been carried out by the contract method. In the previous year, it was cited, in excess of $11,000,000 was expended for road construction, over $7,000,000 of which was paid to contractors. Attention was called to the fact that even with a slightly reduced program, contract activities have maintained the same relative ratio.

In this connection the Highway Director quoted figures to show that during the past year, contracts were awarded for the following principal items of construction: Excavation, 6,000,000 cu. yards. Bituminous surface treatment, 7,000,000 sq. yds. Bituminous seal 11,000,000 Sq. yds. Pipe 166,000 lin. ft. Concrete, 49,000 cu. yds. Steel, 13,700,000 lbs. Steel piling, 122,000 lin. ft. These figures, it was indicated, are expected to be at least equaled in 1941. The prospective construction will add still further, it was cited, to the more than 4,800 miles of dust and mud free roads on Alabama's 6,500 mile highway system.

With reference to the system of so-called military roads designated in recent months as a part of the National Defense program, Mr. Sherlock, stating that the military or strategic system of roads comprises some 1,200 miles in Alabama, which are to be improved and brought to a standard that will meet military requirements said that the improvements contemplated to these Alabama roads will call an estimated outlay of approximately $47,000,000.

Regarding roads of military importance, Mr. Sherlock made the following observation: "With the State Highway revenues obligated for the next two years, it can be readily noted that Alabama, like most other States does not have adequate funds to construct roads of military importance at this time, due to the obligations made with our own people. It is not a lack of patriotism, nor lack of cooperative spirit, but is solely the lack of local revenue to develop such a system of roads as is being outlined by the Federal Defense authorities. Therefore it is my belief that roads of military importance should be constructed through Federal funds, especially when they must be constructed on standards that may be considered as over-building of highways for local use.

"These roads, termed as military or defense roads, are tremendously important and should be constructed without delay, and I, as Highway Director of Alabama pledge the service of the Department to that end as far as is economically and humanly possible in the discharge of its patriotic duty to our nation."

In conclusion the Highway Director said: "The Alabama Highway Department and the Alabama Road Builders' Association can render as vitally important service to the nation in the development of Defense Highways, and I am sure that we will put our shoulders to the wheel as our Government calls, and will give freely and willingly of all that we have to give to make the working tools, and provide the material and methods of financing such a program. In this day of national emergency we must extend the patriotic enthusiasm within us to continue the development of a facility that, in my opinion, is vital to our own defense, and must depend on our National Congress to make possible the reconstruction and replacement of inadequate highways throughout the nation so as to give assurance that our national defense will be equal to any military emergency—for to be prepared in peace is to be prepared for defense."

There is only one time for any individual to take a forward stride; immediately.

There is no use to worry about the powers of the President to begin a war. Every president of the United States has had ample power to begin warfare.

Money talks except when it is making an exorbitant profit.

POPLAR SPRINGS

Last Sunday Bro. Hughes was with us and delivered a wonderful sermon. We are glad to have Bro. Hughes with us and invite him back again. If we could just realize what God has in store for us and the blessings that go with it, we would thank Him more. If we could just know what our Lord suffered for us when he was put to death on the Cross because He loved the lost world. Then let us ask ourselves the question: Am I ready to meet Him when he comes back to earth? Let me beg you to make ready for His coming. I wish I could say one word that would cause one soul to be saved. The only way is to just give yourself to the Lord; He's always ready, willing and waiting to hear you.

We invite you and everybody to come and be with us in our Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. and don't forget our Easter Singing. Bring a full basket.—Rev. W. F. Gilliland.

Long Job Hunt Ends,

Success Proves Fatal

SELLERSVILLE, PA.—Harry E. Moyer, 36, was a WPA laborer for four years, but when he found he had to be better off, he tried to find a better job.

Finally he was interviewed by a company here and told to report for work the next day.

Moyer was unable to rise from his chair. A physician said the shock had killed him.

Woman Has Ships' 'Ghosts' as Hobby

North Carolina Home Filled With Relics of Sea.

NAG HEAD, N. C.—Mrs. Rida Hollowell, a smiling little woman with white hair, lives with a hundred ghosts, but all of them are friendly. To look at Mrs. Hollowell, one would think that water colors or china painting might be her hobby, but as a matter of fact, she is more interested in shipwrecks than anything else. And it is the "ghosts" of these sunken ships she collects.

For years she has lived on this wreck-strewn coast, the "graveyard of the Atlantic," and has combed a hundred miles of beach for relics from broken ships. Her collection is unsurpassed.

The Hollowell cottage, known as "The Wreckage," contains at least one relic of every major shipwreck that has occurred from Norfolk, Va., to Ocracoke since the battleship Hun broke up on the Diamond Shoals in 1877.

In addition, there are hundreds of items from wrecks all over the Atlantic which eventually are washed ashore in this section of the Carolina outer banks.

The outside of the cottage is covered with the nameplates taken from wrecked ships. All the steps to the porch were used at sea. There is even a rope ladder running to the second floor. "Just in case the boys want to slip away for a late date," Mrs. Hollowell explains.

The walls of the cottage are covered with flags, maps and guns. Every corner has its quota of souvenirs, including ships' medicine chests, and visiting doctors spend hours pouring over their contents. Logbooks and ship's papers delight historians.

Buck Deer Kills Another, Then Pays With Own Life

WATERTON, COLO.—Death came to the victor as well as the vanquished in a fight between two big buck deer in a dense forest above the Platte river canyon.

From a battleground high in the mountains, the winner had dragged the dead loser, their antlers locked in the death grip, down to level ground along the Platte in his attempt to rid himself of the carcass. It was there that Brakeman R. H. Esche and other members of a freight train crew came upon the scene.

The buck was moving slowly along the bank with his head lowered. Every few yards he would stop and shake his head in an effort to free himself.

The crew stopped the train and started toward the buck to separate the tangled antlers. But when the buck saw the crew approaching, he plunged over the bank into the river. The weight of the dead deer pulled him under water in a deep hole.

'Enough's Enough,' Wife

Declares After 60 Years

MONTREAL.—There's a limit to everything, Mrs. Pierre Riendeau, 70 years old, told a court when she asked a legal separation from her 86-year-old husband.

The judge asked how long the couple had been married.

"Sixty years," she answered. "Sixty years, are you seeking a separation after all that time?" the court asked.

"Enough's enough," she said.

The court agreed to hear the suit.

Struggles 7 Years To Clear Her Son

Mother Refused to Believe Him Guilty of Robbery.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—A tale of the love of a mother who refused to believe her son guilty of bank robbery came to light here when Glenn Davis, 30, Herschel McCarn, 34, and Bill Hathaway, 35, were freed from Alabama prisons after serving seven years for a crime they never committed.

The mother is Mrs. Lulu M. Davis. For seven years she worked to prove the innocence of her son, convicted of robbing the bank of Berry, Ala., of $5,237, in 1933.

After numerous trips to Montgomery to appear before the pardon and parole board Mrs. Davis last April brought before the board a "sneaky, nervous individual" who, although declining to sign a confession, readily admitted that he and two others had committed the robbery and not the three men serving time in prison.

The board checked the man's story and sent an investigator to the federal prison in Atlanta where one of the men named was serving a term. This man also admitted that he participated in the robbery. It was discovered that the third man had been killed in an attempted bank robbery.

The board, entirely satisfied, instituted steps to free the men and said "that the crime was committed by three men, who by strange coincidence, were very similar in appearance to the men convicted."

At the trial the men were identified by witnesses as the robbers and after Davis and McCarn were convicted and sentenced to 25 years, Hathaway on the advice of his counsel pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 10 years.

None of the men appears to harbor any malice toward the society which chopped seven years from their lives.

Dislikes Wife's Jokes, He Tries to Choke Her

NEW YORK.—Stanley Koprowski, 55, thought his wife's jokes were terrible.

"So," she testified in magistrate's court, "he tried to choke me."

It happened after they had gone to bed in their home, the 50-year-old Mrs. Koprowski told Magistrate Charles E. Ramsgate.

The magistrate ventured the opinion that jokes had their place in a troubled world, but Koprowski interrupted.

"I don't like her jokes," he said. "Aren't your wife's jokes any good?" the magistrate asked.

It was Mrs. Koprowski's turn to interrupt.

"Sure, they're good," she said. "Only he doesn't know how to take them."

The magistrate dismissed Mrs. Koprowski's disorderly conduct charge against her husband but made him promise to behave. Then, to help Koprowski keep his promise, the magistrate ordered Mrs. Koprowski to stop telling jokes in bed.

Defends Self in Murder, Sleeps as Jury Frees Him

CLEARWATER, FLA.—The judge rejected Jacob Stephens' offer to plead guilty to manslaughter. Then Stephen declined to have an attorney defend him and acted as his own counsel.

He carefully drew from state witnesses the admission that the murder victim was carrying a gun.

While the jury deliberated, Stephens slept peacefully in a chair. No emotion did he show when he heard the verdict of acquittal.

"The next time another Negro runs at you—you run. Do you hear?" said the judge.

"Yassuh," replied Jacob, meekly, as he shuffled back from the bar of justice.

The Grammar School P. T. A. was called to order by the President, Mrs. Mark L. Tucker on Tuesday at 2:40 for its final meeting for this year, with 50 members present.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Curry Thomas and consisted of group singing by children in the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth grades. The devotion was given by Roy Wood, a sixth grade pupil. Tommie Sue Littlejohn gave several piano solos. Poems about "Spring" were composed and read by boys and girls of the Fourth grade.

The "Pipes of Pan" was played by Joe Mullins, Jr. he also told something of the story of "Pan". The group singers were made. Mr. Abrams presented.

Following the program a business session was held to finish old and new business for the year. Various reports were made. Mr. Abrams presented the fact that we must, as members of the P. T. A. help the City of Clanton to provide some means supporting our school for a nine months school.

STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—"Because of Alabama's unusually large Negro population, constituting more than one-third of the total, the problem of Negro health is one of particular importance to Alabamians," declared Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, today in commenting upon the annual report of this week from March 30 to April 6, as Negro Health Week.

"This State's health picture would be entirely different if the Negro death rates for a number of important diseases could be brought down to the 'true rates.'" In 1939, for instance, had the general Negro death rate (for all causes combined) been the same as the white rate, there would have been 4,617 fewer deaths in this State alone.

This would have meant a saving of an average of more than 12 Alabama lives a day."

REVIEWS and PREVIEWS

By Irvin Lande

Some ten thousand people jammed Birmingham's Municipal Auditorium last Thursday night to hear Mr. H. R. Knickerbocker, the famous war correspondent. It was the second general session of the Alabama Educational Association and of course the teachers were there, as well as some students, to hear the speech of retiring President Hulme, but the majority were there to hear Mr. Knickerbocker's opinion on world affairs, because, as the noted correspondent said later, the most important thing in the lives of all of us today is the war, and there is nothing nearly so important.

Knickerbocker—"Nick" to his friends having just flown into Birmingham—began by announcing that he came to the lecture platform with good news—the Yugoslav people had revolted and were showing every sign of sticking with the British. Following up his good news, however, he asked what caused the Yugoslav people to stand up against the Axis. He answered his question with the remark that the lease-lend bill caused the little nation to stand firm. And because the passage of H. R. 1776 had such great influence with the Croats, and the Slavs, it is only reasonable to assume that if the United States would declare war and would stand formally and openly at the side of Great Britain, then free people everywhere would have the courage and the incentive to resist that opprobrious nomenclature of nations which has the ego to call itself the Triple Axis.

That was the theme of Mr. Knickerbocker's address and throughout the evening he showed why America should declare war on Germany and stand at the side of Great Britain. "If Britain falls today, we fall tomorrow. Britain will never surrender but she may be crushed, if she doesn't get far more support from us. There is only one way to insure American safety and that is to strengthen Britain so that she can never be crushed". Furthermore, Knickerbocker pointed out how much we owe to the Royal Air Force, for it is the British air arm which is keeping Hitler from conquering the British Isles. And if Hitler took Britain, it would be an easy matter for him to conquer the United States, for he would have the bulk of world shipping and our navy would be powerless to stop the Hitler invasion. Once upon our shores, having travelled via his great merchant marine, Hitler could put 10,000 tanks into the field, (Hitler had at least ten thousand tanks in the battle of Flanders and France). To protect us from ten thousand tanks, we have only 500 first class ones. And the Germans could put 30,000 first-line aircraft into the sky—we have only 400, at most 600. Moreover, in soldier strength, Hitler's 7,500,000 soldiers outnumber us by one hundred to one.

For that reason, to that little band of some 20,000 pilots in the Royal Air Force, the purely statistical side of Force, America must pay due respect. The war, Knickerbocker showed how we ought to be immensely happy—that war has thus far been spared from our shores. He gave an account of one of his visits to the morgue after a hospital had been bombed and he left out none of the horror and bloodshed that belongs to war.

Because of all that and because Britain is more than our first line of defense—it is our only line of defense—Mr. Knickerbocker favors an out-and-out statement of American policy, which would be, for it could be nothing else, an outright declaration of war against Nazi Germany.

And now, because Mr. Knickerbocker made those startling statements, there are those who went to hear him who have now turned from accepting his opinions to that of discounting his opinions, because he favors an open declaration of war on Germany.

I know that that is a fact. Many people who recognized Mr. Knickerbocker's experience in being in Spain during the Civil War, in being in Paris when the Nazis took that city, in being in Ethiopia during the war, in being a correspondent to Russia, and from Canada, now have turned from being his ardent followers to being his most distrustful readers—all because he favors a declaration of war. This lecture was the 108th lecture that he had made, and in everyone he has tried to show the real position of the United States, and has been condemned for doing that.

The reasoning of his followers who have so radically changed does not hold through for the United States to have but one course, and that is the course Knickerbocker outlined. We have already gotten so far into this thing that we can't go back, no matter how hard we may try. In fact, America has now become the aggressor nation. Many Americans feel that since we haven't formally declared war we can still back out and Hitler will have no grounds whatsoever for holding us guilty of creating a warlike act. In the first place Hitler does not care what we think, and in the second place, that way of acting is the way of a nation that really hasn't made up its mind.

The Lease-Lend Bill has been passed, two Presidential speeches have declared undeclared war, and the United States has recently done the very taking thing to a warlike act—that of nearest over German and Italian vessels in these waters.

Therefore, the course has been laid. We must follow it, for we have no choice. The path is so unmistakably clear that only the hopelessly foolish and the childishly ignorant can dare to miscomprehend it, but the fact remains that as Knickerbocker said, some Americans will still think that we can exist as we have existed before without making some sacrifices and some expenditures.

However, America has found its path, and regardless of the fear of the majority and the obstreperousness of the minority, we shall be forced to follow it, for better or for worse.

appeal for help and interest of the citizens of their own community. All they ask is an opportunity to live a happy, useful life—to share the same privileges, afforded the physically normal child. As Americans true to our fundamental American principle of equal opportunity, can we consent to only deny realization of this principle to so large a number of our children whose only difference from other children is in their physical condition—a paralyzed arm, leg, or curved spine.

Pity and sympathy for the crippled child, a fair chance of good medical care to make him physically normal as possible, an education like "other kids", recreation and companionship to develop a socially adjusted personality guidance in choosing a suitable vocation, training that that vocation, and finally, a fair chance of earning a living.

These are the things which children need. In the main they are taken for granted by the child whose physical condition is normal, but for the handicapped child, it is a different story. The job of the Alabama Society for Crippled Children and of the affiliated organization in each county, the Chilton County Society for Crippled Children, is to educate the citizens of our state to understand the rights and needs of the physically handicapped child and to see that they are provided.

The physically handicapped child has an equal chance to develop mentally and physically and thus become a productive unit in the community. This work carried on by the Society, composed of leading representative lay and professional persons, is financed by the annual sale of peony seeds at Easter time. The campaign is part of the nation-wide sale now in progress in thirty other states by affiliated societies of the National Society for Crippled Children.

The purchase of Easter Seeds and the training of the Society for Crippled Children by each of our citizens can afford to do so will go a long way toward providing greater opportunity for the crippled children in our own state. As children, they deserve an opportunity to become happy, helpful Americans. As citizens, we cannot afford to ignore their needs.

Dr. Gragg Brings In Copy Of Panama Newspaper

Dr. V. J. Gragg, who recently visited the Panama Canal Zone (with the Mrs.) with the Southern Medical Assembly, brought by the News this week a copy of the Star Herald, Panama, very different from ours, being printed in Spanish.

P. dated March 14. The paper is in two languages, one on one side and one on the other, meeting in the middle. Also interesting was to note an article about our doc's (and others) being there. The clipping follows which is self-explanatory:

COLON, March 13—A group of noted Southern doctors, the Southern Medical Assembly headed by Dr. Neal Owens will be officially welcomed on their arrival Saturday on the United States liner, Santa Marta and will be conducted on a tour of Panama hospital during their brief stay.

Colon's Deputy to the National Assembly and former Governor Humberto Legnadier, will meet Dr. Owens and his colleagues of the profession on their arrival and conduct them to the various hospitals and other points of interest both in Panama and Colon.

The tour includes Amador Hospital in Colon Santa Tomas Hospital in Panama, and both Canal Zone Hospitals, Gorgas and Canal Hospital.

Deputy Legnadier, who is a Rotarian also will welcome Dr. Owens as a Rotarian as they were friends and members of the same Rotary Club in New Orleans when Deputy Legnadier was serving as Consul General in that city.

CHILD DIES OF DIPHTHERIA

To have a child die from Diphtheria in this day is a pitiful thing, and yet that is just what happened in Chilton county Sunday. Saturday morning I was called to see a very sick child with a local physician. The child had been sick several days and when first seen by the doctor on Saturday was very toxic and choking. We both agreed that the child had laryngeal diphtheria—the most serious form of this

IN MEMORY

Sometimes God sees fit to take a blooming flower instead of a bud. On March 14, He saw fit to call one of our most complete blooms from our world and community, daddy, (Ben Gibson).

If God ever presented an affectionate, sincere father to a home, it was ours. His kind face lighted the early breakfast table, as well as the hearth side with the rest of our home. With encouraging words he entered into all sad moments.

When daddy was here, The way seemed clear. Our life was without so much care. Our burdens seemed easy to bear. But God is always in the right, He sees our needs both day and night; And a great consolation in time of need, Is that daddy was ready, ready indeed.

And in that home so bright and fair With outstretched arms he'll welcome us there. —Merle (daughter).

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our sincere appreciations for the kindness shown our family during the sickness and death of our father and husband. Especially do we thank our dear friends for their liberal contributions. May God richly bless you and his blessings be bestowed on each and everyone—Mrs. Ben Gibson and daughters.

Wildlife conservation organizations are purely consociate membership organizations. They are independent groups, affiliated with like groups from the other 66 counties in the Alabama Wildlife Federation in a mutual bond of interest—the betterment of wildlife, forestry and natural resources of Alabama and its counties. They distribute all fish and game allotted your county by the Division of Game, Fish and Seafoods. They perform other conservation activities which make for better forests and streams—and the wildlife that inhabits them.

Hunter Misreads Sign

That Grants His Wish

HASTINGS, MICH. — Michigan conservation officers found a hunter who, without need to go might be watching, was tearing a sign from a post.

The officers, seeing that the sign was one they had set up before the season opened, asked the hunter if he realized what he was doing.

"Sure," he replied, "I'm tearing down these signs saying that you can't hunt on land bought by the conservation department."

"Did you read the sign?" one of the officers asked.

"Sure," was the reply, "I . . . The sign read, 'Hunting Permitted.'"

Watchman's Clock Used To Kill Attacking Coyote

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO. — M. B. Bright today displayed a mounted coyote as evidence of his prowess with a watchman's clock. While making the night rounds he came up on five coyotes. Four growled and slunk away in the darkness.

With a snarl the fifth leaped at Bright's throat. The watchman shielded his face with an arm and watched off the inch-long fangs.

Then Bright jumped upon the animal—slugging with the heavy clock. In a minute the battle was over, and Bright possessed a coyote pelt.

Policeman Must Report To Wife on Switchboard

COLUMBUS—Herbert Hodapp is going to make hourly reports to his wife from now on, or Police Chief Otto Kaftits will know why.

It's all in the line of duty. Hodapp has joined the Columbus police force, and as a patrolman must report his whereabouts to police switchboard operators every hour.

One of the operators is Mrs. Constance Hodapp—his wife.

either in the green stage or as mature dry beans. They have a higher protein content than cowpeas and the protein is of better quality. They also have significantly more vitamin A than cowpeas which are widely used as a food throughout the South. The soybeans yield better and are less subject to insect damage.
"It is apparent, therefore, that there would be several advantages in replacing part of the cowpeas now used in several diets with soybeans. This would be particularly true in all diets where there are adequate amounts of meat and milk. Soybeans contain considerable calcium and phosphorus and are a good source of available iron which is deficient in many southern diets."

WALTER KNABE

Boys' State To Be Held at Talladega

TALLADEGA, ALA. — Alabama Boys' State, sponsored by the American Legion, will be held this year from June 5-14 at Talladega, according to Walter Knabe, Legion member and Boys' State Director.

Legion Posts, and all organizations planning to send delegates are urged to file applications promptly as quotas from the 9 Alabama districts into which the State is divided by the Legion are being filled rapidly and May 1 is the dead line for reception of applications, added Knabe.

The Alabama Boys' State which is not a school activity, but a practical experience in the operation of Government, will be attended by the boys from all of Alabama's 67 counties, he said, and they will be selected by District Sponsors on recommendations from the Principals of High Schools which they are now attending.

Director Knabe cited the following as entrance requirements: Any boy, measuring up to the standards, outlined who is twenty years of age or younger, is eligible for Boys' State. He should be mentally alert and physically clean, have a good personality and be able to get along with others. He should be honest, thrifty and possess good sportsmanship. Each must be a bonafide student in an accredited High School, although this school need not be a public school. The cost of the entire ten-day period is $15 to be paid by the sponsoring organization. This includes all the cost of the program, with the exception of a small amount for spending money for the boy himself.

Due to the Army having taken over Lagoon Park in Montgomery the new location for Boys' State will be Talladega, where the facilities of the Deaf and Dumb School have been made available for this outstanding work. Approximately 200 delegates attending Boys' State last year and between 250 and 300 will be expected this year, Knabe said.

Putting Young Folks To Work

Work experience gained through various projects of the National Youth Administration enabled a total of 234 Alabama youth to find private employment during February, when more than 12,000 youths were employed on NYA's out-of-school work program in this state.

Leaving the NYA were 125 young men and 109 young women—dependent industrious young people who were eager to take their places in the thriving, adult world of private business. Many are now engaged in several of the all-important national defense industries.

Forty-eight of these youth are employed in manufacturing industries such as textile, lumber, steel and iron, while 186 are employed in non-manufacturing industries—agriculture, domestic service, finance, insurance and real estate.

These young people were trained for their jobs in NYA work projects where they learned carpentry, welding, sheet metal work, blue print reading, typing, filing, cooking, sewing, weaving and many other skills.

In addition to those who went into private employment, a total of 166 youth left NYA to go into public employment. Forty-four of these voluntarily enlisted in the armed forces of the United States.

ALABAMA IS USING SURPLUS PRODUCTS

AUBURN, ALA.—Surplus foods valued at $132,566 were purchased by 16,874 public assistance clients participating in the Surplus Marketing Administration's food stamp program in Alabama during February.

Pork products continued to take about one-third of the free blue stamps issued by the Government in the state during the month, resulting in the purchase of 174,722 pounds of pork valued at $28,100 and 208,261 pounds of lard worth $16,691.

All cereals on the surplus list accounted for $37,091 of the blue stamps, vegetables and potatoes, $14,394 and fruits, $13,388.

About 71 per cent of the blue stamps issued in the state went for 27,705 pounds of butter valued at $9,359 and 9,95 per cent for 38,462 dozen eggs costing $12,643.

White and Graham flour accounted for 18.8 per cent of the stamps, with 62,450 pounds of the former valued at $24,775 and $187 worth of the latter purchased.

Daring Young Scot Slaps Out Flames In Blazing Bomber

'Bravest Deed' of War Wins Britain's Rarest Medal, Victoria Cross.

LONDON.—A Scottish youth of high school age, not long since a shoe clerk, lying in bed in a British hospital, wrote to his mother to tell her about an experience he had had in a bombing raid over German territory.

"A pilot," he related, "has had the distinguished flying cross, so I expect I shall get something, too, but I'm glad that I am alive, without worrying about what I am getting."

His deed, however, is held by observers to have been the most amazing in the war to date, and the young man has visited Buckingham palace to receive from his king the highest decoration which the British empire can bestow upon its valorous warriors—the Victoria Cross.

A year ago Sergt. John Hannah, 18 years old, wireless operator in the royal air force, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hannah of Glasgow, was selling boots and shoes in the great industrial city on the Clyde.

Today he is the youngest V. C. of the war and the first Scot to receive the honor.

Incredible Coolness.
His decoration followed an act of almost incredible coolness and courage performed during a bombing raid on enemy large concentrations at Antwerp on September 15.

Almost blinded when an incendiary shell burst inside his plane, and with ammunition exploding all around him, Sergeant Hannah, single handed, fought the blaze which threatened to destroy the aircraft in which he was wireless operator-gunner.

After a furious 10 minutes in a blazing aerial inferno, he succeeded in extinguishing the flames, and thus enabled the plane to be brought safely home.

The official description of Sergeant Hannah's heroism tells how the fire in the plane, fanned by air rushing through the holes caused by the shell, made the bomb compartment an inferno.

All the aluminum sheet metal on the floor of Hannah's cockpit was melted away, leaving only the crossbeams between the main and the rear gunners' positions. The presence of earth thousands of feet below.

Forcing his way through the fire, Hannah obtained two extinguishers and fought the blaze with them. When they were empty he continued to beat the flames with his log book until the fire was out.

Although badly burned about the face and eyes, he then crawled along the plane, found that the navigator and rear gunner had been forced to "bale out," and immediately took over the navigator's important maps and log, which he handed to his pilot.

Inconceivable Courage.
In a tribute to Sergeant Hannah, the air officer commanding the Hampden bomber group where he is stationed said: "It is almost inconceivable that any one could have had the courage or the presence of mind to tackle such a fire."

"There is no doubt that Sergeant Hannah must have realized that, by delaying his escape, he had deprived himself of his last chance of getting away from the aircraft."

"His action is certainly one of the clearest examples of the most conspicuous bravery and extreme devotion to duty under the most harassing conditions that I have come across."

The pilot of the aircraft which Sergeant Hannah saved, Pilot Officer Clare Arthur Hovenden Connor of Toronto, Canada, has been awarded the D. F. C.

Times Are Too Rapid For Robber on Bicycle
ST. LOUIS.—A hint to holdup men don't attempt a getaway on a bicycle in this straitened age.

Cecil C. Hood tried, according to police, and came to grief in short order. They say he admitted entering Amos Johnson's grocery and taking $21 in gumdrops, then mounting a bike he had stolen previously and wheeled away.

His broadcast description was heard by three detectives in a scout car who saw him pedaling furiously along the street.

Tip Put Into Fare Box For Kindly Bus Driver
DALLAS.—Augustus T. Poovey, city bus operator, had explained as much about Dallas as he could to an elderly out-of-town couple riding his bus.

Upon departing, the man said, "I certainly thank you for showing us around—here's a tip," and dropped a handful of small coin into the fare box. The fare box is empty by the company. Drivers never share its content.

Miner Works 78 Years; Then Decides to Retire
LANSFORD, PA.—William Gibson, 85 years old, who went to work in the mines when he was seven and has worked in the anthracite fields ever since, has decided to retire.

He is the oldest employee of the old mining company in the anthracite fields of Pennsylvania.

FARMERS ADVISED TO SAVE MORE LESPEDEZA SEED

AUBURN, ALA.—J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, is advocating that Alabama farmers produce and harvest at least 5,000,000 pounds of lespedeza seed this year.

"If farmers plant as much lespedeza this year as they did in 1940, it will require around 5,000,000 pounds of seed which at a reasonable rate, would amount to a sizeable sum of money being left in farmers' pockets provided they produce their own seed," he says.

The supply of lespedeza seed is somewhat short in view of large anticipated acreage to be planted by farmers this spring, even though approximately 1,000,000 pounds of seed were saved in the State last fall.

Alabama's acreage of lespedeza is well distributed between raising soil improvement, hay, and seed production, asserts Lowery in pointing out that this crop for summer grazing purposes has no equal. "It gives good yields of high quality hay and, as a seed crop, it fills the place long looked for the soil improvement plant that can be depended upon to produce seed in this State," he adds.

Alabama has fewer farms but more people than ten years ago. The census figures show 21,000 farms in 1930 compared with 27,000 in 1930, a decrease of 42,000 farms. During the same period the population increased from 1,386,000 to 1,420,000 people.

Alabama 4-H boys and girls are exhibiting calves at 16 calf shows this spring at Opelika, Phenix City, Headland, Ozark, Geneva, Brewton, Clayton, Andalusia, Luverne, Troy, Selma, Marion and Camden. The district shows are to be held in Montgomery, Columbus and Dothan.

As profits begin to pile up, businessmen begin to warm up to the defense program.

If you are interested in the development of Clanton, you will give some of your time for the common good; the town needs personal service more than it needs a cash-contribution.

The Secondary Plant Foods Are Important!

Calcium, Sulphur and Magnesium are essential plant foods; each one plays a definite, specific part in plant growth. All three are required by crops in large amounts; all three are deficient in most soils in the Southeast.

Look for the definite guarantee as to quantities of the vital plant foods on the Royster bag:

FARM WOMEN HAVE PART IN NEW COTTON PROGRAM

AUBURN, ALA. — Housewives on Alabama farms taking part in the supplementary cotton program have an opportunity this year to see their families better clothed and better fed, according to Etta McGough, state home agent.

This program makes cotton stamps available to farmers who make a further reduction in their cotton acreage. These stamps can be used to buy cotton clothing and other articles made of cotton. In addition, participating farm families also can qualify for an additional $3 cash payment for producing more food for home use.

"Farm women have a special interest in this program," Miss McGough said, "since they will do much of the family buying with these stamps and will take the lead in meeting the food requirements. For this reason, they will want to plan with their husbands to earn the maximum amount of stamps and the food payment, and otherwise receive full benefits under the program."

Clanton fly collectors say that times must be better; they are getting fewer dirty looks.

As the Walrus Said— "THE TIME HAS COME TO TALK OF MANY THINGS"

"The time has come, the Walrus said,
To talk of many things:
Of shoes and ships and sealing wax
And cabbages and kings."
—Alice in Wonderland

EVERY one of the things the Walrus mentioned, with the exception of kings—unless perchance he was speaking of King Cotton—is a product of Alabama! There are hundreds of others to talk of during this "Alabama Products Week." However, more important than mere talk about them is the use of them, because it is their increasing use which makes more jobs in commerce and industry for Alabamians, and broadens the market for Alabama-grown farm produce.

Since its beginning, it has been the policy of Alabama Power Company to purchase Alabama products for use in its business whenever possible, where price and quality are equal. During 1940, it bought exactly 100 different Alabama products, with a total value of nearly $2,200,000.

JOBS FOUND FOR MANY UNEMPLOYED

State Employment Service Pays Out $18,000,000 In Benefits To Non-workers

Alabama has paid out $18,009,566 in unemployment benefits since the first check was issued February 1, 1938, and the end of business March 24 still had $19,202,134 to meet payments to eligible workers in the future.

Judge John D. Petree, Director of Industrial Relations, has announced that the trust fund contained $9,765,347. At the end of February the active file of persons seeking jobs through the Alabama State Employment Service contained the names of 93,640 compared with 88,459 at the end of January, an increase for February of 5,181. This increase, Judge Petree pointed out, was not due to a decrease in job opportunities but to the intensification of the Alabama State Employment Service to obtain the registration of all unemployed persons and all persons whose skills were not being utilized in present employment. This intensification was started in an effort to have available workers who will be needed in National Defense industries in Alabama and other states.

Jobs were found for 3,274 persons by the Employment Service in February compared with 3,773 in January. Of those sent to jobs in February, 2,276 obtained permanent employment, 844 temporary employment and 154 jobs which were listed as supplementary placements (in which the Employment Service had a part but did not perform all the acts required before credit can be claimed for the placement).

Wayne "Magic" Show Coming To Clanton

Magic and fun for everyone . . . Magic that would make the Thief of Baghdad "wall-eyed" with envy. A bewildering whirlpool of sensational Mystic surprises that will widen your eyes with astonishment is promised those who attend the Wayne Magic Show to be held at the Clanton County High School Gymnasium, Clanton on Monday night, April 7, at 7:30.

This show comes to this community through the courtesy of Allied Mills, Inc., manufacturers of Wayne Feeds and Chilton County Farmers Exchange, Inc., Mr. Dallas Rice, Mgr., the Wayne Feed Dealer.

Clifford P. Kirkpatrick, the man who mystifies magicians, is the feature attraction of the show. Kirkpatrick, veteran magician and globe trotter, has performed magic for more than 34 years. He comes from a family which for many years has been noted for their ability to wield the "Magic Wand" and pull unusual objects out of hats.

Another very popular feature of the magic show is to be the showing of an educational sound movie—"Vitamins on Parade". This movie actually shows vitamins and illustrates in natural color the part they play in chick health and growth. Those who see the picture will have a clearer understanding of how vitamins work to make poultry and livestock feeders more money.

A great show and a lot of fun is anticipated. It's FREE—open to the public and everyone is invited.

SHOULTS

There was a nice crowd at Sunday school Sunday. Pretty weather is coming soon, hope more people will take a great interest in Sunday school.

A nice group of young people had a lot of fun playing baseball Sunday evening.

Mrs. Rebbe Hopper and children were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dolly Chapman and family.

Mr. Thomas Wright spent Sunday night with Mr. Carlis Lee Smith.

A nice group of young people visited Mr. and Mrs. Wardie Smith and family Saturday night. We are sorry to hear Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Wallace and family are moving from our community, where they have moved to Mr. Rube Beardens.

Miss Grace Hicks spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shoults.

We are sorry to hear of Mr. J. M. Hopper being very ill, where he is at the CCC camp in Litchfield, Calif. We wish him a speedy recovery.

We are very glad to know that Mr. Charlie Lolley and also Mr. Eugene Hatchcock are returning home to our community from the CCC camp in Clanton.

The future peace of the United States depends upon the outcome of the Battle of Britain.

Regardless of how the War in Europe ends, the sturdy defense of England has given the United States time in which to prepare for its own defense.

Vegetable Laxative Makes Happy Friends

Here's a laxative that usually acts thoroughly as harsher ones but is a gentle persuader for intestines when used this way. A quarter to a half-teaspoonful of spicy, aromatic BLACK-DRAUGHT on your tongue tonight; a drink of water. There's usually time for a good night's rest, with a gentle, thorough action next morning relieving constipation's headaches, biliousness, sour stomach, bad breath.

BLACK-DRAUGHT is a splendid combination of vegetable ingredients, chief of which is an "intestinal tonic-laxative" that helps impart tone to lazy bowel muscles. It's economical. 25 to 40 doses: 25c.

War Costs Half Briton's Income

Government Now Taking 60 Per Cent of the National Turnover, Expert Says.

WASHINGTON.—The British government is now taking nearly 60 per cent of the national income of the United Kingdom, and about 50 per cent of it for war expenditures, according to a review by Thomas E. Wilson of the European section of the finance division, department of commerce, made public.

British tax returns are eight times as great as at the outbreak of the World war, the review states. The basic rate of British income tax is now 42.5 per cent, the highest in the nation's history, and the excess profits tax is in many cases 100 per cent. The British government pays from 2.5 to 3 per cent for the money it borrows.

A 10 per cent rate is paid by the British treasury on seven-year national defense bonds and a 3.17 per cent rate on 10-year national savings certificates not subject to income tax and cashable on short notice. A few months ago the British government floated a seven-year war loan at 2 1/2 per cent.

The indicated deficit. The estimate for British war expenditures during the fiscal year ending March 31, next, is put at $11,200,000,000. Of this, ordinary revenues will cover $5,440,000,000, leaving a deficit of $5,760,000,000. When ordinary expenditure is added, the deficit becomes $8,424,000,000.

British national income for 1939 has been estimated as between $20,000,000,000 and $24,000,000,000.

A 5 per cent national contribution tax, if they are corporations, and 4 per cent if they are not incorporated, or the 10 per cent excess profits tax, whichever is higher. The return from these taxes is estimated this fiscal year to be $280,000,000.

There is a purchase tax of 24 per cent on the retail price of specified luxuries such as furs, real silk, lace, china and silver. The rate is 12 per cent on the retail price of such goods as clothing, footwear and domestic hollowware.

Since July the London government has been receiving deposits from the clearing and Scottish banks, repayable after six months and bearing 1 1/2 per cent interest.

Investments in U. S. Gold produced in the British empire during the 14 months ended November 30, 1940, is estimated at about $900,000,000 and the dollar assets from its sale in the United States are apparently available to the British government.

It is estimated that at the beginning of the war total British long-term and short-term investments in the United States were worth about $1,872,000,000. During the first year of the war $150,000,000 of United States securities were liquidated on balance and by the end of last October $229,000,000 of dollar balances had been withdrawn.

The British, the review notes, have large investments in other countries, some of which may possibly be liquidated in this country when it is needed.

At the end of 1938 Sir Robert Kindersley, London banker, estimated that British overseas capital investments totaled £1,692,000,000 of which £1,398,000,000 was in government and municipal securities.

Student in Quiz Calls Blitzkrieg a Dachshund

PHILADELPHIA.—German town Friends school conducts an information test every year to determine students' knowledge of the outside world. This year's examination revealed some interesting definitions. They were:

Blitzkrieg—a dachshund.
Ivory Tower—when a person is in love; also, a woman's neck.
Ideology—the study of idiots and the worship of idiots to another.
Ferdinand the Bull—Don Quixote.
Skoda—Japanese building.
Author of Kitty Foyle—Darwin.
Ann Sheridan received two votes and Hedy Lamarr one as America's most prominent woman.

Twins Confuse a Judge At Hearing in Missouri

FLEMINGTON, MO.—Frank and George Poe, 74-year-old identical twins, tell this story about being called to testify in the Ozark town of Hermitage, Mo.

George was the first to get on the stand. He testified and stepped out of the court room. Frank followed him as a witness.

"Here, here," the judge said. "We can't have the same man testifying twice in this trial."

Court-room attendants had to bring George back into the room to convince the judge he was wrong.

VERBENA

"Lena Rivers" To be played here. There has been a great deal of speculation as to what play would be chosen by the Sr. III class for their next production. At last it has been arranged with Samuel French of New York, from whom permission was secured to present that greatest of all plays, "Lena Rivers." It will be presented at the Verbena High School auditorium on Friday night, April 11 at 8:00 and rehearsals have started under the able direction of Mrs. White.

This novel was written by Mary J. Holmes. For years it has headed the list of best sellers and still does. "Lena Rivers" is the best play you'll ever see. So, get your tickets early for to miss this great play would be a misfortune indeed. Don't forget the date—Friday night, April 11 at 8:00 and be on hand to participate in an evening of sheer delight.

ALABAMA PRODUCTS—

Blue and white cards will mark Alabama-made products during "Alabama Products Week," March 31-April 3. Stores in more than 130 cities and towns are co-operating in the movement to increase sales of goods produced in this state.

FERTILIZER SALES—

Fertilizer sales in Alabama are the lowest in three years. Sales for October 1, 1940-March 28, 1941, were 264,350 tons; for the like period last year, 325,900 tons; for the year before, 305,500 tons.

$4,000,000

for Telephone Expansion

Nearly $4,000,000 will be spent this year in Alabama by Southern Bell for constructing, re-constructing and adapting telephone facilities to meet governmental and other telephone needs of the state.

More than 600,000 men in the nation's armed forces will be trained in the South. Of these more than 46,000 will be located in Alabama.

To care for these men there will be 71 military camps and establishments in the South.

In Alabama the combined construction program of the Army, Navy and industrial defense projects total more than $266,000,000 with 50,000 men required for the construction period. After the construction is completed, 23,000 men will be required to operate the plants and approximately 46,000 soldiers will be stationed at the military establishments.

The telephone men and women are better equipped and trained than ever before to do the big job ahead of them. They go forward confident of their ability to maintain the service at its present high standard of efficiency and dependability.

FOLKS and THINGS
ABOUT TOWN

BY BEN

Shoes, shoes, shoes. Boy we know all about shoes. We were visiting around the first of the week and dropped in to see our friend Dave Cohen the Parisian. Well, we guess it was because we found him in the Shoe Department that he, or we, began talking shoes, but here are some of the things that we learned. . . First, that the Parisian carries the largest shoe department of any store between Birmingham and Montgomery. That it contains more than one hundred and twenty-seven different styles. Last year they sold enough shoes to supply every person in Chilton County a pair. The average five per cent of their trade is done on the fair sex. Now the thousands and thousands of shoes that are in stock we couldn't find out but there were white shoes, tan shoes, black shoes, gray shoes, red shoes, green shoes, little shoes, big shoes, gads, that reminds me. . . Sunday's Easter.

Just noticed a sign on a telephone pole down the street of the first dog sale at the City Hall Thursday morning (today). A list of the dogs now being offered by the city was posted in the notice. It was odd that there was most every kind of dog listed except bird dogs. Seems that bird dog owners take better care of their dogs than do owners of other breeds.

Burton Mullins has a Black Angus calf. He's 14 months old and weighs something better than 1,100 pounds. . . the calf. Burton brought him by Monday on his way to the 4-H calf show at Montgomery and was showing him to a crowd in front of the News office. He's a beauty and should get a ribbon whether he does or not.

And speaking of "Blue Ribbons" Mr. Mrs. Aubrey Robinson of Verdena has returned from the Birmingham 24th Annual All-Breed Dog Show with one. It is for second prize in the "Hollie" class. "Hollie" is a "Blue Rib" (whatever that means, they said that was the kennel name) took second prize. This show is sponsored each year by the Birmingham Kennel Club.

Waiting in Johnson's Fashion Shop as Ada Bennett, manager, on some very important business, advertising, the first of the week, an old negro man into the store and asked Mrs. "B" for "I want to see the best looking one you got in the store." Whereupon, Mrs. Gore told her that she had some for 79c doubting that the customer could afford "the best in the store." The old negro studied awhile and said, "I use to have money but I has to hock back now, ain't you sent me for a quarter?"

We thought that the "Bitterleg" was on the other night at the Dixie Cafe. Someone broke a bottle of ammonia, or a refrigerator went haywire or something. Anyway folks were running higher and you searching for a gas mask and a bomb shelter.

That Lion-Pilot dance that is coming off the 17th of this month is going to be at the C. H. S. Gymnasium. Now, if you're a "lion" you'll get it all fixed up for your "Pilot" and "Pilot" is and this is absolutely C-OK. . . C. H. S. Gymnasium—Cecil Mack's Orchestra and ladies and gentlemen, it will cost you one dollar and a dime.

Ed Mullins, of Mullins and Scott, is going to have a Cooking School down his store. Now don't get excited, it ain't going to do the cooking. . . Ed. Hithcock is going to con-

ODDITIES GLEANED FROM HITHER AND YON

In beginning this new column in the Chilton County News to come to you every Thursday, bringing you odd bits and fables from all over Chilton County and Alabama (with your help), naturally we want to start at home. Here's our first. Jim Linton, of Pinedale community, recently owned and rented a farm from Mrs. W. E. Thompson (Aunt Vick to most people). Last Sunday he and his wife and his land mistress, now he gets a free fee, plus an excellent cook, were married by the Rev. J. J. Jones at the home of the bride Sunday in the presence of a few friends and relatives. The column sends congratulations. Rev. D'ibose conducted the funeral of both of their deceased "Pansies."

Man Injured Sunday
When Struck By Train

Huston Baker was hit by a train Sunday afternoon. While sitting on the tracks in South Clanton, a freight train going south hit him and knocked him from the tracks, according to information received by the News. His right leg was broken between the knee and the hip as well as several bruises on various parts of his body. The accident happened behind Lowe's Grocery at the crossing. He was taken by Spigener's ambulance to Central Alabama hospital.

PLAY AT VERBENA

The Senior class play "Lena Rivers" will be given at Verbena school auditorium Friday night, April 11 at 8:00 o'clock. Admission will be 15 and 25 cents. Everybody invited.

Stapp Chosen To Head
County Wildlife Association

Mayor Cohen E. Stapp was elected to the presidency of the Chilton County Wildlife Conservation Club at its reorganization meeting April 3 in the Clanton City Hall. Dr. A. A. Conway, Jimenson, was elected to one vice-presidency and J. A. Baker, Verbena, elected to that representing the southern portion of the county. The secretary-treasurer will be named at a later date.

Directors will be selected from the board of each of the county beats. These directors will serve locally as the best chairman.

Mayor Stapp succeeds J. B. Atkinson who served for the past several years and accomplished much, despite meager support, in the destruction of lands with quail and waters with fish from the state hatcheries. John Hollis of Verbena is the retiring vice-president and William H. L. Smith of (Continued on Page Five) duct that part of it. Any of you ladies who are interested in fixing good things for your old man to eat can attend Ed's Cooking School, and, oh yes, the date. . . Tuesday and Wednesday, April 15th and 16th.

The Denists of the city are "out for the day", or maybe two days, who knows. They are on convention at Birmingham this week and should your molars give you any trouble, it's just too bad. They'll have to wait 'til Drs. Gowan and Edger get back to their offices the last of the week.

The Ladies of the Clanton Grammar School P. T. A. and also prof. Abrams are in search for foliage. The kind of foliage that they can transplant on the campus of the Grammar School to beautify it. If anyone in town has any that they can spare, get in touch with some member of the Association and they will be glad to get it.

This ought to win a prize of some kind or other. The other morning Cecil Ramsey, J. T. King, Ralph Bryn and some other fellows were sitting at the counter down at the City Grill. King was eating sausage and eggs and Cecil wanted the same but the sausage didn't look quite large enough to suit his appetite. . . Cecil of course holloed. They "Bulldog" explained his technique in judging the size to make his sausage. If a man comes in and says GIVE ME SOME SAUSAGE AND EGGS in a loud voice he cooks them Big. If the customer ask for them in a moderate voice, he cooks them medium. And if the customer ask for his sausage and eggs in a small voice as if he had had a bad night before, well, "Bulldog" has learned from long experience to cook the sausage small.

SPOGNER HAS FIELD DAY—Mrs.

Rib White said the old adage of "when it rains it pours" is still a true philosophy. Last Wednesday when asked for her weekly report of deaths, she had none. "People seem to have quit dying, and our business is dull," she hinted. Thursday it was a different story. They were worrying about how to take care of them. They had four funerals in one afternoon. Here's how they were arranged: one at Pleasant Grove at 1 o'clock, at Macedonia at 2:30 (Jemison) Maplesville at 3:00 and one at New Harmony at Lomax at 3. Two hearses, an extra hand, and a Plymouth automobile were used. Two of the bodies were buried at the Pleasant Grove cemetery the same

Pioneer Citizen Of County Passes

Mr. Jefferson Davis Jones, age 78, a pioneer citizen of Chilton County, passed at his residence two miles north of Clanton, last Saturday afternoon, April 5th at 5 p.m.

Mr. Jones was an old sawmiller of the county, having been active up until about two years ago when his health began failing him. He came to Chilton County with his father when he was about eight years old, moving here from Dallas county and settling in Beat 9, east of the present Collins' Store on the highway north of Lomax. He and Mrs. Jones celebrated their 55th Wedding Anniversary on February 23rd.

Funeral services were held at the home Sunday afternoon at 2:00, conducted by the Rev. T. C. Casaday, assisted by Rev. A. W. Nick. The body was laid to rest in the Clanton cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Dixie Wells Jones, two daughters, Mrs. Homer Bruce and Mrs. Elzie Martin of Clanton; five sons, E. L. C. O. J. D. Jr., and Clifford all of Clanton and Morris of Selma.

Pallbearers were: Dr. J. E. Edgar, S. J. Stewart, Burton Mullins, Elzie Kelley, S. J. McKinzie and Jim Jones.

J. M. Martin and Sons had charge of the burial.

DIPHTHERIA WARNING

Another case of diphtheria was reported to the Health Office Monday of this week. This child caught the disease from the one who died last week. If he had had the diphtheria shots he would have been safe from this disease. It is not necessary for us to have a single case of Diphtheria in this county of people with children from 6 months to 6 years will take diphtheria shots. Protect your child from Diphtheria.

Keep him away from sick children and stay away from them yourself.

(2) Bring your child to the Health Office THIS SATURDAY between 8:00 and 12:00 for Diphtheria shots. R. W. Crowell, County Health Officer.

Four Projects Planned To Improvement of U. S. 3112 Mile Stretch Should Be Completed By Middle of May

Four separate projects for the improvement of as many sections, all north of Montgomery, of U. S. Highway 31, are now under way. Two of them were started only recently. State Highway Director Chris J. Sherlock revealed yesterday. Two of the four are reconstruction jobs. The other two are new construction. All, in addition to improving or replacing existing roadways, also add greatly to driving safety, and will enable motorists to save considerable time in traveling from point to point on this important route. Two actually shorten present road distances by several miles.

The two projects just launched are located in the counties of Chilton and Jefferson, respectively. The Chilton job consists of the relocation of U. S. 31, immediately south of Calera, which will result in reducing to 6 1/2 miles the distance of 9 miles over the present route between the points that will form the termini of the relocated section. This relocation will eliminate many bad curves, and provide a right-of-way to replace the present route where old paving laid when highway construction on a major scale in Alabama was in its infancy, is now worn out and in bad condition.

Alternate Routes

When the relocation is completed and the new pavement opened to traffic the present route will not be closed, but will be used as a detour or alternate route, and for the convenience of local traffic in that area. Motor traffic will begin moving over the relocated roadway early this fall. Following the reshaping of cleaning and grading operations, the work of grading the relocation began during the past week. This relocation undertaking which will employ around 200 men is a WPA project, in which the State is cooperating by supplying all necessary equipment and engineering.

Uncle Billy's Headley Celebrates 77th Birthday

Mr. Wm. J. (Uncle Billy) Headley of Pinedale county, celebrated his seventy-seventh birthday last Sunday at his home when his children, friends and other relatives gathered in for the annual occasion. A long table was erected in the yard of his home and a bountiful dinner, was enjoyed by all.

"Uncle Billy" left at 7:00 Monday night for Hot Springs, Ark., on his 48th Annual trip for the Hot Baths. We are expecting a letter from him soon and will give his address next week, so his many friends may write him.

Easter Seal Sale Means Much To County's Crippled

To most of America's children, Easter means gayly colored eggs and the Easter rabbit. But to those children whose misfortune it is to be in some way crippled physically, Easter has come to have additional significance. It means a chance for the concrete services which will help them find a Better Life—happiness during childhood, success as they grow older.

Through the annual Easter Drive the necessary funds are obtained to provide the services which the child who is crippled both deserves and needs to find this Better Life. The Easter Drive is sponsored by the National Society for Crippled Children and conducted simultaneously in thirty states throughout the country by affiliated state organizations working continuously to improve the welfare of America's estimated 300,000 crippled children.

This is a comprehensive and realistic program. The Society's program is summed up in the phrase: "To See Every Crippled Child THROUGH" and comprises, in brief, the following phases:

1. Discovery, enumeration and registration of every crippled child in the State.

THORBY SINGING

The singing was well attended at Thorby last Sunday. We had singing from several different counties, seemed to enjoy the singing.

We had several good quartets, they were: Liberty Hill, Stewart, Alabama Four, Crew, Prattville, Prattville, also the Liberty Hill Trio. Pianists for the day were Miss Jean Lowery, Edward Jones, Eason Maddox, C. M. Billingsley, Hudson Williams, Mrs. Earl Lowery, Marion Easterling.

I wish to thank Mrs. J. L. Crew, Mr. Edward Jones, Mr. B. L. Cobb and T. E. Wyatt for the use of their books at this singing.—J. Thomas Childress.

Thursday Night Singing

Everybody remember to come out and be with us at the Thorby Baptist church next Thursday night, April 10, for singing. We want to have a good mid-week singing at this place also. All quartets have a special invitation to attend. This new book will be used.

Important Change In 1941 AAA Program

AUBURN, ALA.—An important change in the 1941 AAA program by which Alabama farmers can substitute peanuts for cotton is announced by W. B. Crawley of Banks, Alabama, Chairman of the AAA Committee and President of the Georgia, Florida, Alabama Peanut Association.

"The change will permit peanut farmers to substitute peanuts for cotton without affecting AAA payments," said Crawley. "Peanuts which are substituted for cotton, however, will not be eligible for the 'pegged' price but will be to be sold at oil prices. These excess peanuts will not affect the amount of the conservation or parity payments. Neither will they affect the farmer's eligibility to receive cotton stamps under the Supplementary Cotton program."

Crawley gave an example to show how the change would work. A farmer who has a 20-acre peanut allotment and a 20-acre cotton allotment may plant his full peanut allotment of 20 acres and not be subject to marketing quota penalties. In addition, if he does not plant any cotton, he may plant 20 acres more to peanuts for oil. This would make a total of 40 acres in peanuts, 20 acres to be produced for the edible trade and 20 acres for oil purposes. If the farmer desired to plant one-half of his cotton allotment, or 10 acres, he could plant the other 10 acres of his cotton allotment in peanuts for oil, making a total of 30 acres in peanuts.

MULE FEED SHORTAGE SHOWING UP IN CHILTON COUNTY

With the spring plowing and planting season under way, many Chilton County Farmers are running up against a shortage of mule feed. Your reporter has called on a number of local planters to see how they are solving the feed situation. Although some farmers are still able to buy local grain, most of them are finding it necessary to buy shipped-in feed. Some of this is being trucked in and sold directly by the trucker to the farmer, while much other grain is coming in by rail and is sold through local dealers. The price in either case seems to be about the same.

It was highly interesting to this reporter to note the large number of planters who are buying Omolene to take care of their mule feed needs for the spring. One farmer, when asked him about it, said that for more than 30 years he and his father have considered Omolene the best mule feed in the South. Years ago they used to buy Omolene in carload lots each spring.

When the South began to grow more corn, many of these farmers found it unnecessary to buy much feed. But since they're buying feed again this spring, they're going back to a mixed ration which is made especially to keep mules in condition. This reporter finds that farmers like it as well this year as ever before. In addition, it costs no more to feed than ordinary corn or oats according to Southern Seed and Plant Co. local feed dealer.

PHENOTHIAZINE HARMFUL SOME HORSES AND MULES

AUBURN, ALA.—Although phenothiazine has proved more efficient for removal of intestinal worms in horses and mules than any other known drug, poor and weak animals, and those affected with infectious anemia, are bad risks for the treatment, announces the Federal Bureau of Animal Industry. Thousands of horses and mules have been treated successfully with phenothiazine to remove palisade and other intestinal worms, but some reports of deaths or unfavorable reactions have reached the Bureau.

NEW PROGRAM AID TO SOIL CONSERVATION

AUBURN, ALA.—The new supplementary cotton program gives farmers a timely opportunity to convert many more thousands of acres of eroding land from cotton to soil-protecting crops, says O. C. Medlock, Alabama coordinator.

More than 10 per cent of the cultivated land in the Cotton Belt has become unfit for row-crop production because of erosion, according to Medlock. Much has been accomplished already; and the supplementary cotton plan gives cotton farmers a chance to take even more of this land out of cultivation and put it into permanent soil conserving vegetation, such as trees, grasses, kudzu, lespedeza and trees.

The live-at-home feature of the cotton stamp plan has a direct relation to erosion control work, Medlock says.

STATE FARMERS OFFERED NEW TERRACE BULLETIN

AUBURN, ALA.—A new U. S. Department of Agriculture leaflet entitled, "Terrace Construction With Small Equipment in the South", is available to Alabama farmers without cost while the supply lasts, according to O. C. Medlock, state coordinator of the Soil Conservation Service.

The 12-page leaflet describes the use of four different types of light equipment in constructing terraces. They are (1) plow and slip scrape or drag pan, (2) plow and V drag, (3) one-way disc tiller, and (4) small terracer. The various steps in each method of construction are illustrated by photographs and charts.

ELECTRIC SHOWS SLATED IN STATE

Way "Build-up" Helps Will Interest Women

The cause of a woman's periodic suffering from headache, irritability, cramp-like pain, may be functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition, a condition that is often helped by CARDUI.

Principal way CARDUI helps is by stimulating appetite and the flow of gastric juices. Thus it may aid digestion; help build up a woman's strength, energy and nerve-force; so increase physical resistance to periodic discomfort.

It also helps reduce periodic distress for many who take it a few days before and during "the time." Your confidence in CARDUI is invited by its 50 years of popularity.

STATE BANKS HONORED ON FARM ATTAINMENTS

AUBURN, ALA.—For three years Alabama has held a position of honor for bankers' agricultural attainment writes Dan H. Otis, director, American Bankers Association, to Gordon D. Palmer, secretary, Alabama Bankers Association.

"The reports sent in to the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association show that the state has made the 1000-point goal for each of these years," he says. "She is one of the 28 states reaching or maintaining this high record."

Banker farmer activities in the State include the encouraging of farm inventories, farm accounts, credit statements, farm budgets, soil conservation, work with farm youth, exhibits, shows, contests, scholarships and good will visits to farms.

REVIEWS and PREVIEWS

By Irvin Lande

For the last one hundred and sixty-four years there has existed on this battle-scarred and blood-soaked globe a nation which has done that which no other nation has ever dared to do, and ever achieved any measure of success in doing. This nation has stretched from coast to coast, in a new, dauntless continent, and has spread its ideals and its rights where ever the flag of that nation has shown its brilliant stripes and its glittering stars. Upon this continent, it has expanded like an eagle spreading its wings, and now, full grown, it has realized that it has no more territorial ambition—that it has found its life's work in trying to keep alive that which no other nation has dared to conceive and to spread that ideal which it believes best to all the world. And the world at this moment, needs that ideal more than it has ever needed anything before—that ideal which teachers and doctors and ministers in every age have said to be the highest ambition of the world has the audacity to search for.

This nation, starting with a humble beginning has marched onward and onward, despite its wars and its corruption and its lust of gold and its lust for glory, to that which all the world wants, and which all the world is determined someday to reach. For the half-corroded musket of the Minute Man, to the modern mad machines of horrible warfare, this nation, conceived in liberty, has never used those weapons for any purpose but to achieve independence and justice. From the smeared ink on the first American newspaper to the color and rotogravure of the modern American press, this nation has seldom used the freedom of speech and expression for any other purpose than to preserve that very freedom. From the modern political genius of Roosevelt back to the orientation of political thought in America under the masterful Thomas Jefferson, Americans have tried, through debate and discussion always, to better that government which, in their minds and hearts, and body and soul, has always been, and always will be, the only government under which to live.

And from the modern "Town Meeting of the Air" and the "Chicago Round Table" back to the Green Hall of yesterday in which men would shed coats and roll up shirt sleeves to defend a principle, America has always attempted to find a solution to the social, political, and economic problems of the generation.

But that is not all the picture, for here, there have been men in art, literature, and music, who have tried, and have succeeded in developing the finest culture any nation could hope for. From Stuart who found the first citizens of the land the finest subjects of his art, to Grant Wood, who realized a new America in cornfields and barns, and stalks of grain, America has always had, and always will have, men and women who, in drawing comic strips or painting murals, will always keep America instilled with a love of the artist's brush. In literature, from Washington Irving's "Sketch Book" to

Carl Sandburg's very human poetry, the citizens of the United States have never been at a loss to find a story for their emotions or a story for their leisure hours. And in music, too, never-to-be-forgotten melodies have led to the swelling overtures of Erno Rapée in Radio City Music Hall, America will never be able to hope for stronger expressions or more sentimental feelings of the American spirit.

And, in America, as everywhere else in this world, there has been corruption and disgrace, plots and prejudices—but, somehow, through the divine intervention of fortune, America has always (Continued on Page 6)

3. Development of educational facilities to insure every crippled child an education.

4. Securing vocational guidance and training in a suitable trade or profession.

5. Assistance in securing opportunities for self-supporting employment compatible with the person's mental and physical capacities either in regular industry, sheltered workshops, or in the home.

6. Prevention of the causes of crippling.

7. Fostering recreational facilities for both children and adult-camps, playgrounds, clubs, etc.

8. Cooperation with State and Federal Departments and other private agencies to secure a comprehensive, efficient program of service.

9. Enactment of legislation to further this program in the State.

There is also the work of the National Society for Crippled Children conducted on a national basis, together with the development of new organizations in states not as yet carrying on a complete program for the crippled child.

The drive offers an opportunity for all citizens of the state to share in this work and thereby help these children build into happy, useful men and women.

Easter seals are now being distributed in the schools. Every adult is urged to join the Alabama Society for Crippled Children by sending one dollar to Rascoe Maddox, Chairman, or No'an Maroney, Secretary-Treasurer, Clanton, Ala.

STAPPELECTED

Clanton, the retiring secretary-treasurer.

The 17 hunters, fishermen and farmers present heard Tom Ford, director of conservation planning for the organization and outlining several possible programs. Quail and fish distribution, he said, would be under club sponsorship as would other programs for the betterment of game, fish and forests.

Due to a new Conservation Department policy, these clubs will have a voice in the setting of game seasons. Suggested seasonal changes will be sent the clubs whose opinions will be considered in the light of benefiting the most people. "While it is not to be expected that every suggestion can be adopted," Ford said, "it is not improbable that many will." Director Gill is anxious to give the sportsmen an opportunity to assist in formulating seasons regulations and to adopt those suggestions that are compatible with good commonsense conservation needs.

Dr. H. Moren Fuller, Centreville, a director of the Alabama Wildlife Federation, spoke and explained the relation of the state organization to the county clubs and on what can be accomplished by an active group in restoring wildlife and forests.

CARD OF THANKS
We wish to extend our sincere appreciation for the many tokens of kindness shown us by Dr. Parnell and our friends during the illness and death of our mother, Mrs. G. M. Hamrick.

ways been spared the loss of some greatness and some nobility at the hands of mad pistol shots and stinging disbelief. Yes, America has had its share of decadence and degeneration. In the days of boom towns, in gold fields and oil wells, men have thought of their personal glory first, before the rights of their fellow man. And American youth has fallen short in some instances of the moral code and purity which some of its parents would rather see it live up to. But all, in all, we haven't done so very badly for the first one hundred and sixty-four years, that we have been trying out our own ideals and our own beliefs.

But what's so different about America? We have the ego to think that America is 'doing something that no other nation has ever done, or has ever tried to do. But other nations have had their muskets and weapons of warfare, and maybe they have made better use of them than we have. Other nations have newspapers and magazines. Other nations have conceived political ideas which, though being repulsive to the American heart, have nevertheless deserved American praise

$4,000,000 for Telephone Expansion

Nearly $4,000,000 will be spent this year in Alabama by Southern Bell for constructing, reconstructing and adapting telephone facilities to meet governmental and other telephone needs of the state.

More than 600,000 men in the nation's armed forces will be trained in the South. Of these more than 46,000 will be located in Alabama.

To care for these men there will be 71 military camps and establishments in the South.

In Alabama the combined construction program of the Army, Navy and industrial defense projects total more than $266,000,000 with 50,000 men required for the construction period. After the construction is completed, 23,000 men will be required to operate the plants and approximately 46,000 soldiers will be stationed at the military establishments.

The telephone men and women are better equipped and trained than ever before to do the big job ahead of them. They go forward confident of their ability to maintain the service at its present high standard of efficiency and dependability.

for their thoroughness and their theory. Up until the war, other nations have conceived discussion groups and perhaps have had even greater success than we have had. And it was Europe, not America, that found the first great conception of art, and who has given the world masterpieces that will never be forgotten. Didn't Europe develop poetry and devices for literature that caused the first American interest in the beauty and truth that they possessed? And was it not Europe who produced the great masters of the piano, violin, and voice? Yes, but still because of development in these fields, but because of the significance that these things have held for America.

Now, though, it would seem that America has cast down all the significance of art and literature, and has fallen to the baseness of modern warfare. Is not America now preparing as she has never prepared before, for a battle with a foe that knows no culture? Is not America now forgetting all that she holds dear, and recasting to militarism and propaganda and compulsion?

To all these questions, Americans hold but one answer, and they hold it because they know that no matter what the present may bring, there is always a future. Americans say "No," to all those who believe that for one moment America is sacrificing her ideals and her rights and her destiny. Though war is the word of the moment, and defense is the plan of the present, the American goal stands just as firm as it ever stood in the minds and hearts of this generation.

I had a hard time getting a grasp of that goal, what it stood for and what it actually was. But, I guess every American, if he is an American really, at some time or other, receives a vision of his destiny, without much effort being exerted on his part. I recognized the thing which has distinguished America from all the rest of the world, the thing which has made American art and culture significant in this world. I found that highest ambition of America, my deepest my knowing it for a time. I found it unconsciously, like you did, and your friend did, and the neighbor next door did.

I was walking along at the World's Fair in New York, enjoying the sights and watching people like myself go by. I was walking along, amazed by the color, and the architecture, and the greatness that the World's Fair showed was America's. But, like everyone else who attended the Fair, my feet became a little weary, and I found a bench, and sat down. By the time I had settled down, and had taken a breath of the swift, crisp breeze that had just floated past. I saw something that I hadn't seen before. With a waste basket on my left side, with a sturdy tree behind me, and solid, free American earth under me, my eyes happened to wander in the direction of a mighty structure. In front of me was a tower that symbolized all that this world could hope for. The Tylon and Perisphere, yes, but a symbol of all the things which we know and hope for. The mighty ball, the world itself, floating around madly, at the base of a mighty tower, an ideal which it could not reach. This world, fighting and striving, but always filled with the hope of a goal that is a little bit away.

Yes, that's what America means to me, aside from all the rights and freedoms which we have everyday, and because we have them everyday, we take them for granted, but this ideal is that which cannot take for granted the ideal of bringing the world to an everlasting era of peace and brotherhood.

That Perisphere stood for all the things that you and I know, but the Tylon I still destined of America, a little piece above us in the clouds, but not too high up, or too far away. And that is what I believe every American at sometime or other, finds out for himself, that there is a goal to all this world, and the goal for America, and for every citizen of America, is the hope of liberty, the hope of justice, the hope of world in which a man can stand up for his rights, in which a small nation is not mistreated because of its size, and a large nation is not condemned because of its advantages. This is a hope which, I believe, we all have, for until we have it, and until we give it to all the world, and bring about this everlasting goodwill, there never will be that peace and security which all of us spend our entire lives searching for, and aspiring to obtain.

This ideal is not merely wishful thinking or an idle concoction of the human brain—it is the easiest way out for all our troubles, and all our desires. And, furthermore, it is the thing that America today stands as a symbol for and an embodiment of.

But what's more—today it is the American privilege to have part in carrying out this destiny. Americanism means to me, separate and aside from all those things which we Americans hold dear—the freedom of religion, speech, press, assembly, and tolerance—the privilege of living in a nation whose duty is whose whole complex is built for, the carrying on of American rights—of giving every nation on the face of this earth those same things which we today enjoy.

The destiny is not a task, but a privilege. It is not easy, but something to be assiduously worked for. Today the future seems dark, with the war on the one hand, and internal troubles on the other. But beyond the horizon a ray of sparkling light is bursting into a whole torch that will light up the sky. If America will, and she must, accept that torch and march forward, giving every nation a light from that torch. America will live on. For an America which can do that, will NEVER die!

PAYMENTS NOT AFFECTED BY NEW COTTON PROGRAM

AUBURN, ALA.—A. W. Jones, administrative officer of the AAA, emphasizes that the 1941 supplementary cotton program in no way affects the amount of the regular loan conservation or parity payment under the AAA program.

Twenty-five dollars is the maximum amount of cotton stamps which any farmer may receive under the 1941 supplementary program, except in the case of persons having an interest in more than one farm, or operators having two or more sharecroppers.

During 1940 Alabama farmers received a total of $15,014,276.96 in conservation payments and $8,773,530.44 in parity payments.

COMMITTEE TO ASSIST WITH FARM PROBLEMS

AUBURN, ALA.—Reorganization of the Department's Agricultural Labor and seasonal shortages.

For the first two months of 1941 Alabama farmers sold $91,588.26 worth of farm products on 16 curb markets in the State.

"We do not expect any widespread shortage of essential farm labor in 1941," he says, "but National Defense activity may cause a number of local and seasonal shortages."

Alabama holds the distinction of being the first State in the United States to approve soil conservation district work throughout the State. In a vote on March 29 the last 15 counties in the State approved the organization of three additional soil conservation districts.

91 YEARS of PROGRESS

A Historical Tour of the Louisville & Nashville R.R.

The War Years 1861-1865

After completing the line to Nashville in October, 1859, the L & N. built from a point south of Bowling Green to Guthrie, Ky., where it connected with the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad. Through operation of trains between Louisville and Memphis began early in 1861.

War came, but a lively trade between the North and South continued for several months, the latter importing vast quantities of materials via Kentucky, a border state. The L & N handled much of this traffic, consequent congestion eventually causing a brief embargo on all freight.

In July 1861, Tennessee troops seized all of the road's property in that state, but portions of the line were controlled alternately for a while. Tracks and bridges were destroyed whenever possible. Damage was quickly repaired, however, and trains kept moving. Later, after the North was permanently in control, General John H. Morgan and other Confederate leaders often hindered operation of the road.

Despite heavy damage to its property, the L & N emerged in better financial condition than before the war.

nesday, Alabama will thus follow the procedure adopted by many other states, which has been pronounced a great help in identification and law enforcement.

Each county will be given a designation number, based on its rank in total motor vehicle registration. Jefferson County, for example, will be No. 1, Mobile No. 2 and Montgomery 3. This figure will precede the letter designating the classification into which the tag falls.

In addition the tag numbers for each county will be a separate series, each county's quota starting with 1 and continuing for as many numbers as there are tags of that classification in the county.

Color scheme decided upon, subject to the governor's approval, calls for yellow numerals on black background.

UNIVERSITY WILL HOLD OPEN HOUSE ON GOVERNOR'S DAY

UNIVERSITY, Ala. — "Governor's Day" at the University of Alabama on April 23 will also be "Open House" for thousands of alumni, parents of students and prospective students, and friends of the University.

Cordial invitations are extended by administrative officials and student leaders to all residents of Clanton and Chilton County to visit the University, attend the regular classes, inspect the exhibits and demonstrations in the laboratories, and witness the colorful review of the 2,000 cadets by the Governor and his staff.

The annual review of the Reserve Officers Training Corps units by Governor Frank M. Dixon is scheduled at 10:00 a.m. and will be followed by an address by Governor Dixon in the new auditorium, and a box luncheon on the campus. Regular classes between the hours of 8:00 and 10:00 a.m. and between 2:00 and 6:00 p.m. will be open for inspection.

ESA Urges Farmers To Turn From Cotton

By MARVIN DURBIN
County Supervisor, ESA

This year small farmers in Chilton County are being paid by the federal government to make an experiment the experiment of trying to grow some other cash crops besides cotton.

This is how it works: For cutting his cotton acreage below quota, a farmer will be paid in stamps he can swap for overalls, plow lines, dress material or anything else made entirely of cotton. The rate of pay is ten cents per pound and the amount is determined by the average yield of that extra acre or so not planted in cotton. The average farm family will receive up to $25 worth in cotton stamps.

If the farmer does not plant cotton on an acre which usually makes a half a bale each year he has earned $25—about what the cotton would have brought him and without paying anything out for seed or fertilizer, or without doing all that hard work.

Almost every farmer in this county has been closing his best land for the cotton patch. Now he will have one of these best acres on which to try out some new cash crop. Yes, and we get a chance to see just how much more food, feed and truck crops Chilton County land will make if it is fertilized and worked the way we have always worked our cotton. With less chopping and picking to do, we won't have any good excuse for not trying.

There is a little future in cotton raising for the small farmer. We have been telling ESA borrowers this for the last several years. So they have been working up side crops of strawberries, peaches, watermelons and poultry eggs, and cream.

Last season 75 per cent of them had two or more sources of cash besides cotton on their farms from which they earned at least ten per cent of their income. On several farms these new enterprises are beginning to bring in as much cash as cotton.

SUNDAY SCHOOL REPORT

The Sunday Schools of the Billingsley district of Unity Association met with the Bethesda church Sunday afternoon, April 6th, for a monthly Sunday School meeting. All of the Sunday Schools in the district were represented except one. There were three preachers present, four Sunday school superintendents, nine teachers, and enough others to make a total of seventy-five. Charlie Haggard was in charge of the program with Miss Owen acting as secretary.

The Style Of Tomorrow

Ten Years From Now, Most Women Will Cook Electrically (According To A Recent Poll)

The style of tomorrow is determined by the opinion of today. So when a national poll authority asks women what they think the majority of homes will be using for cooking ten years from now, and most of them say "electricity," you can be pretty sure that that is the style trend! So—

If You Are Going To Buy A New Range, Why Not Make It Electric?

There's nothing experimental about an electric range—already 30,000 Alabama women are cooking on them, and getting better results with their cooking. The modern electric range is rugged yet stylishly built. Its heat is so efficient that it costs little if any more to cook electrically. Drafts do not affect it. It needs no flue, so it is not dependent on the direction of the wind to make it draw. Its heat is controlled by switches, and the heat remains constant until you change it. That's why so many women say they like cooking with an electric range best. There's no guess work. If you get good results today, you can count on good results with the same dish tomorrow.

Don't Forget the Automatic Features

Some models of electric ranges have automatic features which make it possible for you to be miles away while the meal is cooking, without attention, and awaiting your return to be served steaming hot.

Many Models—Prices Still Moderate

You can buy a clean, economical electric range that'll help keep your kitchen looking like springtime for as little as $121.50 cash, or for only a few dollars down and a few dollars a month. Visit our store or a dealer's soon, and make your selection while there is still a wide variety of models available; and while prices are still moderate.

"I have had an electric range for twelve years, so can appreciate the cleanliness and convenience that make cooking a pleasure."

Pre-Wie? Martin will vouch for this. Now that it is itself is rare anyway. A Chilton County farmer was even kept at home to house his wife. He sold a dozen to a married lady on one trip and the following week she told him that she had have a chicken in it. After much argument the farmer said "why lady, I don't even keep a rooster on my place." To which Mrs. Newly wed answered, "well for goodness sake, what that got to do with it".

E. walked across the street and immediately stated that he ... hell know on the first of the month when the bull arrives for that plate glass.

The Swimming Pool Project

Are we, or are we not, going to back the Project to get a swimming pool and recreation center for Clanton?

There is lacking only a few hundred dollars to be raised until we can start work on this project.

Never let it be said that the citizens of Clanton gave up within so short a distance of their goal.

Many, many of the good people of the City have already gone down into their pockets and given all that they could afford toward this worthy project. BUT, have you given all that YOU are able to give to see that this objective is reached.

No other city in Alabama the size of our city is without a swimming pool and recreation center.

We need one. We need one that our children might have some place to spend the afternoon playing, and be out of the streets and out of places that are not best for them.

A recreation center, with a playground teacher is good for them. It will keep their minds busy and their thoughts clean.

Let's double our efforts to put this thing across. Let every man and woman, every father and mother, get to work and finish this job so that our children might enjoy the pleasures of this recreation.

They are entitled to it.

Pilots-Kiwanis To Have Joint Meeting

Thursday night of this week (tonight) the Clanton Kiwanis Club and the Clanton Lions will hold a joint meeting at the Thomson Hotel. After the meeting the Lions and the Clanton Pilot Club are giving a dance at the Clanton County High School gymnasium.

Guest speaker for the meeting will be Lt. Col. R. M. O'Day, exec. officer of the Birmingham Military District. The subject of his address will be the Program for National Defense. All Kiwanians and Lions are urged to be on hand for this important meeting and to hear Lt. Col. O'Day.

CLANTON PILOT CLUB

The meeting of the Pilot Club last Wednesday night marked its tenth anniversary. Mrs. Sophia Jones, one of the Club's charter members, gave a very interesting talk on the organization of the Clanton Club and its history. The remaining charter members still in the Club, Mrs. Osmond Grant and Mrs. Mamie C. Smith, were present.

Mrs. C. C. Fiquette's little daughter, Anne, entertained the Club by singing one of the Pilot Club songs.

REGISTRANTS MUST HAVE REGISTRATION CERTIFICATE WITH THEM AT ALL TIMES

General Ben M. Smith, State Director of the Selective Service, today announced that Selective Service Regulations have been amended, to be effective April 17, 1941, so as to make it compulsory that every registrant have his registration certificate in his personal possession at all times. The new Regulations also require that the registrant must on request, exhibit his registration certificate to any law enforcement officer, to any Selective Service official of National Headquarters or State Headquarters, or to any member of a local board or board of appeal of the Selective Service System. If a registrant fails to have his registration certificate in his person, thought from or to exhibit it upon proper request, there will be a legal presumption that he has failed to register and is a delinquent, and he will be liable for prosecution as a delinquent and subject to the penalties of imprisonment or fine, or both, provided by law for violators of the Selective Service law and Regulation.

Gen. Smith further announced information concerning this new Regulation he publicized as widely as possible, so that all registrants may actually know of it and be able to comply with it, although thought from or to exhibit it upon proper request, there will be a legal presumption that he has failed to register and is a delinquent, and he will be liable for prosecution as a delinquent and subject to the penalties of imprisonment or fine, or both, provided by law for violators of the Selective Service law and Regulation.

General Smith further announced that those registrants who may have lost their registration certificates can obtain a duplicate certificate from their local board by making application to the board and making satisfactory explanation of the loss of the original. The burden of obtaining duplicate registration certificate rests upon the registrant himself for his own protection, but local boards and the State Headquarters will assist and cooperate in every way possible with those who have unfortunately lost their certificates.

Reading Playlet by Bethsalem young people; playlet "When The Owner Cometh" by Chestnut Creek young people. Story by Jimson Roy Ambassadors.

Local Students Appear On Magazine Cover

A number of Chilton County High School students appear on the cover page of the Alabama School Journal in its April issue. The picture title, "Procedure recommended when pupils leave a school bus," shows the group crossing the highway in front of the bus while the traffic is stopped in both directions. The picture was taken on the Higgins Ferry Road a couple of miles from town.

Those pictured are Bernice Lowe, Josephine Stanley, Betty Boo Hollis, Bobby Atchison, Wilbur Prince and Thomas Childers.

MAPLEVILLE SIXTH GRADE GRADUATION EXERCISES

The Sixth Grade class of Mapleville School is going to hold its graduation exercises Friday afternoon, April 18, Parents and friends of the class are cordially invited to attend.

Senior Class of C.C.H.S. To Present Play

Friday night, at 7:30, the Senior III Class of the Chilton County High School will present a three-act comedy, "Mama's Baby Boy". Comedies are supposed to be funny and are built for laughing purposes, but the screaming funny play exceeds the limit in laughs and mirth. The mirth-provoking piles on top of another until the audience is almost weak from howling at the many ridiculous mirth-provoking lines and scenes.

Imagine the great amount of fun that is obtained by having a very attractive widow, who is old enough to be a girl of thirteen, so that he might pose as a youth of fourteen, so that she might pass as a younger woman and marry a widower, whom she believes to be wealthy. In turn, the widower, trying to appear younger, has his seventeen-year old daughter pose as a girl of thirteen, so that he might wed the widow, whom he believes to be rich. Neither the widower nor the widow have a cent, both having lost their money in the stock market. This situation leads to no end of amusing complications, when each party tries to keep the knowledge of his losses from the other.

The lines and costumes will have the audiences howling with laughter. You just can't afford to miss it. The cast is as follows:

- Mrs. Shephard Josephine Stanley
- Shepard McLean Ferrell Williamson
- Luther Long Charles Thomas
- Juliet Long Bonnie Guy
- Mrs. Matilda Blackberry Nalinda Dennis
- Mrs. Warren Bobby Newton
- Sylvia Kline Dorothy King
- Mrs. Carbotto Anglin Dorothy Arnold
- Cynthia Anglin Mary Pearl Griffin
- Max Moore Paul Hughes
- Ninivah Bernice Lowe
- Admission 15 and 25 cents.

PEACHES AND PLUMS NEED SUMMER SPRAY

Peach and plum trees in central and south Alabama are ready for the first summer spray. The spray, prepared by mixing one pound lead arsenate and four pounds hydrated lime in 50 gallons of water, prevents wormy fruit. When three-fourths of the petal drop this poison is applied and used again two weeks later for best results.

This Week In National Defense

President Roosevelt, in a press conference, said that although the U. S. rearmament program is being greatly accelerated, he is still not satisfied with the rate of production.

Director Knudson of the Office of Production Management said that "during the last seven months we have actually started, and more than 60 per cent completed 784 new factories," employed thousands of contractors, commensured all existing shipyards and ordered seven new ones. He reported progress and needed production increase as follows:

- 30 Cal. machine guns—"ahead of schedule," need 500 per cent increase;
- 50 cal. machine guns—"9 per cent ahead of schedule," need 100 per cent increase;
- 13-ton tanks—"fair rate," need 100 per cent increase;
- 26-ton tanks—"production deliberately held up" by the Government; powder production and TNT—"on schedule";
- head of schedule," need 100 per cent increase;
- machine guns—"ahead of schedule," need 50 per cent increase;
- aluminum—"production increased from 25 million pounds a month a year ago to 40 million pounds a month;"
- need 70 million pounds a month; manganese—"production doubled," need six-fold increase;
- supplies and equipment—"satisfactory";
- Army and Navy housing—"construction over half completed; need 44,500 buildings and 95,000 tent frames."

Vice President Wallace, speaking in New York said, "we are not working hard enough. We do not realize that our very lives are at stake and that speed now may make the difference of millions of lives in this hemisphere."

Aid To Democracies

The President released to the British 10 U. S. Coast Guard cutters under terms of the Lend-Lease Act. He also pledged Jugoslavia "the United States will speedily furnish all material assistance possible." The President responded by proclamation the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden, permitting U. S. commercial vessels to come up the East side of Africa to the Suez Canal.

The President signed an agreement with the Danish Minister to classify Greenland with Canada, Martinique and other foreign possessions in the Western Hemisphere which the U. S. would defend from foreign attack. The State Department recalled instances of German activity in Greenland as recently as March and said the agreement gave the U. S. the right to construct air bases.

Agriculture

The Dept. of Agriculture began pantheon of the ever-normal granary program to assure ample supplies of pork, dairy products, eggs and poultry by buying in the open market to support long-term prices at these levels: hogs (cwt.) $9.00; dairy products (butter-pound basis), $31; chickens (lb.) $15; eggs (doz.) $22. The President explained the program was primarily a stabilization matter—to present reasonable assurance to hog producers, for example, that the price of pork

Mark Remarks:

Thanks to all the friendly editors who have placed Chilton County News on their exchange lists. Courtesy which I appreciate very much.

If all males were trained as skilled war munitions mechanics, who would do the plowing and hoeing?

Alabama peach blossoms are making the arales look like a patch of old field daisies.

Just now, no country in the world has more beautiful scenery than North Alabama.

In our effort of all out aid to Britain we can't do the wrong things Britain's enemies have been doing, and are still doing, and deceive ourselves into believing that it is right just because WE are doing it.

In traveling through seven counties last week, I heard only one man openly express himself as being opposed to Bibb Graves for Governor next time. He was cussing Dixon 'cause he had been made to pay a penalty for failure to pay his luxury tax on time—and further remarked that Sparks and Peach didn't amount to anything.

If the president can order a foreign ship master arrested for sabotaging the machinery of his ship while in an American harbor, why can't he arrest a Labor Dictator for sabotaging the whole National Defense Program by calling hundreds of thousands of workmen off their jobs at a critical moment like this?

Practically all of the so-called "radio news casts" are now accompanied by a long propaganda harangue which certainly cannot be classed as news.

Remember that after America furnishes all-out aid to Britain, she is going to have to feed a starving world at the end of the conflict.

Sabotaging the Wall Street stock market for the duration would not be condemned by Mr. Average Citizen.

When you are reading this—if you are behind with your subscription—just remember that the boys who make the paper have to eat too.

Chilton County farmers will never get the full benefit of their labor until they learn to clean, grade and properly pack for market the products of their toil.

O yes, there is a big difference between a Socialite and a Socialist.

What is there in electing a Congress if all important public matters are to be decided through made-to-order "pols"?

Now I know Spring is here. The editors have started writing about saving the dogwood trees.

It is alright to talk about "cash crops" for farmers, but what Chilton County farmers want is "cash markets."

With Christian civilization destroying itself as fast as fertile brains can conjure up new death dealing devices, and destructive engines of war, what are we to expect after we become exhausted Communism, Mohammedanism, Confucianism, and all the other Pagan religions have not, so far, been seriously disturbed by this world conflagration. Are we sure that capitalism instead of Christianity is going to save us?

IMPORTANT DEFENSE MEASURE

United States army engineers have recommended the opening of the Coosa have submitted their reports showing how it can be done, and there the matter rests while other enterprises of a similar nature are being pushed to the front.

This sort of thing will not do. The people of the cities and towns along the Coosa Valley should arise in their might and demand action upon this imperatively important undertaking.

Meanwhile the report of the army engineers looking to the improvement of the Coosa itself, with a nine foot channel from Rome to Mobile, also should be pushed with all possible determination. It is actually an important defense measure, since it would provide navigation and power where great defense plants are being erected in Alabama.

This vitally important job has been pending for many years. Conditions are eminently favorable for getting it done at this time and the people of the Coosa Valley in Georgia and Alabama unquestionably can get action if they will put behind the movement all the enthusiasm and energy that their great importance warrants.—Gadsden Times.

The people of Scottsboro have a long memory. Even after two years they remember that Bibb Graves built roads for them all over Jackson County. ALABAMA WANTS BIBB GRAVES FOR GOVERNOR AGAIN

(Atticus Mullin, of the Montgomery Advertiser writes in his "Passing Through" column):

This columnist is convinced that the citizenship of Alabama is more concerned with its own peculiar and personal problems than in world affairs.

In the last 12 days the columnist has visited personally 22 counties, has contacted men and women from 48 counties, and met a single instance where the conversation turned to world affairs or national defense until it had been so turned by us.

We were agast, surprised and sometimes shocked by the insistent query, "ain't Bibb Graves going to be governor next time?" and "you are for Graves, ain't you?" We use the "ain't" because it was a hundred to one shot in the majority over "aren't".

We started out two weeks ago to keep tabs on what we heard politically. Something over 350 persons have shaken hands with us from 48 counties. In no instance has the next Alabama race for governor been more than the second subject of conversation. In most cases it has been the first subject. And we do not bring it up. In only one instance, that of a well known Selma banker, have we heard a man or woman comment but who said that he or she was for Graves for governor.

"Why?" the columnist has asked 349 times in the past two weeks. "Just because," was the common answer as to why they were supporting Graves. And having been an anti-Graves man for three times he has run for governor and having associated with anti-Graves men throughout the State for 15 years, we naturally associated most with men we thought were anti-Graves. But it is the old Dixon and Brandon, men, but particularly the Dixon men, who are for Graves now. Of course he has not lost any of his old support.

We found little criticism of Dixon. Sometimes we found a man who had been denied a job. But not too often. We found Dixon was regarded as a good governor.

We found no mass support for the civil service system. In fact, we found only two persons out of 350 interviewed who favored it. We found not more than 30 against it. We found the balance, the great, great majority, skeptical of it but not actively hostile. The general public opinion in Ala. is that Marshall Johnson, of Selma, John Newsome, of Birmingham, and Henry Perry, of Birmingham, must be supermen if they could pick more than 5,000 State employees and a civil service examination would find more than 98 per cent of them qualified for their jobs. In other words the people said to the writer that they thought the civil service was fattered by anti-Graves legislators, passed by an anti-Graves administration, administered by anti-Graves men and all in the hope it would prevent Graves from running again and if he did run, would take away from him the support of the State employees.

There was no mass attack upon civil service but a sort of threat that perhaps Gov. Graves, when and if he was selected, could make it a non-Marshall Johnson, Newsome, Perry organization. These things we report without comment. It is too early to talk politics, but we can't keep people from talking politics to us. There is no opposition yet to civil service and there may be none unless those who first named the employees start it, in the judgement of the columnist.

PEACH BLOSSOMS

In the Montgomery Advertiser last week we saw Atticus Mullin's mention of what Sid Gibson, of Verbena, had to say about the peach blossoms at Prattmont.

Sunday we went down to the Capital City. Remembering the aforesaid references, we were on the lookout for the Prattmont orchard.

Its beauty was impressive, true enough, as Mr. Gibson said. But we were treated to a scene far surpassing the Prattmont orchard as we went through the Thorsby district. There we saw peach blossoms by the wholesale, not any prettier than Prattmont, but a heap more of them.

Throughout Chilton County there are acres and acres of fine peach trees in full flush of gorgeous pink blossoms giving promise of a bumper crop of fruit—if a late frost don't get them as was the case last year when the entire crop was destroyed.

Also we learned in Chilton County there is high hopes and excellent prospects of a good strawberry season, but that also is prefaced by the same condition—if the freeze doesn't interfere.—Montevallo Times.

CLEAN as the Spring Sunshine

"The electric range no doubt has saved many a woman from a nervous breakdown in hot summer."

—Mrs. J. E. H. Hoyle, Ala.

That's Your Electric Light AND Your ELECTRIC RANGE

OPEN your kitchen doors and windows wide! Let in the Spring breezes! Clean and paint to your heart's desire! Chase out Winter's accumulation of dirt and soot. Sell to the junk man or give away that old-fashioned cook stove that did so much to soil your kitchen walls and curtains!

Put an ELECTRIC RANGE in the Place of that Old-Fashioned Range

As CLEAN and CONVENIENT as electric light. Costs less than a cent a meal per person for electricity. Cook any way you want—with lots of water or a little bit. (Vegetables taste much better when cooked with just a bit, and it's easier to cook this way on an electric range than on any other.)

MANY MODELS PRICES STILL MODERATE

You can buy a clean, economical electric range for only $121.50 cash, or a few dollars down and a few dollars a month. Visit our store or a dealer's soon. Make your selection while many models are available; and prices are moderate.

FOLKS are usually willing to pay more to get the best. That's natural. The best is usually the cheapest. Chilean Nitrate of Soda, for instance! It's natural, the only natural nitrate in the world. Yet it costs no more. It contains 16% nitrogen and small quantities of other plant food "vitamin" elements, iodine, boron, magnesium, calcium, manganese, and many more. Use it regularly on all your crops, in mixed fertilizer before planting, and as top dressing and side dressing later on. That is the way to get the full benefit of its fertilizing and soil-improving qualities.

How To Produce Quality Peaches

By PAT H. SMITH
County Agent, Chilton County
Are you interested in producing quality peaches this year? If you are, it is advisable to plan to follow a complete spray schedule.

Since the peach trees have bloomed and are setting fruit and putting on foliage DO NOT USE ANY more dormant sprays such as oil emulsion.

"Wormy peaches" and "brown rot" are the peaches' worst enemies at this time of year. Both may be controlled with proper care. In general the worms are controlled with sulphur. There are several good commercial ready-mixed spray materials that may be used successfully. These sprays contain the above materials.

Peaches should be sprayed with lead arsenate spray now for the curculio which causes wormy peaches. Use either a ready-mixed material (follow manufacturers' recommendations) or use one pound of lead arsenate and four pounds of hydrated lime for 50 gallons of spray. This spray should be applied first when about three-fourths of the petals have fallen. It should be repeated when the shucks are shedding and the small fruit is exposed. Repeat again about one month before the fruit gets ripe.

Use dry-mix-line sulphur for control of scab and brown rot. Apply about two weeks after the small fruit becomes fully exposed and again about one month before harvesting.

Further information on the above may be found on pages 140-141 and 143-144 of Handbook of Alabama Agriculture 3rd Edition.

A circular on the above may be obtained from your County Agents by writing or calling by the office at Clanton.

It is now time to turn your winter legumes. In a majority of cases, in Chilton County, the peas and vetches have made an excellent growth. By turning at this time, the legumes can be completely covered and the crop following may be planted reasonably early. If the turning is put off, the legumes will be too large to be turned with a two-horse plow and it may get too dry.

Do NOT plant succeeding crops until two weeks or longer after turning. If this is not observed, poor stands may result. Worms damage to corn usually follows, if planting is done too soon after turning.

How to fertilize crops following a GOOD CROP of winter legumes:

(a). CORN—Needs no additional fertilizer.
(b). COTTON—Apply at planting: 300 pounds of 16 per cent superphosphate, 50 pounds of nitrate of soda, 50 to 75 pounds of muriate of potash. Have You Ever Treated Cotton Seed With Mercury Dust?

The following facts should be kept in mind about cotton seed treated with mercury dust:

1. This practice does not make good seed out of bad seed.
2. It helps get stands in cool and damp weather.

3. Makes earlier planting possible.
4. Apply material according to manufacturers' recommendations.

5. Treated seed, which are not planted, should not be sold nor fed, because they are poisonous.

Blue prints for making barrel duster out of old oil drums can be furnished by your County Agent. For further information on the above, you are referred to page 20 of Handbook of Alabama Agriculture, 3rd Edition.

THORSBY JR. HIGH SCHOOL

On next Friday, April 18, the Thorsby Jr. High School will hold their play day exercise. This concludes the 1940-41 school term. All parents and friends are cordially requested to attend this gay affair. Last year's Play Day was credited as being one of the finest events of its type during the history of the school; so, come on you parents and prepare a picnic lunch, bring it to the campus and spend the day with your youngsters in their varied play activities. The school is divided into two groups, the Reds and the Blues. There groups are to compete against each other in a variety of contests. Some of the features are, The Grand March, Virginia Reel, May Pole Dance and numerous stunts and reels. The afternoon will be given over to a softball game between the Thorsby Jr. High School girls and our close neighbor, the Collins Chapel girls.

Following this, our Jr. High boys will tackle the Collins Chapel boys in a baseball game.

The program will begin at 10:30. Lunch from 12:30 to 1:00 p.m. The two ball games from 1:00 to 3:00. We hope pleasant weather will remain, so we may make this a banner program. Don't fail your school.

Final examinations are in progress this week.

The Operetta staged recently by the Grammar Dept. was enjoyed by a large audience.

The Jr. 1 Science class organized a Bird Club during the term. Many fine results have come from this unit. Acute interest was manifested by each member of the class. Many song birds will cheer our lives as these young lads and lassies move to feed and protect them and encourage them to frequent our courtyards.

Our boys basketball team closed out a fairly good record for the season, with two substitute players left from the previous year's team; they went about compiling a record of 17 wins against 7 losses in Jr. High School competition. In the county tourney they opened the program by defeating Thomas Jr. by a 36 to 16 count. In the quarter finals they knocked out the seeded team of Enterprise by a score of 29 to 17. This advanced them to the semi-finals, where the county champions from Mt. Pleasant won over them by a 6 point margin—18 to 24. With nothing at stake, they played a half-hearted drab affair against the Baker Jr. Hi team in the consolation game losing 28 to 23.

The P.-T. A. made a fine addition to our school recently; a mimeograph.

If you wish to observe some excellent unit work see the Feudal Castle arranged by the 6th grade under the direction of their class room instructor Mrs. Wright, also the Scrapbook collection by the Jr. 1 Geography and the Jr. 11 Alabama History.

The Thorsby Jr. High faculty reports a splendid trip to Birmingham during the AEA.

Mumps, measles and flu have cut deeply into our attendance for the past month.

The Jr. 1 Bird Club enjoyed a lovely party and Easter Egg Hunt last Friday afternoon. Thanks to Mrs. Bice for supervising the serving of refreshments.

The school takes this opportunity to extend their thanks to the P.T.A. for her untiring efforts in managing the lunch room this season.

Don't forget, we're looking for you at the play day exercises tomorrow. Lots of fun.

Mr. and Mrs. O. N. Turner from Lay Dam was the week end guest of their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Leroy visited in Alabaster Sunday.

Mr. Bill Jones was home for the week end.

The program that was rendered at the Isabella church was a success. We invite everyone to come up every Sunday evening.

ALABAMA FARMERS GETTING BANG'S DISEASE PAYMENTS

Alabama farmers and cattlemen will be paid this year approximately $150,000 for Bang's disease infected cattle by the State Department of Agriculture and the United States Department of Agriculture and the United States Department of Agriculture, announces Haygood Paterson, Commissioner of Agriculture, Montgomery.

Under the Bang's control program the cattle owner must receive as high as $25 for a grade animal, the state department paying up to $1250 and the Bureau of Animal Industry matching this amount. Fifty dollars may be received for a purchased animal. The amount received for animals is based upon the difference between the appraisal value and the amount received from salvage, the owner receiving one-third of the difference.

When an animal is found to be infected with Bang's disease it is immediately slaughtered for beef. The disease makes the animal worthless as a breeder but does not harm the meat.

Look at the FORD TRUCKS ON MAIN STREET!

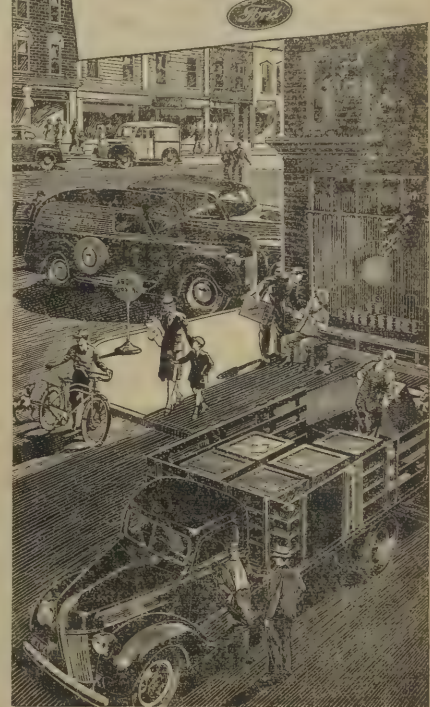

IN VILLAGE, town, and big city—on farms and on the highways . . . wherever you look, you see Ford Trucks at work on the nation's hauling jobs than trucks of any other make!

There are definite reasons why. Truck owners want a truck with the power, performance and dependability that Ford Trucks deliver. They want economy that starts with low first cost and continues with low operating and low maintenance cost. In Ford Trucks they get what they want!

It's no wonder Ford Trucks are as popular on Main Street as on Broadway! And they'll add to their popularity once you try them on your job. See your Ford Dealer today.

A Report To America

The Ford Motor Company's business has always been to serve the needs of the American people. In providing them with low-cost transportation for the past 38 years, we have developed one of the country's largest and most useful industrial units. During a national emergency, we feel that these facilities should be devoted without reserve to our country's needs. Toward that end we started rolling months ago, with these results:

1. A $2,000,000 Ford airplane engine factory, started only 6 months ago, is nearly completed. Production will start with an initial order for 4,236 eighteen cylinder, fair-iced, double row, radial engines.

2. We are building a new $800,000 Ford magnesium alloy foundry, one of the few in the country. It is already producing lightweight airplane engines castings.

3. Army reconnaissance cars—military vehicles of an entirely new type—are rolling off special Ford assembly lines at the rate of more than 600 a month. We have produced Army staff cars and bomber service trucks.

4. The government has given the "go-ahead" and work is now underway for the fast construction of an $11,000,000 Ford plant to produce bomber engine assemblies by mass production methods.

5. Several months ago work was started on our own initiative on an entirely new 1500 horsepower airplane engine especially designed for mass production. This engine is now in the test stage and plans are being developed for producing it in large quantities when and if needed.

6. A Ford aircraft apprentice school has been established to train 2,000 students at a time.

That is a report of progress to date.

The experience and facilities of this company can be used to do much of the job which America now needs to get done in a hurry. Our way of working, which avoids all possible red tape, enables us to get results and get them fast. This benefits users of our products and workers who produce them.

We are ready to make anything we know how to make, to make it to the limit of our capacity if need be, to make it as fast as we can go, and to start the next job whenever our country asks us to. And to this end, we know we have the full confidence and loyal support of the workmen throughout our plants.

Twice Governor Graves Appointed By President

President Roosevelt appointed a national inter-regional highway committee Monday to recommend a limited system of national highways, "designed to provide a basis for improved inter-regional transportation."

In a letter to John M. Carmody, Federal Works administrator, Mr. Roosevelt said that the seven-man group would serve in an advisory capacity to Carmody.

Those named are: Thomas H. MacDonald, commissioner of public roads; G. Donald Kennedy, Michigan highway commissioner; Bibb Graves, former Governor of Alabama; C. H. Purcell, California highway engineer; Frederic A. Delano, chairman National Resources Planning Board; Harland Bartholomew, city planner, St. Louis; and Rexford G. Tugwell, chairman New York City Planning Commission.

"Most of the members of this committee have both an extensive knowledge of the problem and a sympathetic interest in its solution," Mr. Roosevelt wrote. "It is my hope that our national needs will be paramount in their deliberations and that as a result of their recommendations, we can prepare detailed plans and specifications. This will permit us upon the conclusion of our defense program to utilize productively some of the man power and industrial capacity then available to construct a national system of inter-regional highways."

HOW TO GROW POTATOES FOR EARLY MARKET

Successful sweet potato growers will set their first plants about cotton planting time so that they will have yams ready for early market.

Pointing out that one important reason for early planting is to furnish vine cuttings for later use, W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist and horticulturist, urges farmers to plant one-fourth of entire area to be put to Black and Miss Elizabeth Anderson of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Taylor; Prof. and Mrs. J. W. Moore, all spent the week end at Mr. Taylor's camp on the river.

Six hundred to 800 pounds of 4-10-7 fertilizer per acre is recommended.

LETTER FROM UNCLE GUS JACKSON

Dear Editor, Chilton County News: I have been requested to say through your paper in regard to old-age pension for the aged. I have reached the age of sixty years and people know that the Federal Government has made $15.00 per month available for old age pensions provided states match that amount. There is organization at Gadsden, Ala. this organization gets out a monthly magazine and is sponsoring a movement for a state law to give each person who has reached the age of 60 years a pension of $30 per month upon the paper's oath. This organization has more than thirty counties organized with a membership of around one hundred thousand, the rest of the counties will be organized by the year 1942. Now to the sons and daughters of our aged of Alabama. Do you want to honor father and mother their days may be long upon this earth? If you do, get behind this old age pension movement with all of your might and power and make it a reality. Your pa and ma, and grandpa and grandma came through the reconstruction of our state after the destruction of the civil war, and brought it from the carpetbag rule, and saved our civilization of the great south. We should and it is right that special pensions can retire on a good pension and thousands of people are now old and unfortunate, and have no means of support have to drag out their lives in poverty. May the people of our state, and county wake up, and inform themselves as to the true condition of our aged people. We have the age and blind among us who do not get one-fourth enough to make life comfortable. Who is responsible for conditions? The skilled politicians would have us believe our state is broke, but it isn't, but it is a state that there can be funds got to put over most any thing except help all of our aged poor. Some get help and some can't. May our people of our state, and county wake up as to their duty to our aged, and let's put over a program that will help all of our aged people a comfortable living. Watch the politicians fall fine with this great movement because it is going to be a power by the year of 1942. Children honor thy Father and Mother by giving them a pension of $30.00 per month that thy days may be long upon the earth.

Respectively,
UNCLE GUS JACKSON

Victory For Farmers
By ATTICUS MULLIN
Farmers of Alabama will benefit to the extent of $15,000,000 annually from the benefits of the Bankhead bill which was unanimously reported by the Senate committee on agriculture Tuesday, if it finally becomes a law.
"It is a great victory for the farmers of Alabama," said Col. Bibb Graves Tuesday afternoon after his friends in Washington had advised him of the vote of the Senate agricultural committee reporting a cotton parity bill introduced by Senator Bankhead.
Col. Graves is a member of President Roosevelt's national advisory committee on agriculture and was in Washington recently and favored the measure sponsored by Senator Bankhead and the American Farm Bureau Federation.

For Post-War Economy
"After the war," said Col. Graves Tuesday evening, "it will be agriculture upon which we must depend largely for normalcy. I sincerely believe hope that the Senate will pass the bill, that the House will concur and that it will become law. The millions that will accrue to Alabama each year more than offset temporary millions we might get for war efforts. Agriculture is our basis of industry."
Senator Bankhead was justly proud of the fact that his price-foam bill was reported favorably by the Senate committee on agriculture. Senator Bankhead and his colleagues from the South had tried to get Secretary of Agriculture Wickard to endorse the bill. The agricultural secretary not only opposed parity for the Southern farmer but he vetoed the committee President Roosevelt opposed parity. But Senator Bankhead did not quit at that and so the Senate agricultural committee had reported the bill and the Senate will pass it and chances are that the House will pass it and if the President disapproves it his colleagues are that Senator Bankhead will pass it over the President. Col. Graves has pledged his help on an "all out" basis.

Bankhead Determined
"My parity loan bill was reported by the Senate committee on agriculture today by a unanimous vote of the members present," said Senator Bankhead in a telegram to the writer.
Senator Bankhead has said all along that the fact that President Roosevelt opposed parity for the Southern cotton farmer would not deter him from getting it. The senator had the backing of the Alabama Farm Bureau, Col. Graves, and all of those who had the interest of the farmer at heart. In spite of the fact that the Farm Bureau has not the membership is growing rapidly and every farmer who joins will probably reap a thousand per cent in dues from the Bankhead-Farm Bureau parity bill itself beside many other things organized agriculture will get —Montgomery Advertiser.

will be at a fair level when specially fattened animals are ready for market.

Consumer Protection

The President combined the Defense, Commission divisions of price stabilization and consumer protection into an Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply. The new agency is designed to prevent rising cost of living, hoarding and profiteering, and provide for the necessary supply and equitable distribution of materials and commodities for civilian uses. The President cited the "draft industry" clause of the Selective Service Act as authority for enforcing orders of the new offices.

Consumer Commissioner Elliott stated the cotton textile industry is able to meet all possible military and civilian needs, shoe prices will rise only moderately, and there are sufficient supplies of raw materials for most other consumer goods.

Selective Service

Selective Service Headquarters amended regulations to permit 10 days instead of five days notice of induction to registrants and a postponement of induction for 60 days when necessary to avoid "unusual individual hardships."

The System also advised local boards to request registrants who are doctors to apply for commissions in the Medical Corps Reserve and ruled that registrants who are seamen may be deferred when they are essential to a ship.

The System designated six reforestation and soil conservation work projects in California, Colorado, Indiana, Maryland, Virginia and Michigan to which conscientious objectors may be assigned.

The Army

The War Department estimated Army strength at 1,185,600—68,611 officers and 1,117,000 enlisted men, as follows: 487,000 Regular Army, 286,000 National Guard, 38,000 Reserve, 374,000 trainees. In an Army Day radio speech, Chief of Staff Gen. Marshall said: "Remarkable progress has been made... our men have drilled and worked through all kinds of weather and under all sorts of conditions. The Army now emerges as an organized force."

Gen. Marshall quoted Rep. Wadsworth of New York (R) as telling Congress with respect to food, order and absence "I think there has been nothing like it in military history. No Army has ever made such a record."

Labor

The U. S. Conciliation Service announced settlement of 54 strikes during the current week, including the Ford Motor Company controversy. Secretary of Labor Perkins certified the following strikes to the Defense Mediation Board: Phelps-Dodge Copper Products Corporation, Elizabeth, N. J.; Seas Shipping Company, New York City; J. Sklar Manufacturing Company, Long Island, N. Y.; and the Cowley Tool Company, Cleveland, Ohio. The Board settlement of the Allis-Chalmers and Seas Shipping Company strikes at West Allis, Wis. and New York City, respectively.

LIBERTY HILL

Next Saturday and Sunday, April 19th and 20th, are our regular preaching days. Everyone keep this in mind and plan to be present at both services. Remember too, that Sunday afternoon is our regular monthly singing beginning at 2:00. We invite all singers to come and enjoy the evening in song service.

BETHSALEM

Rev. Floyd Smith of Clanton will be preaching at Bethesda Baptist church Sunday night, April 20th. The services will begin after 8 P. M. Everyone is urged to come for the grace of God, so less give him a 100 per cent attendance.

Third Saturday and Sunday being our regular preaching days, we also want to give you a hearty welcome to come and hear our beloved pastor, Bro. J. T. Bice, who was called after Bro. Lovery's death. We miss Bro. Lovery's loving kindness, and clothing, but we know the Lord knew best; so we are gratefully thankful to have his nearest comrade in the ministry, Bro. Bice, as our pastor. We trust you will come with a joyful heart.—R. E. Wilkins.

Floyd News

Last Saturday night we had a good prayer service. Our Sunday School was good but there was not many there. Our B. T. U. was fine and there was a good crowd. We are very thankful now because we have good light. Everybody come to church that can.

REV. HOMER MARSH TO PREACH AT THORSBY BAPTIST

Rev. Homer Marsh of Pinson, Ala. will preach at Thorsby Baptist church both morning and night services. Everyone is invited to come out and hear him, especially do we urge every member to be present.

The many friends of Mrs. J. F. Sweet will be glad to know she is able to leave the hospital, where she has been very ill with measles and pneumonia. Mrs. E. M. Miller, Evergreen, Ala.

FLOWER VANDAL VISITS UPCHURCH'S BEAUTIFUL LAWN

A negro woman was arrested during the week end by night officers, Willis and Pyle, when they found her going down the street with a large armful of Azalea blossoms. When the officers first picked the negroess up she said that Mrs. Upchurch had given them to her but upon calling found this to be untrue. The officers arrested the culprit.

Local officers are keeping a sharp eye out for flower vandals and the offense carries a fine and imprisonment.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all those who helped us in any way during the illness and death of our wife and mother, and we especially thank Dr. Golden and Dr. Lawrence and Mr. and Mrs. White of Spigener Funeral Home—N. O. Rebeck and family.

THORSBY SECTION

Thorsby Institute will hold its annual Christian Life Conference on April 23 through 27 of this year. The Registration will begin at 3:45 on Friday noon, April 25. Outstanding speakers will take place during the entire three days and a number of prominent and interesting speakers will be present. The program will be given next week.

The fifth term examinations will be held at the Institute on Thursday, Friday of this week. The sixth and seventh term of school year will begin on Monday, April 21.

The Stamp Club had charge of the Chapel Program on Monday morning, at which time the history of the postage stamp in the form of a radio broadcast was presented. This was a very interesting and educational program. The program will be given next week. The Thorsby Institute students enjoyed an Easter-egg hunt on Friday afternoon.

FOLKS and THINGS ABOUT TOWN

Received this communication this morning in regards to the Cullman Strawberry Festival.

R. M. Tucker, Cullman County News, Cullman, Ala.

Mr. Tucker:

When your father was in the office Monday, I discussed with him the possibility of Chilton County sending a representative preferably a senior in high school to our Strawberry Festival on April 24th and 25th.

The committee will furnish Princess Cullman County meals and room and board for entertainment.

Next week Chilton County is going to have a bust photo of her for Strawberry Festival Booklet.

Respectfully yours,

HENRY F. ARNOLD, Chilton County Strawberry Festival Committee.

Is it anyone has any ideas on the subject come forward and let's get them together on this matter.

Clanton experienced a "blackout" Saturday night, or rather early Sunday morning when the Alabama Power Company "cut the juice" about 11 o'clock a.m. Of course all this had to do with us, being in bed asleep that hour, due to age and wishes. I may say that the City was a handsome and small-townish look with the street lights off and not a single light showing anywhere.

The talk of the town Monday was the fire blaze at the Woco-Pep plant in Clanton. Thirty thousand gallons of fuel oil were burned. The fire don't break out every day and naturally excitement reigned throughout the day.

Did you noticed that we have house on our places of about 7500 sq. ft. if the present administration of the place they're going Clanton will be a City before we know it. The numbers mean another mail car and better mail service. And another, elsewhere in this issue of the paper, if the present administration of the place they're going Clanton will be a City before we know it.

They're telling this one on Jimmie. Jimmie went to the fire the other day. He was everywhere else in the fire of the gas tanks he was in the thick clouds of black smoke and beautiful furies of red flames. He was in the thick clouds of black smoke and beautiful furies of red flames. He was in the thick clouds of black smoke and beautiful furies of red flames.

Wriggling fire, it seems that the fire was a big one. We haven't learned what the damage amounted to.

There are high around town after the wonderful crowd that was in the trading last Saturday afternoon. Lester Jones, manager of Big Hardware, was so busy until late afternoon that he says some one to come in from next door and that his telephone receiver was broken, someone had answered it and he was too busy to call the party. In fact, Lester says that he was so busy, had he answered the phone he was too busy to talk and too busy to listen.

Understand that two crates of Co.-Ala. Strawberries were sent last week by L. E. Dieffenfelder. The crates were better than $4.00 per crate. They were the first crates of the 1941 strawberry season, which we may now on.

The new highway markings on the new highway. Motorist who have no trouble at all. There are those who will ignore, however, Mel Martin or White at Spigners will take care of them or refuse to look out for themselves or others.

Moats, and Moats, Saturday afternoon while coming back from the saw Adolph Moats, Paul and Ray Moats all with their own back door at the A and P. The crowds, probably wondering there were any Moats in town.

ing here Saturday for their fifth time to the Gulf Coast will be five. The most enthusiastic fishermen, "Johnny," "Gaby" and "Melton," Earl (no nicknames) and his son Wm. H. (no nicknames).

Official Summer uniform of the Alabama Home Guard, which has been formally adopted. Shirt and trousers are of khaki with blue pocketflaps and shoulder straps on shirt. Cap is also of khaki with khaki band and black feather strap and visor. Belt is blue. Tie and shoes are black. Leggings are regulation canvas. Complete uniform is seen above as modeled by a member of the State Military Department Staff. The official insignia worn on the left shoulder and cap is the Alabama State Coat of Arms. Separate organizations and units are designed by appropriate color ornaments.

Preparations Made To Pave Second Avenue

Drainage work and preparations for laying blacktop have begun on West 2nd Avenue. This will give motorists two paved routes to the city from the city limits on the Maplesville Highway.

Included in this program are plans for the paving of several other streets between second and third avenue. WPA labor is being used.

Smith. Our guess is that Mr. Smith is going to sort a keep that bunch in line. We wouldn't go so far as to say that they would need watching, but all being married men, and way down on the Gulf Coast hundreds of miles from home and a beautiful Gulf moon, and pretty bathing girls, well . . . you know. And another thing, we understand they want no questions asked about the fish they caught until the following Wednesday or Thursday . . . they want to think up a good one.

Elementary School Graduates 87 Students Friday

Oline Mims Awarded Prize As Honor Student Of Scholastic Year

Graduation exercises were held last Friday morning at the Clanton Grammar School at 11:00 o'clock. Eighty-seven boys and girls received their diplomas and start to Chilton County High School next year.

Mayor Cohen E. Stapp awarded the diplomas to Mrs. Porch's pupils and Supt. of Education, Rascoe Maddox awarded those to Miss Bratton's.

Oline Mims was awarded the book given by the Clanton Study Club to the honor student of the year, and Julia Nell Parrish was chosen as Miss Liberty from the two classes.

Each class had a musical program that was enjoyed by a large number of parents.

LIST OF SELECTED MEN TO LEAVE ON APRIL 28TH

The following named men have been selected by Local Draft Board No. 1 and shall report to this Board at Clanton at 9:00 on April 28, 1941, whereupon they shall be sent to an induction station of the United States Army at Ft. McClellan, Aniston, Ala.

REPLACEMENTS—

Claud Lee Hunt, Eneza Rutland, Paul Suther, Conner Johnson, Elzie Moton, Ocie Minor, Jr., Teamon Lee Hill, Willie Williams.

CHILTON COUNTY'S HISTORY IS REVIEWED IN BIRMINGHAM NEWS

W. J. Boles, who conducts a daily column entitled "This Date in Alabama History" in the Birmingham Post-Herald, has furnished the following, clipped from his Monday's edition:

Chilton County, in Central Alabama, first named Baker for Alfred Baker and three years later, in 1871, was changed to the present name in honor of Chief Justice William B. Chilton, of the Alabama Supreme Court, and member of the Confederate Congress.

The county seat also was named for a distinguished Alabamian, Gen. James H. Clanton, one of the outstanding officers of the Confederate Army and a leader among the native white people in reconstruction days when the state was treated by Congress and the national administration as a conquered province. It was a long struggle with leaders like Gen. Clanton that "spoilers" eventually were ousted and the state and local governments restored to the people of the state.

Among the first officials of the county were Mordecai Robertson,

City Moves To End Traffic Jams On City Streets

One Hour Parking Limit On Highway Thru City Effective April 26

The City Officials have observed for quite a long time that the address and professional people of Clanton who own automobiles drive their cars to town early in the morning and park them on the main streets, leaving very little or no parking space for people who come to town to make purchases or transact business.

In an effort to provide parking space for the people who wish to stop for a short time for business in the main section of town, the city officials have passed an ordinance limiting parking to ONE HOUR on the Birmingham-Monroeville Highway between Burdette's Filling station and the intersection of Selma Road. In order to cooperate with the Highway Department, parking will be limited to this area to ONE HOUR EVERYDAY.

The ordinance provides for a TWO HOUR parking limit on SATURDAY ONLY on Second Avenue between the Courthouse and the Railroad.

THE CITY WILL BEGIN ENFORCING THE PARKING LIMIT APRIL 26TH.

The ordinance also provides that ALL trucks other than pick-up trucks are prohibited from parking in the prohibited zone except for loading and unloading. The City employees are re-marking the parking spaces and are providing certain loading and unloading places. Everyone is urged to observe the new parking ordinance, and are requested to discontinue parking in the streets, thereby causing "traffic jams".

Mayor Stapp points out the above ordinances were carefully thought out, and it is believed will prove beneficial to the business in general.

City Doing Splendid Work On Clanton Cemetery

The city employees are doing some more work in the cemetery this week. Mayor Stapp advises that he hopes to be able to keep the cemetery open over regularly with lawn mower so as to get an even sod and better kept appearance.

Among those who responded to the recent call of Mayor Stapp for the cemetery fund are: W. W. (Bud) Jones, Mrs. Hosea Downs, J. O. Middleton, Terry Marcus and Monroe Foshee.

Fire Destroys Gasoline Tanks; $30,000 Damage

Storage Tanks of Wofford Oil Co. Destroyed In Spectacular Blaze

A fire, feeding from 60,000 gallons of gas from four storage tanks in Wofford Clanton, belonging to the Wofford Oil Company (Woco-pep), Monday morning resulted in an estimated loss of between $20,000 and $30,000.

The origin of the conflagration is unknown, other than it is believed it was started from a stroke of lightning.

The fire broke around 9:00, when a sudden explosion that sounded like thunder was heard by Benson Simms, warehouseman, who was stationed about 50 feet from the scene when the first tank blew up. Simms states that when he looked out, flame was shooting several hundred feet into the air.

The loss was three gasoline tanks, containing approximately 50,000 gallons; one tank containing about 10,000 gallons of tractor fuel; one automobile, one truck and one pick-up truck; and the residence of Mr. Walter Ward, which was a total loss. Mr. A. A. Bazzel, local distributor for the Wofford Oil Company, stated that the exact loss was yet undetermined, but would run between twenty and thirty thousand dollars.

The local fire department was immediately summoned and did an excellent job of keeping the fire under control, although they were somewhat handicapped by the danger of sudden explosions of the tanks that prevented them from nearing. They were summoned for a second time about noon when the fire broke out again, but it was soon extinguished.

Hundreds Witness Scene

Traffic was held up for some time as hundreds of people crowded to the scene immediately after the explosions began. The explosions, which endangered almost all South Clanton, attracted people from almost everywhere, and the black smoke, which darkened the entire city, drew people from Thorshy, Verbera, Cooper and from almost every point in the county.

This fire, it is said, was the largest single loss by fire since the burning of the Clanton County High School in November, 1938.

OFFICE HOURS CHANGED BY DRAFT BOARD

The office hours of the Local Draft Boards of Chilton County have been changed as follows:

8:00 a.m. to 4 p.m. each week day except Saturday.

8:00 a.m. to 12:00 Noon on Saturdays.

All registrants registered with the above mentioned Boards please take note of the change in office hours.

Crowson's Mill Destroyed By Fire Saturday

Saturday afternoon fire broke out in Crowson's Mill in East Clanton and the place was a total loss. The fire gained such a headway, due to the old frame building and the nature of its contents, that the local fire department could not gain control of it. It is understood that the business was not covered by insurance.

Aged Clanton Citizen Passes

Mr. J. H. Broadhead, a long-time resident of Clanton and Chilton county passed at his residence Saturday afternoon at 4:20 p.m. He was 86 years of age.

Funeral services were held from the residence Sunday afternoon at 3:00, conducted by the Rev. T. C. Casaday, with interment in the Clanton cemetery. Spigner Funeral Home was in charge.

He is survived by widow, Mrs. Fannie Broadhead; two sons, J. D. of Clanton and G. D. of Montgomery; one daughter, Mrs. J. R. Popwell of Clanton. Also several grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Palbearers were Joe Calloway, Arthur Broadhead, Luther Ellison, Otto Jones, Harmon Broadhead, Gus Reiter, Robert Teel and E. J. Callum.

During 1941 Chilton County Should Double Its Production of Beef and Dairy Cattle, Hogs, Poultry, Mules, Sheep and Goats. Strawberry, Peach and Potato Production Should Increased One-third. At Least A Dozen Small Industries Should Be Located In Chilton County. It Can and Should Be Done.

Mark Remarks:

A healthy looking youngster, just born into the Alabama newspaper family, is the Marshall County Record, published by Lonnie Wilson at Guntersville. Mrs. S. E. White is associate editor. Guntersville should prove to be a lucrative field for a progressive newspaper, such as The Record, bid fair to become.

It will take something worse than an earthquake to "shake" Hunter Colson. If he carried a seismograph in his pocket, it wouldn't ever quiver during a quake.

I hope German's invasion of America will never be any worse than this German measles blitz now going the rounds.

"Blackberry winter" and dewberry pie is not far away.

Baldwin County has a Potato Festival. Cullman is going all out for a Strawberry Festival; now what is the matter with Chilton having a Peach Festival. We are going to have more and better peaches than any other county in the State.

The appointment by President Roosevelt of Col. Bibb Graves, twice governor of Alabama, (and every indication points toward his election to the governorship again next year) to the important advisory committee to make a survey of the Nation's highways in connection with the program of National Defense, is indeed a merited one. Col. Graves, proved himself to be a military expert in more ways than one during World War No. I. He is an engineer and knows as much about road building as any other public official in the Nation. We shall look for Bibb the Builder to take a leading part in this committee's activities.

Clanton's Traffic

The present Mayor and City Council have done much to rife City of Clanton. We have at all times, whenever possible, complimented them highly on their good judgement and their balanced program.

Now is our turn to find fault. What can't something be done about the traffic situation on our main streets on late Saturday afternoons.

Last Saturday time and again traffic was stalled for five to ten minutes due to drivers parking their automobiles in the middle of the streets, and in one case, that we know of, the driver got out of the car and went into a store to shop and left the car without a driver in the streets.

Such things as that are ridiculous as our streets are. Of course cars were backed up for a block until traffic in the opposite direction allowed passage. Then of course west-bound traffic was stopped.

To let a passenger out of your car or to pick up a passenger is alright but to park for minutes, not caring about the fellow behind you who may be in a hurry and wants to go on is selfish.

Something should be done about this. It would be another feather in the caps of our Mayor and Councilmen.

EDITORIAL TALK

SUPPLY AND DEMAND—
Shelby County Reporter last week recorded "Big Liquor Raid Made in Shelby County." Eleven men were arrested and a school bus seized. What's the matter up there? Can't the state stores supply the demands?—Greene County Democrat.

FARM TO MARKET ROADS—

Farm to market roads have been the topic of many a discussion before many a civic club and in Cullman County doubtless they have not been discussed enough, since our farm-to-market roads are definitely below par. That point was driven painfully home to us this week when Editor, Mark Tucker of Clanton, publisher of the Chilton County NEWS, was in our office, declared that Chilton County had 3,000 miles of good farm-to-market roads, that the county road department boasted that there was not a farm in Chilton County that could not be reached in practically any kind of weather. . . . Yes, they have lots of politics down there too, but they provide such a road system in spite of the fact—Cullman Banner.

ALABAMA COOSA PROSPECTS—

Anniston was represented among 75 leaders of northeast Alabama and northwest Georgia who met in Gadsden Wednesday afternoon to pledge their support of the Alabama-Coosa River Waterways Improvement program.

A dozen cities promised to send delegations to Washington April 28 to a hearing before government engineers.

Favorable report has been given by the district War Department engineer, and it seems that years of patient effort by a few waterways enthusiasts are about to bear fruit.

Development of this waterway will mean a tremendous push in the long-time progress of this part of the South.—Anniston Times.

CHIL-CO-ALA PRODUCTS—

The Chilton County News, Mark Tucker's Clanton weekly, has a very attractive cut on either side of its heading on the front page each week. They are baskets of luscious looking strawberries labeled "Chil-Co-Ala. Straw-berreries." A fine way to advertise this splendid product of Chilton, second only to the juicy peaches this middle Alabama county produces.—Limestone Democrat.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. D. HASKEW, D. D.

It was the first of the month and I was making the rounds to settle up a few bills that had been made. While I was in a Drug store a young matron approached the book keeper and without a word she wrote out a check. When she had signed the check she handed it to the man saying, "Twelve dollars for drinks and cigarettes." Some fifteen minutes later I was in a Grocery store and in walked this same young matron. She asked for her grocery bill, and on seeing that it was twenty four dollars she went into a rage. She said all manner of unkind things to the book keeper, and finally she wound up her bitter explosion by affirming that she would not pay all of the bill. She handed the store a ten dollar check and walked out with indignation on her face. It looked mighty strange to me that the young woman could so willingly pay her bill for cigarettes and drinks and yet she growled so loudly about her grocery bill. If she had left off her drinking and smoking she could have paid her grocery bill and she would have been by far a more healthy and more sensible woman. . . .

In a certain little town a prominent citizen walked into a barber shop to get a hair cut. The barberman had been drinking and was near enough to be silly. He took his clips and with a few running strokes he cut the customer's hair to the skin. His head looked like a highway running over a mountain peak. On looking into the mirror the man saw what had taken place and he refused to be amused with the drunken barber. He left the shop in a rage and made haste to a lawyer's office. He tried to sue the hilarious barber for disfiguring his head of hair. He never tried to sue the man who sold the whiskey. Whiskey will make a man do more foolish things than the law can take care of. . . .

On the twelfth day of December 1799 the Father of our country was dying. As he breathed his last the attending physician looked up at the clock and it was just ten twenty P.M. He reached for the pendulum of the clock and lifted it from its place and the clock stopped. There the hand has been through all of the following years and today the hand is still pointing to the same hour and moment. Like Washington, it died at that hour, and yet, like Washington, it still speaks of a great life. When we live a life that is worth while, we may die, but yet we shall live on forever. Blessed is that one who can talk through the centuries, even though he be dead. . . .

The Russians have a fable about a lazy miller who discovered a leak in his mill dam. The water was flowing through in a great flood, but the man was too lazy to fix it. The water that should have been saved to turn his mill wheel went by and no meal could be ground. This same old miller was often heard to curse the birds as they drank from his pond, accusing them of consuming all of his water. That is a picture of many Americans. They discover the leaks. They find the broken disks through which opportunity flows in great currents, but they do nothing about it. They fume and fust about minor things. They blame every little circumstance as being the cause of their failures. When we become filled with energy and go our full length and strength to stop the big leaks, when the little leaks will not matter so much. . . .

The little lady was out among her flowers selecting some rose buds to be sent to the room of a sick neighbor. She did not cut a single rose that had opened. The choice was made from those buds that were just ready to open. This was because the opening buds would last longer and be far more beautiful than if they were ready to shed their petals. Why is it that so many people insist on giving to God the life that is just about spent. Why delay the matter of giving Jesus Christ your life? Give it to Him when you are young. Give it to Him when the length of your life is in the gift. Now is the accepted time to today is the day of salvation. Give of the very best to the Master. Give the strength of your youth. Carry Him your life while the dew is on the opening days of living. . . .

He Saved . . .

He was born many years ago, so many in fact, that there are those who doubt that He ever lived.

His parents were poor. His father's name was Joseph, who built houses and did repair jobs for the citizens of the village. His mother was Mary.

Lest you are still in doubt about this boy's true identity, He came to be known to the world as Jesus.

He did not understand the meaning of saving applied to gold, silver, or material things, his fellow men seemed to cherish. Because of this peculiarity many misunderstood Him.

But He knew them, and read their hearts and souls, and endeavored to save them from themselves.

Before He died He convinced men that certain values were more precious than land, goods, gems, or gold, or any paltry accumulation of man.

He did not kill, but rather made the dead to walk.

He was known as the Prince of Peace, even in the war-torn world of today.

He was crucified by men who did not understand, and who therefore feared Him. He died forgiving them. In life He possessed nothing but a soul. His body meant nothing, and He made no attempt to save it.

To a man whose body was valueless, all things else of a material nature were worthless, yet in no sense was this man a wastrel simply because His sense of values differed from those of His brothers.

The saving of gold has been practiced by men for ages. It is done to

ELECTRIC COOKING . . . Something Really Fine for the Country Home

Ask About Electric Ranges The Next Time You Are In Town

Thousands of rural wives already are using them and are enthusiastic about them—even more enthusiastic than their relatives who live in town. Electric ranges are priced as low as $121.50 cash, or may be bought for only a few dollars down, and a few dollars a month.

the help of an electric range is a pleasure. You can, if you want to, cook in that new modern way, where little water is used, and much more of Nature's flavor stays in the food, and not so much of the health-giving quality—vitamins—is cooked out of it. You can, with the turn of a switch, have an oven of just the right heat to bake biscuits that'll melt in your mouth. You can bake cakes that'll win praise for you at church socials. You can have more time to do those many things that always seem to need doing around the country home.

And the beauty of all these advantages—a cleaner, more comfortable kitchen; better-tasting food; more time for other things—is that under Alabama Power Company's plan, the pleasure of cooking electrically can be yours at little expense—often for no more than what it now costs you to cook by some other method.

TRAP AND HARMONY SINGING CONVENTION AT LIBERTY HILL
The 1st Sunday in May, the Trap and Harmony singing convention will be in session all day at Liberty Hill Church, singing to begin at 10 o'clock.
Singers and lovers of these old songs are earnestly requested to meet at the convention on that day.
If you have a father, mother, auntie or friend, who learned to love these old songs in their younger days, it would be a fine time for you to get them in your car and with a nice basket lunch for spreading at lunch at Liberty Hill on the 1st Sunday in May.
The good people of the church very graciously voted to have us with them for this occasion and we believe that any one who attends this singing will greatly enjoy it. Singers from other counties are expected to be there and it is possible bring a basket lunch for spreading at the noon hour.

DRIVERS' LICENSES QUESTION ARISES IN CAPITOL
MONTGOMERY, Ala.—Seeking to facilitate the renewing of drivers' licenses this fall, Att. Gen. T. S. Lawson ruled last week that the Director of the Department of Public Safety, with the approval of the Governor, might issue a rule authorizing probate judges to accept applications for 1942-43 drivers' licenses Sept. 1 and that a regulation likewise might be made providing a period of grace in which to buy new driver's licenses.
Atty. Gen. Lawson stated that under the act of 1939 legislative licenses are issued for a two-year period. Existing licenses will expire Sept. 30, 1941 and new ones will be due immediately, without any time given between date of expiration and date of delinquency. Under the new ruling, he said licenses will go on sale a month before old ones become delinquent and a period of grace may be granted after Sept. 30.
The Attorney General also held that probate judges may make two separate returns on September collections, one showing collected for the current fiscal year and the other showing funds collected for the license period beginning Oct. 1, which will insure the Highway Patrol against loss of revenue under the provisions of law requiring unexpired balances at the end of the year to revert to the general fund.

Labors 26 Years on Odd Map of America
Former Cartoonist Pictures History of Country.
DENVER.—If Fred J. Kingman were so inclined he would make an interesting North American traveler.
His pupils wouldn't need books. All they would have to do would be to look at a giant map Kingman, a retired lumberman, has completed in his spare time.
On the map—measuring 15 feet in length and 8 feet in height—Kingman has pictured a visual history of the discovery, exploration and early settlement of North America.
Started on a much smaller scale and as a hobby to fulfill a desire to know more about the early history of the nation, the map has grown far beyond his early plans and now represents nearly 26 years of research and seven years of painstaking drawing and painting.
Starting with Leif Erickson's voyage in 1000, he has depicted in 14 colors all the major voyages of discovery, the explorations of the Cabots, Coronado, De Soto and so on down to Lewis and Clark, Pike, Fremont, Custer and scores of others.
There are no state-line demarcations, but on each state he has painted the official seal and flower, and dotted about over the map are small paintings of historic happenings and personages.
A job as a newspaper cartoonist aroused his interest in art.
Next he turned to more serious art and studied at the Chicago Art Institute and from that he turned to architecture and drafting.
It was while working as a draftsman in Buffalo in 1914 that the idea for his map came to him and he continued working on it when he went into his father's lumber business.

'I AM AN AMERICAN' DAY
By the President of the United States of America PROCLAMATION
WHEREAS Public Resolution No. 67, approved May 3, 1940 (54 Stat. 178), provides, in part:
That the third Sunday in May of each year be, and hereby is, set aside as Citizenship Day and that the President of the United States is hereby authorized and requested to issue annually a proclamation setting aside that day as a public occasion for the recognition of all who, by coming of age or naturalization, have attained the status of citizenship, and that day shall be designated as "I Am An American Day."
That the civil and educational authorities of States, counties, cities, and towns be, and they are hereby urged to make plans for the proper observance of this day and for the full instruction of future citizens in their responsibilities and opportunities as citizens of the United States and of the States and localities in which they reside:
NOW, THEREFORE, I, FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Sunday, May 18, 1941, as "I Am An American Day" and urge that this day be observed as a public occasion in recognition of our citizens who have attained their majority or who have been naturalized within the past year. And I do call upon all Federal, State and local officials, and all patriotic, civil, and educational organizations to join in exercises calculated to impress upon all our citizens, both native-born and naturalized, the special significance of citizenship in this Nation.
IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States of America to be affixed.
DONE at the City of Washington this 27th day of March, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and forty-one, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and sixty-fifth.
—FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

New Capital of Fashion May Rise in the West
LOS ANGELES.—Southern California is expecting a new rush and if it materializes a new fashion capital may arise in the Far West.
The Los Angeles Fashion Group, a unit of an all-feminine international style organization, is planning to mobilize about 70 creative style ideas and present them in an elaborate fashion show on February 13. The show, which will be preceded by a dinner dance, will be called "California's Fashion Futures."
The Fashion Group, composed of some 50 key women in fashion world from merchandise managers to advertising directors and stylists, has been working for weeks on a list of California's most noted style creators.
Each of the designers will be invited to contribute a special creation that is to serve as an indication of future style trends. None of the designs will be for sale, since the show is to be non-commercial, but they will serve as future "ideagivers" for American designers.

Educator Suggests Cure For Chronic Thumb-Sucker
CHICAGO.—Parents would do more for their thumb-sucking offspring by seeking a psychological substitute for the habit. That is the belief of Dr. George W. Teuscher, assistant professor of child dentistry at Northwestern university.
In studying 173 children with the habit, he found that all but three suffered from deformities of the lips, jaws and teeth, he reported in the Journal of the American Dental Association.
The easiest solution for parents is to prevent formation of the habit, but where thumb-sucking is already being practiced, mechanical contrivances sometimes are effective in checking it.
Dr. Teuscher would prefer, however, that parents study the individual child to determine the best "psychological formula" for correction, even though this approach frequently involves parent education in child development.

Old South Meeting House In Boston Is Endangered
BOSTON.—The English death-watch beetle recently came close to wrecking the old South Meeting house in Boston, famous in Revolutionary days. The beetle is so named because it makes the ticking noise heard in old churches during all-night wakes. Dr. Donald M. Muirhead of Duxbury, Mass., said it came to this country in Colonial days, probably in furniture and timber. It was found three years ago in the blackwood floor of the meeting house. The epidemic needle sprays in each hole, followed by creosoting of the exterior, probably have safeguarded the timber for the future, according to Dr. Muirhead.

Uncle Sam may call you to defend your country—that's a matter of chance.
But your boss won't "call" you to give you more money or a higher position unless he knows you've earned it! In Business and Industry, men are "drafted" to higher positions on one consideration only: Ability!
And one of the biggest factors in ability is TRAINING—knowing more about the job—being prepared to step into a bigger one!
How do YOU stack up?

Woman's Little Black Bag Found to Contain $496
OTTUMWA, IOWA.—For many years Jennie Six would go nowhere without her little black bag. It was the town mystery. What was in the little black bag?
But no one knew until she died. It contained $496.
Mrs. Six had lived at the poorhouse for some time and the bag was her main interest in life. The money was given to the poor fund after her death.

Miss Pinson And Mr. Vaughn Plight Their Froth

One of the pretty weddings of the Spring season was the marriage of Miss Jessie Dora Pinson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Pinson of Cooper, Ala., and Mr. John H. Vaughn of Groesbeck, Texas, which took place Sunday morning at the Prichard Methodist church.

The Rev. S. E. Spencer officiated and the double ring ceremony was used.

Mrs. J. H. Young rendered the piano music. During the ceremony Mrs. Young played softly, "I Love You Truly," and the Lohengrin and Mendelssohn marches were used.

The decorations of the church developed the white and green motif. Tall baskets of bridal wreaths marked the improvised altar.

Mr. P. C. Pinson gave his niece in marriage and Miss Bessie Threagill was her only attendant.

Mr. Vaughn was attended by Mr. R. S. Edwards as best man. Miss Threagill wore a lovely gown of Old Rose and picture hat.

The bride wore a regal creation of ivory duchess satin made on graceful princess lines closed with tiny covered buttons and the classic leg-matton sleeves pointed over the wrists. She wore a finger-tip veil of illusion caught up with orange blossoms and carried an arm bouquet of white carnations.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Pinson and Miss Josephine Baker of Beverly Hills, Calif. After the ceremony Mr. Pinson made moving pictures of the bridal party.

Mr. Vaughn is connected with the Gulf Ship Building Corporation. They are making their home with Judge and Mrs. W. L. Davis on East Main Street.

LAKE MARGARET TO OPEN TO PUBLIC MAY 1

Lake Margaret, located in the North east portion of Hale County and within the boundaries of the Oakmulgee District of the Talladega National Forest and is being scientifically managed for the production of game fish by the U. S. Forest Service in cooperation with the State Department of Conservation.

The 110-acre lake will be open for fishing on Thursday, May 1 and the following rules and regulations will govern fishing in the Lake:

1. Lake Margaret will be opened each day from daylight to dark for fishing from May 1 to July 31, 1941, inclusive.

2. Fishing will be allowed on each day of the week.

3. A charge of 30c a day will be made for each fishing permit to defray the cost of managing the area.

4. The Department of Conservation will collect all fees and issue all licenses as provided for in revised Section 19 of the Cooperative Agreement between the Department of Conservation and the Forest Service signed by each on June 24, 1938.

5. A game warden or Deputy game warden will be detailed to Lake Margaret for the period May 1 to July 31, 1941, inclusive.

6. Bag limits will coincide with those set by the State of Alabama except that not more than twenty (20) fish in the aggregate of all species named in paragraph 2, page 15, of the Regulations and General Law of Alabama relating to Game, Fish and Seafoods for the Season of 1940-41.

7. Violations of State Laws or Regulations pertaining to the Lake Margaret area will automatically void any permit.

8. No boats will be allowed to remain on the lake overnight and will be placed in the water at designated points only.

9. No motor boats or small powered boats of any kind will be allowed in the lake.

10. Camping will be permitted only 100 feet of the swimming area.

11. No fishing will be allowed within the swimming area.

12. Camp fires and warming fires will be prohibited except at designated points.

Argle Johnson, lookout man at the Lake Tower, will call the permits and according to the latest reports, there will be plenty of fish for all fishermen.

Last Thursday night, April 17, the P. T. A. observed Father's night with a basket supper. The tables were arranged to form an F. An interesting program was rendered including: A toast to fathers by five children; a solo by Wilma Parrish and a reading by Mr. Hardin.

The Verbena baseball team played Maplesville last Friday afternoon and the score was 12 to 2 in favor of Verbena. We also won a game against Shortsville.

Verbena's baseball team will play Isabella next Friday afternoon on their field.

Friday night, April 25, at 8:00 o'clock the Juniors are giving the Seniors a banquet at the High School. This is an Annual affair and always enjoyed.

Inventors Aim For Easier Life

Sham Fireplace and Vocal Mittens Among Latest Patents Issued.

WASHINGTON.—The patent office announces that it has issued certificate number 2,219,507 on a new boon to the householder—a feature that may be especially appreciated by the small-apartment dweller.

The new invention, patented by Charles W. Apper and Abraham L. Rosenfield of Philadelphia, is in effect a phony fireplace, completely collapsible and easy to store away in the nearest closet when not in use.

Not only is it decorative—the trick gadget also is useful. Lift up the attached mantelpiece, and you find the back of the fireplace is hollow, forming a convenient storage space for old photographs or fishing tackle. Yet the whole thing can be taken down and hidden away if unexpected guests arrive and the space is needed.

The fireplace has only one inconvenience, and that a minor one. It doesn't give out any heat.

New Cherry-Pit Remover.

For those who like cherries and hate cherry pits, George W. Ashlock Jr. of Oakland, Calif., has just the thing. It's a fairly large machine, and it has approximately 100 parts, but it takes the cherry stones out smoothly and rapidly.

The latest prize for the most puzzling invention goes to John S. Anderson of Chicago. His original idea is a seven-bladed hand scraper—that is, a scraper for the hands. Judging from the drawings accompanying the patent application, the Anderson gadget is designed for rubbing over the palm of the hand in case there's anything there you want to get rid of. You cannot slip and cut yourself—the sides, he says, are "suitably kurlled to prevent such a mishap."

Samuel H. Krasno of Milwaukee, Wis., may have the answer to "why aren't you the life of the party?" His offering is a voice attachment for mittens. Krasno was awarded patent number 2,219,103 for this tricky little apparatus, which should prove a boon for unskilled ventriloquists. The voice-producing device is hidden in the center of the mitten and is operated by opening and closing the hand.

Hard Winter Indicated.

He neglects to state the exact purposes of the noise-maker. But one thing is certain. Krasno is expecting a hard winter in Milwaukee—the drawing accompanying the patent claim shows a mitten covered liberally with fur.

Another unusual invention is a double-barreled pipe, invented by Charles P. Nash Jr., Charlottesville, Va. Into the main bowl Nash says, you stuff your tobacco and light it. The second, or auxiliary, bowl, is left unlighted. Results—the smoke cooled and diluted by pure air. The great feature of the pipe is that, by compressing the tobacco in the second bowl, the smoker can but down the supply of air to suit his taste.

Other recent inventions include a solid baseball cap for players susceptible to bean-balls, invented by Victor Brunzell of Long Island City, N. Y., and a process for producing imitation tree-bark, patented by William H. Burke of Superior, Wis., who may live in the heart of the lumber belt, but isn't satisfied with the real thing.

Government Asked to Save Confederate Fort

RALEIGH, N. C.—State historians have asked the national park service for aid in preventing historic Fort Fisher, on the North Carolina coast, from being undermined by lapping waves.

Dr. C. C. Crittenden, secretary of the state historical commission, and Joseph H. Pratt, of Chapel Hill, president of the North Carolina Society for the Preservation of Antiquities, said sand erosion has brought the tide up to the old fort's log-and-sand embankment.

The fortress, used by the Confederates during the Civil war, is 20 miles below Wilmington, N. C., near the South Carolina line.

One Record Serves for Twins in Texas School.

WACO, TEXAS.—Enrolling Annette and Jannette Tucker, identical twins, was easy for Baylor university registration officials. The freshmen co-eds, both five feet one inch in height and weighing 102 pounds, are alike even to their high school records. Only one transcript of credits was required—that made out for Annette and having "and Jannette" penned in.

Small Suburb Is Ready

PILOTS ENTHUSED OVER TRIP TO CONVENTION CITY

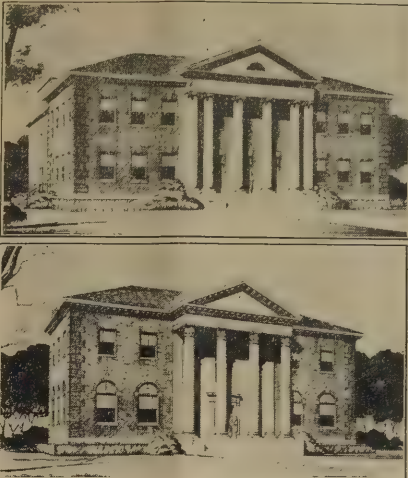

Three members of Clanton Pilot Club returned this week from the State Convention and they were brimful of the wonders and beauty and the hospitality of Huntsville, the Convention City.

According to these delegates, Mrs. Mamie Smith, Mrs. Lillian Simpson and Miss Myra Johnson, the City overdid themselves to show the Pilots a good time and the entire three days were spent in going places and seeing things. Among some of the sights enjoyed were:

The Beautiful old home of Alabama's first Governor, William Wyatt Bibb, built in 1836; Big Springs, from which flows twenty-four million gallons of water daily; The First National Bank, the first bank organized in the State, 1817; Site of the first assembly of the State Legislature, 1819; The First Presbyterian church, established in Alabama in 1822; A trip to Monte Sano State Park and many other places too numerous to mention.

Mrs. Smith, says it is especially interesting was the talk on our present crisis delivered by Maycie Southall, professor of elementary education at George Peabody College, Nashville.

Howard College Launches Centennial Forward Program

Views of the two proposed buildings to be erected at Howard College are shown above as conceived by an artist from drawings by Warren, Knight and Davis, Birmingham architects. The $500,000 administration and auditorium building is shown at the top and the $100,000 library structure at the bottom.

TWO NEW BUILDINGS IN $500,000 CAMPAIGN

A birthday present of a half million dollars is what Howard College is asking for its centennial celebration.

Launching its campaign April 15, the committee in charge of raising the funds, plans to canvass every county in Alabama, with each having its assigned quota.

With a background of 100 years of service to the state during which time graduates of the college have gone into every corner of the globe, the Baptist institution hopes to achieve its goal by Jan. 3, 1942, when the school will be 100 years old.

When this sum is in hand, officials of the college will use the money to clear the East Lake institution of all its indebtedness, improve the college campus and for buildings, long needed to carry on the work of the ever-growing institution.

Amount in the plans for the $500,000 campaign are two proposed buildings for the school, the first a $150,000 administration and auditorium building and the other a $100,000 library. Drawings for the buildings have already been made by Warren, Knight and Davis, of Birmingham, leading Alabama architects.

Present facilities have long been outmoded and inadequate, Maj. Harvel G. Davis, president of the college, points out. The present administration building will be turned into classrooms, since the school has long felt the need of more recreation halls and rooms.

The new administration building will house all the executive offices of the school, including the administrative offices as well as the registrar's. In fact, plans call for an arrangement of offices for each individual whose duties call for carrying on of direction of the college work. This building will also contain an auditorium seating 1,200. The present chapel seats for only 400, less than half of the present student body. When the new building is erected, the old chapel will be divided into classrooms.

The proposed library building will take in the newest and most modern features of such a type of structure required in college work. A library modeled after those in cities, towns and colleges throughout the country will be built to keep in step with the fast growing demands at Howard, where volumes of books are ever increasing for use in class work as well as reference.

Both these buildings will be two-story affairs. The auditorium will be on the first floor of the administration building and extend to the second floor, thus making space for a balcony. The administrative offices will be on the first and second floors, taking up the front portion of the building.

In the library building, the books will be in stands running two stories high in some places, with a librarian's office provided as well as private lecture rooms and reference rooms.

These two buildings, costing $250,000, will be quite an addition to the college campus, Maj. Davis asserts. With the present buildings forming an oval, the new structures would enhance greatly the beauty of the grounds.

A third building is also contemplated, depending on how far reaching results of the campaign are. This would be a $35,000 student activities building where a center for the college students would be established, including a cafeteria, lunch room, hall for private affairs and entertainments, meeting places for student organizations and offices for student work such as The Howard Crimson, Y. M. C. A., etc.

Other portions of the $500,000 when raised would be used to clear the college's indebtedness and improve the campus.

Dr. A. H. Reid, vice-president of the college, is general director of the Howard Centennial Forward Program. He has spent many weeks laying the groundwork for the $500,000 campaign and has worked out an organization for every part of the state. He has called mainly upon the Baptists of Alabama to lead the drive and is looking to Howard alumni particularly for help. But every Baptist church in the state will be canvassed and in each community every denomination will be given an opportunity to contribute to building this greater Howard.

The campaign will get under way in Birmingham first where Howard College has been located for 64 years.

The committee designated by the college board of trustees to carry on the drive is composed of Maj. Davis, Dr. Reid and Frank P. Sampford, Crawford Johnson, Sr., J. D. Pittman, Dr. John H. Buchanan, Birmingham; Dr. John J. Milford, Huntsville, and Dr. H. H. Hobbs, Montgomery.

IT WAS JUST A LITTLE FIRE WHEN IT STARTED!

Protect Your Life and Property with a FAIRBANKS-MORSE WATER SYSTEM

You've seen it happen. First a small blaze, and before long the whole farm—barn, sheds, house, equipment, everything—is a mass of flames. And all because there was no way to get a stream of water at the base of the "little fire" when it started. Did you ever stop to think what you could do against fire without plenty of running water?

The difference between what insurance you could collect if your farm were destroyed and what it would actually cost to rebuild could buy many Fairbanks-Morse water systems! But there's no use talking about running water after the fire. Do something about it before! Every hour, four farm buildings burn somewhere in this country!

Fairbanks-Morse makes a complete line of compact, precision-built water systems. Come in and look over these economical water systems. A small initial cost will save you thousands of dollars... if that "little fire" ever gets out of control on your farm.

British Plan to Make Rayon Out of Seaweed

LEEDS, YORKSHIRE, ENGLAND—A method to make rayon from seaweed is announced by Prof. O. B. Speakman, of Leeds university.

Professor Speakman says the seaweed rayon is cheaper to manufacture than the present rayons. He did the research for an unnamed British firm. Production of the new material is expected to start within a month.

Average U. S. Family Now Numbers Less Than Four

WASHINGTON.—For the first time in history the average American family now numbers less than four persons.

The census bureau, analyzing the results of the 1940 census, reported that the contemporary household has an average of 3.8 persons.

These statistics mean a continuation of the steady decline which has been in progress since the first family computation was made 50 years ago, and corresponded with annual figures of a declining birth rate.

Flaming Peril Risked To Save Extra Peg Leg

TULSA.—Elu Reynolds' house caught fire and he was badly burned when he rushed back into the flames to save his leg.

The leg, an artificial one, Reynolds carved in his spare time to replace the one that he considered too heavy for comfort. When his house blazed, the thing he worried about most was that leg.

He was trapped in the burning house and neighbors dragged him to safety after hearing screams.

Reynolds is a 63-year-old former cowpuncher. He lost his right leg in New Mexico 35 years ago when cattle rustlers shot him in a gunfight.

Invent Motorcycles to Run Without Gasoline

STOCKHOLM.—A motorcycle that runs without gasoline has been invented by E. Henning, a Stockholm engineer. The engine, which is suspended around the rear wheel, is driven by chain drive. On one fill-up it will travel 35 miles at a speed of between 30 and 40 miles an hour.

Although in general the domestic supply of cotton appears to be ample to meet all military and civilian requirements, there is a scarcity of the longer staples. Where it is feasible to grow longer staples, the cotton will naturally be done. Where short-staple cotton is not suitable, higher strength rayon in continuous-filament or cut-staple form undoubtedly will be employed. Present applications for high-strength rayon, which probably will be used in the manufacture of tire cords, belting, sail cloth fibers, fabrics, covering for rubber yards, shirtings, and half hosiery, are not extensive. There is a strong probability, according to Mr. Reed, that the textile industry will require every pound of synthetic staple cotton in the next year. If the United States is to attain self-sufficiency, still larger amounts will be needed in future years.

"Alabama peach growers can eliminate severe foliage damage caused by leaded arsenate spray if they will add one pound zinc sulphate to each 50 gallons of spray solution", says L. M. Ware, horticulturist of the Alabama Extension Experiment Station. Addition of this chemical also helps the trees overcome a zinc deficiency. The zinc is added to the last two arsenate sprays.

"FOOD FOR DEFENSE"

Answering the call for "Food for Defense," an enlarged program for food production sponsored by the Federal Security Administration, the local FSA officers are buzzing with activities as plans for individual cooperation by county are determined. Supervisor Marvin Durbin of the local office advises that this program in the Southern States, calls for special undertakings to produce additional food requirements for "National Defense" as well as larger production for home use.

Each rehabilitation family in this county will add 50 chickens to its present flocks and in addition will take on one or more of these operations to produce marketable products needed in supplying England and her allies, as provided for in the fund allocation for food in the "Lend-Lease Appropriation" said Mr. Durbin.

Aided by supplemental loans, rehabilitation families will undertake one or more of the following three enterprises: (1) One additional brood sow, to produce four hogs for the market; (2) Two more milk cows for production of marketable dairy products; (3) 30 chickens for meat and for egg production (these chickens are in addition to the 50 required for all families).

In addition to winning for the Southern States a large share of the Lend-Lease aid expenditures, the "Food for Defense" program of the FSA will have additional aims as follows: (1) Increase in normal incomes of small farm families through perpetuation of the broadened program; (2) Development in this region, for better handling of larger production, and of processing plants; (3) Extension and perfection of marketing facilities, one of the greatest needs of the small farmer, so that none will be too remote for this service; (4) Better subsistence for the grower as an able consumer, through an accelerated Live-at-home plan for the Southeast; (5) Improved land; (6) First and last a move toward effective and profitable change in the agricultural economy of the region its release from the one system.

"Judging from the contract we have made with some of the families, this 'Food for Defense' program will go over the top in a big way," concluded Mr. Durbin.

Lady Luck Smiles

At Old Eight Ball; Prisoner Is Dazed

Dogged by Hard Luck for 14 Years, Georgia Court Frees Robinson.

ATLANTA. — Walter Robinson, whose footsteps were dogged by hard luck for 14 years, while he trudged a weary trail over the United States as a fugitive from Georgia Justice, has come out from behind the biggest eight-ball in his harassed career.

The climax to one of the strangest stories of all time took place in the Fulton county superior courtroom here when Robinson was scheduled for a state trial before Judge John D. Humphries on a charge of assault with intent to murder and another charge of burglary.

In 1926 Robinson was indicted on a charge of attempting to murder H. W. Parker with a knife, on January 28 of that year. Also, he was accused by the grand jury of burglarizing the North boulevard residence of Tom Nance, on January 27, 1926.

He Went Away. This trouble sent Robinson out on the roads over the United States on a dodge and year after year rolled by with tough breaks marking every road he took. It seemed that nothing good ever happened to him and Lady Luck was a wench whose frowning face met him at every turn.

Early this fall, the peak of his tough breaks cracked down on Robinson here in Atlanta. After 14 years of unremitting traveling, Robinson decided to come back home and, with his little bundle of clothes tightly tied up with a string, he confidently walked into a Decatur street rooming house, where he expected to find an old friend.

Without looking at the room door, Robinson walked in—and came face to face with the man he was charged with nearly slicing to pieces with the knife 14 years ago. Five minutes later, Robinson was in the jail he had been dodging those 14 years.

Had Robinson looked at the door he entered in the rooming house, he would have seen in large chalked letters the name of H. W. Parker, the cause of all his trouble. In jail, Robinson shrugged his shoulders and moaned: "Just call me 'Eight-Ball.'"

Just call me "Eight-Ball." Parker, remembering a promise he had made years ago to his mother to see that Robinson was prosecuted, boasted then that he would see that Robinson got a nice long stretch.

Refuses to Prosecute. After waiting all these years for the revenge he had promised his mother on her deathbed, Parker decided he could not go through with it. He showed up the morning of the trial and told the solicitor general he would not prosecute and that, so far as he was concerned, the incident was closed.

And the state was unable to locate Tom Nance, the man whose home Robinson was charged with having robbed. At last, the frown of Lady Luck switched to a beaming smile for old "Eight Ball."

Judge Humphries, at the request of the solicitor general and Parker, wrote "nolle-prossed" across the face of the two 1929 indictments against Walter ("Eight Ball") Robinson. Old "Eight Ball" walked out of court a free man, shaking his head at the bet between himself and the down in Atlanta and is looking for a job.

FEDERAL COURT UPHELD TRIPLE-A PROVISIONS

Marketing quota provisions of the AAA act of 1939, requiring each farmer to file a farm operator's report with the county AAA committee, were upheld in the Middle District Court of Alabama at Opelika on April 8. Judge Charles Kenner held that J. W. McDow, Randolph County farmer, must file farm operator's reports for 1938 and 1939.

The suit, brought by the government against Mr. McDow because he allegedly failed to turn in his farm operator report in 1938 and 1939, is the first of its kind in the South. The court, in upholding the validity of marketing quota provisions, ordered Mr. McDow to file reports and to pay any penalties due on excess marketing of cotton.

Czarina's Favorite Artisan Happy Here

Enjoys WPA Job on Metal Crafts Project.

EAST ST. LOUIS.—William Zander, said to have been at one time the favorite artisan of the late czarina of Russia, is now supervisor of a WPA metal crafts project in the old Douglas school. Zander, who once directed 400 craftsmen in making an elaborate gate for the winter palace of the czarina, now teaches 30 WPA men to make fire-place fixtures for state institutions.

In speaking of the gate Zander said: "It was the biggest job I ever had. It cost nearly 14,000,000 rubles and took several months to complete. It had to be perfect in every detail."

Despite all the prosperity he enjoyed during the old days in Russia, Zander insists he is far happier as an American citizen. He enjoys passing on to younger men the art of working with ornamental metal.

Zander was born in Esthonia, then a part of Russia, in 1878, and was graduated from the Imperial Arts school in 1909. After serving as instructor in the school for three years he went to Germany in 1905 to practice his art. During the World War he was imprisoned in an alien camp at Eisenbach in Thuringia. After the war he came to the United States and was employed by metal working firms until 1935.

Thrown out of work, he turned to WPA for aid and was given a pick and shovel job with a ditch-digging gang. Fellow workers visiting his home were impressed with the iron candlesticks, lamps and door knockers he made and suggested that he try for a job on a WPA art project, which he did. With the new job came an increase in wages and complete happiness to the 62-year-old artist.

New Detector May Take Role in Warfare at Sea

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—Possibility of locating "noiseless" submarines by meteoric radio detector designed by Ohio State university educators is under investigation by Canadian and American sources.

The detector's importance increased following German claims of underwater craft with sound-proofed engines which, if true, would destroy the usefulness of standard hydrophones for locating submarines.

Designed and perfected by Prof. Lincoln La Paz, Ohio State mathematician, the detector has been used in the last two years to search for meteorites buried in the earth. Its possible use as a submarine detector is under consideration by officers of the U. S. navy and Dr. R. W. Boyle, director of the national research council of Canada.

Dr. La Paz said he had demonstrated the use of a small scale model in underwater experiments.

Helium Is Found to Be Helpful to Asthmatics

AMARILLO, TEXAS.—Production of helium from natural gas at the world's only operating plant, run by the U. S. bureau of mines at Amarillo, recently reached an 11-year total of 100,000,000 cubic feet. Production from other government plants, not operating at present, bring the all-time total nearly to 150,000,000 cubic feet.

For 27 years known to exist as an element on the sun, helium finally was found on the earth, but only as a chemical curiosity so rare it was valued at $2,500 a cubic foot. Now it is produced at a cost of less than 1 1/2 cents a cubic foot.

Besides its unique property as a buoyant, non-explosive gas for airships, helium makes the deep-sea divers and asthma sufferers breathe more freely, and helps the weather man in his predictions.

Stagger 'Does' and 'Roes'

In Title of This Law Suit SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—The art of being specific and still saying nothing must have been practiced on the title of the following lawsuit, filed with the secretary of state:

"The city of Tulare against the county of Siskiyou, a public corporation, First Doe, Second Doe, Third Doe, Fourth Doe, Fifth Doe, Black and White, a co-partnership; Roe and Roe, a co-partnership; John Doe company, a corporation, and Robert Roe company, a corporation."

Taxpayer Is Grateful As He Pays Off $75 Tax

SALT LAKE CITY.—Melvin S. Fendleton sent a $75.87 check to the Salt Lake county treasurer for taxes and added this note:

"It is a blessing and privilege to live in the United States of America and I thank the Lord that I am not paying taxes in Europe."

Missing Setter Is Back In Time for His Dinner

DANVILLE, PA.—Carl Fryling's three-year-old English setter, missing for two months, turned up in time for hunting season at all of places—a delicatessen store 175 miles away from home at Bristol, Pa.

Mrs. Clara Jones, Edgely, owner of the setter, wrote Walter S. Lovett, chamber of commerce secretary here, that the dog appeared "just around meal time."

During 1941 Chilton County Should Double Its Production of Beef and Dairy Cattle, Hogs, Poultry, Mules, Sheep and Goats. Strawberry, Peach and Potato Production Should Increased One-third. At Least A Dozen Small Industries Should Be Located In Chilton County. It Can and Should Be Done.

Mark Remarks:

I don't believe Alabama's landscape was ever more gorgeously decorated with flowers of all kinds than at the present time.

Everyone will have to agree that when it comes to making a "masterly retreat" the British army has no equal.

Chilton County should not pass up the opportunity for a grand "Peach Festival."

The trend for better times here in Chilton is plainly discernable. Now if everyone will do their part—"happy days will soon be here again."

Strawberries are fine—but how is the printer going to get any "shortcake" if you don't pay your subscription.

If a man is true, loyal and patriotic American, he does not have to proclaimed it every time some hair-brained numb-skull who has no opinion or ideas of his own, but who thinks it is "smart" to criticize those who think for themselves, because he has been listening to the ravings of some propagandist. Loyal patriots are born, not made. Their lives, as a rule are "open books", and all who have brains may study and comprehend.

Shortage of Farm Labor Indicated

By P. H. SMITH
County Agent, Chilton County

From all indications many farm operators are having trouble finding enough labor to operate their entire farm in 1941. This means that there will probably be many idle farms in Chilton County this year.

It is common knowledge that only soil building allowance payments are made on idle farms under the AAA program. Farms that are operated in 1941 will receive parity, conservation and soil building payments. A farm will be considered operated if one or more of following requirements are met:

1. At least one third of the cropland is seeded to a crop for harvest in 1941 or an acreage equal to one third of the cropland of a crop other than will be harvested in 1941.

2. At least one-third of the cropland was planted to legumes or grasses in the fall of 1940 or seeded in the spring and summer of 1941.

3. At least one-third of the cropland seeded to sweet sorghum or sudan grass in the spring or summer of 1941.

4. At least one-third of the cropland seeded to or in pasture consisting of white dutch or Dallas grass, or a mixture of white Dutch clover and Dallas grass on land that is also considered cropland.

5. An acreage equal to one-half 50 percent of the sum of the cotton and peanut allotments planted to cotton or commercial peanuts.

The cropland referred to above is the 1941 cropland on all lands covered by one work sheet.

For further information on the above see or write your County Agent or the AAA office at Clanton.

There have been a few changes in the AAA program this year from the program we had in 1940. In view of these changes a few suggestions are given below just as reminders in planting crops this spring.

1. Soybeans and Cowpeas planted in rows for hay should be planted in rows less than 24 inches apart so that they will be classified as erosion resisting crops under the 1941 program.

2. Try to plant within the allotted acreage of cotton. After the original compliance, a cash deposit will be required for every form of re-check. This is true of checking cotton that may have been plowed up just to come within the allotted acreage.

3. It is suggested that every producer who has a worksheet in his own name and who has not already done so sign an Intention Sheet to cooperate in the "Cotton Stamp" program in the near future. This sheet may be signed at the AAA office in Clanton anytime before June 14.

For further information consult your County Agent.

Just now, no country in the world has more beautiful scenery than North Alabama—Chilton County Now. Although we don't blame you for bragging a bit, we beg to differ with you. You should look us over during the spring of the year—Geneva Reper.

NONE IN SIGHT YET TO 'STOP' GRAVES IN '42Politically Potent Groups Found For Him With No Talk Of Any Other

By ATTICUS MULLIN

If there is any considerable group of people in Alabama interested in defeating Col. Bibb Graves for governor in the primary next May, it is high time for it to get busy because the tide is flowing ever stronger towards the man who has twice been governor of Alabama.

In the last two or three weeks the writer has enjoyed mixing with delegates and visitors to several very important State conventions representing a great number of voters, probably the majority. And in every case the general talk was for Graves for Governor.

At the annual convention of Alabama road builders in Mobile some time ago the talk was Graves all the way around and he was given an ovation on a brief appearance before the body. This body of men not only controls many votes but is a source of ample campaign funds if the members get interested. They seem to be interested in Graves.

Doctors, too

We spent a little time in Mobile with the Alabama Medical Association delegates and visitors. And it was Graves with those of that body who talked politics. Physicians are a power in the politics when they want to be. And sometimes they want to be. They were a great help to Frank M. Dixon in his campaign.

At the annual Baldwin County potato four men interested in agriculture from many counties took part. We heard plenty of politics at that time. And it was all Graves.

At the recent Alabama Federation of Labor Convention in Montgomery, President Green of the American Federation of Labor said, "If I had a million votes I would cast them all for Graves next year." And when he said it the sober-minded delegates applauded like mad. And among the delegates the talk was all Graves.

At the Alabama Education Convention in Birmingham, Graves talk was general. We did not get to visit that convention but we talked to a number of teachers who did and they said it was all Graves there.

It has not been so many months since we attended an Alabama Farm Bureau Convention in Birmingham and it was all Graves there. And since then we have attended a number of farmers' gatherings in a number of counties and it has been all Graves at each of these.

Only Singles Left

This writer is not committed to any candidate for governor nor is The Advertiser, but we are merely passing along the observations about the consideration of any who want to defeat Graves for governor. With agriculture, education, labor, highway builders, doctors, and other groups lined up, or lining up, for Graves the man who is to be picked to defeat him had better be picked quickly or he will be picked finally. And people are beginning to talk politics outside of conventions and group meetings. If there is to be a real candidate against Graves, that candidate will have to go about the State hunting single birds pretty soon because all of the coveys will be in the Graves bag, or that is they will be unless such a candidate gets mighty busy mighty quick. The group votes are lighting and that rapidly. And it takes groups to elect. Single shots can't do it.

We'd hate for the anti-Graves forces to wake up too late as the democracies have done in Europe and complain that they were not warned in time.

ISABELLA

Sunday was the regular preaching Sunday at Mulberry. We invite everyone to attend the service rendered here.

Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Calfee, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McCraw and children visited Mr. and Mrs. Quinton White Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Hayes and family was the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hand of Clanton.

Misses Willie Frank and Annie Laura Calfee visited their sister of Clanton, Mrs. Quinton White a few minutes Thursday.

Mrs. Summers from Birmingham visited relatives and friends here last week.

EDITORIAL TALKMARK TUCKER PAYS HIS RESPECTS

The editor and his force were pleasantly surprised last Wednesday afternoon when our old friend, Mark L. Tucker, of Clanton and Montgomery dropped in to see us.

It being press time, and Mark being a newspaper man of long standing, the first thing he did was get ink on his hand up to his elbow. To an outsider this would have been a calamity, but not Mark. He calmly reached for the gas can and some waste, swabbed it off and went on about the business at hand.

The editor is always glad to see this good man. Our first whiff of ink came from the office of The Progressive Age at Scottsboro while Mark L. Tucker was editor of that paper two many years ago. While we were far too young to try our hand at typesetting, we did see some mighty fine "type" and make a trip or two for "paper stretcher" and "type, reduce" for our good friends, H. O. Coffey, now with The Progressive Farmer, and Parker Campbell, present editor of The Progressive Age and The Jackson County Sentinel.

Incidentally, Mark mentioned something about Bibb Graves being the next Governor.—Southern Democrat.

ALABAMA CELEBRATIONS

Some time ago, Alabama cities and towns began to wake up to the fact that celebrations every year, staged in the right manner, were excellent means of advertising their communities and would certainly pay off in big dividends in years to come.

Mobile, with its age-old Mardi Gras celebration was the first, to advertise its Azalea Trail; now Birmingham has an annual Christmas Carnival; Montgomery an Annual Stock Show; Uniontown a Turkey Day; Huntsville a Monte Sano Celebration; Cullman, its Strawberry Festival; Baldwin County its potato tour; and there are probably many more now. We understand that Clanton is planning a peach festival.

Whether the various festivals mean anything or not in actual dollars and cents, there can be no question of their value in producing cooperation in community. We stand for more and bigger festivals.—Cullman Banner.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. D. HASKEW, D. D.

Once upon a time there was a lazy man who bought a Drug Store in a country village. He made the purchase without knowing his stock and for months he sold from the drugs that he knew and let the rest of the stock go untouched. One day his oldest son was taken seriously ill and the doctor informed him that only one kind of medicine could save his life and that he was sure that he had it in his stock. The father became frantic as he sought through the unknown medicines. While he sought the boy died. You think that Druggist was foolish not to know his stock, but he was no more foolish than thousands of men and women who sit idle around and never learn anything about the Word of God. This book has a remedy for all of our soul ills, but how many of us know where to find them. We should search the Scriptures and know what they have for us.

I carried a Scout troop to a place where many fishermen plied their trade. The men came in from their effort and stretched their trot lines, throw lines and nets in an open space to dry. After dinner my boys decided to play a game of ball and made a run for the open space. On reaching the place they saw those hooks and nets everywhere and one of them was heard to say, "Fellows, we can not play ball among these hooks and nets." He was right. They would have been seriously injured if they had tried to chase a ball with fish hooks hanging around. Let me tell you that it is dangerous to play ball on the diamond of life when the devil has his hooks dangling and his nets spread abroad. Always beware of playing the game of life amidst the devil's hooks and nets.

One day I stood with the owner of a beautiful orange grove and listened to him as he pointed out his trees laden with golden fruit. He told me that many years before he had sent his men into the muddy, black waters of the swamp to dig up the wild lemon saplings and that they had transplanted the prepared soil. He then went to his choice orange tree and would clip the tender buds and graft them into the trunk of the sprouts. Thus he had made for himself a beautiful grove of oranges, and they were all loaded with fruit. I want to tell you that in natural state we are struggling in a murky, swampy soil of sin. There is only one hope for us, and that is for us to lift ourselves out of it and then have the Spirit of God to graft into the life of Jesus and then we can bring forth the sweetest. It is His life grafting ours that will produce fruit.

When president Garfield was taken to a quiet, isolated place where he could have absolute rest and nurses the government decided to build a rail road track to this seclusion. Engineers went to lay out the road bed and they found it in the front yard of a farmer. He objected until he was told that it was being built so that the president could have the presence of God aid at a moments notice. The man exclaimed, "Why sir, if that road is to carry help to the president, you can go through house of you need to!"

Why some people object to Jesus being a right of way through their life is because they do not know for whom the road is built. To Jesus Christ The right of way which Jesus is to travel through your plantation, your soul and your very soul.

Prince Albert the good king of Scotland, was one day traveling the highlands and at noon he was tired and hungry. He turned aside from his path to quench his at a cool, bubbling stream and to himself beneath the shades of the tree. The owner of the Spring knew and at this place he built a meadow and turned the cool water of the through a basin resting on the ground. In the bottom of the basin carved a king's name in the slab, so that every weary traveler turned aside to quench his thirst would see the name of the good king. The natives of the Highlands were much the memory of Good King Albert. The Lord's supper is a meal to Christ and it is food and drink to the soul of man. We bless the cry of the Son of God as we sit at his table, because we see Him

COOK ANY WAY YOU WANT TO ON AN ELECTRIC RANGE

If you like to peek into the oven frequently to satisfy your curiosity as to how things are getting along — PEEK. But you won't need to do it — after you have your electric range! You'll learn that it isn't necessary, and you get the same results by NOT peeking.

If you prefer cooking with gallons of water, you can cook in that wasteful way on an electric range if you want to. (It's wasteful because by using lots of water you cook so much of the natural flavor and nutrition from the foods!) When you have an electric range, you can cook many foods with only a few tablespoons of water; there are hardly any vegetables which require as much as a cupful. After you have your electric range, you'll want to experiment to see if what we say is true. You'll find it is, and then you'll never want to cook the wasteful way again.

If you cook "hit or miss," you can cook that way on an electric range. But cooking on an electric range is so simple that when you get yours you'll find there's no need for "hit or miss" or "guess and try it" methods. You'll observe that — just as your electric light is constant in its brightness — so is the heat of an electric range constant. You turn the switch to a certain heat, and that heat does not change unless you turn the switch again. There are enough different heats available, just by flicking a switch, to meet every cooking requirement.

MANY MODELS — PRICES STILL MODERATE

You can buy a clean, economical electric range that'll help keep your kitchen looking like springtime for as little as $121.50 cash, or for only a few dollars down and a few dollars a month. Visit our store or a dealer's soon, and make your selection while there is still a wide variety of models available; and while prices are still moderate.

"Our electric range is so above any other method of cooking I've ever tried that I won't even try to compare it with other methods."

Mysterious People.

At about the time of the settlement of North America by Europeans, the Cherokee and some Sioux tribes were there. Before them, the artifacts showed, the site had been occupied by the mysterious "Round Grave people," known chiefly from sites in Kentucky, where they were presumably among the earliest human occupants.

Mixed with the other objects were two Folsom points. Beautiful examples of Eastern Folsom points, Mr. Bushnell says, have been found previously in this section of southwestern Virginia.

Says Mr. Bushnell: "The variety of objects found at the site should be accepted as evidence that it had been frequented by man from the earliest times and beneath its surface may be hidden conclusive proof that makers of the Folsom points once occupied the valley."

An intensive study of the site is planned by Mr. Bushnell and by Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts Jr., Smithsonian archeologist who has excavated the site in northeastern Colorado where the greatest quantity and variety of Folsom objects have been recovered.

'Surplus' American Guns Are Given to Nova Scotia

WASHINGTON.—Several score of "surplus" navy guns will be made available to Canada for the fortification of Nova Scotia.

The four and seven-inch weapons, described as "extremely old," were taken from old warships and are considered not essential to the defense program. They are mounted on steel pedestals, but officials said they would be adaptable for sea-coast defense if set in concrete fortifications.

The transfer was arranged by the United States-Canadian joint defense board.

Hunters Send Back News

Through Carrier Pigeons

LONGMONT, COLO.—Big game hunters in Colorado are using carrier pigeons to carry home the news when they have made their kill.

"Five bucks downed by noon," said a message attached to one bird found dead near a Longmont highway, "Call Ray's folks." The message-carrying pigeon had struck an electric power line.

Church Painting Job Done in 52 Minutes

BROOKLAWN, N. J.—When the Brooklawn Methodist church needed a new coat of paint, the Rev. Albert Lang, pastor, appealed for aid.

Sixty men, including borough officials and members of a local American Legion post, answered the call. At a signal from the pastor, they went to work and finished the job in 52 minutes.

Virginia Yields Ice Age Relics

Blue Ridge Valley Seen as Scene of Early North American Culture.

WASHINGTON.—In a romantic Virginia mountain valley, at the foot of the lofty peaks of Otter, Smithsonian institution archeologists have uncovered what may be one of the oldest inhabited sites in eastern North America.

Long before the red men who met the first white explorers came into Virginia, three or four groups of tribes, each with a distinct culture, had dwelt in this hemlock-shaded shelter in the bosom of the Blue Ridge mountains, the evidence indicates.

Among them were men who made a type of chipped flint spear almost indistinguishable from artifacts found in the West in association with bones of long-extinct animals and in geologic strata laid down at least 10,000 years ago. The Westerners are believed to have lived in the continent in the closing days of the last ice age.

Workmen Uncover Village.

Similar artifacts have been picked up all over the country, but always as solitary objects such as might have been dropped by wandering hunters. Probably Virginia has furnished more of these than any other Eastern state. In no case, however, has one ever been found in association with other remains that would indicate even a temporary bivouac of these ghostlike nomads who appear to have been the first Americans.

David I. Bushnell Jr., Smithsonian archeologist, the first to find Folsom points in Virginia, has kept up an intensive search all over the state, following every clue that came to his attention. His efforts were rewarded when workmen engaged on the picturesque Skyline Drive, the new federal highway through the Shenandoah National park, uncovered an Indian village site with a complex diversity of artifacts.

When Mr. Bushnell investigated the site he found objects obviously from different cultures badly mixed up. But it was also apparent that they represented a very long cross section of North American history. The valley is an ideal camping site and presumably was much the same 10,000 years ago as it is today. Historically it has been a crossroads of mountain trails.

Isabella - Mulberry

We all were glad to see such a large crowd out today at Mulberry for both Sunday school and preaching services and all of us surely enjoyed the wonderful message given by Bro. James, returned Missionary from South America, and we also enjoyed the inspiring sermon by Bro. Paul Oden Sunday night.

With the epidemic of measles over and we farmers busy planting our crops and some picking and selling strawberries, things around here have begun to look brighter than they have for some time.

The Father-Son-Mother - Daughter banquet given by the F. F. A. and F. H. A. Chapters on last Friday night at the school auditorium was enjoyed by a large crowd of Fathers, Mothers, Sons and Daughters and friends. Everything was very beautiful, speeches were good and cats were better.

This community enjoyed a fine day at Isabella church the Third Sunday in a Quarterly meeting of the Methodist Convention. The crowd was very large with visitors from other churches and plenty good things to eat for everyone and after the regular service was over, Bro. Hardin, our pastor, gave us a short sermon, which was really enjoyed. Our Sunday school is doing nicely on Sunday afternoon. Come out and be with us.

Bro. James, a returned Missionary from South America, will be with us in our monthly meeting of our W. M. S. at the church on Wednesday, May 7 at 2 o'clock. We are very anxious to have a large crowd out to hear him.

CARD OF THANKS

Just be so good as to allow us a small space in your paper to thank the people one and all that has been assigned to us in responding to our need. Our great loss would have been so much harder to bear if you all hadn't given so much. May God repay each of you for everything you did or gave. We trust that none of you will ever have such a loss. But, if you do so, may God grant to us the means and ways to help you like you helped us.—Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Ward

AIR-COOLED INNERSOLE

(Genuine Goodyear Welt) (Patented 1932)

Delightfully cool comfort now! For scientific research has developed a new air-cell material, fluffy and foamy, resilient as rubber, which is 90% AIR. Air-O-Magic has brought this modern material into use as a cushion for heel and instep and has used it as a base to provide an air-filled innersole. The pressure of your foot causes this material to expel air—a cooling breeze with every step. For the first time in your life you'll be literally WALKING ON AIR.

YOUR COUNTRY NEEDS AIRPLANE DRAFTSMEN!

 New I. C. S. Course, Studied in Spare Time, Prepares YOU for SUCCESS in This Growing Field!

Probably no industry offers greater opportunities to the trained man than aviation. Millions are being spent for both military and non-military airplanes. Every airplane company now needs trained draftsmen. Unusual opportunities for rapid advancement exist—for the trained man only!

How YOU Can Get Training—Now! The International Correspondence Schools (whose graduates include the president of a major airline and hundreds of other successful aviation men) now offer a newly prepared course in Airplane Drafting.

This course not only gives basic training in "math," mechanics, strength of materials and drafting—but also instruction in subjects of particular value in drafting rooms where airplanes are designed. Aviation terms are clearly defined. Illustrations are numerous and easily understood.

Study in Your Own Home. I. C. S. students study at home—don't need to give up their present jobs. No "classroom slow-pokes" hold you back. And the cost of sound, modern I. C. S. training is surprisingly low!

This coupon, mailed today, will bring you a FREE BOOKLET—"AVIATION OPPORTUNITIES"—and complete information.

"LENA RIVERS" TO BE PRESENTED AT BILLINGSLEY, SATURDAY NIGHT, MAY 3RD

The Senior III class of Billingsley High School will present the three-act drama, "Lena Rivers" as their class play at the high school auditorium on Saturday night, May 3rd. The curtain will go up at 8:00 and the admission will be 10 and 25 cents.

The play "Lena Rivers" is based on Mary J. Holmes' most popular novel.

The Cast
Lena Rivers, our adorable heroine—Elie Mae Herrod.

Granny Nichols, her beloved grandmother—Sara Turner.

John Livingston, Lena's uncle—John Cox, Jr.

Mr. Livingston, his wife, who has social ambitions—Birtel Hill.

John Livingston, her sister, warm hearted and sincere—Vivian Davis.

John Brown, who added to slant—Eugene Brown.

Frank Graham, a Southern gentleman—Earl Mills.

Mrs. Graham, his jealous wife—Wilmetta Roberts.

Durwood Belmont, her son by a former marriage—Jackson Hill, Jr.

Malcolm Everett, a tutor in the Livingston home—T. B. Osley.

Aunt Milly, a colored servant—Annie Eliza Cobb.

Old Caesar, a colored man servant who is always fixin' to do—Arthur James Wyatt.

In case you have forgotten the story, it deals with the plot of young Lena Rivers and her beloved Granny Nichols, who are compelled to leave their New England home and seek refuge with Granny's son, John, who has changed the family name of Nichols to Livingston because of the social aspirations of his dominating wife, Matilda.

The entire play is filled with laughter and tears. You'll enjoy hearing Granny Nichols "rass" about Nancy Coward because of the social aspirations of his dominating wife, Matilda.

IN MEMORY

Friday morning, April 25, 1941, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Johnson, Selma, Ala., and took away their loving son, Charles Herman, age 12.

He leaves to mourn his mother and father, one brother, Eugene, two sisters, Dorothy Dean and Sara Ruth; his grandparents and a host of relatives.

He was laid to rest in the Cox cemetery Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Willie Hill conducted the funeral. Pallbearers were Robert Chambers, Muri Rabsbery, Dan and Van Johnson, Howard Gay and Vernon Scott.

Flower girls were Helen Wallace, Elnora Chambers, Claudine Gay, Mary Payne, Emma Ray and Catherine Wallace.

We wish to thank the many friends for their kindness shown us during the death of our grandchild and for the beautiful flowers both at Selma and Maplesville.

We ask God to bless all of us that we may live a life to meet him again. Dearest beloved, we are lonely here without you.

We are here on the stormy side of life.

But we are looking to a day when we will be at home with you.

Although we miss your smiling face and sweet cheer,

We miss you all about the place; We miss you everywhere.

No place seems like home anymore. That vacancy in our hearts can never be filled.

We can't express how we miss you Jesus only knows.

Farrest dear child, We'll travel on in toil and pain, But when our work here is done, We'll meet you again in Heaven.

—Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Johnson and family.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Cat Tale: A gentleman who decries cats paid an overnight visit to friend Tommie to have a large cat as a pet. All during the evening, the man eyed the cat and the cat eyed the man. With true feline wisdom, the cat evidently sensed dislike and kept as far away from the visitor as possible which, of course, was quite satisfactory. The guest was also quite well pleased that when he went to bed the cat was nowhere in sight. Having made him ready for the pillow, following custom, he announced his head with a sweet-smelling preparation that keeps the hair in place, and lay down to pleasant dreams. Hardly had he passed out than he was awakened and there was the cat up on the bed licking his hair. Needless to say there was immediate ejection. But as soon as he was again asleep, the cat came back. And so it went the entire night. Therefore, should he make another visit he either will omit hair oil or see to it that the cat is put out before he returns. Or since the cat can learn to love cats, stop using hair oil and lock the door at night.

New Start at 73: There was an auction of antique vases, mosaic tiles, a French marble and bronze clock, a beautiful old iron safe, a board and other objects of beauty and value. There are many such auctions in New York. But this one happened to be personal possessions of Alice Poole MacDonnell, you have heard of her. A dozen years ago her success story was a saga of America. Starting with a little coffee shop in a railroad terminal, she built her business into a restaurant chain with receipts of almost a million and a half dollars a year. She wrote books and delivered lectures. She imported china and coffee and sold them for big profits. In 1928 she had half a million. One of the stores signed called for a million dollars. Slight and not five feet tall, at 73, with the proceeds of her treasures she's looking about to make a new start.

New Yorkers: At a little gathering in the Artists and Writers club the other evening after "The Corn Is Green," the conversation veered around to birthplace. Miss Mary Brooks, who had reached New York via San Francisco, was born in Kansas City; Mrs. Richard Crandall, in Montana; Alvin Goldstein, New York; and because of St. Louis Post-Dispatch, in Tennessee. Mrs. Goldstein in St. Louis; May's birthplace was Michigan and mine Ohio. Then Joseph Evans, Sunday editor of the Herald Tribune, announced that he was born in China. That would have been a climax except for one thing. In the party was a real New Yorker, Dick Crandall, picture editor of the Herald Tribune, who was born on Ninety-sixth street.

Revival: Certain stories, told as truth, but which never can be traced to source, are the subject of the way, the little old woman who appeared are well-known examples—periodically bob up in New York. The latest to make its reappearance was a record of a heavy red 39-cent string of pearls in a department store basement. When she got home, she found the catch broken and took it to her own jeweler for repairs. He informed her the pearls were worth at least $30,000. When she had recovered sufficiently, she took them back to the store. The clerks thought she was crazy but eventually she reached the store head. From him, she learned that the pearls were worth much more than $30,000. Evidently his wife had dropped them in the basement and the clerk had put them on the counter. The woman recovered a heavy reward. That's the gist of the yarn but a good story-teller can go on for half an hour.

Vanished: A young woman, whose research work causes her to make frequent calls to the information department of the New York Times, asked a question that couldn't be answered at once. The man who took the inquiry said he'd call back the next day. Days passed and the young woman didn't get her information. So she made an investigation and learned that for convenience, her telephone number had been written on the wall near a phone booth. And painters had come in one forenoon and painted the booth.

End Piece: Recently a new "candy" appeared in the local markets. Made of maltose, egg yolk, powdered carrots and vitamins A, B and D, if eaten before meals it is said to destroy any longing for mashed potatoes and heavy desserts. It may do that but I wouldn't call it candy.

Town Assures Letters

To Men Serving Country

MIDDLEBORO, MASS.—High school students, business men and housewives are engaged in a community letter-writing project to the town's men in military service. Names of soldiers, sailors, marines and coastguards are being assigned to various groups by a civic committee. The home town correspondents do not ask for prompt answers, knowing the men have little free time.

Alternate Classes To Care for Baby

Married Students Work Daily Living Schedule

WACO, TEXAS.—It took some arranging but the Rev. and Mrs. Ford Potts have worked out a living schedule to take into account their 17-month-old baby. The minister and his wife are caring for the house, are meeting class schedules at the university are "caring for and carrying on" Joanne.

They arranged their class schedules so one could be with the baby at all times. But it happened that both took alternate days in the baby-to-class and class-to-baby routine. Now comes every hour from 8:00 to 2:40 p. m.

And, as bad luck would have it, there was no house available near the campus during that time for the baby-to-class class-to-baby trips.

So they worked it out like this: The Rev. Mr. Potts goes to work at eight o'clock, leaving the baby with the wife. At 8:30 each school day he hurries home. On the way he meets the baby and carries her to the house. She hands the baby and tries on to school. He takes the girl home again.

The campus exchange occurs five times a week. At 11:40 a. m., mother to father at 11:40 a. m., father to mother at 11:40 a. m., mother to father at 11:40 a. m., father to mother at 11:40 a. m.

Of course, the baby gets plenty of air and when one of the parents is in the car, the other changes hands with the father almost on the run.

The father is pastor of the Methodist church at Turnersville, Tex., and is taking a Bible course at the University of Texas at Austin. Mrs. Potts is majoring in education.

The college will co-operate in the new national defense training program to help industry and government meet their needs for technical and supervisory personnel. The college will also provide field essentials to national defense industries and government defense agencies. The U. S. office of education is administering the program.

Perform Autopsy on Man Wrapped Up in 2010 B.C.

NEW YORK.—An autopsy of a man almost 4,000 years old has been performed. The man was an Egyptian nobleman of the eleventh century, who was wrapped up in B. C.

The post-mortem, performed by Dr. J. H. J. G. de Meillon, associate curator of anthropology of the American Museum of Natural History, closed Wah was 5 feet 2 inches and about 30 years old when he died. The body was found in a tomb with other organs were intact, indicating that greater pains and more were taken in preparing mummies the days of Wah than in later times said Dr. Shapiro.

Bees to Carry Messages Through Japanese Lines

SHANGHAI.—Bees are being used by the Chinese to carry messages through Japanese lines. The Chinese are using the knowledge that as long as the same queen bee rules the hive it can be moved a distance of miles, and the bees will follow.

By microphotography plans and messages are transcribed on pieces of paper and sent through enemy areas attached to the bees. At the destination the message is deciphered with a microscope.

The "bee mail" travels 30 to 40 miles an hour, the insects being most inviolable and safer than men.

Police Rescue Child Locked in Bathroom

CHICAGO.—Two policemen rescued two-year-old Sheldon Dunn from the bathroom of his home without touching a hair.

Unable to crawl through the small window, the officers whittled a notch in the end of a pole, poked it through the window, fitted the notch against the inside key of the door and unlocked it.

End Piece: Johnny Burke and Jimmy Van Heusen, Bing Crosby's song-writing team, work and relax together in perfect harmony—except for one thing. Van Heusen, a licensed pilot, spends his leisure flying his own plane, a pastime which his partner refuses to share. Burke, you see, has acrophobia, a fear of high places.

The Battle of the Balkans is nearly over. Athens has now become part of the Third Reich, and the little Greek nation which fought so stubbornly against Mussolini's Fascist troops until it wore itself out, has come under the thumb of Adolf Hitler. The British force which had gone into Greece, has been evacuated, and Winston Churchill has said that the British have suffered another tremendous defeat, but that in the end the United Kingdom shall win this war.

And in the United States, American Congressmen and the American people themselves, have realized again that the Hitler war machine is just as powerful as it was in the Battle of France, and that during the months when we were fighting over strikes and lockouts, we should have been producing war materials as fast as we could have produced them.

Furthermore, in Africa, the British have been out-tricked. After advancing in Tripoli and after taking Derna, Tobruk, and other cities in Libya, the British depleted their armed forces and sent them into Greece. But no sooner than the war in Greece had begun, Hitler sent forces also into Africa and has nearly captured all of the southern part of Egypt. A few weeks ago, the British, it was said, had been getting close to the Italian forces in North Africa. Then, no sooner than the war breaks out in Greece, a counter-attack is mustered in North Africa. But this attack, which has been recognized as the Italian last, was not an attack by Italians at all, but an attack made by German soldiers in German uniforms with German equipment. What precisely does this mean? It can mean several different things, and it can mean all of them. First of all, it probably means that Italy has been more taken over by Germany than press reports have dared to allow. But more important than that, it means that the British have been out-tricked, and have been greatly reduced, for how, otherwise would Hitler have been able to get soldiers into Africa. He could not have gone through Spain, on account of Gibraltar and certainly German troops had been used in waiting in Africa. These German soldiers, it is said, have been sent by ship in the Mediterranean and because there were not enough British ships to fight the sea war, German submarines had to be used to transport the soldiers.

And only in Ethiopia, has British troops been made to give two important cities, Addis Ababa and the British to capture them, and all signs point to a British domination of all the country.

But let's look for a moment at the situation in North Africa. Here the British under Gen. Wavell, made hard fought, but successful, moves, and had nearly destroyed all of the Italian forces in North Africa. Then, no sooner than the war breaks out in Greece, a counter-attack is mustered in North Africa. But this attack, which has been recognized as the Italian last, was not an attack by Italians at all, but an attack made by German soldiers in German uniforms with German equipment. 3-Way Plan Aids Many Groups

More cotton clothing, less cotton in the warehouse, more food on the pantry shelf—these are the aims of the new Supplementary Cotton Program of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Not only farm people, but also merchants, manufacturers, laborers, and others who help turn cotton into finished goods will be assisted by the three-fold plan. Under this program, farmers who make a further voluntary reduction in their cotton acreage in 1941 may earn cotton stamps, which they can use in their local stores to buy cotton goods. A special $3 payment also will encourage home food production. Symbolic of what the program offers are the cotton coat and dress worn by the farm girl above; the row of cotton bales, of which there is a surplus of more than 10 million; and shelves of home-canned food direct from the family garden.

Chilton County cotton farm operators who expect to take part in the Supplementary Cotton Program this year should file intention sheets with the county AAA offices as soon as possible. P. H. Smith, county agent, announced this week.

The supplementary program requires that all farmers who plan to earn cotton stamps voluntary acreage reduction and sharecroppers, as well as tenants, must file their intention sheets. They will sign a form indicating the acreage they expect to plant to cotton in 1941.

While only the operator of the farm is required actually to sign this intention sheet, he does so on behalf of his tenants and sharecroppers, as well as himself, Mr. Smith said. Intention sheets must be on file in the county AAA office not later than June 14. However, Mr. Smith urged that farmers file these sheets as soon as possible.

Under the Supplementary Cotton Program, a cotton farmer who is interested in only one farm may receive up to $25 in cotton stamps. Operators of more than one farm, or a landlord with more than one tenant, may receive a maximum of $50 in stamps. Cotton stamps, which can be used to buy cotton goods, will be issued on the basis of 10 cents a pound on the normal yield of the acreage reduced below the 1941 allotment or 1940 measured acreage, whichever is smaller.

Participation in the supplementary program will not effect the farm's cotton allotment in future years, except possibly in those few cases where no cotton was planted in either 1939 or 1940, said Mr. Smith. Neither will the farmer's conservation and parity payments under the 1941 AAA program be in addition to receiving stamps for cotton acreage reduction, the participating farmer becomes eligible to earn a $3 payment for carrying out an improved food production practice.

Interested in only one farm may receive up to $25 in cotton stamps. Operators of more than one farm, or a landlord with more than one tenant, may receive a maximum of $50 in stamps. Cotton stamps, which can be used to buy cotton goods, will be issued on the basis of 10 cents a pound on the normal yield of the acreage reduced below the 1941 allotment or 1940 measured acreage, whichever is smaller.

may ask, and why, has the British left the Mediterranean and gone to another place? The reason is obvious. Because the British have conquered the Italian navy by fighting in Otranto, and in other battles, the British thought their navy would do much greater good in convoying British vessels which carried precious supplies from the United States. For the British have suffered tremendous ship losses, and we know. And that if the British are to survive they must have American supplies, and their navy must prevent the loss of ships which are carrying these supplies.

Therefore, the course is clear for America. We must devise a way to get food and materials to Britain, if we are to aid Britain, and we must leave the British navy clear and free that it may work in active war zones where it can be of the greatest help at the greatest time in the greatest way.

ABRAM poultrymen are cooperating in a nationwide drive to produce every possible egg from present laying flocks this spring and summer to assure ample food supplies for the United States. Great Britain, and other nations resisting aggression. The campaign is expected to increase egg production for the whole country in the next 15 months by about 6 per cent, or about 10 million cases of 30 dozen eggs each.

The goal can be achieved, says John Ivey, Extension poultryman, partly by ample feeding beginning immediately—and partly by filling up the Nation's poultry houses to capacity with laying birds this fall. The Department of Agriculture has announced it will support long term egg prices at an average of about 22 cents (Chicago basis) until June, 1943, a figure which should make egg production profitable.

The Agricultural Marketing Service, USDA, reports the number of turkeys on hand February 1 for breeding in the United States was 14 per cent lower than on the corresponding date a year ago.

"Build-Up" Important

Protector of Women

A weak, undernourished condition often enables functional dysmenorrhea to get a foothold; thus leads to much of woman's suffering from headaches, nervousness, and other periodic discomfort.

CARDUI's principal help for such distress comes from the way it usually stimulates appetite; increases flow of gastric juice; thus aids digestion; helps build energy, strength, physical resistance to periodic pain for many.

Another way, many women find help for periodic distress: Take CARDUI a few days before and during the "time." Women have used CARDUI for more than 60 years!

Shrimp 'Peelers' in North Carolina Town Get Pay

As They Work.

SOUTHPORT, N. C.—The fishing village of Southport is on the "nickel standard"—the coin, not the metal—but a thriving business goes on here just the same.

The nickel, in fact, is a most important coin here and it is not at all unusual for a merchant to sell a basketful of groceries, or a dress or a pair of shoes, and be paid with a handful of nickels.

Some of the leading business men of Southport take water buckets full of nickels to work with them in the morning for their daily transactions.

Important Shrimp Port.

Southport, at the mouth of the Cape Fear river, is an important shrimp port, and although the income average is not high, there is little unemployment and virtually no dire poverty.

Yet many of these workers are paid a nickel at a time and wage-hour experts from Washington who shudder at the necessity of discussing wages on a five-cent basis have been unable to devise a better method of compensating the shrimp picker.

The shrimp boats leave Southport at dawn to drag their nets around the mouth of the river. Early in the afternoon they return to their shrimp-picking houses and as they come in sight the Negro pickers hurry to the docks.

Men, women and a few children line up on each side of the big troughs into which the shrimp are dumped. Each one grabs a bucket and the "peeling" begins. When a bucket is filled the picker is paid off in nickels, immediately, on the basis of the amount picked.

Some Earn $2 in Day.

Until the shrimp supply is exhausted, the picker makes trip after trip to the trough, or until the worker has all the nickels he needs. A good picker can earn as much as 40 nickels during the afternoon.

Bill Wells, who operates one of the largest shrimp packing houses, said that no other method of paying had proved so satisfactory. In the first place, he says, it's part-time work and until the boats arrive no one knows how much there will be to do. And, in the second place, the pickers like to come and go as they please.

Some of the pickers work because they are bored with sitting around the house. A few nickels usually suffice. Sometimes a child is too hard until the first nickel is earned and then will head for the nearest store for candy.

Bees Go South in Trailer

To Keep Up Their Work

EAST PEMBROKE, N. Y.—The busy bees of John M. and Jourdain J. DeMuth, East Pembroke father-son apiarists, have migrated to Florida again to spend the winter manufacturing honey.

Imprisoned in specially constructed hives, the bees were taken to Florida, Fla., the winter base, on a specially built trailer in two nonstop trips. Two hundred hives, or more than 50,000,000 bees, made the trip southward.

Hives were made only for refueling or some emergency to avoid swarming of the buzzers on the screens when the transport was not in motion. Hives were so packed that air continually circulated about the containers.

London Guards Historic

Plane of the Wrights

LONDON—A historic plane which was a forerunner of modern warfare—the frail contrivance flown by Orville and Wilbur Wright at Kitty Hawk, N. C., in 1903—is packed in the deepest cellar of the Science museum in South Kensington as a safeguard against German raids.

While 1940 fighters and bombers roar overhead the old Wright plane lies in the cases in which it was brought to England from the United States.

"We think it secure enough against a blast which might be caused by anything dropping in the neighborhood," a museum official said.

Home Letters Fail to Catch Up With Seaman

AUCKLAND, N. Z.—Letters from his family have never reached a young Latvian seaman, because he travels round the world so fast.

He is Leonards Voitkevics, who left his father's farm in Latvia six years ago when he was only 13, and has been sailing the seas since.

Voitkevics was left in Auckland by a Norwegian tanker, to undergo an operation.

Students Say 'Hello'

175 Times Each Day

ALFRED, N. Y.—The word "hello" is spoken 175 times a day by the average student, according to an Alfred university survey.

The survey reveals that some girls give the salutation as many as 350 times on warm spring or summer days. The average, however, is brought down by some of the timid youth who recognize a passer-by only when necessary.

CONSERVATION AND

PARITY RATES SET

Alabama farmers can now estimate the amount of the parity and conservation payments they can earn through full participation in the 1941 AAA program.

Parity payments this year will be 1.8 cents on each pound on the normal yield of the farm's acreage allotment. These payments are made to producers to help bring income more nearly to the parity levels of 1910 to 1914.

Conservation payments will be made at 1.37 cents per pound on the normal yield of the farm's cotton allotment. Farmers who plant within their cotton acreage allotments and carry out soil building practices are eligible to receive these parity and conservation payments.

... I LIKE NATCHEL THINGS DE' BEST

Of course he does! Uncle Natchel has learned by experience it pays to work with Nature.

Chilean Nitrate is natural—the only natural nitrate in the world. It's good for all your crops. Its quick-acting nitrogen and natural balance of "vitamin" plant food elements help you make larger crops and higher quality, too.

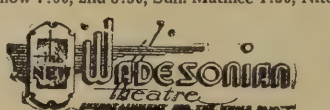

In mixed fertilizer and as side dressing use Natural Chilean Nitrate. Use it regularly, year after year, to get full benefit of its natural fertilizing and soil-improving qualities.

IN MEMORY

(In memory of my grandmother—Mrs. G. M. Hamrick: By Frank Merchant, Oakridge, Oregon.)
Vacant at home is the old rocking chair,
Previously occupied by one we loved so dear;
Never, no never, again can it be filled.
By one to replace grandmother so dear.
She ras gone and left us here behind,
Gone to her mansion in Heaven so fair;
Gone to be with loved ones gone on before,
And patiently awaiting our arrival up there.
Grandmother you've left me with a broken heart,
Sorrow's swell up and unceasingly flow;
Tears spare no time in the hour of grief,
Fading the light that in eyes once did glow.
Gone—but memory still remains,
Of hours that were so happily drawn;
And shall remain until the day
When I shall go—where granny has gone.
—Grandson.

ORDER OF SALE

He Served 3 Flags, Ready for the RAF, Jailed for Bigamy

Canadian Judge Is Vexed Over Rare Case, Gives Him 9 Months.

TORONTO.—Veteran of service under three flags and applicant for enlistment under a fourth, Donald Willis, 27, was sentenced to nine months in reformatory for perjury and bigamy, with probable deportation to the United States to follow.
Willis, who served in the United States army in Hawaii, and later fought for Finland and Norway, and was awaiting enlistment in the Royal Air Force, admitted having married a Toronto girl in Hamilton, but pleading that he believed his first wife, Mary Kathleen Krouse, whom he married in New York in 1937, had divorced him.
Willis testified that he enlisted in the United States army at the age of 17. He admitted serving 14 months in Alcatraz prison for assault.
Fought With Norse.
He stated that upon Russia's invasion of Finland a year ago he enlisted in the Finnish air force, serving there until the end of the campaign. Later he made his way to Norway and served in the air force there with Commander Hans Bugge, now in command of Norwegian aviators training in Toronto.
After collapse of the Norwegian campaign, Willis fled with Bugge to England in a captured German plane. Later he came to Canada, trained with the Royal Norwegian air force and received an honorable discharge to permit him to qualify for a commission in the British or Canadian air force.
Willis testified that on arriving in Canada he was informed that his first wife had launched divorce proceedings against him and that he had assumed he was free to remarry.
"I don't know what to do with this man," Judge Otto Klein commented. "He has a remarkable record."
"He is a man of restless disposition, enterprising, energetic, and of such a mentality that he would not inquire too closely into what was best for him," E. G. Black, defense counsel, pleaded. "But his motives were right, and he has always been on the right side. He is the impulsive type."
Crown Disagrees.
W. O. Gibson, crown prosecutor, stated that he did not agree with the defense estimate of Willis' character.
"He left Kathleen Krouse to go to Finland," the crown added. "I believe he used the same method to attract this Toronto young woman, as he did to lure the young woman who became his first wife."
"Everybody loves a soldier," Judge Klein observed — "nine months!"

Honesty Saves Him From Long Sentence in Jail

ST. LOUIS.—Carl "Babe" Spikes was hailed into federal court at St. Louis charged with possession of bootleg whisky.
When Judge John C. Collet asked him if he wanted a lawyer the defendant refused, explaining, "You don't need a lawyer when you're going to tell the truth." He then pleaded guilty.
"Have you had any trouble with the police?" the judge asked.
When Spikes answered that he had not, Judge Collet pointed to had not, Judge Collet pointed to Babe's record of 28 arrests in 13 years.
"Oh," replied Spikes, "I thought you meant real redeeming features, Babe," the judge smiled. "Your candor and bluntness. I'm only going to give you four months in jail."

Check Suspect Trapped By Movie Star Photos

CHICAGO.—A passion for collecting pictures and autographs of movie stars resulted today in the arrest of Harold Rose, 37, Hollywood, Calif., on charges of passing worthless checks.
He was bound over to a federal grand jury under $2,500 bond on the charge of passing more than 1,000 worth of bogus checks, most of it drawn against insurance companies, during the last two years. Rose said he had worked in Hollywood as publicity agent for screen and radio stars.
He was arrested here on tips that alleged victims had recognized his automobile at Louisville, Ky., and Indianapolis, Ind., en route to Chicago. The car was covered with pictures of Rose, posing with film celebrities.

Stolen for Scrap Metal

HARRISBURG, PA.—Rising metal prices have placed a new problem on Pennsylvania police. Thieves are taking metal markers placed at historic sites throughout the state.
To combat vandalism, the state historical society has notified the state motor police to keep a close watch on metal sales. Recently the commission photographed all the markers so they can be easily traced.

Scotchman Recovers Tackle With Interest

WARREN, PA.—There's a gleam in the eye of Fire Chief Douglas Kroppe, a Scotsman, who hates to lose anything.
Last month, a big fish broke away with his spinner, leader and hook.
The other day, while fishing near the same place, Kroppe hooked a 17-inch bass in whose mouth was the tackle he had lost.

150-Year-Old Fire Is Still Burning

Cared for by Aged Man Atop Tryon Mountain.

SALUDA, N. C.—A 150-year-old fire, which is slowly eating Tryon mountain, and inside the cabin that houses it a radio plays softly. An 80-year-old man sits there alone and occasionally accompanies the radio music with his fiddle.
A paved highway passes near by, leading to large cities, and across the mountains an aluminum works pounds out weapons of war.
But William Morris cares little for those things "outside." He'd rather take his time—won't smoke and stir up the fire and perhaps take down an aged pan and cook a slab of meat, all the time "wondering if me and the fire will go out together."
He'll tell you a story about that blaze if you'll "set awhile, just pull up that chair, and just make yourself to home."
A century and a half ago John and Sarah Morris left Pennsylvania, their meager possessions piled high on a buckboard, and traveled after the establishment of a home. Their trail led them into the Blue Ridge mountains, then infested by Indians who had been pushed back from the seaboard. They chopped down trees around the spot where the logs fell, built a cabin. They dug deep and found stones for a chimney. Then they moved in.
John Morris took out his hunting knife and struck a spark from a flint arrowhead. The spark fell upon dry wood, and a blaze sprang up. The Morris knelt in prayer and thanked God for caring so well for them.
That was the birth of the ancestral fire that one can now see burning so brightly on the hearth of William Morris. It never has been out, has moved only once into the nearby cabin, where the old bachelor now lives alone.
Keeping the fire going once had a utilitarian virtue. Finally it became so famous in the wilderness as a never-fading fire that the family prided themselves upon it. Utility thus faded into sentiment and finally, with the old man, almost into reverence.
William is the last of the family. "Go me and the fire will go out together," he says.

Robber Skips Escapes Court Posing as Drunk

HAMILTON, ONT.—John R. Ross, 38, of Montreal, voluntarily answered to another man's name in police court here, and paid a $10 fine for being drunk, an offense of which he was guilty.
But Ross was not animated by altruistic motives. He was held here on suspicion of participating in a diamond robbery in Montreal, and the ruse to which he resorted won him his last temporary liberty.
Ross was awaiting arraignment in police court when a docket of drunk cases was being dealt with. When the name of Charles Walters of Saratoga was called, Ross, answering to the name, stepped forward, entered a plea of guilty, paid a $10 fine and was allowed to leave the court. By the time his own name was called, he was far from the scene.
Walters was found later asleep in a cell.

Skunk Fights Rattlesnake And Emerges the Victor

STAUNTON, VA.—It was a battle to the death, and a skunk emerged as the victor over a rattlesnake.
Game Warden C. L. Miller tells the story. Mr. and Mrs. Lee Williams of Washington were camping on Mount Elliott when they heard the ominous rattle of the snake about night hours. A flashlight disclosed a small spotted skunk battling the snake. The skunk fled when the light was flashed, but recovered his nerve and returned for the kill.
The spotted skunk, Miller explained, is of the weasel family and out class the ordinary polecat. It is about the size of a squirrel and seldom is seen but of the mountain areas.

Brothers Apart 55 Years

Require an Introduction
SEATTLE, WASH.—After a separation of 55 years, two aged brothers have been reunited here.
John Richard Moody, 85 years old, of Charleston, S. C., met his brother, William Cassius Moody, 79, here—and they had to be introduced by a third person because they did not recognize each other.
The certain "plays tricks," John Moody said. "I certainly was stumped when I saw my brother. We were young bucks when we separated back in 1885."

MT. NEBO

A great deal of industry is being displayed in this community since the advent of real spring weather. Much farming and gardening is being done, and Mr. W. L. Henley has just had his house painted. The result is very nice, indeed.
Sunday school attendance was good this week, with several visitors present. An interesting Epworth League program was presented Sunday night after prayer service. Everyone in the community is cordially invited to attend all services of the church.
The Pleasant Grove church and Mt. Nebo church are co-operating in the production of a Mother's Day program, directed by Miss Inez McKee. It will be presented on the First Sunday in May, preceding the sermon at Pleasant Grove church. Everyone is invited.

A number of people from this community attended the singing convention in Clanton Saturday night and Sunday. Among those present Sunday were Mr. Enoch Henley, Mr. Sam Henley, Miss Marvorie Henley, Miss Alea Culp, Mr. Arthur Henley, Mrs. Woodie Deason, Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Glenn, Mr. Floyd Glenn, Mrs. Ursell Bond, and children.
Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Mims and children visited Miss Annie Culp Sunday.
Mr. Osmond Culp, of Birmingham, spent the week end with his parents, Mrs. Sam Henley spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Henley.
Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Culp are in this community again, since the closing of the Forest Home Junior High School, of which Mr. Culp is principal.
Miss Frances Terry, of Plantersville, is visiting Miss Inez McKee.
Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Culp visited Mr. and Mrs. Lee Billingsley Sunday afternoon.
Tommie Gandy, who is in the Central Alabama Hospital recovering from injuries received in an automobile accident is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Winston Culp and children, of Beaumont, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Culp during the week end.
Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn McKee entertained a few friends and neighbors with an ice cream supper Saturday night.
Mr. Cecil McKee has returned to his home following an operation in a Birmingham hospital, and is getting along fine. Among his visitors Sunday were Misses Elois Keen, Lois Durbin, and Helen Durbin, Mr. Wilson Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Culp, Mrs. J. D. Culp, Mr. Osmond Culp, Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn McKee, Pete and Martha Evelyn McKee.
A Young Peoples' Choir is being organized at the Mt. Nebo church under the direction of Mrs. D. P. Culp. Mrs. Culp has just completed a successful work as director of the Forest Home Methodist Junior Choir, and director of the Junior High School chorus, and hopes to have a successful summer choir at this place. The choir meets on Wednesday evenings promptly at seven o'clock at the church. All young people are urged to attend.

Thorsby Institute

Thorsby Institute will hold its Annual Field Day events on Monday afternoon, May 5th.

The Christian Life Conference held at Thorsby Institute from Friday through Sunday was a most successful event. There was a large attendance. Miss Lillian McKee took charge of the conference in the absence of Miss Marguerite Davison, who was called away because of the serious illness of her father. Miss McKee's services and help in the success of this conference is very much appreciated.

The following students made honor rolls at Thorsby Institute during the 5th term of work: FIRST HONOR ROLL. Rubye Mae Bean, Billy Calen, Lula Mae Collins, Norman Harris,

JEMISON SENIORS TO PRESENT "IN THE DOGHOUSE"

We've all smiled at the expression, "In the Doghouse" at one time or another, and now we are to have the opportunity of witnessing the performance of a delightful comedy by that name. "In the Doghouse" is Edith Loring's latest contribution to gaiety and laughter and it is to be given May 9, 1941 at eight o'clock at the Jemison High School auditorium, sponsored by the Senior Class. Here is your chance to have an entire evening of fun so be on hand early and bring as many with you as you can.

The cast of characters includes: Hannibal Maxwell, who finds himself in the doghouse—Leslie Glass; Blanche Maxwell, his wife, who puts him there—Lucille Raspberry; Lanny Maxwell, young son—James Martin; Dale Maxwell, young daughter—Mary Thomas Cost; Sampson Hallet, henpecked neighbor—Charles Littlejohn; Effie Hallet, his complaining wife—Mary James Patton; Wendy Ives, her young niece—Doris Jean Smith; Geraldine Castle, of the social set—Willowden Cost; Mrs. Beryl August, widow—Mildred Connor; Dwight Monroe, wealthy young man—Sam Burkhalter; Martin Green, insurance salesman—James Lloyd Bean; Mary Ward, waitress—Nell Robinson; Olive Jackson, who settles a score—Lanaine Dorniney.

The Senior Class is also sponsoring a Baby Contest to begin at 7:30, May 9th. A beautiful loving cup will be given the winner. Votes are one cent each. Come to the play early and vote for your favorite baby.

The Jemison Elitist Wonders defeated the Verbena nine 3-0 Tuesday afternoon, April 22. The game went scoreless until the last of the sixth inning when Jemison rallied and scored three runs.

Friday, April 25, Jemison was defeated by Billingsley in a hard fought game ending with a score of 1 to 0. Billingsley scored on an error.

INFERIOR COURT CONVENES

The Inferior Law Court will hold criminal cases on Monday, May 5th. Judge Raymond Mims on the Bench.

Breckenridge, his second wife—Miss Laverna Jones; Mammy, his colored cook—M. T. E. Campbell; Lisa, his colored maid—Mrs. Roy Higgins; and Patience Trent, his neighbor—Mrs. Roy Rayburn. There will be an admission charge of 10 and 15 cents. Everyone invited.

Smartest Trick of Whole Sino-Jap War

Four Flyers Land on Enemy Field and Clean Up.

PEKING, CHINA.—The commander of a Japanese naval base in central China reports the neatest trick of the whole Sino-Japanese war performed by four of his flyers.

They landed their planes on the Chinese airfield at Chengtu in Szechuan province in the course of an air attack.

"On the airfield reverberating with the rat-a-tat of machine guns and rifle fire, the four airmen sprang from their machines, firing pistols in their right hands and tightly gripping a box of matches in the other.

"Like rabbits they ran here and there, putting fire to still intact Chinese planes amid a rain of enemy bullets.

"With flames suddenly enveloping the machines, one pilot rushed to the enemy headquarters. Unseen by the enemy, he brought cans of gasoline and set the headquarters on fire.

Thus reads the Japanese report, undenied by Chinese sources. "Their work completed," continues the report, "the four pilots sped to their planes and took to the air through the black smoke covering the field."

These deeds reportedly were carried out after a Japanese bomber had dropped its load and the fighter planes had downed Chinese planes which had gone up to combat them.

Juke Box Enthusiast Makes Fatal Mistake

MEXICO CITY.—A nickel in the slot which brought forth the swing tune "Woodpecker Song" from a cantina "juke box" also brought death for Jesus Valenzuela.

Police Officer Priado had a particular aversion to the "Woodpecker Song" and when he heard it in the barroom he demanded to know who had made the selection.

The bartender pointed to Valenzuela. Priado pointed to Valenzuela with a gun. Valenzuela died a few minutes later. Priado was held for murder.

Pitcairn's Re-Discoverer Will Receive a Tribute

MASSILLON, OHIO.—Authors of "Mutiny on the Bounty" have been asked to assist in honoring the memory of the old Yankee skipper and early Massillon settler who more than 130 years ago found the secret South Sea island refuge of the Bounty mutineers.

Citizens here plan to erect a memorial marker at the grave of Capt. Mayhew Folger, the seafarer who re-discovered Pitcairn's island.

Lord Nelson's Grandson Lives Quietly in Maine

DENNYVILLE, MAINE.—In this quiet town 3,000 miles from Europe an 80-year-old man eagerly watches for news of the war.

His concern is deeper than most Americans'. He is Horatio Nelson Lund, grandson of England's Lord Nelson.

Lund has great faith in Britain's ultimate victory. He sees 55 years of peace because of the sea power that his ancestor built to greatness.

Cupid Writes in the Sky To Tell of Couple's Troth

LAKE ARROWHEAD, CALIF.—Miss Ethel-Mary Hamilton, Briarcliff Junior college graduate, and Harold Spurrier Anderson Jr., Stanford university student, had their engagement announced with a flourish.

At the home of the bride's mother here, 40 guests watched an airplane skywriter link their initials in the sky and encircle them with a heart.

Blind Girl, 18, Wins Prize-Winning Fantasy

SEATTLE.—In Marion Anderson's world of darkness there is no room for butterflies. She is blind.

Yet the 18-year-old girl won a short story contest sponsored by the Braille Searchlight magazine. A fairy tale, entitled "How the Butterfly Got Its Name."

With her prize money Miss Anderson contemplates purchase of a cello.

Twins, 55, Go to Hospital Together for Operation

ROCKVILLE, CONN.—George and Henry Gackeler are twins in every sense of the word. They're 55 years old, do the same sort of work, find identical enjoyment and have the same likes and dislikes. So it wasn't unusual when George went to a hospital for an operation that Henry had to have one, too.

Smithy Too Mighty; Village Indicts Him

GRAYVILLE, PA.—Davis S. Sukay, the village "smithy," was indicted by the county grand jury for maintaining and causing a common and public nuisance.

The former tinker of hammer and anvil constitutes an unwholesome clang to the ears of Grayville, F. Jablonski, the prosecutor, maintains.

We are glad of the number at Sunday school Sunday. But we need those who are not coming. It is so easy to find excuses for not attending Sunday school and church services. But there is coming a "Great Day" when we must all give account of our times as well as other talents we have, and dear people, what a great thing it will be if we can answer that at least we have spent the Sabbath Day at God's House. Won't you go to church somewhere?

We are being blessed with some pretty weather and farmers are working ev'ry possible hour getting cotton seeds in the ground.

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE RAILROAD

The confidence of a boy and girl starting their lives is a shining aspiration for everyone. Their future years ahead is planned and charted, with hardly a thought given to the possibility that their dreams may not come true.

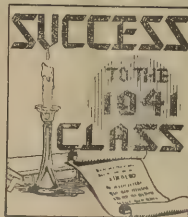

Yet, they realize full well that they cannot trust to luck alone. When they consider their plans with a more matter-of-fact view, they admit they must be prepared for the good things of the future, for sudden financial emergencies. They're sitting "on top of the world"—but they're down to earth if they save a part of their income regularly. Their Savings Account is their stepping stone to realization of their present plans.

Anything of safe and lasting usefulness must be carefully engineered and planned from the ground up. Great bridges must have immense concrete and steel bases, great buildings must have deep, secure foundations. Great Banks, too, must have good foundations, though of a slightly different nature. Great banks are founded and developed on the soundness of their policy, their judgment, intelligence and honesty.

This year the Autobiography of Andrew Jackson is being presented the night of the graduating exercises.

Anyone desiring to honor Mrs. Wilson by placing a book on this shelf should avail themselves of this opportunity.

WAYS GIVEN TO STORE POTATOES AND ONIONS

Suggestions for storing Irish potatoes and onions so they will keep through the summer are offered by W. A. Ruffin, extension horticulturist.

Potatoes: Dig as soon as the vine the plow; place all round uncultivated begin to die; pick them up just behind in orange crates or similar containers; store potatoes in dry cellar or under the house where the air is dry and cool.

Onions: Onions should be handled about the same way as Irish potatoes, however, onions will be better if spread out so they will not come in contact with each other.

THANKS TO LIBERTY HILL CHURCH

On Sunday, May 4th, Liberty Hill church was host to the Chilton County Hary and Harmony Singing Convention and when we say Host we mean everything pertaining to hospitality and from actual expressions from all, both singers, and listeners, we believe every one greatly enjoyed the entire day.

The convention was complimented with singers from several other counties. Singing began at 10 o'clock in the morning by Mr. Marvin Jackson, chairman; Mr. Cleveland Jackson of Sylacauga acted as program chairman for the day and through his services as such, a splendid program of music was offered all day.

Directors for the day were, Messrs. Marlow Williams, M. W. Brown, Rev. S. C. Hayes, Will Cooper, T. C. Jackson, John W. Hayes, M. C. Jackson, George Williams, J. N. Scott, Rev. Andrew Davis and Mrs. Pauline LeCroy all of Chilton County and Mr. Jack Langston of Selma; Mr. Columbus Ratcliff of Lawley; Mr. Ole Blocker of Coosa County; Mr. Akers, Mr. Askew, Mr. Abrams and Mr. Brown of Sylacauga and Talladega.

The business session of the convention resulted in the re-election of last year's officers. That of County Chairman being M. C. Jackson; Vice-chairman, John Hayes and Secretary, Ira Crowe. Dedicatorial and Memorial songs were sung in honor of many deceased friends and members at the closing of service. The song "Paring Hands" was sung and the convention was closed with prayer by Bro. Andrew Davis.

Women Swindlers Go After the Big Men, Survey Shows

Big-Time Financial Frauds Worked by So-Called Weaker Sex.

NEW YORK.—Are women more honest than men?

This new work out of debate has been a new work out of debate having a series of big-time financial swindles by business women, culminating in the arrest of Mrs. Mary B. Roberts, 51-year-old widow prominent in Scarsdale, N. Y., club and social circles, on a charge of forgery preferred by the son and her of her employer, the late Samuel C. Thomson, noted mining engineer.

According to District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, Mrs. Roberts admitted her peculations from her employer amounted to a half million dollars. A wizard at bookkeeping, she reportedly performed the remarkable feat of keeping her operations secret for 10 years. Thomson died in the belief that she was an ideal confidential secretary. But his son, Clifford, couldn't understand why his father's supposed $750,000 fortune had shrunk to $250,000, and investigated.

However, the case of Mrs. Roberts is far from being an isolated one. Some of the nation's biggest swindles, involving as victims numerous persons of national prominence, have been charged within the last few years by women, but unscrupulous, business women.

Millions Taken.

Among them are Edna V. O'Brien, who, before she failed for a million dollars, swindled such notables as Anne Morgan and late Amelia Earhart; Mrs. Margaret Johnson, who, as an investment counselor, nicked trustful investors for an estimated $250,000; Ida F. Craven, who sold hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of worthless mining stock; and Mrs. Lillian S. Schrein, who, by devious methods, got a half million dollars from Martin Beck, shrewd theater manager.

Another woman whose name is associated with the loss of a million is Mrs. Lydia B. Koch, recently indicted for fraud by the federal government after the courts had retrained her from selling securities in New York state.

Peculiarly, supposedly moneywise New York seems to be the happy hunting ground of the big-time women swindlers. The biggest financiers of the metropolis often appear in the lists of victims.

Study of Dishonesty.

An exhaustive study of the female Ponzi has been made, in the course of her duties, by Miss Bertha Schwartz, assistant attorney general of New York state. Confronted by the recent instances of big-scale female dishonesty, she has concluded that, while women are no less honest than men, they can't be regarded as essentially more honest.

When it comes to mathematics, the frail ladies apparently deal in astronomical numbers. There was Edna O'Brien, for instance. It was through Miss Schwartz' efforts that Edna, one-time leading investment counselor, went to prison in 1938. Such names as those of Anne Morgan, sister of J. P. Morgan, and the late Amelia Earhart, appeared among her victims.

Miss O'Brien, 48, was accused of having gotten away with $300,000 from Dr. Mary Dunne Walsh of New York city and $100,000 from the $1,000,000 estate of Dr. Walsh's mother, a Baltimore resident.

But that's not all. A bankruptcy schedule filed by Miss O'Brien listed $964,277 liabilities and $88,454 assets. The liabilities, according to Miss Schwartz, represented, for the most part, money stolen from victims in fake stock transactions. So Miss O'Brien's illicit business was just about in the million-dollar class.

Wins 75-Year Controversy Over Books Lost in War

WASHINGTON.—Ending a three-quarter century long controversy, the Beaufort, S. C., library won the right to replacement with duplicates of valuable books and documents captured by Federal soldiers in 1861, and later destroyed by fire.

President Roosevelt signed a measure directing the Library of Congress to transfer to the Beaufort library "books of the same value as those" taken by the United States army when it defeated Confederate forces along the South Carolina coast.

The original Beaufort collection was taken to New York and advertised for sale, but New York newspapers protested and the advertisement was withdrawn. The books were placed in the Smithsonian institute here and destroyed by a fire in 1865.

Guardsman Stumbles on Grave of Lost Relative

KINSTON, N. C. National Guard Sergeant Charles W. Farmer told how, on a dark night, he stumbled over a grave on the Civil war battlefield at Vicksburg, Miss., where his uncle camped in route home from the Louisiana maneuvers.

The inscription on the tombstone: "Lieut. William Farmer, 81st Illinois Regiment"—Charles' great-uncle, who had not been heard from since the day he went to the war.

Several days ago, I was in a five-and-ten-cent store. I stopped by the soda fountain, and bought a hot dog. While I was eating, a mother and her little six-year old boy passed by. The boy pulled at his mother's skirt, saying that he wanted a hot dog, too.

It wasn't so many years ago that I was doing the same thing—begging and pleading for a hot dog. But now, those days are passed, and when I want one, I buy one!

But as it is with individuals, from hot dogs to hamburgers, so it is with nations, from foreign policy to domestic issues. There are certain things we can't do when we are young, either because of the lack of experience or the lack of ability. But when we get older, we can do them ourselves without the guidance of something else.

At the close of the World War, America thought she knew about everything that she needed to know. But she didn't. And she made the greatest failure of any venture made by any nation in the history of all the great world peace movements. She failed because she was too young. She lacked vision. She lacked sagacity. She lacked wisdom, and above all, she lacked the common unity and the belief in the right that precedes all great achievements.

For that matter, as America was young some twenty years ago, so she is young today. And so, she must fail now as she failed before. That is, in truth, the view taken by certain groups of people all over this country. They feel that America is too young to achieve anything. And because she is too young, she is doomed to failure. However, America will always be, then, doomed to failure. America cannot possibly hope to catch up in age with the rest of the world powers.

Japan, today, is older than America can hope ever to be for the next two thousand years. Japan, five hundred years before Christ, had its own civilization. America got hers nineteen hundred years later. England, France, Spain, Russia, even Africa, had civilization and culture, before America had them. And yet, today the future of the world rests upon America, the youngest, most inexperienced, weakest and most fearful nation that ever had any great purpose in the entire history of mankind.

Some men today insist that America should burn itself first to make sure that there is a fire. Instead of accepting the lessons that we know are true, these men want us to sit back and wait, to see again if the lessons of the past were true. If America is determined to re-experience past failures and discouragements, then she is young, very young, too young, to accept her responsibility. But if America is to learn the lessons of the history of the world, and will apply those lessons, then America is not too young to do that which she should do. Twenty years ago, she was too young. She had failed to learn the greatest lesson of all lessons—that unity comes first. The whole country was divided and didn't know what it wanted. America lost then her opportunity to do what she should have done towards establishing world peace. Now, today, the opportunity is back. America has been given another chance.

What America makes of this chance will not only be a responsibility to America herself, but to the entire taken from her, history has shown that, leaders have preached that, and Americans know that. The matter is no longer what we want to do, but what we must do, and what we shall do.

For a nation, about one hundred and sixty four years old, to have the chance of leading the world, is an honor. But an honor which entails an endless, relentless devotion to duty, to self, and to country.

If America is to be led by those who think America is too young to do her duty, then we may never seize the wonderful opportunity open to us today. But if America realizes that prevention of past experience and present might are more important than age in the history of the world, then America will be able to succeed.

For as America failed twenty years ago, today she can succeed. By failing in the past, today the task is ever so much harder. But, by that same token, should America fail now, the future will be more difficult. Though then the future will be cultivatable if America succeeds, now, as she can, those dreams and those aspirations that men in every age hope and pray for,

WAY TO CONTROL TOMATO LEAF MOLD OUTLINED

Alabama farmers bothered with tomato leaf mold are having good success controlling the disease with Bordeaux mixture, reports J. L. Seal, experiment station pathologist, in advising that "with cool, damp weather generally over the State mold will probably become more prevalent."

If Bordeaux (mixture of five pounds of copper, five pounds of hydrated lime in 50 gallons of water) is used promptly when first sign of infection appears, mold can be controlled. If the fungus is allowed to cover leaves before spray is applied, the plants will likely die. If weather is hot and dry, spray applications every two weeks is sufficient, treatment being kept up until last crop of tomatoes is made.

Approximately 200 gallons of spray per acre will give good coverage for average size plants at a cost of $2.50 to $3.00 per acre.

ton County; Dr. H. M. Nix, of Maplesville; Dr. S. C. Meigs, Mayor of Centerville; Probate Judge C. H. Howard of Elmore County; Probate Judge F. L. Gaddis of Autauga County; Montgomery City Commissioner, W. A. Gayle; and Chairman J. M. Jenkins of the Montgomery County Board of Revenue.

The distance from Montgomery to Tuscaloosa over the University Highway is 96.6 miles. The route follows that of the Birmingham highway (U.S. 31) from Montgomery, North through the Counties of Montgomery, Elmore and Autauga to Prattville, thence to and through Prattville and on to Tuscaloosa via Booth, Vida, Billingslee, Maplesville, Sandy, Centerville, Brent, Poline, Hagler, Duncanville, Taylorville and Selma.

The distance between Montgomery and Tuscaloosa via Selma, Uniontown and Greensboro, one of the only two present available all-paved route is 145 miles; over the other available all-paved route via Birmingham, the distance is 159 miles. These distances compare with that of 96.6 miles which will be the distance between the two cities over The University Highway.

Of the 96.6 miles, approximately 18.6 miles have been paved—2 1/2 miles in Tuscaloosa county, 13 in Autauga, 2 1/2 miles in Bibb, and one mile in Chilton, through the town of Maplesville. Approximately 7 1/2 miles, therefore, are yet to be paved. Cost of this work is estimated at $1,800,000. The construction will be financed jointly by the State, the Counties benefitted and the Federal Government. Pledges of their respective parts of the financing have already been made in writing, through agreements with the State Highway Department, by the Counties of Tuscaloosa and Bibb. Similar agreements are pending with Autauga and Chilton, the other two counties in which the route is unpaved.

NEW SALEM

We had a wonderful day here last Sunday. A good program was rendered by members of the Sunday school illustrating the life and resurrection of Jesus Christ. It was a home-coming day too, for a great number of old church members came home.

We also had a good singing. The leaders for the afternoon were: Dock Harris, Ralph Grant, Luther Grant, Posey Cleeley, O. L. Devaughn, B. L. Cobb Lee Grant, Lige Glascock, Sam Burkhalter, Hiram Littlejohn, and Thomas Childress. Pianists were Mrs. Roye Emogene Lowery, Eason Madox, Ralph Grant and Mrs. Earl Lowery. Special songs were rendered by the Liberty Hill quartet and Trio, Alabama Four quartet and a solo rendered by Mr. Ralph Grant.

"Y. W. A. MEETS"

The Y. W. A. met at the church Monday night with Edith Arnold presiding. The meeting was opened by singing "Open Mine Eyes". The devotion was conducted by Mrs. O. A. Davis led in prayer. Business chairman, Mary Carr Arnold took charge. The title was "Christian Youth in America".

Those contributing to an interesting program were Bertelle Holmes, Martha Massey, Katherine Hoover, and Dorothy Arnold. Edith Arnold read a letter from Mrs. F. W. Armstrong to the Young Women of America. The meeting was closed by singing "Give of Your Best To The Master". Delicious refreshments were served by Sylvia Miller and the meeting adjourned to meet next Monday night.

MOTHER'S DAY MEMORIES

In loving memory of our darling mother, Mrs. G. M. Hamrick, who left us April 2nd.

Blessed is the memory of the voice we never hear. But sweet is the echo that still is ringing in our ears with sweet thoughts which never grow old. The God has a purpose in his will, one beautiful day He'll unfold—The children.

REV. CASADAY ASKS CHURCH ATTENDANCE ON MOTHER'S DAY

Sunday May 11, is Mother's Day and Rev. T. C. Casaday, of the Clanton Methodist church is working hard for a full house on that day. Rev. Casaday thinks that the best way in which all of us can honor our mother on that day is by attending church. All members and others who will are urged to come to church Sunday.

May 18 Proclaimed "I Am An American Day"

A PROCLAMATION
WHEREAS, Public Resolution No. 67, approved May 3, 1940 (54 Stat. 178), provides, in part:

That the third Sunday in May each year be, and hereby is, set aside as State of America, has called upon all State, Federal Local and officials to issue Proclamations designating Sunday, May 18, 1941, as "I AM AN AMERICAN DAY".

NOW, THEREFORE, I, COHEN E. STAPP, Mayor of the City of Clanton, Alabama, do hereby designate Sunday, May 18, 1941, as "I AM AN American Day" and that the President of the United States is hereby authorized and requested to issue annually a proclamation setting aside that day as a public occasion for the recognition of all who, by coming of age or naturalization, have attained the status of citizenship, and the day shall be designated as "I Am An American Day".

That the civil and educational authorities of States, counties, cities, and to make plans for the proper observance of it, and they are hereby, urged towns of this day and for the full instruction of future citizens of the United States and of the States and localities in which they reside.

WHEREAS, FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, President of the United States, has proclaimed this day as "I AM AN AMERICAN DAY" and urge that this day be observed as a public occasion in recognition of our citizens who have attained their majority or who have been naturalized within their civil, and educational organizations. And I do call upon all patriots to join in exercises, calculated to impress upon all our citizens, both native born and naturalized, the special significance of citizenship in this City.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the City to be affixed.

DONE at the City of Clanton this 5th day of May, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and forty-one, the one hundred and sixty-fifth—COHEN E. STAPP (SEAL)—By the Mayor.

SECOND BAPTIST CHURCH

Our revival begins this Sunday in June. Rev. Kenneth Latta from Birmingham will be doing the preaching. We will probably have a two-weeks revival. Everybody has a cordial invitation to attend.

Rev. J. L. Thomas of WSGN Birmingham will be preaching here next Saturday night, May 10. Be sure to hear him if you want to hear some good old-time gospel preaching.

Mound Indians' Culture Enigma

Smithsonian Scientist Says The Tribe Disappeared Before Columbus.

WASHINGTON.—A full flowering civilization, not essentially inferior to that of the Aztecs in Mexico or the Mayas in Yucatan, vanished without a trace in North America, probably a few generations before the first landing of Columbus. This is the conclusion of Frank Setzler, head curator of anthropology of the Smithsonian Institution.

His thesis was constructed from such scattered clues as are available in the history of the Hopewells, mound builders of the Ohio and Upper Mississippi valleys.

From the results of more than a century of research, Setzler explained in a study published by the institution, a tentative picture can be drawn of the ways of life of this mysterious people.

Construction of the large mounds, the surrounding earthworks and the hundreds of smaller mounds, he said, clearly required a dense population and a well co-ordinated society. This population must have had some social organization.

Extensive Farming Needed.

"Hunting and fishing, no doubt, were of some importance as evidenced by barbaque jaws and other fish remains and by the representation of birds and animals in realistic pottery pipes," Setzler said. "But even though direct evidence of maize is lacking, the practice of extensive horticulture must be admitted, because it alone could have supported the large population aggregates in which the Hopewell people obviously lived."

"The specific form of government organization cannot be known, but certainly some regulation was indicated by the great communal work. I incline to deduce, from the widespread influence of these people, that if a select ruling class existed, they dominated a large portion of the Mississippi valley. Possibly their political organization was a northern extension of the system that prevailed in Mexico and Yucatan, although very different in details. They were identified with Mexican deities. Copper head ornaments and colored woven garments decorated the fresh-water pearls and mica suggest insignia of authority. At least persons with such attire would be set apart."

Seen as Race Apart.

This strange civilization, Setzler believes was result of impact of two peoples, probably without definite conquest by either. A survey of the field shows the same culture, but in a simpler form, in the Lower Mississippi valley and around the Gulf coast. It appears to have moved northward until it came in contact with a more primitive but apparently vigorous and progressive people.

Then, perhaps by conquest and perhaps by absorption, the inventive energy and the Northern Indians and the complex social organization and religious system of the migrants from the South were amalgamated—greatly to the improvement of both.

No clue has been uncovered, Setzler said, which permits the dating of this development more closely than sometime between the beginning of the Christian era and the coming of Columbus. There certainly were no Hopewells left when the first white hunters and traders came into the Ohio valley, for not a single artifact of European manufacture has been found in the region. In fact, the country was then inhabited by woodland Indians who had no memory of their predecessors, or even legends concerning them.

Fish Order Is Destroyed By Use of Antiseptic Ice

SEATTLE, WASH.—An antiseptic ice which destroys fish order is hailed by Puget Sound fishermen as one of the major developments in their industry.

The ice, laboratory experiments showed, reduced bacteria count to a little more than 1 per cent of the usual quota.

It was estimated north Pacific fishermen will use about 500,000 tons of the newly developed ice next year.

Coughs Up Tax Token

With Swallowed Penny
SALT LAKE CITY.—Dr. David E. Ostler, Richfield, Utah, reported this one in a letter to the state tax commission.

A worried mother took her four-year-old son to Dr. S. B. Rigby at Fairview, Utah. The boy had swallowed a penny.

Suddenly the lad coughed and up came the penny, accompanied by a retail sales tax token.

Pilgrims' Descendants

Believed to Total 10,000

BOSTON.—When the Eddy family met here in reunion to celebrate the 30th anniversary of the landing at Plymouth of John and Samuel Eddy, they estimated the descendants of these two Pilgrims numbered more than 10,000.

John Eddy was a founder of Watertown. Samuel Eddy was one of the purchasers of Middleboro from the Indians.

Swimmer Finds Teeth

Lost in Lake 5 Years

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Daniel Rhodes lost his false teeth while swimming in near-by Lake Catherine five years ago.

Over a recent week-end he went swimming again in the same lake and found his erstwhile plates. Rhodes didn't think they would be much use to him now. An oyster had anchored itself in the superstructure of the bridgework.

Girl Fully Matured Adult at Age of 5

Her Mind Is Normal, But Her Wits Are Keener.

HOUSTON, TEXAS.—A five-year-old girl, frustrated from an accident of nature into a fully developed adult, is testing the ingenuity of medical specialists.

The case recalled that of the Peruvian child who became a mother of the same age last year.

The Houston girl's rare development was discovered February 5 after she was taken as a private patient to Dr. Karl Karnaky here.

Dr. Karnaky diagnosed the trouble as resulting from an early development of the sex glands, one of which there are only 10 recorded cases in children under 10 years old.

Removal of the tumor usually arrests the development, and the child's condition gradually reverts to normal. The same operation was performed on the Houston girl, and specimens were sent to Duke University. After more than 600 laboratory tests, during which 12 other medical schools participated in consultation and research, a new diagnosis was made.

It was discovered that all the girl's glands were overdeveloped; that she had reached full organic development when she was only two years old.

So far as Dr. Karnaky knows, there is no cure for the case, but he said, "we are still studying it and treatment has not been decided upon."

The girl's mind remains that of a normal five-year-old.

"However," said Dr. Karnaky, "she is more alert than children of her age. She is cleverer, her memory is better and she thinks faster than her playmates."

The child's physical development, while not that of a grown woman, also is abnormal. She is as tall as her 10-year-old sister—4½ feet—and weighs 75 pounds. Her father is a lumberer residing about 20 miles from Houston.

Dr. Karnaky said he believed the only other recorded case of this nature was that of the South American child. He said he would report the case to the American Medical Journal.

Shabby Old Lady Gives

$7,000 to Coast Charity

SAN FRANCISCO.—If it weren't for the $7,000 in currency, and the fact that the little old lady in the shabby coat was seen twice, Mark Cotton, of the community chest organization, says he'd think he dreamed this story.

The old lady came in last July. Attendants looked at her pityingly, and sought to guide her to the adjustment bureau for personal help. She insisted on seeing Mr. Cotton.

"I've just liquidated my assets," she told him. "I find that after taking off enough to make care of myself a little left over."

She pulled an envelope from the depths of her bag, and drew out $5,000 bills and 10 $50 bills.

"I've been a widow and old people," she said.

She wouldn't give her name.

Recently, she returned. Doors were opened with alacrity. She turned over 40 $100 bills, said it was "for the needy," and again refused to tell who she was.

"It's not important that you know who I am," Mr. Cotton said she announced, with reality. "It's not important that anyone know who I am. It's enough that God knows."

Pulp Process Will Use

Up Douglas Fir Waste

SEATTLE.—Douglas fir waste, heretofore considered impractical for conversion into woodpulp, may soon find a broad market.

University of Washington scientists announced that Douglas fir can be pulped on a commercial basis, with a tear strength twice as great as that of hemlock pulp.

A sodium sulfite process was used in experiments, and it was discovered 90 per cent of the chemicals used may be regenerated for more use.

Pacific Northwest lumbermen viewed the announcement as an aid to stabilization of the log market and a conservation measure.

Melon Tossed at Auto

Causes Death of Rancher

MODESTO, CALIF.—Mrs. Earl Baldwin was driving her well-to-do rancher husband to a doctor's office for treatment for a heart ailment. Occupants of a wagon threw a watermelon at the Baldwin auto.

A piece of melon struck the windshield.

Baldwin, 52 years old, gasped, clutched at his chest, and died.

SOUTHERN BAPTIST CONVENTION TO BE IN BIRMINGHAM NEXT WEEK

When Southern Baptists go to Birmingham next week, this will be the 96th year of the Southern Baptist Convention and the 53 meeting for Women's Missionary Union.

The opening session of the W. M. U. meeting will be held on Monday evening, May 12 and the last session will close by 1:00 on Wednesday the 14th. The Baptist convention will assemble at 2:40 of the same day in the same auditorium. All sessions will be held in the Municipal Auditorium which has a seating capacity of 6,000. Registrations will begin Monday at 8:30 a.m.

Of peculiar interest to the great host of people who attend these sessions will be the Southwide Women's Missionary Union headquarters in the heart of Birmingham. The influence of this great Baptist agency permeates the life of Birmingham and extends around the world. There are three missionary magazines which go out from these offices every month to a combined 150,000 subscribers. The oldest of these magazines is Royal Service of which Miss Kathleen Mallory is managing editor. Royal Service has the largest monthly circulation of any magazine mailed through the Birmingham postoffice.

The general theme of the W. M. U. meeting will be "Fellowship in Furtherance of the Gospel". This thought will be developed in the five sessions which center around the home, the community, the South and the world.

Among speakers will be Mrs. J. M. Dawson, of Waco, Texas; Mrs. S. Abernethy, of Washington, D. C.; Lawrence of Atlanta; Dr. Charles E. Maddry, of Richmond.

Saturday night, May 17, is Brotherhood Hour at the Southern Baptist Convention. This is one night the auditorium will be open to all the men. It is expected that a special train bringing the laymen will come from Birmingham for that meeting and a huge motorcade from Chattanooga are coming to this mass meeting.

POSTMASTER THANKS RURAL PATRONS

Postmaster and other employees of the postoffice thank the rural patrons for their cooperation in rural mail box improvement as most of the patrons of the rural routes have responded to the request. It is hoped that the remaining few that have not cooperated will do so at an early date.

MT. PLEASANT P.T. A.

The Mt. Pleasant P.T. A. meets Friday afternoon of this week at the school house at 2 o'clock. All members are urged to attend.

U. S. Savings Bonds Go On Sale Here May 1

The United States Defense Savings Bonds and Postal Savings Stamps were placed on sale in the main Post Office at the opening of business on Thursday, May 1, as part of the national effort to make America impregnable.

Postmaster R. W. Lowe announced today that plans from coast to coast, to its full part at the opening of the savings program. It is expected that the Mayor and other civic leaders will be among the first purchasers of savings bonds and stamps here.

The new Defense Savings Bonds, similar to the familiar "Baby Bonds", of which more than five billion dollars worth have been bought by more than two and a half million Americans since 1935.

Defense Bond may be purchased $10, or thereafter, for $18.75. In ten years, this bond will be worth $25.00. This is an increase of thirty-three and one-third per cent, equal to an annual interest return of 29 per cent, compounded semi-annually. Any time after six days from the date of purchase, the bond may be redeemed for cash, in accordance with a table of redemption values printed on the face of the bond.

The bonds are in denominations of $25, $50, $100, $500, and $1,000, all of which are sold for 75 per cent of their maturity value and all of which mature in ten years.

For smaller investors who want to buy a Government Bond on an easy payment plan the post office will have a new series of Postal Savings Stamps at 10c, 25c, 50c, $1, and $5. Each purchaser of any Savings Stamp higher than 10c will be given, free of charge, an attractive pocket album in which to paste his stamps until he has enough to buy a $25 bond or one of higher denomination.

Secretary Mongeau has said that even a boy or girl who saved 10c to buy a Savings Stamp would help the country. He added that "you can't guard your own money and your own future, while helping the national defense, by buying United States Savings Bonds, now."

ISABELLA SENIOR CLASS TO PRESENT PLAY

The Senior Class of Isabella High School will present their play, "Betty's Millionaire", in the school auditorium on Friday evening, May 9th at eight o'clock.

The cast of players is as follows:

Betty, who wants to marry a millionaire—Ethel Mae Johnson; Peter, who is the millionaire—William Oden; Sam Palmer, Peter's secretary—Will Ratliff; Sue Weatherbee, Peter's cousin and Betty's friend—Eva Craney; Nancy Fletcher, a friend of Betty's—Glenn Oden; Nora, the maid—Louise Oden; the evangelist—Brendlinger; a romantic old girl—Louise Chambers; August Winslow, staying at Ocean Breeze for his health—Joe Green; Little Daniels, an architect—Will Dean Ratliff; Shadders Atterbury, proprietor of Ocean Breeze—Jack Tucker.

The action takes place rapidly in the lobby of Ocean Breeze Hotel and swimmer meeting. Betty, a simple girl, is determined to marry a millionaire. Sue and Nancy plan to trick her by getting Sam Palmer, a secretary to pose as a millionaire and at the same time Peter Adams, the millionaire, plays the part of a secretary. The play is further enriched by the love affair of Mrs. Brendlinger.

This is the last play to be presented at Isabella this season. Don't fail to see it if you want to see good, clean entertainment. Admission will be 10c and twenty-five cents.

NEW SALEM

We had a wonderful day here last Sunday. A good program was rendered by members of the Sunday school illustrating the life and resurrection of Jesus Christ. It was a home-coming day too, for a great number of old church members came home.

We also had a good singing. The leaders for the afternoon were: Dock Harris, Ralph Grant, Luther Grant, Posey Cleeley, O. L. Devaughn, B. L. Cobb Lee Grant, Lige Glascock, Sam Burkhalter, Hiram Littlejohn, and Thomas Childress. Pianists were Mrs. Roye Emogene Lowery, Eason Madox, Ralph Grant and Mrs. Earl Lowery. Special songs were rendered by the Liberty Hill quartet and Trio, Alabama Four quartet and a solo rendered by Mr. Ralph Grant.

"Y. W. A. MEETS"

The Y. W. A. met at the church Monday night with Edith Arnold presiding. The meeting was opened by singing "Open Mine Eyes". The devotion was conducted by Mrs. O. A. Davis led in prayer. Business chairman, Mary Carr Arnold took charge. The title was "Christian Youth in America".

Those contributing to an interesting program were Bertelle Holmes, Martha Massey, Katherine Hoover, and Dorothy Arnold. Edith Arnold read a letter from Mrs. F. W. Armstrong to the Young Women of America. The meeting was closed by singing "Give of Your Best To The Master". Delicious refreshments were served by Sylvia Miller and the meeting adjourned to meet next Monday night.

MOTHER'S DAY MEMORIES

In loving memory of our darling mother, Mrs. G. M. Hamrick, who left us April 2nd.

Blessed is the memory of the voice we never hear. But sweet is the echo that still is ringing in our ears with sweet thoughts which never grow old. The God has a purpose in his will, one beautiful day He'll unfold—The children.

REV. CASADAY ASKS CHURCH ATTENDANCE ON MOTHER'S DAY

Sunday May 11, is Mother's Day and Rev. T. C. Casaday, of the Clanton Methodist church is working hard for a full house on that day. Rev. Casaday thinks that the best way in which all of us can honor our mother on that day is by attending church. All members and others who will are urged to come to church Sunday.

FOLKS 'N THINGS

ABOUT TOWN

By Ben

A letter comes to your desk: Chilton County News.

Friends:

We were trying to show any appreciation of the many kind letters we have received from our friends. We intend to look after our local friends and give them a nice quart of berries, already stemmed, saying that if we gave berries with them you might not have any left to stem them.

Anyway, please accept the berries as appreciation of the many kind letters for us in the past for which we are very grateful.

Yours very truly,

CLANTON BERRY GROWERS' ASSOCIATION

Of course, with the letter was a quart of berries mentioned. Mr. Dick R. Roper and Mr. Dennis, we thank you very much. However, you were wrong about the stemming of the berries. The wife says she is an old berry stemmer from way back, having been born in Chilton County and Chilton has been becoming the Strawberry Queen (instead of Cullman) of Alabama and as for us, we came here stemming berries. Anyway, they're jammed each of you have a standing invitation to come and eat strawberry jam with us any time.

Some we left somebody's birthday cake last week... don't recall just who's but seems it was Glennie's... I don't know how old she said she was too late to see, if you were of age at the time of the first World War you would be, let's say...

Did you ever try to find J. E. Eastwood? Well, if you haven't, you can't do it now... we start at the Sterling Wood Pop Station, then call on the Dixie... well, anyway, if you think you'll find him at Hayes Chevrolet Company... then we call 120... that's Hayes Chevrolet Co. J. J. just stepped up to the Cafe, you know... and there... we call "Bulldozers" and there... J. E. just left here he might be at the Dixie... well, anyway, if you can find him on and on and on... it's sometimes, it's fun.

Miss Mary Ellen (Sis) Higgins has moved to California... hope she doesn't forget us... but she probably will. With Robert Taylor and Clarke and others out there to think about. However, we hope she has a wonderful summer and enjoys herself just lots... but we also hope she'll get going to come back to Chilton to see us... then to let us know how she's getting along.

Congratulations! Graduates: May your lives be long and your health good as you learn to take the bitter with the sweet, both of which will be your lot. But in the end, may you accomplish all the many, many things of which you have dreamed since entering the high road twelve years ago. We wish you the best of everything. This is the sincere wish of the entire News staff.

Had a call from our friend Claude on Sunday afternoon. Claude, you know, is in Huntsville now as Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce... now he's the school year is coming to a close, he's moving up there. He's getting ready to get that thing he's humming in that part of the state. Claude says that they are selling their house... a good chance for someone to buy a beautiful place.

Had a good one told on Clyde on the other night... it seems that Clyde and the others were having trouble getting their bab' straightened out as to which was night and which day. Clyde went down to Upchurch Drug Store and was asking the pharmacist. When he read the paper, "Baby's Cry" on the other side he told Doc. "What I want to know, will it STOP babies from crying?"

Chief Nivens says that if people don't start parking on the streets he will be out of a job. After the article was published in the News and after a few weeks ago about the parking on the main streets. Even Saturday when the traffic was heaviest, there was a noticeable scarcity of automobiles on the streets. However, it doesn't make the "Chief" mad because he is one of the fondest things he is of it is to see people obey the law.

Aubrey Teel ranked third in the class with an average of 82 per cent.

SCOUT CAMPOREE

Last Friday night was a big night for the Boy Scouts of Clanton and Thorsby, when they attended the Annual Scout Camporee in Montgomery.

About one thousand Scouts of the district attended, the Friday night contest. All troops were given a chance to compete in all contests, which consisted of knot tying, chariot races, water-boiling, signaling and other handicraft known as Boy Scouts.

At the conclusion a grand finale was held in Crampton Bowl, equal to three ring circus. In about five minutes the Scouts had gathered in the middle of the Bowl and had constructed remove-displays. One troop raised a large tent, another built a fire, and maneuvered as Indians and danced around the fire.

Below is a list of the Scouts who were in the middle of the Bowl and had constructed remove-displays. One troop raised a large tent, another built a fire, and maneuvered as Indians and danced around the fire.

AUTOMOBILE STOLEN

The car of Wilbur Littleton was stolen last week and was recovered by Highway Patrolmen Probert and Glass. The culprit is still at large, however, the Patrolmen are still working on the case.

A Tall Tale From Out Bethsalem Way

Centerville sportsmen were all in the air last week about the 360 pound dog that was found in the mud over there, and we'll admit, that was a piece of meat, but Albert Broadhead of Bethsalem community near Billingsley, tells this "Black Cat Story", now you be the judge.

As the story got around to the News, it was almost too "bogged out" to enjoy his dish. But after relaxing for a moment, he looked up at Mr. Broadhead very cunningly and asked, "got any salt?" No salt. He proceeded with his dish. When finished, he very politely (and gently) set down his dish and asked Albert plotted a round, then looked up and asked, "have you got any more?"

They declare it's the truth.

"Bob" Connell of Refuge community tells this one on himself. He'll vouch for it.

It was last winter, he suddenly decided he wanted to go hunting. So he did. After walking (hunting for squirrels) until he was almost exhausted, he decided he would shoot a hawk that lit in a tree near him rather than go home blank. Standing on the side of the creek, he fired away. The shot killed the hawk; the hand grip fell on a rabbit; the barrel killed a snake; he was kicked back into the creek and caught a trout while sleeping; his hat was blown off and across the creek covered a covey of quails. He's eat enough salt telling this one to salt away most any fish story for good.

Miss Ruth Stephens of Troy was home for the week.

Mrs. P. M. Moore is visiting her daughter in Chattanooga.

There are only 98 peaches in a bushel averaging three inches in diameter. Which is the easier and cheaper to pick and pack, a bushel containing 293 peaches or a bushel containing 98 peaches?

One thousand peaches will pack 3.4 bushels of peaches averaging two in. in diameter and 10.2 bushels of peaches averaging three inches in diameter, which of the above had you rather produce?

It requires 1,172 peaches averaging two inches in diameter on one tree to produce four bushels of peaches, requires only 392 peaches on one tree averaging three inches in diameter to produce four bushels of peaches. From this, do you think thinking peaches will do you any good?

It is expected that only good quality peaches will sell for a profit this year. If we are to produce this type peach, we need to thin our present crop and to follow a complete spray schedule.

For further information on the above see or write your County Agent.

PRIMARY EXAMINATIONS FOR FUTURE FLIERS

The Civil Aeronautics Authority will hold written examinations at the Chilton County High School for the prospective aviators who have been in training for the past few months on Tuesday night, May 27th at 7:00. High officials will be in Clanton to conduct the examinations and more than forty young men will compete.

The ten students making the highest grades will start at once on their flight training. Charles Wade is instructor.

Roadhouse Operator Killed After Being Called From Bed

Johnnie Speer, age 36 and operator of a road house near the Chilton-Autauga County line, in Chilton County, was fatally wounded by shot gun fire last Thursday night, between 12:30 and 1:00 o'clock. The source from which the gun was fired and the motif of the slaying, is still unknown, although Warren H. and Jaffie S. Jones, brothers and sons of Joe Berry Jones of Coopers, are being held in the county jail, after confessing to the county officers complicity or knowledge of the crime, awaiting the preliminary hearing which will be held in the near future.

According to information released by Sheriff W. G. Culp, Highway Patrolmen, Probert and Glass and Leroy Martin, who investigated the case, and who worked on the case almost continuously from 1:30 o'clock Friday night until 9:00 o'clock Saturday night, the facts regarding the gruesome crime are:

Shortly after midnight Thursday around 12:30 to 1:00 o'clock, a car stopped in front of Speer's place of business and raved the motor as if they wanted gas. Speer, in some few hundred yards away, got up and went down to the station, according to Speer's wife. Soon a gun shot was heard and Mrs. Speer rushed down to the scene to find her husband lying on the ground dying, while the automobile carrying the killer, or killers, sped away into darkness. According to Leroy Martin, who was immediately summoned to the scene, the load from the shot gun entered Speer's right lung, causing instant death.

Highway Patrolmen and County officers were summoned to the scene, where they began their chase, following automobile tracks in that section of the county. The search of the "phantom" killer continued until 9:00 Friday morning when Warren Jones, accompanied by his father, Joe Berry Jones, of Coopers, came to Clanton where they began their chase, following automobile tracks in that section of the county. The search of the "phantom" killer continued until 9:00 Friday morning when Warren Jones, accompanied by his father, Joe Berry Jones, of Coopers, came to Clanton where they began their chase, following automobile tracks in that section of the county.

On Friday night, Jaffie Jones, brother of Warren, likewise had started to Clanton to surrender, when officers picked him up and placed him in jail with his brother. The car in which they believed the boys were riding, and which showed blood stains, was brought in by officers and placed under surveillance charges. Meanwhile, a 12-gauge shot gun was found in the creek near Verbena, allegedly to have been thrown in to cover evidence. The stock part of the gun was taken from the creek near Verbena by Deputy Sheriff Littlejohn Friday afternoon after being discovered sticking in the mud by Isaac Cox. The barrel was found a few hundred yards away, likewise, thrown in the creek.

All evidence is being held by officers pending the preliminary hearing. Speer's body was buried at Harmony (Continued to Page Eight)

THORSBY YOUTH EMPLOYED AFTER NYA TRAINING

Warren C. Benson of Thorsby, Alabama is one of more than 45 youth to obtain a job after receiving work experience under the National Youth Administration in Alabama.

Warren is now employed at the Ft. McClellan Submarine Office. He received the necessary experience to get a job at Fort McClellan and lived at the NYA resident project at Jacksonville a few miles from the Fort. He is doing clerical work.

Miss Ruth Stephens of Troy was home for the week.

Mrs. P. M. Moore is visiting her daughter in Chattanooga.

BETTER PEACHES FOR CHILTON

From all indications a bumper crop of peaches has been set not only in Chilton County but in all other peach growing sections. This means that a large volume of peaches will be available for markets this year. If Chilton County peach growers are to realize profit from this year's crop, our peaches must be as good or better than the peaches marketed from other sections.

Any individual peach tree will produce only a certain number of bushels of large peaches as long as the soil and fertilized trees will produce more peaches than non-fertilized trees. If there are a large number of peaches on a tree, the peaches will be small. If there are not so many peaches on a tree, the peaches will be large.

It is possible to produce as many bushels of peaches with a small number of large peaches as with a larger number of small peaches.

Peaches sell on the market by their size and color. A large peach with a good color will usually sell much easier

During 1941 Chilton County Should Double Its Production of Beef and Dairy Cattle, Hogs, Poultry, Mules, Sheep and Goats. Strawberry, Peach and Potato Production Should Be Increased One-third. At Least A Dozen Small Industries Should Be Located In Chilton County. It Can and Should Be Done.

Mark Remarks:

Pity the poor lout who has to be reminded that he is an American by proclamations of President and Governor.

From the spouting of the Wincheles, the Thompsons, the Peppers, the Willies and the Simonses, one might get the idea that they were the only patriots left in America. Such is not the case, when the fighting starts you will find that whole bunch farthest back of the fighting lines.

The crop prospects throughout Alabama are the finest I have seen in years.

Not being a military genius, I do not know what can be done to aid Britain. But it does seem that whatever is to be done must be done quickly, for, apparently Britain has only about three gasps left—Gibraltar, Suez and Dover.

A good place to place one of these standard-bearers is on a year's subscription to the Chilton County News.

The University Highway map issued by the State Highway Department and printed in a recent issue of Chilton County News, shows the University Highway intersecting Alabama 22 at Maplesville. I have heard rumors from several sources during the past few days that State engineers say the highway is to intersect No. 22 about two miles below Maplesville. If these rumors are correct, the effort to deceive the people of Maplesville in order to get their endorsement of the proposed highway will be resented by the people of Chilton County generally.

There is nothing that Chilton county needs worse right now than a bridge over the Coosa river.

A highway from Maplesville to Spott in Perry County would not only serve a large territory, but it would shorten the distance to points west many miles.

EDITORIAL TALK

They say Bibb Graves has never carried DeKalb County for Governor. Well, you just watch him next year. They are talking draft Graves for a third term.—Ft. Payne Journal.

We can't help sometimes but envy those editors in South Alabama who are getting the nice big Alabama Power advertisements, for we know how it used to help out with the payroll. We sure do miss it too.—Collinsville New Era.

The political pot has already started boiling in Attalla—that is from the talk concerning the candidacy of Bibb Graves for Governor in the coming election. Of course, Mr. Graves has not announced his intentions but from the editorials from all over the state, this is going to be a kind of "Draft Bibb The Builder for a Third Term."—Attalla Press.

GRAVES GETS THE BALLYHOO—

There is one political question on which it seems that just about 99 per cent of the voters are agreed . . . that is, "Bibb Graves will be elected Governor of Alabama next year."

Thus far there have been those who opposed Graves' going back to the chief executive office of the state, but there have been ever so few who dare to say that he cannot be elected if he enters the race.

Last week, Grandma's Atticus Mullin, famed for his non-support of Graves in former days, burst forth with a staggering challenge addressed to anti-Graves forces, and what is to "wake up" and get to hunting votes. Says Atticus: "If there is to be a real candidate against Graves that candidate will have to go about the State hunting single birds pretty soon because all of the coveys will be in the Graves bag, and the birds will be less such a candidate gets busy mighty quick. The group votes are lighting and that rapidly. And it takes groups to elect. Single shots can't do it."

But friend Atticus might well have added that chances of anyone seeking his office seem as opponent to Graves are growing smaller and smaller and it looks like now that the Colonel will be unopposed for the high office.—Cullman Banner.

Baldwin County has a Potato Festival. Cullman is going all out for a Strawberry Festival. And what is the matter with Chilton having a Peach Festival? We are going to have more and better peaches than any other county in the state.—Chilton County News.

How 'bout giving us a break. We are going to have a Rhododendron Festival May 23 and 24? DeKalb County really worked them up last year. We want you to come up this time, Mark.

NO DARK HORSE NEEDED

Alabama, the news magazine of the South, seems to be worried about a dark horse being thrown into the governor's race next year to stop Col. Bibb Graves whom it says, expects to destroy the merit system and otherwise hamper the advances made in the last two years.

Now who advances could it be talking about except the expenditures of the state administration?

There's no need Hubert, to get bothered about this because The Little Colonel has the race in the bag now and as good a politico as you should be after years of experience that you have had you should know it by now, despite the Peach and Sparks push you and Fred-Taylor continue to give.

It is too obvious why boys knock Alabama's best governor whose third term is assured, if he wants it. Time will tell, Hubert, even you.—Franklin County Progress.

Looks like our friend Giles has everything figured out. A fine point and it cannot be that he is right.—Cullman Banner.

We notice in the Chilton County News where publisher Mark Tucker has toured around over north Alabama and he finds the majority of the folks and also the newspaper publishers are for Bibb Graves for our next Governor. We have also traveled around quite a bit and we find that same opinion.—Sunter County Journal.

We'd bet Einstein, who discovered the theory of relativity, is the only man who understands the expanding national debt.—Greene County Democrat.

Former Gov. Graves was shown another signal honor by President Roosevelt last week when he was named a member of the important advisory committee to make a survey of the nation's highways in connection with the National Defense program. Six others compose the committee which will give serious study to the question. Gov. Graves is an engineer of ability and his long military experience peculiarly fit him for the work on the committee.—Limestone Democrat.

NEARLY UNANIMOUS—

Nearly everyone concedes that a man by the name of Graves, seems like his name is Bibb Graves, is talking of making a race for Governor next year. The name seems familiar and it may be that the young fellow, whoever he is, will make a fair showing in next year's primaries, might get in the run off and make it hard on some good man. We hear that he has good connections in some parts of the state and is a man with potential possibilities as a politician. If he runs we would like to see him, see what he looks like, hear something about the philosophy of his new career and compare his promises with old-time seasoned office seekers running at large over the state.—Moulton Advertiser.

It appears that the "Bibb Graves for Governor" fever is spreading rapidly over Alabama, though the primary is not to be until next Spring.—Ft. Payne Journal.

Editor Ben Tucker of the Chilton County News pulled this one on Cullman County:

This is the height of something or other. We saw a truck in Clanton last week waiting for a truck load of strawberries. Of course there are a lot of trucks in town now waiting for strawberries, but this truck was from all places—Cullman . . . and Cullman claims to be the strawberry center of the South.—Greene County Democrat.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. D. HASKEW, D. D.

The soldiers of France had been fighting hard all day and at night they fell upon their napasaks to sleep, while some of their pals walked as sentinel in the midnight hours. Bonaparte was stroking his men and came upon a sentinel who was fast asleep on duty. Napoleon stooped and gently removed the man's gun from his hands and started to walking his place. After some time the sleeping soldier opened his eyes and realized that he had been asleep. Just then Bonaparte walked up and the soldier was frightened beyond measure. He saluted and stammered, "O, General, I am a ruined man!" Napoleon then placed his gun back in his hands and replied, "Be at peace, you are a brave soldier, but you were tired and the secret is ours. In a moment the man was alone at his post. No man ever had a more sympathetic friend than Jesus Christ. Sometimes we become weary and fail to meet the requirements to the letter of the law, but Jesus never fails to understand.

I had a heart to talk with an old experienced engineer. This faithful servant of the rail road system had pulled his train many a mile in the light of the noonday sun and in the midnight darkness. He told me that the most sublime hours in all of his life was when he pulled his train in the face of a storm in the midnight darkness. He said that his headlight was dim and did not shine for down the track but that his engine split the darkness and thundered on. Then this grand old man lifted himself an inch taller and remarked, "Parson, that is life. The grandest travel ailed the King's life. As to heaven, is when we are pushing on with faith and trust in the very face of the storms of life." Yes, we have much travel on this track of life when we are in a storm and all we have is the Light of Jesus Christ to shine upon our way. Is Christ your light?

The war vessel, Pirkhead, was out in mid-ocean with five hundred passengers on board. The ship was fatally injured and was going down. All the soldiers were drawn up on deck and stood at attention, while the women and children were loaded in life boats. Not a sound came from the soldiers as the last load of passengers cleared the sinking ship. The men obeyed their orders and not a word of complaint. Even so our Christ gave up His life for us. Jesus died that we might live. As a ship is dumb when it is being carried to slaughter, so Christ opened not His mouth. What a wonderful Savior is He.

It was Christmas time and we were crowding our way through the station gate to take a late train. The man at the gate was being jostled about but he insisted that each passenger show his ticket. Some swore and others growling as they had to produce their tickets before passing. On reaching the gate I handed him my ticket and remarked, "Captain, you do not seem to be very popular with this crowd." The gateman then lifted his eyes toward the office of the president of the road and said, "Parson, I do not care about being popular with this crowd, but I do want to stay popular with the man up there." Preachers and laymen are trying hard to be popular with the throngs who rush us and jostle us along the way. Listen to me, it is far better to do our duty and live so that we can be popular with the Christ who owns everything. Are you popular with Jesus?

The vessel was nearing a rocky shore and struck an uplifted crack. The ship went down and a lone sailor found the edge of a crack that was just below the waters edge. He clung to it for hours and finally the tide went down and the tired sailor climbed on the rock to rest and wait for rescue. He was picked up and soon was safe on shore. "Say Jim" asked his friend, "Didn't you shake and tremble with fear as you held on to that rock?" "Yes, but the rock didn't," was the significant reply of Jim. You asked me if I have ever been afraid in this old stormy world? Have you ever trembled as you battled with the waves of life? Yes, I have. Many a time I have been afraid to almost an inch of my life, but thank God, the Rock Christ Jesus, to whom I held by faith never trembled. He was never afraid. Christ is the Rock of Ages the same yesterday, today and forever. If you are afraid, cling to Him. He was never moved with fear.

NOTICE to Alabama Power Co. Urban Residential Customers

SOME months ago we asked our customers for suggestions. Many were received. Each suggestion was carefully studied by the department affected and, where possible, was put into effect. Others, involving possible changes, required longer study.

One of the suggestions was that arrangements be made for an urban area—where you live, work or transacted business—to telephone our office and give the necessary information such as your name, the address at which service is to be started or be discontinued, and the fact this is desired. We are glad to give you some advance notice of our new service to you. We are now establishing your service at the new location of the time you request.

THIS WEEK IN NATIONAL DEFENSE

OPM Associate Director Hillman held his press conference he was drafting the plans with the AFL and CIO for a four-hill day, 160-hour week for all defense industries able to use extra labor. Mr. Hillman said the plan provided a cut-down of production only on Sundays from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. to repair machines. He recommended that defense industries pay a bonus to workers who voluntarily forego vacations.

Labor Disputes
The War Department announced that only three one-hundredths of one percent of the total time worked has been lost because of labor troubles on its $1,200,000,000 construction program.

Administrative Strains in the U. S. Housing Authority reported "work has not been delayed by a single hour by a single strike on any defense housing built by USHA."

Aid To Democracies
President Roosevelt, directing "whatever action is needed" to speed the production of heavy bombers, said in a letter to War Secretary Stimson that command of the air by the democracies must be achieved even if it means "a great strain on our production effort." The President, requesting the Department of Agriculture to establish an Office of Agricultural Defense Relations, wrote Secretary Wickard that "the most vital operating functions of agriculture in the defense program first, the guarantee of an adequate supply of food for . . . this nation and those nations whose defense is essential to the defense of this country; second, the provisions of sufficient agricultural raw materials for expanded defense production."

Production Effort
Production Director John D. Biggers, speaking in Philadelphia, said defense contractors must apply "every known technique, every practical pressure for speeding production." Defense Purchases Director Donald M. Nelson, speaking in Washington, said "we have got to begin to realize once and for all that we are in a real life-or-death emergency—not just a make-believe one."

Production Progress
Speaking in Detroit, Mr. Glancy, OPM Ordnance Director, said the military plane program is on schedule with "our combat planes surpassed by none;" the naval program is "generally ahead of schedule;" and many army and navy air fields and bases are "well ahead of schedule." OPM reported 1,427 military planes manufactured in April—a new record.

Army-Navy
The War Department announced the Army's largest peace-time maneuvers will begin May 24 in California and continue throughout the summer and fall in various parts of the nation until regulars and trainees are schooled in the most advanced methods of modern warfare. The Army opened its fifth recreational camp. It announced that Ed Wynn will appear in the first of a nation-wide series of entertainments at army and navy posts featuring the donated services of screen, stage and radio stars. The Interstate Commerce Commission granted railroad permission to reduce rates to 1.25 cents per mile for personnel of the armed services. The Navy Department announced 4,900 college graduates would be enlisted in Class V-7 of the naval reserve for training officers.

Selective Service
Selective Service Headquarters announced that registrants who cannot pass fourth grade reading and writing tests will be declared unfit for military duty. Headquarters also advised local boards to defer medical students "who give reasonable promise" of becoming doctors, to encourage doctors and interns to apply for Army Medical Reserve Corps commissions, and to see that no doctor necessary to his community is called for service.

Defense Financing
President Roosevelt asked Congress for a tax bill "which will convince the country the national defense program is not going to make the rich richer and the poor poorer." The President asked for legislation "aimed at making the Federal revenue system evasion proof and so devised that every individual and every corporation will bear its fair share." Treasury Secretary Morgenthau reported defense savings stamps and bonds are selling so fast the Bureau of Engraving has to work Saturdays and Sundays to keep up with demands.

Consumers and Defense
Defense Purchases Director Nelson speaking in Cincinnati, called on consumers to aid in keeping prices down by refraining from "excess buying" and hoarding because of rumors of shortages. He also advised consumers to be suspicious of price increases, to find out in price increases are really necessary and "exercise your natural right to say 'no' once a while."

FARMERS URGED TO HOLD COTTON AT 15.87 CENTS

I. W. Duggan, chief of the Southern AAA Administration, Washington, D. C., urged the cotton farmers of the South to refuse to sell their 1941 cotton for less than parity prices.

Conferring with AAA Committee-men, Mr. Duggan cited the increasing costs of things that farmers buy and the increase in mill margins for manufacturing cotton into cloth, and prophesied that growers hold their loan equities and 1941 cotton for the parity price of 15.87 cents per pound. The average farm price during March was 9.72 cents, he said.

ALABAMA WANTS BIBB GRAVES FOR GOVERNOR AGAIN

(By FRANK NUNNELEE)

Being an article taken from "The Builder" Weekly, edited "Graves the Builder" appointed for Southern States—position of great responsibility."

Some men are called by destiny to a certain niche in the scheme of things; and they fit their place so well that they do them better than without seeming to tire at the work. Governor Bibb Graves of Alabama is one of those men. He has been most aptly called "The Builder." During his term as Governor of Alabama, he has made considerable work as to roads, bridges and public buildings; and the Governor the state ever had. During his last administration, more than four hundred millions of federal dollars came into Alabama, largely as a result of his efforts and cooperation with the Roosevelt administration.

And now Governor Graves has been called to serve on the highly important Interregional Highway Committee. The full personnel of the Highway Committee consists of seven members, whose names and region of residence are as follows:

Thomas H. McDonald, Commissioner of Public Roads; G. Donald Kennedy, Michigan Highway Commissioner; Bibb Graves, former Governor of Alabama; C. H. Purcell, California Highway Engineer; Fredric A. Delahou, Chairman National Resources Planning Board; Harland Bartholomew, City Planner, St. Louis, Mo.; and Rexford G. Tugwell, Chairman of New York Planning Commission.

Governor Graves is the only man from the South to be called to serve upon this Committee, and it can be noted from the above list, he is the only one who holds no remunerative position while serving in this important capacity.

Governor Graves, as a member of the Agricultural Advisory Committee, another important position, will also work there without salary. Governor Graves recognizes the urgency of the moment for interregional transportation; he will strive without stint of thought and effort, to plan for Alabama, the state which he loves and has served so well in positions of high honor.

Governor Graves working for more and better highways, declares that he will, in the meantime, remember the farmers through whose broad acres the roads will wind their way. He is deeply interested in the future of agriculture. Many men are thinking of preparedness in an emergency of war, forgetting the farmer, from and through whose labor and sweat will come the food that sustains the populace and the armies through whatever faces us in the coming months.

Colonel Graves told the editor of The Montgomery Weekly, that, through urging preparedness in every way from every source at his command he also feels that a cushion should be placed to offset the slack when the war is finished. If we have adequate highways and plenty of them it is up to us to build now, and in a hurry. And after the trouble of today is passed, those highways will be arteries of trade and travel to a countryside compelled to recuperate from the great effort through which we are now passing.

And Governor Graves believes, that the farmers, if left to be last to benefit from the upsurge of preparedness, might then reasonably be the last to recover from the shock when preparedness and war are ended. He believes that the farmers are still the backbone of the country and there is no least doubt but he will have a keen eye toward the agricultural future as he does for new and more plentiful highways.

Interregional highways, as the name implies, means that all states and sections of the country are to be connected by paved roadways, so that transportation can be effected quickly and with the least effort. It is a plan that will be far-reaching immediately, lasting throughout the years to come. These many benefits can and will grow with the years, and renewed prosperity will be materially assisted by the work of the Interregional Highway Committee.

So, it is seen that Governor Graves recognized by President Roosevelt for his keen brain and willingness to serve, is the only man from the South on this committee. This paper knows ahead of time that the South, and Alabama in particular, will benefit by the efforts of "The Little Colonel." He never lets his state down when called upon to do things for he is "The Builder" working for the happiness and prosperity of his people through sunshine and storm—he seems to never grow weary. This paper congratulates the President upon his wise choice when he placed Governor Graves on the above named committee.

BROODINESS IN HENS COSTLY FOR FARMERS

To break a hen from setting she should be fastened to a coop with a wire or slatted bottom and fed liberally on laying mash, advises D. F. King of the Alabama Experiment Station. King warns not to make the mistake of feeding broody hens up without feed or water. Even rigorous treating a hen does stop her setting the is in no condition to lay again for several weeks. If hens are caught the first night they remain on the nest they can usually be broken from broodiness.

COWPEAS AND SORGHUM GOOD TO FOLLOW OATS

Land in oats or other small grain coming off this month can be put in cowpeas or a combination of cowpeas and sorghum to provide an excellent livestock feed crop that will make in 60-70 days, advises J. C. Grimes, head of the animal husbandry department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Seeding of cowpeas is made at rate of one to two bushels broadcast or five pecks when drilled. If cowpeas and sorghum combination is used, 50 pounds of cowpeas and 20 to 30 pounds of sorghum are used. Whippoorwill is best cowpea for non-wilt sections while on soils infested with cotton wilt Brubrah or Iron are recommended varieties. Texas Seeded and Old October are good sorghum varieties.

Convention Auxiliary to the Southern Baptist Convention held in Birmingham this week. Dr. Geo. W. Truett will speak at the Thursday evening session and Sunday afternoon session.

IN MEMORY

On Monday, May 5th, the death Angel visited our home and called for our midst our son Willie. His going was a shock to us all even though he had all his life been afflicted. He died suddenly on Monday morning after having a very good day on Sunday. He was 38 years of age but due to his afflictions had never been away from home and it seems that we can hardly go on without him even though we know he is much better off than we who are left. We wish to thank everyone for their kindness during this trying experience. Especially our neighbors and friends as well as our pastor and the undertaker together with all those who sent flowers or rendered any help or sympathy. We buried him at Mt. Carmel where our membership is and where we expect to be placed when the Lord is there with us here. He is gone but not forgotten. His influence will live on with us and we feel that he is just a little nearer and dearer to us. Willie is there—Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wilkins.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

The city's newest subway is the final link in the Independent system, first planned 19 years ago, and the total cost of which has been $800,000,000. The Sixth avenue line is short, running only from Fifth street to Fifty-ninth street, yet its cost was $60,000,000, which figures out $4,374 a foot. Construction costs were increased by the fact that it runs under or over six other underground railways that cross its path. Added expense was that while the subway was being dug, the elevated railroad was still running and precautions had to be taken to prevent its collapse. Then, too, for nearly a mile at its northern end, it is only 150 feet above the Catskill aqueduct. New York's underground maze of conduits, wires and pipes didn't make the job less expensive.

At Thirty-fourth street is the largest station. It is 360 feet long, 30 feet wide and 12 feet high, and has three different levels. There are 17 entrances and 18 escalators. Also there is a tunnel above the tracks, much like the enclosed deck of a ship, through which pedestrians may travel from Thirty-fourth street to Forty-second street without coming out into sunshine or bad weather. It's a free tunnel and so, during the Christmas rush with attendant crowds, it did a heavy business. Speaking of business, it is estimated that the new line will carry 40,000,000 passengers during the coming year.

It was the custom of an attractive young business woman, who lives alone high up in a big apartment house, not to complete dressing until after breakfast. But she always did reach out her door to gather in her mail and the newspaper so that she might have something to read while waiting for the coffee to perk. The other morning the newspaper was just out of her reach. Noting there was no one in the hall, she stepped outside. Before she could bend over, the door, equipped with a spring lock, banged shut. And there she stood as if posing for a lingerie ad! The only way to get a pass key was to call the elevator operator and wait while he made a round trip. She was about to do that when something moved her to try the door. It opened readily enough. She hasn't figured out yet when she threw the catch but the newspaper and mail now wait until she is fully clad.

Max Marcin, ex-police reporter who now makes a comfortable living with his "Perfect Crime" and "Crime Doctor" stories, dropping in on the pedestrians to exchange anecdotes with the boys still on the beat. . . In the window of one of those pet shops, a tiny turtle named "Throckmorton". . . Kay Kysler recognized by kids as he crosses Lexington avenue. They yell, "Hi-ya, professor!" . . . Don Voorhees getting himself a chair in the orchestra pit when he visits musicals. . . He's had a conductor's eye-lick of the stage for so long he doesn't feel comfortable anywhere else in the house. . . Jimmy Dorsey, swing maestro, who recently sent 12 of his hottest recordings to the Ramage Hot Jazz club in London. . . They'll be used for entertainment in air-raid shelters.

Al K. Hall is a veteran vaudeville and burlesque comedian who has been on and off Broadway for 25 years. He's never been ashamed of his job although in his career he's entertained in some pretty rough theaters. But Al's kid, a girl, has been growing up. Before he died, he wanted to do something that would make his daughter proud of her daddy. So he sat down and composed a patriotic song called "We Are All Americans." Harry Salter heard it and thought it so good he put Hall on his "Song of Your Life" program, so the comedian could tell his lifelong dream and how it had come true. Even if the song is never published, it won't make any difference to the composer. He feels he has done one thing in his life of which his daughter may be proud.

If you have seen W. C. Fields' latest picture, "The Bank Dick," you may have noticed that the story credit was given to one Mahatma Kane Jeeves. One of this department's Hollywood scouts reports that many folks know that the story was actually written by Fields himself, and a few know how the comic came to choose his pseudonym. If you say the name slowly you will discover that it is really one of Field's favorite off-screen expressions, "My hat, my name, Jeeves." (Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

Colleges Find Demand

Big for Latin Training

KENT, OHIO—Latin, often considered a "dead" language, nevertheless is so popular in colleges that the demand for teachers far exceeds the supply, according to Dr. Lester H. Munzennayer.

"Surveys show that if a student can succeed in Latin or in science he probably will make a success of his entire college program and will do a thorough job of educating himself," said Dr. Munzennayer.

U. S. Distributes Load in Defense

Borrows 'Farming Out' Policy as Now Employed in Great Britain.

WASHINGTON.—Borrowing from British experience, the war department announced today that the policy of "farming out" arms contracts to small firms would be applied vigorously in this country to distribute the defense load as widely as possible.
